PERTH AMBOY BANK IN GRAVE DANGER

Shortage was Larger Than was First Reported.

DIRECTORS MUST ACT ON IT.

BANK EXAMINER SAYS THEY MUST MAKE GOOD OR QUIT.

They Want Time to Decide—Valentine's Account Showed a Shortage of $25,000 in Addition to $7,900 He Took the Day He Ran Away—Edward S. Campbell Permanent Receiver.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Perth Amboy, August 1—The Perth Amboy Savings Institution, of which George M. Valentine was treasurer, may help swell the wreckage caused by the collapse of the Middlesex County Bank, of which he was cashier. It was learned yesterday that the savings institution had been harder hit than has heretofore been suspected.

The deputy bank examiner yesterday called together the directors of the savings institution and gave them information which was a surprise to say the least. He told them that Valentine's accounts with them showed a shortage of $25,000 in addition to the $7,900 which he took with him the day he ran away. The $7,900 has been returned, and Valentine's father has paid over the amount of his son's bond, $15,000.

"The bank examiner has decided," said the deputy examiner, "that before he will consent to the Perth Amboy Savings Institution resuming business you gentlemen will have to make up between you the $10,000 shortage still remaining."

The directors declined to state last night whether they would make up the amount or not. The decision of the bank examiner is final, and if they do not follow his suggestion the bank must close.

Edward S. Campbell, Vice-President of the National Newark Banking Company, was yesterday made permanent receiver of the Middlesex County Bank. Thomas Maguire, the temporary receiver, will today turn over the bank's papers to him. Mr. Maguire said last night that about $110,000 of Valentine's shortage was found in the account of the Middlesex Bank with the Park National Bank of New York. Valentine, he said, would get checks on the New York bank in proper form, payable to himself, for sums of $100 and would raise them, before presenting it, to larger sums. One check, he said, was raised from $100 to $10,000.

Real Warm Weather Rest and Comfort.

There is a powder to be shaken into the shoes called Allen's Foot-Ease, invented by Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y., which druggists and shoe dealers say is the best thing they have ever sold to cure swollen, burning, sore and tender or aching feet. Some dealers claim that it makes tight or new shoes feel easy. It certainly will cure corns and bunions and relieve instantly sweating, hot or smarting feet. Allen's Foot-Ease costs only a quarter, and the inventor will send a sample free to any address.

MARTINE A BRYAN MAN.

SAYS THAT HE BELIEVES THE NEBRASKIAN WILL BE RENAMED.

The "Farmer Orator," a Great Admirer of Bryan—Does Not Believe the Financial Question is Settled Yet, However.

The recent interview of Congressman Daly in which he declared for a renomination of William Jennings Bryan by the Democrats, has aroused more or less interest in political circles throughout the State. This morning a Press reporter met James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," who was one of the most enthusiastic Bryan men in the last National Campaign. Mr. Martine was asked if he voiced the sentiments of Congressman Daly. Mr. Martine replied with interest:

"Well, I do not just recall what my friend Daly said, but I will say for myself that I believe in bi-metalism as a principle, and I feel that Bryan is the logical candidate for the Democratic party in the next campaign. I admire his courage and personality. I believe he is the most available and strongest candidate we can name. But I am a Democrat, and believe in the wisdom and judgment of majorities, and shall support the candidate whomever he may be.

"What do you think of the party prospects?" asked the reporter.

"I believe we shall win. The money question is not yet fought out. The advance and encroachments of trusts will be fought, and then the Philippines question—all these give the party true issues upon which to go before the people.

"Once for all, you need not ask whom I will support in politics. I am a believer in parties, a partisan if you please. I love my party and its principles, and am always ready to press its claims and voice its sentiments."

KICKED BY A HORSE.

SERIOUS INJURY OF YOUNG SON OF COUNCILMAN BURTIS.

Is Summering at Long Branch—While Playing About Horse Was Kicked Over the Eye—Serious Wound Received.

Word has just been received in Plainfield from Long Branch of a serious accident that befell the young son of Councilman and Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue. Mrs. Burtis and the family are stopping at that place for a time.

Sunday morning the lad was playing about an old horse that is kept on the place where the family is stopping, and no one had any idea that the animal was inclined to kick. The boy touched the horse on the hind quarters, when suddenly, without warning, the lad received a blow in the face over the left eye, the animal having planted one of his hind feet squarely on the boy's face. The little fellow was knocked insensible. He was quickly carried to the house where he soon regained consciousness. A physician was called at once and he was obliged to take twelve stitches in the cut made by the horse's feet. He pluckily stood the pain necessarily caused while the cut was being stitched and he would not take an anæsthetic during the operation.

Mr. Burtis received word today that the boy is doing well and is now practically out of danger. That he was not killed by the blow is a mystery for the force of the kick was certainly strong enough.

WILL BEAUTIFY WESTFIELD.

Women's Club, of Westfield, Opens a Vigorous Campaign.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 1—The members of the Women's Club, of Westfield, one of the strongest organizations of the kind in the State, has taken up the question of village improvement and will at once take steps towards beautifying the appearance of the "Hub of Union County." The club will have boxes placed at each corner on the main street, in which citizens will be asked to throw all waste paper. Then there will be bill boards placed about the town so that the bill poster will stop posting notices on the trees.

The members of the club have appointed the following committee to act with them: Messrs. Harry E. Knight, W. I. DeLamater, Henry C. Sergean and E. S. Malmor.

Outing on the Mountain.

The members of the Scottish Thistle Social Club, accompanied by their wives and children, enjoyed an outing Saturday afternoon on Johnston's Drive. Everyone had a good time singing old Scotch songs, after which a bountiful collation was served by a committee of women.

PIPE LINE BLOCKED BY MONTCLAIR NOW.

Connecting Line of the National Transit Company.

OWNED BY STANDARD OIL.

LINE WILL PASS THROUGH WASHINGTON VALLEY.

Right of Way Was Secured Through There Last Fall and Winter—Leaves Main Pipe Line at Bound Brook to Run to Hackensack—Montclair Will Not Allow Line in Outskirts of City.

The extension of the pipe lines of the Standard Oil Company is going on unceasingly. For several months that corporation has been trying to secure the right of way for a line connecting the present line of the National Transit Company at Bound Brook with one of the Standard refineries at Hackensack. The right of way is now completed as far as Montclair, but now the great oil company is in trouble with the Common Council of Montclair, which refuses to grant permission for the pipe line to go through that city.

The agents of the National Transit Company, which is owned by the Standard Company, visited Somerset county last fall. The new line was run, leaving the old one just above Bound Brook, through the Chimney Rock Notch, and then back of the first range of the Watchung Mountains into Washington Valley, and thus on in the direction of Newark, but passing to the west of that municipality.

The right of way through Somerset county and Washington Valley was secured after considerable trouble, and the agents of the Transit Company were kept in that neighborhood for many weeks interviewing property owners. The line was steadily advanced, however, until now Montclair refuses to allow the line to pass through the outskirts of that city.

The company may be compelled to turn and run round Montclair, and thus considerably increase the length of the line. It will, however, be only a question of time, for the company is persistant and will manage somehow to get the line through. It is intended to connect one of the Standard refineries at Hackensack that is now compelled to receive the bulk of its oil by tank cars.

WAS HE "JACK THE PEEPER?"

His Excuses Being Unsatisfactory, A Blow Closed One of His Eyes.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, August 1—Women have been complaining recently of another "Jack the Peeper," who frightens them at night by glueing his eye to cracks in the window shutters. George Bierwith and William Moore saw a man in Lewis street about 11 o'clock on Saturday night whose actions led them to think they had found the impertinent fellow. They overtook him, stopped him and asked him what he was doing. He said he was a Mr. Drady, of Plainfield, but gave an unsatisfactory explanation of his actions, the men say, and one of them gave him a swift punch in the right eye.

"Mr. Drady" did not stop to remonstrate or even retaliate. He started off on a hard run, and soon vanished. If he is really "Jack the Peeper" he will have to peep with his left eye for a week or two.

There is no one by the name of Drady in the Plainfield directory.

Road House Burned Near Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, N. J. August, 1—A bicyclist riding by Wilbur's roadhouse on Rahway avenue, a mile west of this city, at 2 45 o'clock this morning saw the house ablaze. He aroused the family, who fled from the place in their night clothes, and began to fight the fire, which started in the cellar. After subduing the flames, at about 5 o'clock, they sought refuge in a house nearby. At 6:30 o'clock the fire broke out anew and the building was destroyed. The loss will be $5,000

Marriage at High Noon.

Tomorrow at high noon will take place the marriage of Miss Bertha Warman, daughter of Thomas E. Warman, of Grove street, and Dr. Eli Long, Jr., son of Borough Recorder Long, of New York. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, of Grace P. E. church.

MUST PAY ASSESSMENTS.

BOROUGH PROPERTY WILL BE SOLD SHORTLY.

To Pay Watchung Avenue Assessments That Have Not Been Settled—Council Will Take Action This Week.

It does not seem to be generally known that according to law the Borough Council will, Friday evening, issue a warrant on Collector George F. Brown to sell all the property on which assessments for the Watchung avenue improvement remains unpaid. The total amount is between $8,000 and $9,000. These assessments have been standing for nearly two years and, according to the law, the property must be sold within two years. The assessments were made October 14th, 1897, and the action by the Mayor and Council must be taken Friday evening. Collector Brown will then advertise the sale for five weeks.

If the matter should be deferred until the September meeting it would not allow a sufficient amount of time to advertise before the time limit is up. These assessments hold the same relation to the borough as other tax assessments, and where the owners fail to settle the property can be sold by the collector of taxes.

CAME IN TALLY-HO

Distinguished People of Camden Visited This City.

A distinguished party of people from Camden visited Plainfield yesterday while enjoying a trip about New Jersey on a tally-ho. The party consisted of Judge E. A. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Harrington, Wynne Armstrong, Mr. Burling, Mrs. Chamberlain, Miss Morgan, Miss Shivers and Miss Whital. While in this city they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Armstrong, of the borough. Mr. Armstrong is a brother to Judge Armstrong. They left the city last evening and one addition was made to the party, Fred Armstrong, son of T. S. Armstrong, who will accompany the party on its trip by tally-ho through various Jersey towns. Before they return home they will stop at Lake Hopatcong for a time. All were delighted with Plainfield and its natural beauty.

TRANSFERS TO DUNELLEN.

Plainfield Street Railway Company at Last Takes Promised Action.

Superintendent Adleman notified a Press reporter this morning that the Plainfield Street Railway had placed transfer tickets on their line between this city and the boundary line of Dunellen. The new order of things went into effect today. It is now possible to ride from Scotch Plains to the western boundary line of Dunellen for a 5-cent fare. It is necessary, however, to secure a transfer ticket of the Brunswick Traction Company when making the return trip from Dunellen to Scotch Plains.

Don't Speak Any More

There are two families of Hebrews who reside close to each other on Somerset street. Last evening the children belong to these families engaged in a dispute and finally the older members became interested in the trouble. It was finally necessary to call Marshal Campbell and he succeeded in quieting the disturbance. The two families are not now on speaking terms.

Will Build Colonial Residence.

Mrs. Emma Darling has sold to Howard C. Runyon, through S. D. Drake's agency, about two acres of land at Rahway road and Prospect avenue. Mr. Runyon expects to build a colonial residence on his newly acquired property. The same agency has also sold a lot about 400 feet deep on Prospect and Woodland avennes adjoining the Denton property.

Many Lots Sold.

Taylor & MacDonald have sold twelve of their Netherwoood lots since Saturday last, and a dwelling house was started on one of the North avenue lots this morning. This party has taken a fresh start and is now booming.

OVERHEAD WIRES ARE NOW COMING DOWN.

Telephone Company is Removing Its Old System.

TRUNK LINES ARE HERE.

COMPLETED TO NETHERWOOD AND MEN AWAIT CABLE.

When That Comes They Will Continue Trunk Lines to Somerville, and Then Complete the Work of Demolishing Overhead System in This City—Many Large Poles to be Removed.

The maze of telephone wires that rise high above the city are soon to go. The work of removing them has already begun, and, with one interruption of a week, perhaps, will be continued until the last of these unsightly wires is gone from the principal part of the city.

The gang of linemen of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, which has been stringing the four new trunk lines from New York to Plainfield and two new trunk lines from New York to Somerville, has now completed its work as far as the Netherwood hill on South avenue. From that point an aerial cable will carry these lines to South avenue and Richmond street, where the underground conduit system begins and the wires go underground.

This length of cable was expected to arrive here last week but it didn't come and now the gang of linemen have been put at work by Manager Charles W. Runyon in demolishing the old system of overhead wires until the cable comes. Then the cable will be put up and the gang will go to Somerville with the two lines for that place. On the conclusion of that work they will return to Plainfield and finish taking down the overhead wires.

In the business section of this city there are many poles that will be taken down when the old system is removed. Only the distributing poles, which can be told by the distributer, which looks like an armored turret, that is on top of all these poles. All the others are to be taken out.

OVERCOME BY PET GOAT.

Mrs Winifred Duffley Dragged About the Yard and Injured.

Mrs. Winifred Duffley, of 328 East Fourth street, had an exciting adventure with a pet goat yesterday morning. It is Mrs. Duffley's custom to look after the animal, of which she is very fond. Yesterday the goat was in a lively disposition. When Mrs. Duffley started to chain up her pet he became quite frisky and for a few moments led his mistress a lively dance. His goatship pranced about, shook his head playfully, kicked up its hind legs spitefully and finally made a dash about the yard. The sudden liveliness of the goat surprised the old lady and in a jiffy she was pulled about in a violent manner. Mrs. Duffley's strength finally gave out and she finally became exhausted and fell. Members of the family assisted her to the house, and later Dr. Tomlinson was summoned.

Although Mrs. Duffley was considerably shaken up, she was not seriously injured. For some time she has been a sufferer with heart trouble. She is nearly 80 years of age.

WORK ON TROLLEY LINE STOPPED

Officials Waiting to See How the Line From Westfield to Scotch Plains Will Go.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 1.—Work on the trolley road being built through here by the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company, has stopped. The railroad officials are now lying low until they see which way they are to go to Scotch Plains. The public hearing to be given the application for the franchise will no doubt show that the people are in favor of the Prospect street line but this will hardly suit the trolley people as this street is wide enough for a single track road only and it is their wish to have a double track road all the way from Elizabeth to Plainfield.

Frightened by Dog's Bark.

Mrs. E. B. Maynard, of North avenue, was taken with a fainting spell on North avenue last evening. She has been ill and has not fully recovered. As she was walking along a small dog rushed at her suddenly with a loud bark. She received a severe nervous and fell to the sidewalk in a faint. Her chin and side were bruised by the fall. She was assisted to her home and is better today.

GRABBED CASH AND LEFT

PETER OPEZO CHARGED WITH STEALING A DOLLAR.

The Dorusos Also Allege That He Assaulted Them at Their Store on Watchung Avenue Last Evening.

There were five one dollar bills lying on the counter in the little candy and fruit store of Patsy Doruso, in the Rink building, Watchung avenue, last evening. According to the story of the Italian proprietor and his wife Peter Opezo made way with one of them and thrashed both husband and wife as well. City Judge Runyon is going to look into the case.

Peter Opezo went into the store last evening, they allege, and asked for a glass of soda water. When Doruso's backed was turned they claim that Opezo grabbed one of the bills and started to bolt. Mr. and Mrs. Doruso lost no time in following. They reached the door as soon as he did and tried to persuade him to wait until a policeman could be found so that he, too, might visit the creeping and the crawling ones in the city jail.

Opezo, it is said, repelled the advances of the Italian couple with a stout arm. They retreated after a short encounter and claim that they suffered at the hands of the departing Opezo. They immediately went forth and found Patrolman Watson and made a complaint against Opezo. Watson found him later in the evening and locked him up for the night.

This morning Opezo was arraigned before City Judge Runyon. He emphatically declared that he hadn't been near the store all last evening. The Dorunos were horrified at what they heard and promised to bring several cart loads of witnesses to prove their statements. Opezo agreed to produce an equal number to prove the truthfulness of his declarations.

Judge Runyon laid the case over until tomorrow morning, when the witnesses will appear and the Judge will try to get at the truth of it all.

DOG WITH AN APPETITE.

LATEST ACHIEVEMENT WAS TO EAT A DERBY HAT.

John Powers' Bull Dog Devoured Frank Story's Hat With Much Avidity—Dog is Still in Very Good Health.

Frank Story, of East Second street, who is a clerk at the drug store of John Powers, on Somerset street, is minus a fine derby hat, and if it had not been far Mr. Story's eagle eye he would never have known what had become of it.

Now it happens that Mr. Powers owns a fine bred bull dog, and this canine has a tendency to eat everything in sight. He has taken pills by the hundred, and he thinks nothing of putting away fifteen bottles of patent medicines of all kinds in a week's time, but this, his latest move, has astonished everyone. His appetite for medicines and drugs having become poor, he has turned his attention to eating wearing apparel, hats, etc. Mr. Story placed his hat on a nail, but it fell within reach of the dog. The canine lost no time in getting to work.

The hat was devoured with much avidity. Just as the dog was tackling the last mouthful Mr. Story happened to catch a glimpse as it was disappearing, and there was nothing left to tell the tale but the band of ribbon that encircled it.

Strong emetics were given in the hope that even if the hat was gone, the dog's life might be spared. The last report is that the dog is doing well, much better in fact than the hat, but Mr. Story has learned his lesson and in the future if the dog gets anything belonging to him it will be because he cannot help himself.

Funeral of Mrs. Ann Davis.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Ann Davis, mother of Dr. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue, were held from the residence of the latter, yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Rodman, pastor of the Grace P. E. church, officiated. Yesterday afternoon the remains were sent to Wilmington, Del., where they will be interred in the family plot in the Wilmington and Brandywine cemetery.

GREAT TIMES IN THE WOODS OF MAINE.

Judge W. A. Coddington and Friends Just Returned.

THE JUDGE SHOT A DEER.

THEY SPENT TWO WEEKS IN THE WILDS OF MAINE.

History of a Very Remarkable Trip—Lived in a Log Cabin, an Old Resort for Famous Statesmen—Visited Other Plainfielders—Judge Coddington Made a Wonderful Shot—Fine Fishing Reported.

Judge William A. Coddington, who has but recently returned from the northern portion of the State of Maine, has some interesting experiences to relate. The genial Judge was accompanied by two jolly good fellows in the persons of Edward White and Samuel S. Squier, of this city. This trio returned Sunday morning, brown as berries. If the readers of The Press have any doubts about the good things the gentlemen had, Judge Coddington will set them right on that score.

The gentlemen were absent from Plainfield about two weeks. They literly took to the woods—not from any sense of escaping from their political or social friends, but simply to have a good time. The Judge and his friends sought the seclusion of the dense wilderness, and they found it. They journeyed away up into the extreme northern portion of Maine and went into camp "far, far from the madding crowd." They went by rail to a place on the map called Greenville, but which is known to but few outside of the school children living in Hon. Thomas Bracket Reed's State. From this point the Judge and his party secured the services of a trusty guide in the person of William Merservey, a tall, hard-fisted, good natured son of the celebrated prohibition State, who has piloted hundreds of city folk to good fishing and hunting.

Up through Moosehead lake the party went by steamboat to Spencer Bay, a cove of the great Moosehead lake. At this point the boys, figuratively speaking, "pitched their tents." They found a commodious log cabin, which the guide gave them to understand had been occupied in former years by eminent statesmen from nearly all the eastern states. The camp is nearly 600 miles from Portland and is located in the heart of the great pine timber belt. There is not an habitation within 50 miles. It is literally in the dese forest. But what sport the Judge and his friends had.

The second day after locating Judge Coddington and the guide went after deer. They paddled up to Lucky Pond. After much difficulty the Judge succeeded in picking his way over the bogs of the swamp. The guide, with true backwoodsman's instinct, soon denoted the presence of deer. He notified the Judge and the latter was on the alert to the occasion. Presently a fine doe was seen approaching. For a moment the sight of the handsome creature completely upset the Judge. In his excitement he shook like an aspen leaf, but it was only for a moment. In a twinkling of eye the affable Judge was "at home" and he let drive with his trusty rifle, as they say in the story books. It was a clever shot. The bullet struck the doe directly back of the ear and he dropped within a hundred yards of where the amateur hunter stood. The guide said it was one of the best shots he ever saw.

As the law prohibits the killing of more than one deer for a hunter's food, the Judge and guide did not attempt to try their luck further, but set about reaching camp. While the Judge and guide were after deer Messrs. White and Squier were angling for the gamy trout, which they caught in large numbers. As the Judge and guide came in sight of the camp the former lifted the carcass of the doe to his shoulders and, like a cat carrying a mouse, bore it proudly into camp. Then the Judge took his first lesson in the butcher business. He dressed that deer. The guide said it weighed fully 150 pounds. And what a feast the hunters had next day. Venison steaks cooked to a turn enough to make the mouths of all water who read this story. Besides the venison steaks the guide fixed up a dish that he called venison broth. Judge Coddington says it was the most delicious beverage he ever tasted.

About three miles above the camp of the Messrs. Coddington & Co., F. C. Langhorn and Mr. Happerset, of this city, were located on what is known as the Spencer Pond. The first Sunday the Judge and his party visited them and were royally entertained.

FIGHTING YELLOW FEVER.

War Department Officials Are Greatly Alarmed Over the Situation.

FEDERAL OFFICERS HELP

Thirty-Eight Cases and a Number of Deaths Have Already Been Reported to Gen. Sternberg.

Strict Quarantine is Now in Force at Hampton—Fears That the Infection Has Reached Other Points—Every Effort is Being Made to Check Its Spread.

Washington, Aug. 1.—War Department officers are greatly alarmed over the yellow fever situation at the Soldiers' Home at Hampton. Adj.-Gen. Corbin and Major Johnson, an Assistant Adjutant-General, were at Old Point Comfort, but did not visit the Home. The army officers are considering plans for giving the Marine Hospital service all assistance possible.

After a conference held between Secretary Alger, Assist.-Secretary Meiklejohn, Surgeon-General Wyman of the Marine Hospital Service and Surgeon-General Sternberg of the army, telegraphic orders were sent to Major-Gen.

GENERAL CORBIN.

Wesley Merritt, commanding the Military Department of the East, to direct the immediate removal of the garrison at Fort Monroe, which is three miles from the Hampton Soldiers' Home to a place of safety on the northern coast to be selected by Gen. Merritt. It was also arranged that Gen. Sternberg and Dr. Wyman should go to Hampton immediately.

The War Department has consented to turn over the Josiah Simpson General Hospital at Fort Monroe to the Marine Hospital Service if Dr. Wyman, after an examination of the conditions at Hampton, decided that it would be desirable. Two officers and twenty enlisted men will remain at Fort Monroe.

The uthorities here are preparing to adopt stringent regulations to prevent the spread of the disease, but it is admitted that the delay in properly diagnosing the cases has made the situation serious. Excursion parties have been to the Soldiers' Home since the appearance there of yellow fever, and have departed to all parts of the country, some coming to Washington on the river steamboats.

Surgeon-General Wyman and Surg.-General Sternberg held a conference regarding the proper steps to be taken to prevent an epidemic of the disease in this country, and it is not improbable that Norfolk and the entire country about Old Point Comfort and Hampton will be quarantined.

At the conference it was proposed that the Marine Hospital Service assume entire jurisdiction over the military reservation, which is now under the authority of the War Department. Gen. Sternberg, who is a yellow fever expert of international reputation, assured Surgeon-General Wyman that the War Department would give all assistance possible, but he readily agreed that the Marine Hospital Service should assume entire control.

The epidemic is supposed to have been caused by an inmate of the home who recently went to Santiago. He came back ill, and the doctors diagnosed his illness as dengeue fever. Dengue is seldom fatal, and is not considered infectious or contagious, so that no extraordinary precautions were taken to keep the man from coming in contact with other inmates.

The additional cases of yellow fever were supposed to be malarial in nature, but when four men died the home authorities became alarmed and directed that an autopsy be held immediately. The autopsy was held, and the physicians agreed that the deaths had occurred from yellow fever.

Surgeon-General Sternberg of the army has received from Lieut Col. Dewitt at the Josiah Simpson General Hospital, Fort Monroe, a despatch saying that Surgeon Pettus of the Marine Hospital Service has officially confirmed the existence of yellow fever at the Soldiers' Home. Thirty-four cases and six deaths had been reported. The commanding officer had taken immediate measures for quarantine.

The apparent discrepancy between this message and the later despatch to Gen. Wyman has not been explained.

While the Marine Hospital Service professes to be confident of its ability to confine the disease, it is admitted that there is a possibility that the infection has reached some other point or place in the same manner as it was carried to Hampton Roads. Steps were taken to place a competent surgeon in charge at each of the towns surrounding the home, and if the disease makes its appearance at any one of these places a cordon will be thrown around the town and a strict quarantine instituted.

By this means the spread of the disease, it is hoped, can be checked.

People of all classes are fleeing from Hampton on every train and it is feared that this may have a tendency to spread the disease, and a movement will be carried into effect at once to stop all persons from going into or coming out of the town until the danger point has been passed.

Secretary Long Takes a Rest.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Secretary and Mrs. Long left Washington for Hingham, Mass. They will later visit the Secretary's farm at Buckfield, Oxford County, Me.

TOURISTS IN GREAT PERIL

Icy Torrent Swept Down on Them on Top of Muir's Glacier.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 1.—According to some of the members of the Gage party of New York and Chicago excursionists, who returned by the steamer City of Seattle, an appalling disaster was narrowly averted on the slippery heights of Muir's Glacier.

The party made the ascent of the glacier wrapped in their heavy furs. They tarried until evening near the summit, taking an odd delight in shivering under the mild rays of Old Sol and thinknig of their friends in New York sweltering in the heat and contemplating the vastness of Uncle Sam's dominion that could take in such varied climates.

Nature seized upon this moment to perform one of her vast lightning change effects, for the party found that while they had been tarrying on the summit a mighty mountain torrent bearing upon its bosom whirling chunks of ice had been diverted from its ancient bed and was rapidly making another channel directly across their path to the steamer.

There was but one thing to be done, and that was run away from the stream. The guides picked out six big, powerful men in the party, and screwing spikes to their heels the guides and these men carried the ladies and the smaller men around the torrent, over ice jams and through valleys and across gaping cracks.

It was a journey that took three hours, and every minute held a great peril.

Valentine Again Accused.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Aug. 1.—It has been discovered that Valentine, who looted the Middlesex County Bank, took $25,000 of the funds of the Perth Amboy Savings Bank, of which he was the treasurer. The depositors of this bank had been told that their funds were intact or had not been filtered to any appreciable extent, but the facts show no less than $25,000 is missing.

One of the examiners from the State Bureau of Banking and Insurance went over the book of deposits carefully and found that the entered deposits agreed with credit books held by depositors. Then he figured up each page of the entries and found that the totals did not agree with the entries. Page after page was examined minutely, and the additions were made ten times with the same result. They showed a total deficency of $25,000.

Robbed of Her Jewels.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 1.—Jewelry worth $3,000 was stolen at the Ocean Side Hotel, Magnolia, from the room of Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, wealthy residents of Wheeling, W. Va. The articles stolen include one diamond butterfly set with a carbuncle, solitare pearl ring, bar with three large pearls, earrings with three pearls, pearl finger ring, sapphire ring set with diamonds, opal bar pin set with diamonds, pearl scarf pin set with diamonds, portrait brooch set with pearls, cross with black back ground set with six diamonds and pearls, small ring with two diamonds, and $225 in money.

Hilo Escapes Lava Flow.

Honolulu, July 23, via San Fran Aug. 1.—The latest report from the volcano of Mauna Loa received by way of Kalieha, is to the effect that a great change took place in the course of the lava flow on the night of July 18. The mighty stream of burning lava which was steadily flowing toward the town of Hilo and threatening its destruction, has fortunately been diverted in its course, so that the danger to life and property is less imminent.

Both Killed in a Duel.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 1.—In a duel in a mountain road in Letcher County, Ky., William Smallwood shot to death his uncle, Clelland Smallwood, and himself was injured fatally by his victim. A quarrel of long standing culminated when the men met and both drew revolvers and began firing. The younger man fell mortally wounded and his uncle, shot through the heart, fell dead across his nephew's body.

Grievances Are Settled.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—P. M. Arthur, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and F. P. Sargeant, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, have arrived here, and after a conference with the chairman of the Engineers' and Firemens' grievance committees, a satisfactory adjustment of the questions in dispute with the Grand Trunk Railway Company was arranged.

Hail Does Much Damage.

Hamilton, N. D., Aug. 1.—A hailstorm swept over a stretch of country from Tynes, between Cavaler and Hamilton, to Classton, twelve miles long and five miles wide. The damage amounts to at least $250,000, and is in one of the finest wheat sections in the State.

Aeronaut Drowned.

Findley Lake, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Prof. Frank Reynolds an aeronaut, dropped 3,000 feet witth a parachute here and lighting in the lake, was drowned before help could reach him. The body has not been recovered.

All Will Recover.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The persons injured in the wreck on the Erie on Sunday night and taken to the Port Jervis Hospital are on the way to recovery.

Source of the Gulf Stream.

Recent investigations have shown that the principal source of the Gulf stream is not the Florida channel, but the region between and beside the islands of the West Indies. At Binioni the volume of this warm water is 60 times as great as the combined volume of all the rivers in the world at their mouths.

A Curious Watch.

A curious watch has been brought out in France. The dial is transparent but there are no works behind it, and the hands appear to move by magic. The secret lies in concealing the works at the edge of the case, and communicating the motion to the hands by means of a glass disk.

Hard to Explain

If This Had Occurred Anywhere Else Than in Plainfield There Might be Grave Doubts About It.

If this were published anywhere else but in Plainfield, that is, if the statement given below went the rounds of the press, readers in Boston or New Orleans would not believe it. In the very nature of things men and women will not believe that a simple little pill would have any effect on humanity when the subject is in a serious condition. When it has that effect; when the party is a living witness, perhaps a neighbor, Plainfield people at least cannot possibly deny it, particularly so when investigation is courted. Now ask Mrs. R Wortman, living with her daughter Mrs. S. E Cook, of 204 Somerset St., and see if she will not corroborate the following:

"I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pain across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit ten minutes in one position, but had to be constantly changing about. It was the same way at night time. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney troubles, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and advise all who suffer from a lame back to give them a fair trial."

Doan's Kidney Pills 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Proclamation Concerning Dogs.

Whereas the Ordinance of the Borough of North Plainfield provides that all unmuzzled dogs running at large in said Borough during the months of June, July, August and September shall be caught and impounded and killed if not redeemed by the payment of one dollar within forty-eight hours, and

WHEREAS, the state law provides that any dog not registered with the borough clerk, and not wearing a tag bearing registry number may be killed on sight by any person if found off the owner's premises, and

WHEREAS, at this season of the year wounds resulting from dog bites are particularly dangerous, and many complaints have recently been made by our citizens by reason of the number of unmuzzled dogs running at large in the Borough,

NOW THEREFORE, I, The Mayor of said Borough, do hereby proclaim and give public notice, that the law and ordinance above referred to will be hereafter strictly enforced, and that all unregistered dogs running at large, whether muzzled or not, are liable to be killed, and all registered dogs running at large without being muzzled will be caught and impounded and killed, unless redeemed within forty-eight hours.

Orders to that effect have been given to proper officers, and owners of dogs are hereby given fair warning.

Dated July 25th, 1899.

TO END SMELTER STRIKE.

Colorado Board of Arbitration Recommends Mutual Concessions.

BIG MILLS TO BE STARTED

Managers of Trust Smelters and the Employes to Get Together and Accept Recommendations.

The Demand For an Eight-Hour Day Recognized By the Board—Believed That the Men Will Accept the Report—Gen. Axline Pleased With Situation in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1.—Preparations are making for the withdrawal of troops called out on account of the street railway strike. Anticipating that the City Council would take some action toward the appointment of a sufficient number of special patrolmen, Gen. Axline has relieved two of the companies from strike duty. The companies relieved are local organizations, because Gen. Axline wants to have them within easy reach in case they are needed again.

"I am pleased with the situation," said Gen. Axline, "but do not deem it wise to send away any of the outside companies, which it would be hard to recall. That will be done later. We are not going to leave the people of Cleveland in the lurch, and the troops will be withdrawn gradually, but at the same time arrangements should be made for handling the situation when the state troops are gone. I do not believe the strikers were the direct cause of the violence, and think the violence has spent itself, but still we must be ready for new outbreaks."

Rioting broke out again in the Polish settlement at the South End. Mobs fought with the soldiers and police. The troops did good service in dispersing the crowds. Three arrests were made. The Adjut.-General says that the only way in which these difficulties can be stopped will be by declaring martial law.

If martial law is declared it will require the presence of about 4,000 troops in the city. The soldiers would then be ordered to do regular police duty. Orders would be issued that after a certain hour in the evening every one must keep off the streets.

A detachment of Naval Reserves under Lieut. Radder was sent to Perkins avenue. A Wade Park car had been derailed at the Cleveland & Pittsburg Railroad crossing, and the delay attracted a large crowd. As violence was feared, the Naval Reserves were sent to quell any rioting that might break out. The crowds dispersed when the soldiers appeared.

Coroner Simon has rendered his verdict in the death of Harry Cornzwiet. He found that the boy was shot by Ralph P. Hawley, a non-union conductor, and that the shooting was deliberate and malicious. Cornzwiet was the first person killed in the trolley strike.

Strike Will be Settled.

Denver, Col., Aug. 1.—It now only remains for the managers of the Trust smelters and the men to get together and accept the recommendations of the State Board of Arbitration, and the big mills that have been idle for nearly two months will be in operation again. The report of the State Board of Arbitration was filed this morning. It is a voluminous document, and deals with the conditions at the smelters here and at Pueblo. It is diplomatically worded, and recommends that concessions be made by both men and managers.

The demand for an eight-hour day is recognized and the promise of a scale of wages for eight and ten hours is recommended. The Board, in preparing the scale, has hit a medium between the wages demanded by the men and the scale offered by the managers. For instance, on the eight-hour basis, the union demand was $2.40 for furnace men and the managers scale provided $2. The Board of Arbitration recommended $2.20. So along through the list of the several classes of labor the Board cuts the union scale and advances the managers' scale.

A scale for ten hours is also presented, showing similar advances over the managers' scale.

It is believed that the men will accept the report, but the action of the managers is not so certain. None of the managers will say what action he will take. The union will call a meeting to take formal action on the report of the Board.

Sampson Files Suit.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Rear-Admiral William T. Sampson has filed in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia a suit in his own behalf and also in behalf of the officers and enlisted men of the ships of the North Atlantic station who took part in the naval engagement off Santiago and the subsequent captures for prize money. The suit is similar to that recently entered by Admiral Dewey in the same Court.

Killen Has Been Released.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 1.—Frank Killen, pitcher for the Boston league club, has been released. Killen was released, not through any fault of his, for he has done excellent work, but because young Bailey is a younger and less expensive man, and promises to be equally effective.

Watson to Patrol Philippine Waters.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Secretary Long has planned to have the fleet under Admiral Watson patrol the Philippine waters and keep all supplies from Aguinaldo, as, with the $3,000,000 Spain is to pay him for prisoners he will be enabled to get all the arms he needs.

NATIONAL BANK FOR HAWAII

Perry Heath Syndicate About to Establish One at Honolulu.

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—The first and only National bank outside of the continental boundaries of the United States is about to be established in Honolulu, Col. McFarland, who was chamberlain to Queen Liluokalani, has arrived from the islands to perfect the organization of the bank, and later to return with gold coin representing the stock subscribed for by San Francisco and New York capitalists.

A charter for the bank has already been procured from the United States Government by Perry S. Heath, Assistant Postmaster-General, but it cannot be used until Congress places the Hawaiian Islands under the Territorial laws of this country. In the meantime the new financial institution will be known as the First American Bank, a charter for which has just been granted by the Hawaiian Governmnet. The corporation is capitalized at $1,000,000, and one-half of that amount will be in the vaults, as required by the banking laws of the island, when the bank opens its doors on September 1.

Veterans to Welcome Dewey.

Bennington, Vt., Aug. 1.—Recruting has begun for the Vermont militia, so that it may be possible to send a regiment to New York to welcome Admiral Dewey. It was recently ruled that because the militia had not been reorganized on its muster out from United States service, the bills of expense for a trip to New York could not be paid, and it was thought that Vermont might thus be left out of the demonstration. The recruiting and reorganization are now being pushed so that the bills can be legally taken care of, and so that a Vermont command may be present at the welcome to the Admiral.

New State Civil Service Rule.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 1—Gov. Roosevelt has approved of an amendment to the new State Civil Service rules regarding causes for removal of persons from places in the public service. The rules formerly held on this point that no removal would be valid unless a statement of the causes to which it was due should be filed with the State Civil Service Commission by the appointing power. The new rule goes further along this line and declares that the person whose removal is sought shall have an opportunity for a hearing.

Rich Men Are Privileged.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 1.—The tripartite commission from the United States, Germany and England says in its report, that has been received here that there were four causes of trouble in Samoa. Rival kings were often elected with the understanding that their supporters were to battle for the supremacy, rich men were permitted to commit murder unpunished, arms were imported through many private wharves, and each nation's court administered the law for advantage to his own fellow-citizens.

Lads Plot to Wreck a Train.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 1.—Information has just been received here of a plan concocted by four lads near this city to wreck an express train containing hundreds of passengers. The plot was discovered in time to save the train from being derailed and prevent loss of life. The local police are at work on the case, and some arrests have been made. It is expected that when a full confession is secured others will be taken into custody.

Another Big Oil Well.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 1.—Another big well has been struck in the oil fields of the Slick Ford Oil Company in Wayne County. Captain John Geary, of the company, received a telegram this morning stating that the well has produced 100 barrels of fine oil in 10 hours. This is the second largest well the company has struck in the County of Wayne.

Long-Distance Fly Casting.

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—Champion Walter D. Mansfield has again broken the world's record for long-distance fly casting. At Stow Lake, in Golden Gate Park, he beat his own previous record of 131 feet, casting his line 133 feet. In the accuracy event he made 95 per cent., and 85 per cent. in the delicacy event.

Buried Treasure Dug Up.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Aug. 1.—Arrivals here from the town of Arcas, on the coast of Cameche, report that the treasure of Larencillo, a notorious Spanish buccaneer, has been discovered buried in the sand by the lighthouse keeper at that place. The treasure is in the form of gold and silver bullion and amounts to a large sum.

Kate Chase Sprague Dead.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague died at Edgewood, her country home near this city. Kate Chase Sprague was the daughter of Salmon P. Chase, of Ohio, once Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the man to whom everybody expected the nomination to go when Lincoln was named for President.

Prophecy Causing Fatal Scare.

Lyons, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Arthur Unger, scared by a gypsey's prophecy of death is dying. He is a dental student, and recently had to quit college because of hert disease. The mournful prophecy had such a depressing effect it is with difficulty he is kept alive.

New York Physician Dies in Camp.

Little Britain, Ont., Aug. 1.—Dr. R. H. Hunter, a physician of New York city, died suddenly of heart failure while in camp at Bald Point, Lake Scugog. The body will be taken to New York for burial.

Dewey's Homeward Journey.

Trieste, Aug. 1.—Admiral Dewey left here to-day en route for home. The Olympia will probably touch at Naples, Leghorn, Genoa, Toulon and Gibraltar.

A well-known gentleman relates the following experience: "I was out yachting on the Fourth of July and got very much exhausted, having to manage the yacht myself in a northeast gale. I did not have an opportunity to eat properly, consequently my stomach was very tired, so that when I did eat I ate too much, and that resulted in a condition which was followed by severe neuralgia in my head. My experience with had previously taught me that possibly the trouble might be remedied by treating the stomach. Before I had taken the third Tabule my neuralgia had gone, and I was feeling pretty well. I had neuralgia very bad but I could feel those Tabules were working upon my digestive organs, and as they worked my head improved in sympathy."

TEETH.

If you have any to be extracted remember you will not be hurt in the slightest. My local anaesthetic is the best that can be obtained and is not known to the other dentists in this city. Gas strictly fresh administered by an expert if you want that. If you need artificial teeth you may rest assured that the greatest care will be exercised in selecting shape and color to harmonize with the face, also to restore the features to their natural expression and fullness. This is most important.

Expert Horse Shoer,

No. 28 Somerset Street.

Don't trust your shoeing to any one who as not made a study of the horse's foot, it is too delicate in its construction to be handled by a carpenter or butcher. We are having great success in leveling and balancing horses that have been ungaited by being shod by inexperienced men and boys. Our reference is NOT to people who are out of the State, but to OUR CUSTOMERS, who can be found right here in the city and vicinity. Horses called for and delivered.

HAD A DYNAMITE FACTORY

Revelations Made By Men Who Tried to Kill the Corean Premier.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 1.—Advices from Seoul, the capital of Corea, give the details of a series of dynamite outrages there, evidently the work of a band of conspirators whose head is Prince Pak Yung Hyo, and whose efforts were directed to demolishing the homes of the Premier and members of the royal household department. About half-past ten one night, early in July, the city of Seoul was thrown into a state of great excitement by six terrific explosions.

An investigation disclosed the fact that attempts had been made to weak vengeance on Sin Ko Sin, the present Premier; Pak-Ki-Yang, and Pak-Chung Yong, members of the household department, by blowing up their residences.

The explosions were repeated in different parts of the city, the last being in the house of Prince Pak, which demolished a part of the building, injuring two coolies.

Police investigations in the latter case led to the arrest of seventeen persons, of whom six were women. Two of those arrested were the injured coolies and to the astonishment of the police it was discovered that they had made the bombs used in the outrage in the house of Prince Pak, and were engaged in making more when the explosion occurred.

Of the other fifteen one has confessed that the whole of the plot was hatched at the house of Prince Pak Yung Hyo, and that some of the men who are under arrest are the men who have been laying the bombs about in the streets.

Santo Domingo Affairs.

Havana, Aug. 1.—The "Diaro de la Marina" comments upon an interview with Senor Nolasco, the secretary of Gen. Maximo Gomez, published in "La Lucha," in which Nolasco is quoted as saying, in regard to Santo Domingo, that he would not be surprised if his hopes that things there will be quickly arranged are fulfilled, and that the soldiers of some humanitarian nation impose not only order but civilization and culture there. The "Diaro" says Nolasco refers to the Americans, and that it would not be surprising if, after reading such a statement from a representative of Cuba, the Americans think the Spaniards and not the Cubans defend the independence of Cuba.

Body Found in Dead Cow.

Clearfield, Pa., Aug. 1.—A human body, supposed to me that of John E. Rohn, the wealthy lumberman who so mysteriously disappeared from the neighborhood of Karthaus on April 16, has been discovered, sewed up in the body of a cow, which was then buried. Detectives have searched for months, covering 50,000 acres. Some one finally suggested that Rohn's body might have been buried with that of the cow which died the day he disappeared. The cow was dug up. The man's body was cut up and frightfully mutilated. Arrests are momentarily expected.

India's Plague Growing.

Bombay, Aug. 1.—At Poonah, capital of the district of that name, in this presidency, there have been fifty-nine cases of the plague and fifty-six deaths from that disease in fifty-eight hours. At the Cantonment, in the city, thirty-one cases of the plague and 261 deaths have been reported. Several fresh cases have occurred among the Europeans. The meteroligical conditions indicate the close of the monsoon, and the prospects are ominous.

Germany to Take Possession.

Berlin, Aug. 1.—The German third-class cruiser Falke, lately in Samoan waters, has been ordered home. The German gunboat Jaguar will arrive at Matupi, Island of New Britain, in the Bismark Archipelago (near New Guinana), September 15, and will convey to his post the Governor of Kaiser Wilhelmsland, who will take over in behalf of Germany the Caroline, Pelew and Mariana islands, recently ceded by Spain to Germany.

A Negro in Great Luck.

Bridgeport, O., Aug. 1.—Charles Barnitz, a negro, for years barely able to make his living at whitewashing and carrying ashes, has been notified of the death of his father, who leaves him a farm of 197 acres in Benton county, Tennessee, and other property worth about $10,000. Barnitz had not heard from his parents for many years, and until his father's death did not know that he owned an estate.

Bank of Spain to Pay in Silver.

Madrid, Aug. 1.—The Bank of Spain has decided to make all of its payments in silver, and the paper circulation of the bank is going up. This action is undoubtedly connected with the free buying of silver in London for Paris a week ago, it having been taken for granted that the metal would ultimately find its way to Madrid.

Bishop T. A. Becker Dead.

Washington, Ga., Aug. 1.—Bishop T. A. Becker of the Roman Catholic diocese of Savannah, died here. He had been at the Catholic Seminary for some time to relieve the priest in chrage. He had hoped to benefit his health, but had grown steadily worse. Bishop Becker was well known and widely popular.

Toledo's Reform People's Mayor.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 1.—Mayor Jones has practically determined to run for Governor as an independent candidate. He declares that henceforth he is a "man without a party," and will never claim political loyalty to anything less than all of the people.

Boy of Twelve a Burglar.

Poughkeepsie, Aug. 1.—A burglar of twelve years has been sent to the Elmira Reformatory from here. He is Ernest Marquart, of Red Hook Village. Marquart was surprised in the act of burglarizing the Cramer meat market.

Messengers Strike in Boston.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 1.—Messenger boys of the Boston District Company have started a strike here for an increase in the rate per message. The Postal Telegraph Company is considerably inconvenienced.

MILES MAKES A DENIAL.

He Has Not Prepared a Statement to be Submitted to Secretary Root.

DENOUNCED AS FALSE.

Will Not Lay Before the New Secretary His Side of the War Department Controversy.

Men of Sixth Infantry Put Bandits to Flight in Negros—Nineteen of Them Killed by Capt. Simpson's Forces—General Otis Sends a List of Casualties.

Washington, Aug. 1.—A despatch from Gen. Otis reports the following additional casualties in the fight on July 26 at Calamba:

"Manila, July 31.

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Killed—21st Infantry, Company I, Quartermaster-Sergeant Fred Suppinal. Wounded—4th Cavalry, Troop G, J. A. Reese, leg, severe; 1st Washington Infantry, H, Fred Ballan, shoulder, slight; 21st Infantry, Company D, Peter Christie, temple, severe; 21st Infantry, F, Charles Grottendick, abdomen, severe; 21st Infantry, I, Corporal Godwin J. Lane, back, severe; 21st Infantry, H, William H. Phillips, hand, slight. July 27, at San Fernando, 3d Artillery, Battery L, J. Virger, ear, slight. OTIS."

Were in Thirty-Two Fights.

Omaha, Aug. 1.—Lieut.-Col. Frank Eager, a well-known Nebraskan who reached San Francisco on the Hancock, in speaking of the battle in which Col. Stotsenberg was killed, said: "Col. Stotsenberg was an ideal soldier. He was a meciless disciplinarian, but in action he electrified his men. He was killed April 23, before the intrenchments at Quinga. In the same battle fell Lieut. Sissin, also shot through the heart. Lieut. Wadsworth was shot twice in the left leg. Lieut. Moore was also wounded in the left leg. When Lieut. Wadsworth fell Sergeant Storch went to his assistance, and while bending over the fallen officer a ball struck the sergeant just below his side, piercing both hips. The wound was mortal. This was perhaps the fiercest engagement in which the Nebraska troops engaged. Altogether, we took part in thirty-two battles and skirmishes."

General Miles Denies It.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Major-General Miles denounced as utterly false the story printed in New York that he was preparing or had prepared a statement to be submitted to Secretary Root regarding his position as the General commanding the army. The story asserted that Gen. Miles proposed to lay before the new Secretary his side of the War Department controversy. Gen. Miles declared this to be untrue. He said he had never considered any such action.

Killed Nineteen Bandits.

Manila, Aug. 1.—Advices received here from Negros say that Capt. Simpson, with a force of the 6th Infantry, pursued a party of bandits and killed nineteen of them.

The North Dakota, Idaho and Wyoming infantry, with Gen. Ovenshine on sick leave, have sailed for San Francisco on board the transport Grant.

More Volunteers Coming Home.

Washington, Aug. 1.—More volunteers are en route to San Francisco from Manila according to this despatch from Gen. Otis received here:

"North Dakota, Wyoming and Idahos on transport Grant ready to depart. Desire to delay to receive monthly pay. Permitted."

Mrs. Littell Gets Divorce.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Mabel B. Littell, daughter of General Green B. Raum, former Pension Commissioner, has been granted an absolute divorce from her husband, J. Reed Littell, a patent attorney of New York city. Desertion was given as the ground for divorce.

The Tupper Lake Fire.

Malone, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Tupper Lake village was destroyed by fire. One hundred and sixty-nine buildings were burned, including nearly every structure in the place. Sixty-four business places were destroyed. The fire protection was very meager. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

Cat Whipped the Eagle.

North Wolcott, N. Y., Aug. 1.—A cat seized by an eagle at Lake Side, whipped the bird in a fierce battle in mid-air. The eagle managed to reach its nest with the cat still chinging to it. There the cat seized an eaglet and escaped to the fishing camp below unhurt.

Death of Mrs Louis Kerr.

Sayville, L. I., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Minnie Kurr, the wife of Louis Kurr, died here suddenly in her summer home of apoplexy. Mr. Kurr has just returned from Europe. Mrs. Kurr had not been very well for several days, but her death was totally unexpected.

Pauncefote a Peer.

London, Aug. 1.—It is officially announced here that Sir Julian Pauncefote, British Ambassador to the United States, and who was head of the British delegation to the International Peace Conference at The Hague, has been elevated to the peerage.

Pauper Woman's Age is 122.

Danville, Va., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Annie Shelton, whose age, 122 years, is well authenticated, has been admitted to the county almshouse. At one time Mrs. Shelton was in affluent circumstances.

France and Paraguay.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 1.—The French Minister here, Count Sala, has started for Paraguay in order to re-establish diplomatic relations between France and Paraguay.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

Underground Wires.

With the disappearance of the old system of overhead telephone wires from the more thickly populated parts of the city, Plainfield will see the practical benefits that accrue to the city in the establishment of the underground conduit system by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. While a telephone wire is not in itself a very dangerous thing, yet when it falls and happens to become crossed with an electric power or light wire, it is extremely dangerous to whoever comes in contract with it.

The great network of wires in the city streets are ever a blot on the good appearance of the place besides being dangerous in the possibility of falling and becoming crossed with a high potential current.

The appearance of the business section of this city will be greatly improved by the change which is already being made. It will not be long before the electric light wires will go underground as well and the system of wires now supplying light through the city will disappear from sight. It is a step that all progressive cities in the country are taking and Plainfield has been particularly fortunate in its dealings with the corporations owning the wires. Both were willing to take the step while the telephone company was even anxious to go about it and would have had the work done before now but for delay on the part of the Council in passing the necessary ordinance.

DEAN FARRAR OF CANTERBURY.

Gradually conservative England has relented in its opposition to Sunday cycling. Dr. Farrar, dean of Canterbury and one of the most distinguished officers of the established church in England, gave to the cyclists permission to parade at Canterbury on Sunday, July 16, and invited them to hear an address appropriate to the occasion.

Park avenue, between Front and Fourth streets, is not a beautiful sight, but there is a good day coming sometime when that thoroughfare is to be blessed with a permanent pavement. It is better to have all the various excavations now and have them over so Park avenue can have a long rest after the Council has provided for that permanent pavement.

Now that the officious Sheriff of the little county in the mountains of Pennsylvania has come to a realizing sense of the situation and relinquished William M. Darling to the Middlesex county officials, the good folk of that county will be able to enjoy all the excitement of a murder trial. It's the first one they have had for over twenty years.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

"And now the Union County Board of Freeholders," says the Dover Era, "is considering the practicability of establishing a county insane asylum, with a view to economy in the care of the county's insane. Union county has 237 persons in the State hospitals at Morris Plains and Trenton. Doubtless Union county will be able to herd its insane within some enclosure at a less cost than the State hospital can properly care for and treat the same number of patients, but why such a backward step in this day and generation" The Era has touched the very core of the whole question of county asylums. It is not that of cost; it is that proper care of the unfortunate insane.—Elizabeth Journal.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

One of Plainfield's popular grocery dealers has taken trouble to count and locate the number of grocery stores in Plainfield, and sixty-five is given as the number of such stores in Plainfield and the borough.

* * * * *

It is the opinion of many Plainfielders, and they are not all in the "crank" class, that the Plainfield Street Railway Company operates its road for its own particular benefit and not to accommodate the public. This is evidenced by the way the motormen and conductors go through the town without any desire to look for passengers. People who would like to ride often yell themselves hoarse trying to stop a car, but to no purpose.

* * * * *

An ornithologist says that the greenfinch is the earliest riser, as it pipes as early as 1:30 o'clock in the morning, the blackcap beginning at 2:30 o'clock. It is nearly 4 o'clock and the sun is well above the horizon before the first real songster appears in the person of the blackbird. He is heard half an hour before the thrush, and the chirp of the robin begins about the same length of time before that of the wren. Finally, the house sparrow and the tomtit occupy the last place on the list. The investigation has altogether ruined the lark's reputation for early rising. That much celebrated bird is quite a sluggard, as it does not rise until long after the chaffinches, linnets and a number of hedgerow birds have been up and about.

—All of the local cases of diphtheria are on the road to recovery, and no new cases have been reported by the Board of Health.

—West Front street below Liberty street is being relieved of a quantity of surplus mud, much to the satisfaction of the cyclers.

—The choir of the First Baptist church will not sing at the church during August, but will resume their place early in September.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. T. Maloney, of East Second street, is visiting at Junction, this State.

The Misses Burt, of West Seventh street, left today for Ocean Grove for two weeks.

Postmaster E. H. Bird and wife, of Elm place, spent Sunday with friends at Naugautuck, Conn.

Harry E. Hann, one of the Press carriers, is spending his two weeks' vacation in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Peterson, of Newark, spent Sunday in Plainfield with her sister, Miss Mattie Merrill, of Sandford avenue.

Mrs. Chas. Runyon, of Westervelt avenue, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbertson, of Philadelphia.

Raymond A. McGee, of Orchard avenue, Washington Park, returned to West Hampton, L. I., today, where he is spending his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Orchard avenue, Washington Park, left this morning for Point Breeze Camp, Wolfboro, N. H., where they will spend a portion of their summer vacation.

THEATRICAL.

Indoor summer amusements no longer possess any terrors for patrons of F. F. Proctor's theatres, the Twenty-third Street, just off Sixth avenue, and the Pleasure Palace, at Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue, New York. There is an unprecedented coolness in the auditoriums which are made positively comfortable by huge electric fans, which disseminate iced air. The stars at the Pleasure Palace for this week are: Clayton White and company in a lively playet; Chas. Wayne and Anna Caldwell in the laughmaker, "To Boston on Business;" Cole and Johnson, coon comedians; Nellie Maguire, soprano, and acrobats, and song and dance artists galore. At the Twenty-third Street Theatre this week are: Chas. T. Ellis and company in a new comedietta; Three Goldens, Wesson, Walters and Simon, Silvern and Emerie, Edna Aug, Bennett and Rich, Jewett, and a host of musical, singing, dancing, juggling and various other specialties.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 1.—Herbert Nelson of the "Cedars" recently placed too much confidence in a colored youth named Clarence Wilson. He loaned him a Cleveland wheel to take a short trip into the country. That is the last seen of the wheel by the good natured Mr. Nelson. The wheel was loaned as long ago as July 13th, but neither Wilson or the wheel have since been seen. Mr. Nelson thought he traced the wheel to a southern city where he finally lost all trace of it. At one time he heard of Wilson being in Alexandria, Va. He wrote to the chief of police of that city, but no information could be gained of the missing wheel. Mr. Nelson has about made up his mind that Wilson has stolen his wheel.

Franklin Council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Plainfield, will send their initiation team to the borough this evening to assist the local council in working the first degree on one candidate.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 1.—The following cases have been disposed of in Judge Clark's court: Miller against Hoffman, in tort, non-suited; Engel against Powers, on contract, defendant paid full amount with cost and interest; Elliott against Corey, disorderly conduct, complaint withdrawn. This cleans the docket in Judge Clark's court at present.

Mrs. G. M. Shott led the Young People's meeting in the Baptist church Sunday. At the close Mr. Shott gave a brief but very interesting talk upon his trip to the convention held in Richmond recently.

Scotch Plains will compare favorably with any place in the State in the number of wheels owned in town. It seems as though everyone rides, from the youngest to the oldest resident.

Charles Fields, who had quite a fall and severe shaking up Friday while at work in a house at Westfield, is able to return to work again.

Richard Malone, who has been enjoying a vacation of several weeks, has returned to business in New York.

Miss Susie L. Parse visited friends in Plainfield yesterday.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 1 — Baggage master Robert George, who does duty at the Westfield station, did some rough work with the Seventy-first New York Regiment in Cuba, but "Bob" says that it wasn't in it with learning to ride a bicycle. He started in yesterday to show some of the men at the depot that it was "dead easy" to ride, but now he is out a uniform, his having been slightly torn when he came in contact with the rear wheel of Charles Burtis' carriage. He also has several bruises about the body, but he says he'll ride the "Gal darn thing" if it takes him all summer.

Charles Embleton, the winner of the fifteen mile road race run here on the Fourth of July, is entered to race at the Vailsburg board track next Sunday. He will start in the second heat of the quarter mile novice, and there are many in Westfield who think he will win the event.

Reached His Sixth Birthday.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

WARS CAUSED BY TRIFLES

England and Her Allies Drifted Into the Crimean Troubles.

Many wars have had trifling causes. A dispatch altered in one or two points by Bismarck brought on the Franco-German conflict, Palmerston said facetiously that only three men in Europe ever knew what the Schleswig-Holstein troubles which led to two wars were about, and two of them died before the conflicts began, while he, the third man, had forgotten. A slighting reference by Frederick the Great of Prussia to Mme. Pompadour of France was said to have been one of the causes of the Seven Years' War, sometimes called the "war of three petticoats," from the fact that the France of Pompadour and the Russia of Catherine II. joined the Austria of Maria Theresa against Frederick.

According to John Bright, England and her allies drifted into the Crimean War without realizing it until after they got in, and they did not know what they fought for even after they started while it is certain that everything which was supposed to have been fixed by that conflict was disturbed afterward. The results of the quarter of a century of wars beginning with the commencement of the French Revolution and ending with Waterloo, "pleased nobody and settled nothing," according to Sheridan. The average person who lived in those days knew as little about the causes of the slaughter as old Kaspar did about the battle of Blenheim when questioned by little Peterkin.

Quail.

Pliny was much more accurate as to the habits of migrating quails than most observers of his day. He mentions that when crossing the sea they were sometimes blown out of their course and drowned. He was also aware that they migrate by night, and makes the curious statement that when the multitudes were nearing land they were dangerous to small boats, on whose sails and rigging they settled, "often by night," and overset them. Tens of thousands are taken on the coast of the Pontine marshes, and in Sicily one hundred thousand are said to have been captured in one day. In the islands of the Greek Archipelago they are caught and cured just like sprats or pilchards, with the difference that they are netted on the land instead of in the sea. The heads are cut off, the bodies cleaned, and then salted and packed in tubs. Further East one of the greatest of the annual quail catches takes place on the Bosporus. The main body of these quail are looked for on the return migration in autumn, not in the spring. It is then that the birds hatched during the summer on the plains of Poland, of Turkey of Rumania, and South Russia are on their way South, and pass in myriads over the straits and along the Asiatic shore. But in old days there were often years of respite for the birds.

War on the Bosporus, or in Greece and the Archipelago, or in Egypt or Spain or Italy, might at any moment give the birds an "open door" for a series of years; and population not only failed to increase, but often receded; and there were no railways or steamships. The demand was a local one; and as in the days of Moses people tired even of quail. Now the populations of Paris, London and Berlin are added to the eaters of spring quails. The birds are caught lean and are forwarded alive to be fattened. The demand increases, population is everywhere growing, engines for their capture are better devised, and the demand is clearly overtaking the supply.

Oyster Shell Windows

Among the various and curious objects brought from Manila by some of our returning soldiers none excite more interest than the delicate plate-like shells called conchas not only because they belong to the usually unattractive and rough-shelled oyster family, but from the fact that shells serve as windows in may of the buildings of the Philippines.

The shell is nearly round, about four inches in diameter, compressed, and so thin that it is nearly transparent. In appearance the interior of the shell resembles isinglass, with opalescent tints, the interior being lightly rough. The animal is so exceedingly flat that when the valves are closed they apparently touch. This is probably the same species of mollusk which is known in China as the Chinese window oyster, and which is used for windows, lanterns and similar purposes. These ingenious people also powder the shells, which they use for silver in their water colors.

The better class of houses in Manila have window frames which slide in grooves, so as to be opened or closed, as desired, and in these are set the conchas, which soften the bright tropical sun rays. As a further protection against light and heat blinds are used which run in the grooves with the windows. The Governor's Palace, which was rebuilt about two hundred years ago, has for windows the same sliding frames set with many panes of the window oyster.

A Curio

A resident of Bristol, Pa., owns a curiosity in the shape of a copper button, the kind said to have been worn by the servants of George Washington when the latter was President of the United States. The button is about one and one-half inches in diameter, and is quite elaborately engraved. Around the edge are the words: "Long live our President." In the centre is a monogram "G. W." There are said to be only about three of these buttons now in existence, and two of them belong to members of the Washington family.

East Indian famines have had some comic features. In Aurungabad the priests were paid to pray for rain and did so, day after day, but the rain failed to appear, though very costly processions were organized. At last the people became angry, threw the gods into the rubbish heaps and blocked up the entrance to the temples with masses of thorns as a penalty for keeping the fields dry. It is just as well for a Hindoo god to attend to business if he wants to keep his job.

A North Carolina woman has invented an appliance for keeping poultices warm, a receptacle for hot water having a face in which the sack containing the poultice is inserted, with an opening in the receptacle for changing the water as it cools.

FASHION NOTES.

Little Girls' Bonnets—Thin Summer Petticoats.

The large directoire bonnets are still used for little girls up to 7 or 8 years old. The bonnets are of soft straw and are trimmed with mousseline de soie and ribbon.

Beige is a fashionable color, and jackets of this shade are well worn.

Petticoats are long, but not too long, for nothing is more untidy looking than a petticoat dragging below the gown skirt, or one which is so long as to collect the twigs, dust and bits of paper upon the ground and store them up among the frills and furbelows. The petticoat should be short enough to escape the ground when the wearer is walking, unless it is a petticoat specially intended to accompany a ceremonious trained gown, and even then it should not drag. Cambric, lawn and nainsook petticoats, enriched with many ruffles and with quantities of lace insertion and edging, are provided for use with light summer gowns and are charming, but expensive in the matter of laundering, since they must be kept immaculate. For ordinary wear silk moreen is the most practical material, as it wears much longer than silk, is light and has a great deal of body. It is to be had in all the fashionable colors, light and dark, in black and even in fancy weaves.

The new jacket illustrated is of cloth and is tight at the back and perfectly straight in front, closing at the side with large fancy buttons. Around the lower edge are two circular ruffles. The revers, of white moire, are embroidered with gold, the same decoration appearing upon the collar and the cuffs. The cravat is of lace. The green silk toque is trimmed with mottled plumes and parma violets.

OUTING SUITS.

Costumes For Traveling, Yachting and Golfing.

The usual materials for outing suits are employed this year—serge, cheviot and covert cloths—and in addition there are one or two new fabrics—granite weaves in two tones and a goods which is between cheviot and poplin, having the cheviot rib and the poplin luster and crispness. Gray, gray blue, brown, beige and mastic are the favorite colors, being serviceable and not easily defaced.

The plain skirt and bolero or short jacket is the accepted style for these gowns, being very convenient and simple. A shirt waist is worn under the jacket, so that the latter may be removed if the wearer becomes too warm. The shirt waist is of silk, wash flannel or cotton material, but for seaside or mountain use thin wash flannel is best and keeps its attractive appearance longest.

Yachting costumes adhere to the nautical idea, and blue and white are, of course, most appropriate. The short skirt and regulation blouse are the conventional attire, but less rigid consistency admits the flaring skirt and the bolero, marine appearances being preserved by embroidered anchors and a yachting cap. For actual use a "sweater" or guernsey, such as real sailors wear, is most satisfactory, as it is warm and does not impede movement.

A picture is given of a new traveling wrap. It is of thin, plum colored cloth lined with straw silk. A circular pelerine is sewed around the shoulders under a circular ruffle, both being finished with rows of stitching. The valois collar is also stitched, and the wrap is fastened by three stitched tabs of cloth buttoned at each end and by a metal button. The hat, of plum colored straw, is trimmed with velvet to match and gray feathers.

WOMEN'S REALM

WHAT TO WEAR AND HOW TO MAKE IT.

May Manton's Hints Regarding Seasonable Toilettes.

In spite of all prediction, the slightly bloused waist continues to hold its place and is chic in the extreme. The model given is singularly well adapted, both to silks and light weight wools. But as shown in the popular black and white, the foundation material being checked taffetta, the trimming black velvet, ribbon combined with white satin. With it is worn a sailor hat with a scarf of Liberty silk and quills.

The foundation for the waist is a fitted lining which includes the usual pieces and seams, and closes at the center front. But the blouse is fitted by shoulder and underarm seams only, the closing being invisible beneath the frills which edge the fronts below the revers. Above the closing each front is extended to form a big pointed rever which is faced with satin and banded with ribbon, a frill of ribbon finishing the edge. As illustrated, the slight opening is concealed by the big chiffon scarf, but a full plastron of white Liberty is arranged upon the lining to the necessary depth. At the neck is a high flaring collar of the white banded with black. The sleeves are snug fitting finished with puffs at the shoulders and frills that fall over the hands.

To cut this waist for a lady of medium size, three and one-half yards of material twenty-two inches wide will be required.

Ladies' Princess Tall Gown.

Blue-and-white French challie was the material chosen for this model garment, the decorations being cream white lace and insertion. Although quite simple in construction, it has an air of elegance that distinguishes it from the ordinary house gown. The backs are trimly adjusted to the figure by means of a center seam and curving side back seams, while the fronts have double bust-darts and a deep underarm dart that renders the fitting perfect. The full front and back present the watteau effect, that is particularly pleasing in tea gowns or wrappers. Below the waist line the seams of the garment gradually expand affording the requisite fullness to the skirt, which has a foot decoration in the form of a narrow ruffle of lace headed with a band of insertion. The lower edge of the yoke is defined by a full bertha of the material, which is mitered to form three graceful points that fall over the sleeves, with insertion and lace daintily decorating the edges. The sleeves are slightly full above the elbows, and are finished with small puffs at the shoulder.

Cashmeres, India and foulard silks as well as light weight flannels are eminently well suited to the model, and can be trusted to develop satisfactorily.

To make this gown for a lady of medium size will require ten yards of forty-four inch material.

Women Explorers.

An expedition consisting entirel yof women has been formed in Australia to explore the Solomon islands, the home of the fiercest cannibals known. Hitherto white men have been able to penetrate only a few miles inland.

Paper Teeth.

Paper artificial teeth are now made in Germany. They are said to be not brittle, to retain their color, and to be lighter than china teeth, and they do not melt in the mouth.

Realizes His Age Then.

A young married man never realizes that he is getting old until he is compelled to pay full fare for his first born when he has him on a street car.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A church built of compressed paper, and capable of seating 1,000 persons, has been erected in Bergen, Norway.

A SERIOUS QUESTION.

A kitten went a-walking
One morning in July,
And idly fell a-talking
With a great big butterfly,
The kitten's tone was airy,
The butterfly would scoff;
When there came along a fairy
Who whisked his wings right off.
And then—for it is written
Fairies can do such things—
Upon the startled kitten
She stuck the yellow wings.
The kiten felt a quiver,
She rose into the air
Then flew down to the river
To view her image there.
With fear her heart was smitten,
And she began to cry,
"Am I a butter-kitten?
Or just a kitten-fly?"

THE CARPENTER BIRD.

These Industrious Little Fellows Fly Many Miles to Secure Their Stores.

Down in Mexico there lives a Woodpecker who stores his nuts and acorns in the hollow stalks of the yuccas and magueys. These hollow stalks are separated by the joints into several cavities, and the sagacious bird has somehow found this out, and bores a hole at the upper end of each joint and another at the lower, through which to extract acorns when wanted. Then it fills up the stalks solidly and leaves its stores there until needed, safe from the depredations of any thievish bird or four footed animal.

The first place in which this curious habit was observed was on a hill in the midst of a desert. The hill was covered with yuccas and magueys, but the nearest oak trees were thirty miles away, and so it was calculated, these industrious birds had to make a flight of sixty miles for each acorn stowed thus in the stalks!

An observer of birds remarks: "There are several strange features to be noticed in these facts: the provident instinct which prompts this bird to lay by stores of provisions for the winter, the great distance traversed to collect a kind of food so unusual for its race, and its seeking in a place so remote from its natural abode a storehouse so remarkable."

Can instinct alone teach, or have experience and reason taught these birds that, far better than the bark of trees or crevices in rocks or any other hiding place are these hidden cavities they make for themselves with the hollow stems of distant plants?

This we cannot answer. But we do know that one of the most remarkable birds in our country is this California Woodpecker, and that he is well entitled to his Mexican name of el carpintero—the carpenter bird.—Exchange.

To Strike the Knuckles Without Hurting.

Select a marble mantel or any other hard surface, then tell the spectators that by a certain preparation you use, you have made your knuckles so hard nothing can hurt them, in proof of which you offer to strike them on the marble slab of the mantel. To do this, you raise your fist firmly clinched above the mantel, and as you bring it rapidly down, open your fingers suddenly and strike the marble, then close them again as represented in the engraving, 1, 2, and 3. If this is quickly done, you will seem to have knocked your knuckles violently

Grandma's Ignorance.

Little 5-year-old Nettie, who had been brought up in the city, was spending a few days in the country. "Grandma, what are those funny little green things?" she asked, as they were passing through the garden one day. "Why, those are peas," was the reply. "Peas nothing!" exclaimed Nettie, "I'm surprized at your ignorance, grandma." "Why, dear, what do you mean?" asked the old lady. "I'd think," replied Nettie, "that a woman of your age ought to know that peas come in tin cans."

The Costliest Bicycle in the World.

The most costly bicycle is owned by a Transvaal millionaire, who recently visited the Industrial Exposition in Vienna, and took a fancy to this wheel, which secured the first prize for costliness of material. He determined to purchase it for his wife. It was inlaid in gold and beautifully carved. The price paid amounted to $500. He then brought it to a Vienna jeweller, where he ordered nearly a half million dollars' worth of diamonds and precious stones to be inserted in the frame.

BABYLAND.

How many miles to Babyland?
Anyone can tell;
Up one flight
To your right—
Please to ring the bell.

What can you see in Babyland?
Little folks in white;
Downy heads,
Cradle beds,
Faces pure and bright.

What do they do in Babyland?
Dream and wake and play;
Laugh and crow,
Shout and grow,
Jolly times have they.

What do they say in Babyland?
Why, the oddest things;
Might as well
Try to tell
What the birdie sings.

Who is the Queen of Babyland?
Mother, kind and sweet,
And her love,
Born above,

A RABBIT TRAP.

A Simple Way of Making One Out of an Ordinary Dry Goods Box.

Sink a dry goods box two and a half or three feet deep into the ground near a hedgerow or in a fence corner, or any secluded spot that may be frequented by rabbits. Leave the top about six inches above ground. Saw out a hole six inches square at the top on one side. Make a box without ends, 18 in long, the sides of inch and the top and bottom of half-inch boards. This is to fit exactly the six-inch hole in the dry-goods box. It may be made so as to work a little freely and is to be hung on a pivot in such a way that the end outside the box is slightly heavier. Put the bait at the inner end of pivoted box. It does not take much to induce a rabbit to enter a hole. Once inside this the animal crawls along until past the middle when its weight overbalances the box which tips up suddenly and the animal slides out into the larger box. The pivoted box then falls back to its original position and is ready for another rabbit. The trap is easily constructed, simple and has the advantage of being always set. There can be two entrances, as shown in the illustration. The top and sides of the box exposed above ground can be covered with leaves, snow or anything to disguise it. The trap door is for removing the captured rabbits.

Mysterious Puzzle Game.

When little folks wish to give a party to their friends, they themselves can make games for their guests; and, really it is as much fun to make them as to play them. Here is the way to have a mysterious puzzle ready for each little boy or girl.

First, as many good-sized pictures of animals as you have guests. Cut each out close to the outline as neatly as you can, after pasting it on cardboard or bristol board, not too thick to cut easily with scissors. When dry, cut each animal, one at a time, into pieces of any shape and size you like. It is a good way to mark it into pieces before you begin to cut.

Remember to cut all the pictures into the same number of pieces. Do not cut the animals into too many pieces, for there will be more fun if the game can be played quickly.

Put the pieces of each animal into an envelope before you begin to cut another, and write the name of one of your guests.

At your party, present each of your guests the envelope bearing his or her name. Then, each is to try to "make an animal!" by putting the pieces together in a certain length of time. Have a large table or several little tables, around which your guests can sit, without crowding.

Then change the envelopes, and sort the animals into them, and begin again. Do not play over an hour.

You can have a pretty little prize to give the guest who puts together the greatest number of animals in the hour.

Do Fishes Sleep?

"Do fishes sleep—and how?"

This question was addressed to Eugene G. Blackford, formerly fish commissioner of New York state. His acquaintance with fish began when he was very young, and at the present time he is the recognized authority all over the world.

"Certainly they sleep," was Blackford's response. They sleep suspended in the water with their eyes wide open I have seen them do it often. I have many fish in tanks with glass fronts and can watch them. Sometimes I see a fish suspended in the water keeping perfectly still for half an hour at a time, and then I conclude that he is asleep. He does not even move a fin at such times, and the motion of the gills is barely perceptible.

"Fishes don't close their eyes, because there is no necessity for their doing it."

A Good Reason.

"What bright eyes you have," said the visitor to five-year-old Tommy. "You must get plenty of sleep."

"Yes'm he answered; "my mamma makes me go to bed every night at 8 o'clock."

"That's to keep you healthy," said the visitor.

"No, it ain't," replied the youngster. "It's so she can mend my clothes."

A HOARY PROBLEM.

If a Cannon Be Fired From a Car Traveling at the Rate of a Mile a Minute, &c.

The question was sprung in a Bohemian den on Orleans street, after the coffee was brought in. "Suppose a cannon was mounted on an engine," said one of the Inner Circle, "and was——"

"Aw! that's as old as Patti," sneered a privileged guest, "and as simple as A B C."

"Shut up," replied the charter member calmly, "and listen to the proposition. S'pose a cannon was mounted on a locomotive, pointing backward. The cannon is so charged that it carries a ball exactly one mile in exactly one minute and the engine is moving forward at a-mile-a-minute speed. When the cannon is fired what becomes of the ball?"

"Plain as day," declared the privileged guest, who had been fidgeting during the statement. "When the cannon is fired the ball begins its flight and thereafter has nothing to do with the engine or the gun. It simply wings through space for a mile from its point of departure, and there it stops. This, according to the proposition, requires one minute, during which time the locomotive has been travelling steadily in the opposite direction at equal speed, and has, therefore, also covered one mile from the place of explosion. Distance between its point of arrival and point at which ball drops, two miles. It's clear as hydrant water. Gimme a cigarette, somebody."

"Your explanation is dead wrong," said a member who had been thinking swiftly. "It ignores the most essential factor in the whole problem. You must remember, when the cannon is fired, that the engine is traveling in the opposite direction at the rate of a mile a minute. In other words, the tube, or gun itself, is being drawn away from the ball at exactly the same speed the ball would develop if the gun was stationary, thus neutralizing the effect of the powder.

"It is as if you struck at a man at the rate of ten feet a second and leaped backward at the same speed. Naturally, you wouldn't hit him. The ball, of course, simply drops at the muzzle of the cannon. It don't go an inch. It is inert, dead and motionless, resembling, in that respect, the thinking machine of the gentleman who has just favored us with his amusing—"

"Belay there!" exclaimed the poet lauriate of the Quartier Latin, "don't get so gay and haughty! You've dimly apprehended the principle involved, but you've still away off yourself from the real Pearl of Truth. Listen to the only genuine Buddha: Your explanation is based on the assumption that the speed of the ball and speed of the engine neutralize each other because they are equal." "Yep," admitted the charter member grudgingly. "Precisely," continued the poet, "and there, my boy, is where you fall down. Their speeds are not equal.

"The engine is moving forward at a mile a minute and goes as fast at one part of its journey as at another, but the speed of the ball, on the contrary, is constantly diminishing, until it drops, spent at the end of its flight. It is evident, therefore, that it starts at much more than a mile a minute, and as equality of speed is the basis of your childish theory, you will consider yourself squelched. Tell the minion to pass the growler."

The charter member leaped wrathfully to his feet and five others began to talk simultaneuosly. "Order!" cried the boss Bohemian, pounding on the table with a mahl-stick. "Gentlemen, stop yelling or the place will be pulled. This problem was unfortunate, but it illustrates most of the affairs of life. We are deceived by surface simplicity, rush widely at conclusions and take a cropper over some small, unobstrusive fact which we hadn't noticed.

"The cannon conundrum reeks with fiendish subtleties. The ball, for example, partakes of the momentum of the engine, which must be overcome before it budges. Then again, it is important to know whether it was fired with or against the revolution of the earth. Again you must determine what percentage of the speed of the projectile is developed before it reaches the muzzle, and that in turn involves the length of the tube and character of the bore.

"These are things it would take a skilled mathematician 'steen months to figure out. They would carry them into differential calculus and probably into the asylum. Therefore, in the interest of sanity, I declare the question barred."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Angler.

Big and clumsy as it is, and lacking in sensitiveness as it may seem, the angler is difficult to keep alive in captivity, one reason being that it is hard to get it to eat. Anglers have been kept at the Aquarium in New York six months, but that is believed to be record time. While as a rule the angler in captivity refuses food, and can be brought to eat only after a long time and by persistent effort, there comes in occasionally an angler that has not left an appetite behind it. There is a thirty-pound angler at the Aquarium now and has been there about ten days and began to eat within two or three days after its arrival, taking for its first meal a flounder weighing about a pound.

The flounder is, in its shape, well adapted to fit the angler's mouth, which is, in proportion to the size of its body, even bigger than the mouth of an alligator. The angler is of a very different shape from the alligator, being more scow built, and with its forward end rounding like the end of a great stubby-shaped platter. Its mouth, which opens from side to side, extends back about a third of the length of its body, making it, instead of long and deep, like the alligator's mouth, broad and deep, or more on the cellar door pattern.

A day or two after eating the flounder, this angler took a two pound hake whole, and, as it prefers its food alive, the hake was impaled on the end of a rod, and held down in the water and shaken gently to give it the semblance of life. It was held thus for a moment in the angler's mouth, and presently the angler dropped its trunklid and shut the hake in and gulped it down.

According to a high authority cold water is a valuable stimulant to many, if not all, people. It action on the heart is more stimulating than brandy. It has been known to raise the pulse from 76 to over 100.

TOUGH LUCK.

Mike O'Brien Last Seen in the River—Struck It Rich, But Was Drowned.

"The stories of prosperity in the land are good enough, and I allow that there are good reasons for the same; but now and then, gentlemen, you will hear a bit of hard luck individually, and where you can't understand why it should be so."

The speaker was a Western man. He was encouraged to tell any story he had in mind to prove his assertion. And this is what he said:

"There was the case of Mike O'Brien in the country where I lived. He went into the mines with a pick and shovel, and after the usual experience he struck it rich, and had about settled down to take things easy for the balance of his life. Last summer a young kinsman of Mike's, a tenderfoot, went out to get Mike to teach him how to become a miner. Mike dropped all his own interests and went with the youngster into the hills, where there is that hard but free life which man finds nowhere else in this world. The two went prospecting where few white men had ever been. They staked claims and dug shafts and found favorable indications. One day while they were engaged digging a shaft the tenderfoot accidentally smashed Mike's right hand with a sledge. Blood poisoning was threatened. Many a weary mile lay between the hill where they were and civilization, but they started out to the hot springs to get relief. For a long time Mike was unable to work, and when he got well he was down to hard pan. It was about the time when all our country was making a stampede for the Buffalo Hump country. Mike, however, was a little too late to get in with the rush. After every body else had gone Mike and two of his friends who were also too late to get in the stampede went away together without saying anything about their destination. They were gone all summer and part of the fall. When they came back they had news of a wonderful strike; they had rich milling gold ore. The strike was away up on the Salmon River. The men laid in a supply of grub for the winter and returned to the country and put in a winter's work. They realized more than they expected. After they had settled all doubts as to the richness of the mine, one of the partners, a man named Smith, came down and closed a deal for a bond to a syndicate for $400,000. Mike O'Brien's interest in this negotiation was $50,000. It was necessary for him to come down from the mountains to sign papers to get his money, and after the hard knocks Mike had this $50,000 was a fortune to him.

"The journey from the mines to the town where Mike was to go is made on the Salmon River. In some places the stream is swift, deep and treacherous. Four men were in the boat. After they had gone some distance they met a man whose business was boating freight. After a parley this man agreed if they would help him with a heavy load which he was lining up stream, he would bring them back over the treacherous waters free of charge. When they came to a boiling and ugly place in the stream the boat capsized. Two of the occupants sank at once and were seen no more. A third occupant struggled and was rescued, while Mike O'Brien was carried out by the current and in spite of his despairing cry, he disappeared, hands up. Mike had one child, a daughter, somewhere in the States. She will get his share of the find whenever she is found; but, gentlemen, I submit to you that the prosperity of the country did n't do poor Mike O'Brien much good. He went down right in sight of it, and after he had worked mighty hard to reach the point from which he saw it."

No Such Place As Gretna Green.

The novelists have woven a romance about Gretna Green and its village blacksmith which will last for all time, and which for all time will supply a denouement to the wares of successive professional story tellers. The sordid facts of Gretna Green marriages and the still more sordid details of the Gretna Green registers are widely different from the picturesque romance which we associate with the days of postboys and the mad racing and chasing through Carlisle. The history of Gretna Green and its marriages rests upon the abominable marriage laws of Scotland. We call them abominable, for they are the curse of the Scottish genealogy. The marriage laws in Scotland were and are (for they remain unaltered) atrociously simple, and therein lay the temptation and attraction of Gretna Green. Probably the novel-reading public will be shocked to hear that there is no such definite place as Gretna Green; the name applies to a district comprising some number of villages or hamlets some miles apart. All that was necessary was to get over the border into Scotland, and there make the necessary contract before witnesses. The blacksmith's shop on the high road north from Carlisle was the most easily accessible, and was probably the best known, but there were some houses just over the border which kept witnesses at hand, and retained a register of the contracts entered into. The registers were a secondary matter, and the fees demanded were frequently large and, where secrecy was an object, extortionate.

Those Gretna Green marriages still occasionally take place, though now only between residents in the neighborhood; but as similar ceremonies take place all over Scotland, there is nothing especially distinctive about the contracts made at these Gretna Green marrying shops. But unless an actual and proper ceremony takes place, it is said these Scottish marriages are not valid upon persons where both are of English domicile, though those intending to elope can have the consolation of the fact that the preliminary residence and advertisement necessary in England are not compulsory in Scotland, and a marriage in a Scottish church is binding. So a couple of return tickets to Scotland may still carry matrimonial advantages. The English law attaches great weight to domicile, and, provided domicile be established, a marriage legal under the laws of the place of domicile is held to be valid in England.

The largest sewing machine in the world is said to be in operation in Leeds. It weighs 6,000 pounds and sews cotton belting.

A TOOTHLESS AGE.

DENTIST SAYS IT IS NEAR AT HAND FOR CIVILIZED NATIONS.

Thousands Wearing Artificial Teeth—Due to the Food We Eat and Improper Care of Teeth—The Civilized Lower Jaw Getting Too Small for Proper Number.

That a "toothless age" age is near at hand for this country, if not, indeed, for the entire civilized world, is the theory of a dentist of prominence. "We are becoming a toothless people, and that very fast," says he.

"To begin with, I must make this bold statement, 'We are becoming a toothless people.' For otherwise how can we account for the fact that thousands of people to-day are wearing artificial teeth, and there are as many thousands who would wear them if they could afford to buy them? Look at our little children at the age of two; their teeth are already decayed. Our girls at the age of fourteen and sixteen have beautiful teeth indeed, but do not be deceived, in many instances they are artificial. Our mothers and fathers at the age of forty or fifty cannot boast of having many sound teeth.

"Now, when you consider how much acute suffering and pain these people go through, how many sleepless nights and restless days they pass before they arrive at that happy moment when they have gotten rid of their own teeth and can wear artificial ones instead, you will naturally ask yourself the question, 'Has the Creator given us these organs for temporary use and with the intention of inflicting suffering upon us?' No, they were given us to last us through life. If we do lose them prematurely and if we do suffer excruciating pain while we have them, it is due to our own carelessness, negligence and ignorance of the first principles of hygiene which govern the preservation of the teeth and mouth."

"I can add to these statements: It is not realized how the teeth are going in this generation. It is due to the food we eat, to the artificial conditions of the life of to-day, to the lack of care and the attention people give to their months.

"Now here is a case in point. The toothpick is not considered proper in fashionable society after meals, and floss silk is also never used. Yet both of these, if people would only realize it, are good things. After eating particles of food are entrapped between the teeth. The toothpick or floss silk will carry them away. But they remain, the particles of food decompose and an acid is formed which attacks the enamel and finally combines with the salts of the teeth to destroy them.

Teeth do not last as long as they used to. My experience has taught me that of men and women from fifty to sixty years of age from sixty to seventy-five per cent. now have artificial teeth. This statement seems astounding, but it is nevertheless true. There is dental science enough to preserve them, but people will not give dentistry a chance. They let them go, and a minute vegetable organism collects upon them. The enamel goes away, and the dentine (the inside coating) is laid bare; the dentine is attacked, and the nerves and the blood vessels are exposed; the nerves are devitalized and the teeth die."

It is this dentist's theory that one great reason of the country's progress toward a "toothless age" is due to the lack of care of the temporary teeth of children. If these temporary teeth are bad, he says, the permanent teeth will be weakened. And yet very little attention is paid to a child's first teeth.

"Thumb or finger sucking is a bad habit for children," said the Doctor. "By this habit the lower teeth are forced inward, and the upper outward. Mouth breathing also produces irregularity of the teeth. The most effective way of breaking this habit is that employed by the Indian mother, who bandages the mouth of the child, and, in that way forces it to breathe through the nostrils, or not at all."

Another important tendency the Doctor says he has frequently observed is that the lower jaw is becoming more and more contracted. It is now, he says, frequently necessary to remove some of the maiden teeth. The modern jaw, brought about through modern considerations of living, cannot accommodate all the teeth nature gives us. Hence the teeth, besides being poorer year by year, are gradually and steadily getting to a point where they will be fewer.

"Whenever there is decomposition of organic matter," the dentist declared, "innumerable colonies of microbes, the germs of disease, are generated. Through a mouth thus infected fresh food is daily taken, and during the process of mastication it is naturally mingled with the decayed matter in the mouth and then is passed into the stomach for digestion. Is it astonishing then why one suffers from indigestion or other diseases?

"Good health demands thorough digestion, thorough digestion demands thorough mastication, thorough mastication demands sound and healthy teeth."

He Knew Better.

From Philadelphia comes a story of a hospital orderly possessed of more brawn than brain. The man was an Irishman, only recently employed, and one night the resident physician told him to be on hand by 11 o'clock to take to the deadhouse the body of a consumptive patient who could not live past that hour.

Upon the stroke of the clock Dennis was on hand. The night nurse was in another part of the ward, and the patient was, to all appearances, dead. Denis and his assistant tossed the body upon a stretcher and carried it out. In the hall the cold air revived the sufferer from the effects of "the hypodermic" which had been administered.

"Where are you takin' me?" he asked.

"To th' deadhouse, of coorse," replied Dennis; "where the devil else d'ye think I'd be after takin' you?"

"But I'm not dead," protested the patient, starting up.

"Lie down this minit!" protested the orderly. "It's great cheek ye have! D'ye think ye know more about it than the doctor?"

CYCLING COMMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. George Strayer, accompanied by Miss Estella Brooks, of Duer street, rode their wheels to Tottenville, S. I., Saturday, and they will remain there for a few days.

P. J. Simmons, of Plainfield, a fast colored bicycle rider, finished second in his heat in the Vendome handicap at Vailsburg on Sunday. His time was 1:02 3-5. In the final he was shut out and could not get a place although he rode a good race.

GOLF.

Next month golf will open again at the Hillside grounds and a lively fall is expected in this popular game. Some of the best events of the season will be played at that time and all of the best players will by that time be ready to resume the game in earnest.

ROD AND GUN.

George VanNest, Wiswald Drayton and Edward Pope went to South Plainfield fishing yesterday. It is currently reported that it required two barrels in which to bring home their spoils.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

C. H. Hand, of Belvidere avenue, has purchased a new trotter.

PLAN TO CARRY JERSEY.

CHAIRMAN GOURLEY HOPES TO REDEEM THE STATE.

Democrats Will Confer—Leaders of the Party to Gather at Asbury Park, and all Differences of the Past May be Reconciled

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, N. J., August 1.—The announcement that the Democratic State Committee will hold a meeting at Asbury Park Monday, August 7th, is an indication that the party is alive to the situation, and that it means to make an effort for victory at the election next November. That meeting will not be confined to the members of the committee alone, because of the invitation issued to the chairmen of the various county committees also to be in attendance. It is believed by prominent leaders of the party that much good will result from this conference.

Reports as to the standing of the party in each county, of course, will be presented, and from these will be obtained necessary information as to the best methods to be pursued in the waging of a warfare against the Republican enemy. The State committee as at present constituted is composed almost entirely of men who supported Bryan and the Chicago platform. The only notable gold advocates on the committee are Edward F. C. Young, of Hudson, and former Senator Keys, of Somerset. Still, perhaps, that will not make much difference as to the subjects which will take up the time of the conference. In last year's campaign Bryan and the silver theory were seldom alluded to, and, as there is no State ticket to be chosen this year, there is less reason to distract the Democratic voters by dragging into the contest such disturbing elements.

All sensible members of the party feel convinced that with unity in their ranks there is a bright prospect for making gains in the campaign for members of the Legislature, which will soon be opened in real earnest. In many counties, according to common report, there are serious dissensions in the Republican party, especially over candidates for the State Senate, and, consequently, an opportunity is presented to the Democrats, which they have not had in some years back, to go into the contest and win an old-time victory. A good organization and harmony in the ranks, of course, are required, and to bring about that condition of affairs the State committee and the representatives of the couty organization intend, it is stated, to devote their best efforts.

GREAT TIMES IN MAINE.

Before breaking camp Mr. Langhorn took several snapshots of the party and also of scenes about the locality where they were located.

The only thing that at all disturbed the serenity of the party was the incessant hooting of the owls and the unearthly screeehes of the loons at night. Judge Coddington says it is more demoralizing to his sensibilities than a Republican convention.

It is possible that Judge Coddington will make another trip to the Maine woods late in the fall.

—Don't forget that the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school excursion will not leave Asbury Park until 7 o'clock. The date of the excursion is August 10th.

LEHIGH ENGINEERS SATISFIED.

New Regulations Concerning Them Put Into Effect by the Company.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Easton, Pa., August 1—As a result of the list of grievances submitted by the engineers employed on the Lehigh Valley Railroad to the General Superintendent two weeks ago, a notice was posted at the company's office yesterday to go into immediate effect. It makes changes in the pay and hours of engineers and provides that no employee shall be discharged or suspended without a fair hearing and investigation, and if the testimony of any witness to the occurance is of any value to the employee such testimony shall be taken at the proper time by the Superintendent and fairly considered. All employees are declared to be in line for promotion. It is said the men are satisfied with the changes.

THE OLD WELL

After Years Its Water Becomes Impure and Unwholesome.

So much has been said about the country well that it only needs a word in this purview. The country people love their "old wells." They always tell you: "Why, nobody ever got sick from our well!" I came across just such a well within the last few months. Three generations back this old well furnished water for the same family, and no one, in fact, ever became sick from it. At last the old folks died and the second generation started on their way with a large family of sons and daughters. Still no one became sick. The third generation became men and women and still resided at the old homestead; then at last, after so many years, the old well began its deadly work. One after another of the family was stricken with typhoid fever, until four were ill at one time, and that homestead will never be the same it once was, for there are two vacant places, and this old well, which before had "never made any one sick," yielded on chemical examination 17.0 parts of chlorine per 100,000—not far removed from dilute sewage.

The allurements of the old homestead seem very enticing on the stage or on canvas, but under the exacting eye of the sanitarian, with his increased angle of vision, "things are not always what they seem."

The vine-clad porch, with its wistaria and fragrant honeysuckle, where "mother used to sit," resolves itself into a damp, musty, sunless nursery of "the chronic rheumatism which made mother's life a burden." The old well, with its "pure, sweet water," has become a vast test-tube of colon bacillus at least, if none other, and the delightfully pure air, redolent with the perfume of flowers, has become surcharged with moisture reeking with the gases of decomposition, from a befouled soil and a cellar soil and air saturated with the moldy debris of decayed vegetables. Such is not rarely the true story of the old homestead.

Ordinary Civility.

"I should recommend as an investment," said Mr. Gobbleby, "the practice of civilty. As a matter of fact, I don't suppose that a very great number of men have suddenly become wealthy through this means; that is, I don't suppose that a large number of very rich people have left fortunes to men who had been at one time or another polite to them, but I don't doubt, either, that there have been just such cases, and I don't for a moment doubt that substantial advantages have often accrued to men through their consistent civility.

"But aside from any question of material profit (though there is still always the chance of that involved in it) I should say that the exercise of civility would pay for another reason. There are lots of people who like civil treatment, who are, in fact, really pleased by it, and though we might not get anything in dollars and cents out of civility extended in this way toward people in general, yet I should say it would pay, for we should get from it, at least, the pleasure that is always to be derived from affording pleasure to others.

"So I should say that from whatever point of view we look at it, civility is a good investment; we are sure to get something out of it, anyway, and it doesn't cost us a cent."

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

AGED COUPLE ARE AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

Mrs. James Clark in Muhlenberg Hospital Now.

SHE WILL LOSE HER TOES.

SUFFERING FROM GANGRENE IN HER RIGHT FOOT.

Was Living in a Small But Comfortable House Near New Providence When Blood Poisoning Set in—Operation to be Shortly Performed—Feared at First That She Would Lose Her Entire Foot.

The troubles of the aged couple, Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, are not yet over. Mrs. Clark is now at Muhlenberg Hospital where an operation is soon to be performed on her that will result in the loss of the toes of her right foot. It was only by exceedingly clever work on the part of her physicians that she did not lose her entire right foot.

Readers of The Press will remember the Clarks, the old couple who lived in an old tumble-down shanty hidden away in the woods near Berkeley Heights. Clark was an old fish peddler in this section many years ago but illness and old age compelled he and his wife to give up any means of livelihood. With starvation staring them in the face, the facts concerning their circumstances were made known to the public by The Daily Press and relief was immediately offered by kind-hearted Plainfielders.

They left their old shanty and were domiciled in a small but comfortable house near New Providence. For a time all went well and then the Clarks began another period of trouble. Overseer of the Poor John Evans, of New Providence borough, was considerably interested in the old people and did all that was in his power as a borough official to aid them,

Several weeks ago Mrs. Clark began to suffer from an attack of gangrene in her right foot. Through the efforts of Mr. Evans and some of the Plainfield friends of the Clarks, Mrs. Clark was finally brought to this city where she is now quartered at Muhlenberg Hospital.

It was feared at first that she would have to have the entire foot amputated but her physicians were good ones and it is now declared that only the loss of the toes of that foot will be necessary. The operation will be performed shortly and then, when Mrs. Clark recovers from the effect sufficiently, she will be moved back to her home near New Providence.

JERSEY NOT FOR BRYAN.

SO "BOB" DAVIS, OF HUDSON COUNTY, SAID YESTERDAY.

Thinks Bryan's Nomination Would be Unwise--His Choice Was Dewey—Otherwise he Thought of Gen. Lee or Cleveland

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, August 2.—Robert Davis, Democratic leader in Hudson county, and who, next to ex-Senator James Smith, Jr., is the best-known Democrat in the State, declared last night that New Jersey's delegation to the Democratic National convention will be against Bryan. A conference of Democrats is to be held at Asbury Park next Monday and the National situation will be discussed. Mr. Davis has been invited to attend. In discussing the matter last night he said:

"I certainly think it would be unwise to nominate Bryan or do anything to bring the silver issue to the front again."

Mr. Davis's personal choice for the Presidential nomination is Admiral Dewey.

"Could he be persuaded to accept the nomination," he said, "I think he would sweep the country."

"Fitzhugh Lee would also make an acceptable candidate and so would Grover Cleveland."

There was talk in Jersey City last night that at next Monday's conference the Cleveland boom would be launched.

Broke A Finger While Diving.

A painful accident occurred to Harry L. Maxson, of this city, a few days ago, while he and a party of friends were at Patchogue, L. I. Mr. Maxson was in swimming and while making a dive from a boat he struck a finger on his right hand fracturing it badly. It was with difficulty that he got out of the water and he has suffered much pain ever since.

BADLY BURNED BY ACID.

STRANGE MEN THREW VITRIOL IN DEAF MUTE'S FACE.

Their Victim Was Frank Mesick, Nine Years Old, of Woodbridge—Happened Near Boynton Beach—Men Escaped.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Woodbridge, August 2d—Harry Webber, seven years old, and Frank Mesick, nine years old, were sent to Sewaren, about one mile from this place, yesterday afternoon to take some things to Webber's sister, who is employed by a Mr. Hawkins there. They left home about 2 o'clock and had a little wagon with them, in which they carried their things.

After they had delivered the goods to Webber's sister, the two boys started to walk down toward Boynton Beach. They were walking along near Smith's Creek, which is used as a harbor to tie up small yachts and overhaul them. A negro and a white man were engaged in painting a large catboat, and when they saw the two boys they called to them to go aboard. The Webber boy refused to go, but Mesick, who is deaf and dumb, stood still, and the negro induced him to board the boat. Webber then took the wagon and started to walk toward Boynton Beach. He says he looked back for Mesick and could not see him.

An hour after Webber reached home the Mesick lad was seen by the gateman at the Central Railroad crossing at Sewaren running up the road toward his home holding his hands to his face. When he reached home it was found that his face was terribly burned. The boy says the men on the boat threw some liquid over him. The stuff was evidently some powerful acid, presumably vitriol, as the skin about the boy's mouth and eyes is eaten away. His legs and arms are also badly burned. He is in a critical condition.

A search was made for the men, but without success. Young Mesick has not been home long from the deaf and dumb school in Trenton. It is a mystery why the men threw the liquid on the boy.

ON LOOKOUT FOR FEVER

JERSEY CITY HEALTH AUTHORITIES WATCHING TRAINS FROM SOUTH.

Every Effort Made to Prevent Ingress of Yellow Fever From Virginia—Railroad Officials Co-operate Gladly.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, August 2.—President John D. McGill and Inspector Daniel W. Benjamin of the Jersey City Health Board were ready yesterday to cope with any emergencies that might arise in Jersey City as the result of the yellow fever outbreak in Virginia. It has been decided to keep special watch over incoming trains from the south at the Pennsylvania and the Jersey Central stations. The railroad officers have offered to extend the local health authorities any assistance they may need, and there will be the heartiest co-operation in all efforts to prevent the disease from reaching Jersey City and New York.

Health Inspector Benjamin intends to keep in close touch with the New York health authorities. He says the Jersey City officials will do their utmost to prevent any yellow fever germs from getting to New York via the railroads that run into Jersey City. The railroad officials declared yesterday that they would be fully as alert as the health authorities, and that special pains would also be taken to prevent the germs from being imported in freight and other goods.

WAR ON STRAY DOGS.

Mayor Smalley Says Dog Ordinance Will Be Enforced to Letter.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, is on the warpath and has declared war against the canines in his domain. A short time ago His Honor issued a proclamation warning all owners of dogs to muzzle them, and if they were found running about without a muzzle and were not registered, they would be shot. This edict has not been heeded, in other words it has been wholly ignored. The Mayor now declares that he will enforce the ordinance to the letter, and has given instructions to the marshals to promptly shoot all dogs whose owners are not complying with the law.

Kicked by a Horse.

John Steiner, of Somerset street, is confined to his home with a severely injured leg. Mr. Steiner is employed by Conover, the truckman, and a few days ago he was kicked by a horse in the leg. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was called and is properly treating Mr. Steiner, who hopes to resume work in a week's time.

PLAINFIELD LOSES A WORTHY CITIZEN.

Lemuel Wright Serrell, Sr., Died Yesterday Afternoon.

WAS A PATENT LAWYER.

HAS BEEN CLOSELY IDENTIFIED WITH CITY'S PROGRESS.

Came From England When a Lad and Succeeded to His Father's Business—Lived an Active Life—Prominent in the First Baptist Church—He Was Senior Deacon—Active in City Affairs

After an illness lasting about one month, primarily the result of paralysis, Lemuel Wright Serrell, Sr., aged 70 years, one of Plainfield's best known citizens, passed away yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Up to the time that Mr. Serrell was taken ill he was very active and attended promptly to business, going to his office in New York every day. In the death of Mr. Serrell Plainfield loses one of her very best citizens; her interests were his own. For twenty-eight years he resided in this city. He was a thorough Christian in every sense of the word, and lived the life he professed. In many channels he will be missed and the liberal support he accorded all worthy charities will be a living monument to his memory.

Mr. Serrell was born in London, Eng., August 21, 1829, and was the son of William Serrell. November 7, 1831, the elder Serrell and his family came to New York, where he opened a patent law office. At that time William Serrell was the only patent lawyer in this country. At an early age Mr. Serrell entered the office of his father, and since the age of fourteen years he has been engaged in the patent law business. After the death of the elder Serrell the son succeeded to the business which he held up to the time of his death. It was conducted under the firm name of L. W. Serrell & Son, at the corner of Broadway and Duane street. Harold Serrell, of this city, was the other member of the firm. The great ability of Mr. Serrell and his strong personality resulted in the building up of a business second to none in this country. Mr. Serrell was without doubt the most widely known and best expert patent lawyer in this country. He handled some of the most difficult cases with the greatest skill and success, and from one end of this country to the other he was known in his particular line of business.

In the summer of 1871 Mr. Serrell came to Plainfield and resided here up to the time of his death. Three summers prior to that date he spent in this city. Since coming here he has been closely identified with the city's interests. He served as a Councilman for two terms and for several years he was a member of the Plainfield Board of Health. He was a staunch Republican. He was prominently identified with the First Baptist church and up to the time of his death was senior deacon. In every department of church work his influence was felt and there he will be greatly missed. He was a faithful attendant at all the church services and always took an active part.

Prior to the Civiv War Mr. Serrell was sergeant in Co. D, Washington Grays, (8th Regt.) which position he held for eight years. During the Civil War he was First Lieutenant in Co. C, 13th Regt., U. S. Vols. He was an acquaintance of Henry Clay and took a prominent part in the great statesman's obsequies.

Mr. Serrell could date his ancestry back to 1572 to John de Seres, who entered Queen Elizabeth's Navy in the conflict against the Spanish Armada.

Mr. Serrell was a man highly esteemed by all who knew him and especially by those who were associated with him in business, Everyone who had business with him placed the highest confidence in his ability. In the home he was kind and loving and to every member of the family there were endearing ties that will never be severed.

Among those who survive him are two brothers, Col. E. W. Serrell, of New York; Alfred G. Serrell, of Yonkers, N. Y.; a sister, Mrs. Wm. G. Mott, of Brooklyn. He also leaves five children: Harold Serrell, Miss Ella Serrell and L. W. Serrell, Jr., of this city; Wallace Lincoln Serrell, of Chicago, and George Serrell, who is now assistant purser on the Transport "Burnside," now stationed at Santiago. He also leaves a number of grandsons.

Mr. Serrell was a member of the American Institute of Christian Philosophists, and honorary member of

BASIS FOR SCANDAL IN STATE SCHOOL.

Governor Voorhees Began Formal Investigation.

WITNESSES ARE EXAMINED.

REMARKABLE HAPPENINGS AT STATE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.

Investigation Began Yesterday Afternoon and Will be Continued Today—Testimony Did Not Reflect Credit on Present Management—New Methods of Punishment Revealed—Employes Told Facts.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Aug. 2—Governor Voorhees, in company with several members of the board of trustees of the State Industrial School for Girls, yesterday began a formal investigation of the scandals recently made public at that institution. In the party which went to the school yesterday afternoon besides the Governor, were Rev. Dr. George C. Maddock, President P. J. FitzGibbon and E. R. Cook, of the trustees. The examination of a number of witnesses disclosed the fact that the published reports are founded on facts, although they may have been exaggerated.

From half past three o'clock in the afternoon until 7 o'clock last evening the inquisition was in full swing, and it will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. Much testimony was adduced that does not reflect credit, to say the least, upon the present management of the school. The witnesses examined were all attaches of the institution and some startling revelations as to the methods of punishment in vogue at the institution were made.

By the testimony brought out yesterday many of the statements concerning the harsh treatment of the girls at the school were confirmed. In addition, many new methods of punishment were revealed. The use of quinine and castor oil in cases where the girl inmates were too free with their tongues is one of the methods quite common at the school and with which the public is not familiar. From start to finish the proceedings were very interesting, almost every witness making some startling disclosure.

NIXON'S MEN WON'T STRIKE.

Discuss the Situation and Decide to Continue at Work.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 2—There was no strike yesterday at Lewis Nixon's, Elizabethport shipyard, nor is there any likelihood of there being one. The men are satisfied, they say, with the way Mr. Nixon is treating them and with the wages.

Monday night the situation was discussed, and it was decided not to strike.

This was a disappointment to the labor agitators from New York and Brooklyn.

Only Three Days More

when Foot Specialist Brown, 145 West Second street, will positively close his office here. A short visit to his office will save you years of misery and suffering, for when the feet ache we ache all over. Half the world's successes result from opportunities grasped at the right moment. After this blame nobody but yourself if you continue to suffer from corns or bunions. He has permanently cured the feet of others, he can do the same for you. H. A. Weber, grocer, Liberty and Second streets, says: "Ten years ago Mr. Brown perfectly cured my corns and bunions; no foot troubles since." S. Sharkey, grocer, Third and Richmond streets, says: "About twelve years ago Specialist Brown completely cured my bunions and corns, also made my enlarged great toe joints small. My corns or bunions never came back, and today my feet are as sound as a dollar." G. Voehl, baker, 127 Front street, says: "Four years ago Mr. Brown perfectly cured my long-standing corns and bunions; no foot aches since." F. R. Vanderhoof, at Endress' meat market, Front street, says: "Four years ago Mr. Brown completely cured my ingrowing toe nails and corns; they have not pained me since." Mrs. R. V. Wagner, West Third street, says: "Over ten years ago Mr. Brown completely and perfectly cured my corns and bunions, the great toe joints were made small, and in all that time my feet have not hurt one bit; he also cured my mother's bunions and ingrowing toe nails at the same time."

PORTO RICANS THANK PLAINFIELD SCHOOLS.

For Gift of American Flags Sent in June.

MAYOR OF PONCE WRITES.

FLAGS WERE SENT THROUGH DR. H. K. CARROLL.

Went to the First Free American School in Porto Rico, Founded By Luis Porrata Doria, Mayor of Ponce—Dr. Carroll's Letter to the Mayor—Latter's Reply—Flags Gift of Children.

The day before Decoration Day there was a patriotic celebration in Bryant School, in which Lincoln School also participated. United States Commissioner H. K. Carroll was present and addressed the schools, giving an account of public education, so-called, in Porto Rico. A large flag, with two or three hundred smaller flags, were presented to him, in behalf of the scholars, who paid for them in penny contributions. He received the flags for the American free school in Ponce, and forwarded them through the Cuban and Pan American Express Company, which carried them without charge. Dr. Carroll wrote a letter to the Mayor of Ponce, which, with the reply, is given herewith:

Plainfield, N. J.,
June 16, 1899.

Hon. Luis Porrata Doria,
Alcalde of Ponce,
Ponce, Porto Rico.

My Dear Sir:—You will soon receive—perhaps, indeed, have already received—through the kindness of the Cuban & Pan American Express Co., a package containing a large American flag and numerous small flags. These flags are the gift to the American school in Ponce, which I had the honor to visit in company with yourself in March last, of the Bryant and Lincoln Public schools of Plainfield, New Jersey.

These two public schools held a joint session in honor of Decoration Day, which is devoted to the memory of those who fell in defense of the Union in the Civil War of 1861-65. It is an intensely patriotic occasion as much so as Independence Day, which is celebrated the Fourth of July. The exercises, under the direction of Miss E. V. Shattuck, the principal of the Bryant School, consisted of patriotic songs and addresses in which the pupils, officers of the schools and visitors participated.

One of the most interesting parts of the ceremonies was the presentation, through the superintendent, Mr. Maxson, on behalf of the schools, to myself, as Commissioner for the United States to Porto Rico, of the large flag and the smaller flags, to be conveyed by me to the school in Ponce, Porto Rico. In accepting the gift, I gave some account of the public school system in Porto Rico, and particularly of my visit to the school under the care of Chaplain Sutherland, Miss Dodd, Miss Hallsbaugh and others. With the gift of these flags from the children of our public schools go their best wishes to the children of the school in Ponce, for whom, individually, the small flags are intended. They were delighted to hear of the larger privileges which those children are now enjoying, and desire that their opportunities under the rule of the United States shall be as great as those which they themselves are accustomed to. It is with very great pleasure that I act as the instrument for the transfer of this patriotic gift to your school. The message is one of hearty good will from children in the United States to children in Porto Rico. Our children love the flag because it is to them the emblem of liberty and justice and equal rights, and they doubt not that in time Porto Ricans will also love it ardently as their own dear flag.

I should be glad to be remembered to the teachers and to the patrons and patronesses whom I had the honor to meet when I was last in Ponce. With many kind remembrances of your courtesies to me, and with best wishes for the prosperity of the city under your charge, and especially of the school in which you are interested, I am, yours very truly,

(signed:) Henry K. Carroll,
Commissioner.

July 15, 1899.

Mayor's office, City of Ponce, P. R., U. S. A.

Hon. H. K. Carroll, Special Commissioner for the United States to Puerto Rico, 95 Westervelt avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

My Dear Sir—Your esteemed letter of June 16th ulto., is at hand, and I am very pleased with its interesting contents.

THE BOROUGH TAX RATE.

AGGREGATE WILL BE A FEW POINTS HIGHER.

The Borough Tax Has Been Reduced, But Increase in School and County Taxes Will Bring It About Equal.

The aggregate tax rate that the taxpayers of the borough of North Plainfield will be called upon to pay in the next fiscal year will be no lower than at present, and perhaps a trifle higher by a few points. It will not be the fault of the present borough officials, however. When the present borough government went into the office, one of its promises was to reduce the tax rate. As far as the borough officials are concerned, this has been done, for the borough rate itself has been reduced,

The total tax in the borough, it will be remembered, is composed of the borough tax, the county tax, the State school tax, the borough school tax and the Board of Health tax. The slight increase in the total amount of taxes to be raised during the coming fiscal year is caused by an increase in the appropriations of the borough school trustees, which is $2,050 larger than last year. This increase is the result of the additional expense in the running of the new school. The county tax is not yet fixed but it will be slightly increased according to the figures of those who ought to know.

The amount voted for the borough is $1,500 less than the last fiscal year. This is according to the promise of the new borough officials. It will not, however, overcome the increase in the borough school tax and the slight increase expected in the county tax will probably raise the aggregate tax rate a few points above the $2.20 where it is now.

BIRTHDAY PARTY IN BARN

FAITHFUL EMPLOYE OF MRS. E. R. POPE WELL REMEMBERED.

Barn and Lawn Decorated, While Many Friends Were Invited to Do Honor to Miss Bergen's 18th Birthday.

Miss Mabel Bergen, who for nine years has been employed in the family of Mrs. E. R. Pope, of Park avenue, will always remember with great pleasure the celebration of her 18th birthday, which occurred yesterday. Her aunt, Miss Elizabeth Dunham, who has lived in the same family as a domestic for twenty five years, has always taken a great deal of interest in her niece, and she told her that if she was a good girl she would give her a party on her birthday, and she kept her word. Mabel was a good girl and well deserved the honor accorded her last evening.

The scene of the festivities was in the large barn in the rear of Mrs. Pope's house, and where Mr. and Mrs. Albert Atkinson reside. The lower part of the barn was cleared of the horses and wagons and decorated with large American flags, while there was an artistic arrangement of Japanese and Chinese lanterns, suspended from trees close by.

Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson as well as "Aunt" Elizabeth all helped in arranging the affair and in decorating, while Mrs. Pope and other members of the party assisted. A limited number of colored folks were invited and a quiet, but thoroughly enjoyable time was had. Music for dancing was furnished by Prof. Peterson.

In the upper part of the barn supper was served. In the centre of the table was a birthday cake. After a portion of the evening had been spent in dancing all adjourned to the upper rooms where refreshments were served in abundance, after which dancing was continued.

Miss Bergen received a number of presents, and among them was an old shoe properly decorated, signifying good luck.

Those present to enjoy the occasion were Mrs. Blancher, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dunham, Mrs. Jones, Rev. Tildon and wife, Miss Maggie Dunham, Miss Katie Dunham, Miss Elizabeth Dunham, Miss Minnie Dunham, Miss Louisa Dunham, Miss Grace Bowser, Miss Maude Doyle, Miss Mamie Doyle, Miss Alice Maynard, Miss Minnie Mitchell, Miss Anna Field, Miss Mary Tildon, Miss Walker, Miss Daisy Dunham, Alfred White, Frank Kelsey, Wm. Dickson, Able VanKirk, Victor Bowser, Walter Peterson, Harry Kingslow, Geo. Anderson, Horace VanBlake, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Atkinson.

Europe Agrees With Her.

Letters received in this city by friends and relatives of Mrs. Robert Binning, who is now in Europe with her husband, who is superintending the construction of a street railway in Glasgow, that the climate agrees with her and she has improved in health during her stay in that country.

WILL DARLING MAKES A QUIET PRISONER.

Visited by His Father and His Lawyer.

MAY PLEAD SELF-DEFENSE.

IS IN THE STRONGEST CELL AND IS CAREFULLY WATCHED.

Was Interviewed by Lawyer Angleman Immediately on His Arrival in New Brunswick—Angleman Refuses to Disclose Line of Action—Pathetic Meeting of Father and Son in the County Jail.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 2—William M. Darling, who shot and killed Harry Dunham at New Market four years ago, now lies in cell No. 2, the strongest and safest cell in the Middlesex county jail. Since his arrival here Saturday afternoon, he has been very quiet and has made a model prisoner. Two "trusties" have watched him carefully, to see that no attempt was made to end his own life.

Darling has not been inclined to see visitors aside from his lawyer, Winfield S. Angleman, of Plainfield, and his father. Lawyer Angleman reached the jail soon after the prisoner and the two held an hour's consultation. Mr. Angleman refused to say, however, what line of action would be adopted but as he believed that it was a case of self-defence that might be the plea.

Darling has spent his time since he was locked up in the county jail here in a very quiet manner. He reads considerably and looks wan and tired. When they met the father was overcome with grief. It was the first meeting since young Darling fled from his home four years ago on the night of the shooting of Dunham. The young man was affected as much as his father. The prisoner tried to soothe Mr. Darling, but the latter could not discuss the case and left the cell soon to recover from his agitation.

Darling will probably be arraigned for trial the second Tuesday in September at the next term of court. Prosecutor Voorhees is working on the case and says that he is confident of a conviction. He has been quietly looking up the witnesses in the case and says that he has secured all the important ones. The trial promises to be an interesting one and much interest is expressed in the course of action the prisoner's counsel will take in his attempt to clear him.

QUIET HOME WEDDING.

MARRIAGE OF MISS BERTHA F. WARMAN AND ELI LONG, JR.

Took Place This Afternoon at the Home of the Bride's Father, Thomas E. Warman, of Grove Street.

Miss Bertha F. Warman, youngest daughter of Thomas E. Warman, and Dr. Eli Long, Jr., were married at 2 o'clock this afternoon by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace Episcopal church of this city.

The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's father, 104 Grove street, North Plainfield. The wedding was a quiet affair. only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom being present. There was no lavish display, the marriage being conducted in the simple and appropriate ceremony of the Episcopal church. After the ceremony and congratulations a light collation was participated in. The newly-married couple then left for a short wedding journey. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Long will reside at 69 West Ninety-seventh street, New York city.

The groom is a son of General Eli Long, U. S. A., retired. He is a practicing physician in New York, with a promising future.

No High Step Here.

Station Agent Joseph A. Haynes, of the North Avenue station, has arranged to have portable steps used at all the principal trains so that the women will not experience any difficulty in getting on and off the trains. Mr. Haynes always has the interests of the traveling public at heart, and he is always striving to give as many comforts as possible, especially to Plainfielders.

A Big Time Coming.

The clam-bake to be given by the Plainfield Advancement Association will probably take place soon after the next meeting of the association, August 15th, possibly the next evening. It will undoubtedly be held at Mountainside Park and the invitation list will include one hundred prominent names.

—The enrollment book of the Plainfield Advancement Association is at Rowley's drug store, where any person desiring to join can be enrolled.

NO SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

Chicago Workers Decide That Brickmakers Quit Without Justification.

PROSPECTS NOT BRIGHT

The Belief Expressed That the Strike Now on Will Necessarily Be of Short Duration.

Managers and Strikers at the Smelting Works in Colorado Still Far Apart—Scale Prepared by Managers Not to be Accepted—Other Labor Difficulties.

Denver, Col., Aug. 2.—The announcement made by the managers of the Trust smelters that they will allow the big mills here and at Pueblo to remain closed unless the strikers return to work under the schedule as proposed before the shutdown makes the outlook for resumption very dark. The men say they are willing to return to work under the scale proposed by the State Board of Arbitration, but they will not accept the managers' scale.

Consequently the situation is exactly the same as that of six weeks ago, when the lockout occurred. The Board of Arbitration's recommendations are cast aside, and the fight is between men and managers, showing little or no prospect of a settlement. The managers intimate that they will enlarge the plants at Leadville, where there is no trouble, and may put in additional mills there. They will also ship to the smelters outside the State.

A report from New York that Standard Oil interests had obtained control of the smelters' Trust is discredited, Manager Grant and others saying that they knew nothing of it. An idea of what the smelter shutdown means to the mining district can be formed when it is stated that the output for the Cripple Creek district for July was 1,150,000 tons, as against 1,600,000 for June. The miners of Cripple Creek are somewhat independent of the smelter Trust, as they smelt about 65 per cent. of their own ores. In other big camps the showing is not so good.

Against Sympathetic Strike.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 2.—The prospects of victory for the striking brickmakers are not so bright as they were. The Building Trades Council refused to indorse the strike of the union brickmakers at a meeting, during which several members declared that the strike was uncalled for, ill advised and nonsensical. A proposal that a sympathetic strike be ordered by the council brought the matter up. After many members had talked in support of a proposition to stand by the union men now striking, others pointed out that the brickmakers had nothing to justify their action in quitting work without first resorting to other methods to gain their point.

It was shown that all the non-union yards were turning out bricks and disposing of them to small contractors, and that the union men were idle to no purpose. The council laid the matter over until the next regular meeting. Labor leaders who were talking of a general strike have changed their tone. They were uneasy because their methods had not been indorsed, and alarmed to find themselves alone in the undertaking.

The belief that from 30,000 to 50,000 men would go out on strike in sympathy with the brickmakers has ended, and it is thought that the strike will be of short duration.

Troops Leaving Cleveland.

Cleveland, Aug. 2.—Troops are gradually leaving Cleveland, and the city is now but little disturbed over the trolley strike. There are still many petty acts of violence.

Sympathizers with the Cleveland street railway strikers at Sandusky began making attempts to wreck the cars of the Sandusky & Intersuburban line. Large stones were placed on the track, stakes were driven between the rails, and pieces of plank spiked across the track so as to throw the cars off if possible. As soon as the plot to derail the cars was discovered a detachment of police was sent to guard the place.

The Sandusky & Intersuburban line is controlled by Henry A. Everett of the Big Consolidated.

Some persons let loose a tie car from the top of Mayfield ridge just as a car containing two passengers started up the hill. The cars collided with great force and both were badly damaged, but no one was seriously hurt. The tie car had been left on the hill beside the track. Some miscreants lifted the car on the track, pushed it to the top of the hill and then let it go when they saw the Mayfield car approaching.

Ironworkers Out.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 2.—A strike has been declared by 1,500 men of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders, District No. 2, of the Atlantic Seaboard. The strike leaders say that unless the demands of the Brotherhood are conceded the number will soon reach 5,000. The demnads of the strikers are set forth in the following communication, sent by the Brotherhood to all employers concerned.

"You are hereby notified that on and after August 1, 1899, the hours for labor for boilermakers and iron shipbuilders shall be eight hours per day on old work and nine hours per day on new work, and eight hours on new work on Saturday, the wages to remain as usual."

Boycott Affects Whole City.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 2.—The strike practically has been lost sight of in the popular excitement over the boycott. Every body is talking about it, and the newspapers publish many stories illustrative of the methods that are being resorted to in the effort to prevent people from riding on the cars of the Big Consolidated. Persons of all classes and in all occupations and walks of life are being affected more or less, and business is suffering greatly in consequence.

PREFERS HERO TO RICHES.

Agnes Dervy Gives up $50,000 Fortune to Marry Soldier.

Wichita, Kan., Aug. 2.—Miss. Agnes Dervy values Private John Kenny, a Twentieth Kansas hero, at more than $50,000. She has relinquished that sum in order that she may become the wife of the crippled soldier boy, who followed the fortunes of Funston in the Philippines.

Kenny came home Monday and found his sweetheart faithful to him, and they will shortly be married.

When Private Kenny went away the girl's father heard that they were to be married when he came back, so he sent the girl away, and no one knew her whereabouts.

Miss Dervy escaped from her watchers and wrote a letter to the soldier, telling him all about her troubles. Then came a long letter from him, which the father captured.

He told his daughter she would be thrown out of his house unless she quit writing to Kenny, and that if they were married he would disinherit her. Recently the father died.

The girl is cut off in his will if she marries Kenny, who is wounded and unable to earn a living.

More Fighting at Calamba.

Manila, Aug. 2.—The fight at Calamba was a warm one. The natives were unwilling to abandon the place, which is the key to the Lake road. General Hall, hearing that General Malbar was preparing to make an attack, sent Major Weisenberger with three companies of the Twenty-first infantry, three trops of cavalry and one of Hamilton's guns to attack the insurgents. This detachment found a force of 1,000 natives behind hastily-made intrenchments. The Filipinos held their fire until the contingent of the Twenty-first regiment was within three hundred yards, when they fired a volley. The Americans dropped in the high grass out of sight, and returned the fire. Lieutenant Love, who was walking erect along the front of the men, was shot in the arm. A Filipino officer, equally brave, stood at the top of the trenches directing the fire of the natives until he was killed, when the Filipinos fled.

Santo Domingo Remains Quiet.

Santo Domingo, Aug. 2.—Vice President Wenceslao Figuero, as a result of the assassination of President Heureaux July 26, has taken charge of the government of Santo Domingo as President and has formed a Cabinet as follows. Minister of the Interior, F. D. Morales; Minister of War and Marine, Tilo Paline; Minister of Foreign Affairs, E. Henriquez; Minister of Finances, J. De J. Alvarez; Minister of Justice, Sebastian Valverde; Minister of Agriculture, T. Cordero Bido; Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Jaime R. Vidal; Sub Secretary of the Interior, Braulio Alvarez; Sub Secretary of Justice, Pedro T. Perez.

Gift From Mrs. E. B. Crocker.

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 2.—Mrs. E. B. Crocker has conveyed as a gift to the local lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks her house in this city, which, with the grounds, is valued at $90,000. The property is the old home of E. B. Crocker, brother of Charles Crocker and one of the builders of the Central Pacific Railroad. Mrs. Crocker is now in San Francisco with her son-in-law, J. Sloat Fassett, of New York.

Dolphin in Collision.

New York, Aug. 2.—The United States despatch boat Dolphin with Secretary of the Navy John D. Long on board, crashed into the ferry boat New York, damaging her so badly that she sank as soon as she reached her dock. The Dolphin was somewhat damaged and will be placed in dry dock for repairs. No one was injured. The accident was caused by the swiftness of the current carrying the boats together.

Rebels at Ice Water Baths.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 2.—Because William Wellington wanted his wife to take cold baths every day, and sometimes several times a day, she has filed a petition for an absolute divorce, and informed the Court that she would not stand such cruel treatment. Mr. and Mrs. Wellington are well known in Omaha, Mrs. Wellington being a member of several clubs. Mr. Wellington is a merchant.

Col. Hawkins Dies on His Way Home

San Francisco, Aug. 2.—The transport Senator, from Manila, carrying the Tenth Pennsylvania, has arrived here. Colonel Hawkins died on July 18 on board. His death occurred two days after the transport sailed from Yokohoma. Apoplexy is said to have been the cause of death. The body was embalmed on board the ship and brought here for shipment to Pennsylvania.

Two More Electrocuted.

Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 2.—John Kennedy and Oscar E. Rice, sentenced to death for murder in the first degree, were electrocuted in the prison here. The voltage used to destroy life in these two criminals was the same as that in the electrocution of the two murders in Sing Sing on Monday—1,700. Death was apparently instantaneous.

An Old Loaf.

The oldest loaf in existence is in the possession of the British Museum authorities, having been discovered in Assyria by a French explorer. It is supposed that it was leavened and baked about the year 560 B. C. In shape it resembles a penny bun, and is in perfect condition.

Straw for Pavements.

A Berlin patent agency announces that a Polish engineer has found a method of chemically treating straw in such a way that it can be pressed into a substance as hard as stone and cheaper than wood paving, for which it is expected to prove a substitute.

In a new bicycle tire a series of helical springs is arranged around the interior connected to thimbles on the side of the tire nearest the rim, with a metal rim inside the face of the tire, against which the springs press to form a resilient tread.

Proclamation Concerning Dogs.

Whereas the Ordinance of the Borough of North Plainfield provides that all unmuzzled dogs running at large in said Borough during the months of June, July, August and September shall be caught and impounded and killed if not redeemed by the payment of one dollar within forty-eight hours, and

WHEREAS, the state law provides that any dog not registered with the borough clerk, and not wearing a tag bearing registry number may be killed on sight by any person if found off the owner's premises, and

WHEREAS, at this season of the year wounds resulting from dog bites are particularly dangerous, and many complaints have recently been made by our citizens by reason of the number of unmuzzled dogs running at large in the Borough,

NOW THEREFORE, I, The Mayor of said Borough, do hereby proclaim and give public notice, that the law and ordinance above referred to will be hereafter strictly enforced, and that all unregistered dogs running at large, whether muzzled or not, are liable to be killed, and all registered dogs running at large without being muzzled will be caught and impounded and killed, unless redeemed within forty-eight hours.

Orders to that effect have been given to proper officers, and owners of dogs are hereby given fair warning.

ELEVEN FEVER FATALITIES.

Four More Deaths Are Reported From the Soldiers' Home at Hampton.

THE HOME IS GUARDED.

People by the Score Continuing to Leave the Fever Infected District of Virginia.

Orders Issued to Fumigate Trains—Harbors Well Guarded by Armed Vessels—One New Case of Fever Appears Outside of the Hampton Soldiers' Home.

Hampton, Va., Aug. 2.—Four more deaths from yellow fever have been reported in the Soldiers' Home. One new case is reported in Phoebus, just outside the home.

People are leaving here by scores. The total number of deaths is now eleven.

Guards Surround Home.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 2.—The situation at the Soldiers' Home at Hampton, where yellow fever prevails, is not of a particularly encouraging nature, and the fact that there have been four deaths in the last twenty-four hours and one new case is regarded as not very cheering news. There is only one case of fever outside of the Soldiers' Home.

The home is surrounded by a strong guard. There are seven tugs patrolling Hampton Roads and the James River, while near the Rip Raps, between Old Point and Willoughby Split, the ferry boat Ocean View, manned by Grimes Battery of Portsmouth, is stationed to cut off any who might essay to escape to the mainland from Old Point.

The outgoing boats and trains are filled with passengers, bound principally for the mountains of Virginia. Great piles of baggage, which could not be carried on boats and trains are still heaped upon the piers.

The officers of the Grand Lodge of Elks are at Old Point and will probably have to remain there for some time.

Soldiers Put to Flight.

Washington, Aug. 2.—General Merritt has telegraphed the War Department that, in accordance with orders to remove the garrison, with the exception of two officers and twenty privates, from Fort Monroe, owing to the outbreak of yellow fever at Hampton, he had made arrangements to send them at once to Battery Point, Del.

More New Cases.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Dr. White of the Marine Hospital Service wired Surgeon General Wyman from Phoebus saying there was little doubt that there "had been infection in Phoebus," and that the place was under quarantine. A dispatch from Norfolk says that there are six cases in Phoebus and two deaths, both negroes.

Cephalonia in Collision.

Queenstown, Aug. 2.—The Cunard Line steamer Cephalonia, Capt. Pierce, from Boston July 22 for Liverpool, which has arrived here was densely befogged during the night. While nearing the Irish coast, she collided with a sailing vessel supposed to be a bark. The vessels separated quickly, and a boat was lowered from the steamer. All search for the sailing craft, however, was unavailing. The Cephalonia was not damaged.

Root Takes the Oath.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Elihu Root took the oath of office and became Secretary of War. A reception followed, during which the new Secretary was introduced to officers of the army and chiefs of bureaus of the War Department. The occasion was elaborate and there was a gorgeous display not equaled since the White House reception given by the President last winter to the army and navy.

On The Blacklist.

Hamilton, O., Aug. 2.—By action of the L. A. W. the Butler County Fair Grounds race track for bicycle purposes has been blacklisted and a fine of $10 imposed. The trouble arose over the score cards last year being under the charge of persons not connected with the L. A. W. and the races not under its sanction. Unless the fine is shortly paid there will be no bicycle races at the fair grounds on Labor Day or during the Butler County Fair.

Automobile's Fast Time in Newport.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 2.—A new speed record for gasoline automobiles was made in this city by a vehicle in which W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr. and Oliver H. P. Belmont were passengers. Starting from young Mr. Belmonts cottage, the vehicle covered three and one-half miles in six minutes. The roads were in excellent condition for fast time, and it is said that this speed has never before been made in this country.

Using His Own Skin.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 2.—Bennie W. Acker is being patched up with his own skins. Two years ago he was badly burned. Several places have refused to heal. He has been on the operating table two days. Cuticle from the healthy parts of his body is being taken off and applied to the parts which refused to heal. It is thought he will recover.

Will Redeem Bonds.

Indianapolis, Aug. 2.—The State Finance Board has ordered the redemption of $200,000 of state bonds, thus reducing the state debt that much. There is now $204,000 in the treasury available for such purpose.

An Increase Granted.

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 2.—The National Sewer Pipe Company has notified its employes of a 10 per cent. increase in wges. Several hundred men are affected.

FAST MAIL TRAIN WRECKED

Four Men Killed and Five Injured on the Northwestern.

Moingona, Ia., Aug. 2.—The fast mail on the Chicago & Northwestern Railway was derailed and wrecked here. Four men were killed and five severely injured. Every person on the train was hurt more or less. The dead are: John Masterson, engineer, Boone, Ia.; George Schmidt, Boone, Ia.; T. S. E. Stone, chief mail clerk, Chicago; J. J. O'Brien, mail clerk, Chicago.

The seriously injured are: T. E. Ackert, postal clerk, Dixon, Ill.; A. W. Hoyt, postal clerk, Cedar Rapids; E. M. Shirk, postal clerk, McCausland, Ia.; C. C. Rork, postal clerk, Dixon, Ill.; and F. L. Sigafoos, express messenger's helper, Missouri Valley. All but O'Brien of the men killed died instantly.

The wreck occurred at the Des Moines River bridge, where a new track was being put in. The train came down the curve at a terrific rate, not faster than the schedule, however, which calls for a mile a minute. It carried three mail cars and two express cars. In coming around the curve the whole train left the track and went partly into the river and piled up along the track. The locomotive plunged into the river, carrying the crew with it. The others were crushed in the debris. It is said that a rod on the locomotive broke and threw the train into the ditch.

This is disputed by several. The train was following by thirty minutes the regular West-bound passenger train and the railroad men argue there could have been nothing the matter with the track or the passenger train would have been derailed. The entire train was demolished. The locomotive is a scrap pile and the cars were smashed to pieces.

The injured and dead were taken to Boone. The injured will all recover. The track was scarcely damaged, because the wrecked train jumped so far into the ditch.

Wounded by Stray Bullet.

Orange, N. J., Aug. 2.—Gertrude T. Conklin, 14 years old, who is visiting the family of Alfred Payne of 119 N. Seventeenth street, East Orange, was standing in the doorway of Cortwright's grocery, at Park avenue and North Fifteenth street, when she suddenly screamed with pain and declared that something had bitten her in the leg. Dr. Groves, who was driving past at the time, was called in and found that the girl had been struck in the fleshy part of the leg by a bullet. She was taken to the Memorial Hospital, where the bullet, evidently from a toy rifle, was extracted. The police are looking for the person who fired the shot but with little hope of finding him.

A Fence Around Alaska.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 2.—John I. Zachert, a mining expert of this city, says he has information bearing on the Alaskan boundary dispute. Mr. Zachert declares that the old Russian boundary is defined by monuments placed at short intervals, and that inclosed in each is a chart of the Russian possessions. He is of the belief that the duplicates of the charts are on file at St. Petersburg. Zachert says that an expedition would have little trouble in finding and following up this boundary line of monuments, and that the charts would prove of value in settling the boundary dispute.

Run on Bank in Montreal.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 2.—Depositors in this vicinity are greatly alarmed over the suspension of the Banque Ville Marie a few days ago and the closing of the doors of the Jacques Cartier bank, and have begun withdrawing their money from the Banque d'Hochelaga, the strongest French institution in the city. It was feared that the run on the Banque d'Hochelaga might cause the bank's suspension, but Vice-President Bickerdike says that the bank has sufficient funds on hand to meet all demands.

Murderer's Body in the Ashes.

Amherst, Mass., Aug. 2.—The charred remains of Eugene Takahpuer a full-blooded Indian, were found in the ruins of the barn of Mrs. J. F. Morrell, in South Amherst. Takarpuer had been rejected by Mrs. Morrell's seventeen-year-old daughter, Edith. He was madly in love with her and aflame at her rejection he shot her dead.

Running to the barn he set it afire and perished in the flames. The house as well as the barn was burned to the ground.

Mr. Beveridge All Right.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The State Department has succeeded in locating Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, over whose whereabouts some anxiety was felt by his friends. A cablegram to Consul Harris, at Nagasaki, Japan, elicited a reply that Mr. Beveridge was all right. The Senator was a passenger on the steamship Empress of India and was detained in quarantine at Nagasaki.

Stabbed by Wife's Assailant.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 2.—J. T. Wamelink, one of the leading piano dealers in this city, was stabbed by a negro in Wade Park. His condition is critical. The negro had insulted Mrs. Wamelink, and the husband knocked the man down and was administering a severe drubbing when the negro whipped out a knife and stabbed him seven times.

Sandbagged the Agent.

Pittsburg, Aug. 2.—Thieves forced their way into the Pan Handle Railroad station at Grafton, Pa., and after sandbagging James Parnell, the agent, and his assistant, Melvin Harrah, carried off the contents of the money drawer, amounting to about $500. Parnell is in a serious condition from concussion of the brain and may die.

Glasgow Lawyer Arrested.

Glasgow, Aug. 2.—George Colquohoun, a lawyer, has been arrested here on the charge of embezzling funds belonging to his clients. His liabilities are said to be over £100,000. Colquohoun was formerly City Treasurer.

Capt. Fenton Exonerated.

Havana, Aug. 2.—A court-martial has exonerated Capt. Fenton of his connection with the recent clash at Cienfuegos between American soldiers and the police.

STOP

The time to stop disease is before it really gets started. Then it is easy. Almost all disease starts in the stomach. A little trouble planted there will spread its branches all over the body. Indigestion drags behind it a lengthening chain of disease. Indigestion makes impure blood, it makes assimilation poor, makes the body weak, causes loss of flesh, and makes a hundred openings for disease to enter. Stop indigestion and you stop the rest. Go to the root of the trouble and you soon kill the branches. Keep the digestion in good order and you may laugh in the face of sickness.

RIPANS Tabules

are for the digestive organs—for stomach, liver and bowels. They stimulate the appetite, help digestion and assimilation of food, keep all the organs healthily active. They cure indigestion—that means biliousness, sour stomach, flatulence, headache, bad blood, bad complexion, pimples, eruptions, constipation and half a hundred other things that arise from the one cause. They cure the cause—the rest is easy. One Tabule is a dose—one gives relief. It should be taken at meal times, at bed time, or whenever a premonition of a need of it is felt. You'll feel better, and quickly too.

A CORRESPONDENT'S WOES

London Artist Complains of American Methods in Philippines.

London, Aug. 2.—The special artist of the "Daily Graphic," of this city, now in the Philippine Islands, has been indulging in a vigorous growl at the treatment which he says he has been subjected to "by authorities who are so deficient in common sense, to say nothing of courtesy, as to forbid an artist the assistance which he might provide for himself by engaging servants to carry the food the military authorities decline to supply even now on payment." He adds:

"If this campaign were conducted by the British, there would be officers commanding at the base, and lines of communication; roads would be repaired, streams would be bridged or ferries established and supply trains would be moved along, establishing depots.

"I have accompanied five British expeditions where these characteristics prevailed, but this is the first campaign I have seen in which the transport service was systematically neglected. Even the Chinese established depots in 1894. But here you cannot be taken by cart from Manila to San Tomas, by road, without having to swim several streams. But for a bit of single railway line the troops would be starved on this line of operations. As it is, they are but fed from hand to mouth."

Astor Infantry in Camp.

Matteawan, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The military company organized by Colonel John J. Astor has gone into camp at Stissing Lake, Pine Plains, this county. The company is known as the Astor Military Company. There are about forty men in the command. They have erected a dozen tents and have regulation knapsacks with Astor painted on them in gold letters. The company will be instructed in actual field service and practice and guard mounting. It is reported that they are to be sent to the Philippines. Colonel Astor is expected to visit the camp and inspect his company. The camp will continue for two weeks.

The Louisiana Lynchings.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The international phase of the Italian lynchings in Louisiana has assumed a more serious aspect as a result of several official reports received here. These show that Italian officials there believe that four out of the five men lynched were Italian citizens in the fullest sense. Marquis Romano, of the Italian Embassy, has gone to Louisiana to investigate. The Italian authorities also report a statement attributed to Dr. Hodges, whose assault led up to the lynching. This says that after the assault he walked away, indicating that the offense was not of a character to warrant the lynching of five persons.

Belgian Cabinet Resigns.

Brussels, Aug. 2.—The Cabinet Ministers have decided that in view of the rejection by the Parliamentary Committee of Fifteen of all the Government Electoral Bills which had been referred to it, it was their duty to resign. After the meeting the Premier, M. Van den Peereboom, placed the Cabinet's resignation in the hands of the king, who is now conferring with M. de Smet de Mayer, the former Premier.

Child Frightened to Death.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug 2.—Solomon Chambers, a little negro boy, who lived on East End avenue, was frightened to death by his elder brother. The little fellow was sent to the well after dark for water. He had been told about ghosts, and was naturally timid. His brother seized him in the dark and made an unearthly noise. The result was that the child burst an artery through fright and bled to death before a doctor could reach the scene.

Was Quickly Divorced.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Forty-eight hours after Mrs. Isabel G. Daly, through her attorney, J. E. Ingram, filed a bill in the Circuit Court asking for a divorce from Edward B. Daly, she left Judge Dunne's court room as Isabel G. Mills. Desertion was among the grounds on which the divorce was asked. The bill was filed on Saturday. Mr. Daly is an accountant. Mrs. Daly is the daughter of a prominent manufacturer of Providence, R. I.

Fatal Quarrel Between Women.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 2.—Beulah Sanders and Hettie Hill, two young women, quarreled over the affections of a young man who admired them both. A disgraceful fight followed, in which the Sanders woman was worsted. She retreated into the house, her antagonist close after her. When the Hill girl sought to enter the Sanders girl got a pistol and shot her through the heart.

President's Vacation.

Plattsburg, Aug. 2.—Postmaster-General and Mrs. Charles Emory Smith are the latest addition to the Presidential party here, they having arrived for a stay of several weeks. Mrs. McKinley continues to improve steadily. She eats and sleeps well. The golf tournament is to be held here and it is expected that the President will attend.

Ambassador Choate Confers.

London, Aug. 2.—United States Ambassador Choate had a long conference at the United States Embassy with Hon. Francis H. Villiers, an assistant under secretary of the Foreign Office. It is understood the Ambassador explained some points raised by late dispatches from Washington.

Preferred Death to Reformatory.

Elmira, Aug. 2.—William Bailey, an inmate of the reformatory, endeavored to commit suicide by hanging, but was rescued by a guard. This makes four attempts at suicide in the reformatory within five months.

Marblehead's Long Voyage.

Santiago de Chile, Aug. 2, via Galveston, Texas.—The United States cruiser Marblehead, which is on her way from Peru to Mare Island, has left Coquimbo, Chile, for Callao, Peru.

W. W. Astor a Briton.

London, Aug. 2.—The "Gazette" announces that Mr. William Waldorf Astor was naturalized a British subject on July 11 of this present year.

MANY AMERICANS KILLED.

Revolting Indians in Mexico Doing Savage Work on the War Path.

THE REPORTS VERIFIED.

Inhabitants of the Towns in and Near the Yaqui Valley Living in a State of Terror.

The Number of Fighting Indians Under Arms is Not Accurately Known—Desperate Fighting Takes Place Southeast of Ortiz—Fifty Are Killed.

St. Louis, Aug. 2.—A special to the "Globe-Democrat" from Ortiz, Mexico, says that any doubt that the Yaquis were on the warpath in earnest was dispelled when news came that several Americans and Mexicans had been killed in Pueblos, or towns, in the Yaqui River valley east and southwest of that station.

The courier who came in with the news of the slaughter declared that he saw a desperate fight forty miles southeast of Ortiz, and that he has positive evidence that J. F. Remley, a merchant of Hermosillo, and E. Miller, a photographer in his employ, were among the killed. Remley was one of the best known Americans in Sonora.

The inhabitants of the towns in and near the Yaqui Valley are in a state of terror.

Gen. Torres, commander of the First Military Zone, which includes Sonora, Sinaloa and lower California, who was in the field with the Twelfth Regiment, is reported among the slain.

No information is obtainable as yet of the number of fighting Indians under arms, but during the outbreak in 1897 there were between 3,000 and 4,000.

It is impossible to secure accurate figures as to the total number of killed to date, but an estimate of fifty on each side is not considered excessive.

Miss Barton in Bad Health.

Worchester, Mass., Aug. 2.—The condition of Miss Clara Barton is causing serious anxiety to her friends in Oxford, and if the stories circulating there are true her active work in connection with the Red Cross must cease, at least for a time. Her health suffered severely during her stay in Cuba, and her return, a few days ago, was due to her inability longer to undergo the strain upon her system. She is now in the vicinity of New York city with her nephew, Stephen E. Barton, and her cousin, Mrs. John H. Stafford, of Oxford.

MISS CLARA BARTON.

Seventeen Horses Burned to Death.

Boston, Aug. 2.—Seventeen horses were burned to death in a one-story wooden stable in the rear of 83 East Cottage street. The building was owned by John F. Browning, and was occupied by Hugh P. Kelly, a contractor. The horses broke out of their stalls, and becoming crazed with fear it was dangerous for the rescuers to enter the building. The firemen succeeded in getting five of the animals out of the building by covering their heads with blankets.

Morrison to Play in Japan.

San Francisco, Aug. 2.—Lewis Morrison, the tragedian, has left for the east to make arrangements to take a company of players to Japan. Mr. Morrison's intention is to leave here in May with a company of twenty-two people, scenery, &c., and play a year in Japan. From there the company will go to Australia.

Coal Miners May Strike.

McAdoo, Pa., Aug. 2.—The coal miners in the Honeybrook district employed by the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company are in conference here with New York officers of the company regarding alleged grievances. A strike seems imminent, and serious trouble is feared if the men decide to go out.

State's Welcome to Dewey.

Albany, Aug. 2.—A conference will be held at Oyster Bay between Gov. Roosevelt and the committee of the Legislature appointed to arrange for a welcome to Admiral Dewey. The State appropriated $75,000 for the use of this committee, of which Senator Raines is Chairman.

Voorhees is Investigating.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 2.—Governor Voorhees is here for the purpose of finding out what basis there is for the stories that have been told of cruel treatment of the inmates of the State Industrial School for Girls and to see to it that if the charges are true, the guilty be punished.

Prices Fall on the Bourse.

Paris, Aug. 2.—There is a great fall of prices on the Bourse, which is attributed to the departure of M. Delcassé for St. Petersburg, as well as to the Dreyfus affair.

Hiding Fever Cases in Havana.

Havana, Aug. 2.—Five cases of yellow fever, which physicians had failed to report, have been discovered here.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

Teachers Have to Suffer.

Jersey City is going to have a lower tax rate. That is a very laudable thing had it been accomplished in a way that would work to the best interests of that city instead of directly reducing the efficiency of the educational department of that municipality. The tax budget for Jersey City has just been fixed by the Board of Finance and the net total shows a decrease of $24,162.16 compared with the appropriations for the present fiscal year. In making the reduction in the budget the finance commissioners failed to provide the Board of Education with the funds necessary to pay the increase in the salaries of the teachers, according to the length of terms of service, which they are justly entitled to. The teachers are thus compelled to wait until the beginning of the following fiscal year before their salaries are increased for length of service according to law. The Board of Finance made a substantial increase in its appropriation for the Tax Board, however, increasing the salaries of its chief clerk and seven subordinates, and making them the best paid of any clerical help in the City Hall.

One Fare Now.

The people of Dunellen are now able to ride on the trolley from the uttermost limits of that borough to Plainfield or Scotch Plains for a single fare and make the return trip for a like charge. Yesterday the Plainfield Street Railway Company kept its promise and now gives transfers to and from the cars of the Brunswick Traction Company. The Dunellen people have accomplished what they wished to do, but it would have been better had the proposal to have the Plainfield company's cars run through to Dunellen been accepted, as a through and much more frequent service would have been obtained.

SECRETARY OF WAR ELIHU ROOT.

The new secretary of war, Elihu Root, was born in Clinton, N. Y., and is 54 years of age. He graduated from Hamilton college and afterward took a course in the University Law school. He began the practice of his profession in New York. Mr. Root has for years been prominent in the Republican organization of New York county.

Lack of acquaintance with the gas jet nearly caused the death of a young German in a Jersey City hotel. He blow out the light and went to bed. He had just landed in this country. It might be a good thing for some philanthropic society to supply all emigrants with a tract telling how to turn off the gas.

The Newark Council decided to pave twelve streets with asphalt and contracts for the work was awarded. MayorSeymour promptly vetoed them, giving for his reason that the price was excessive.

The famous "kissing bug" is not content with human victims. Over at Irvington the bug attacked a horse and caused its death.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

We greatly fear that the decision of the Union County Republican managers to omit the customary clam-bake at Neptune Heights will prove disastrous to the party's success in the fall. Nothing is so stimulating to party fealty and activity as the succulent clam. Its juices are a slave for the dissappointment that comes from wanting a nomination that someone else gets. Its aroma deadens the senses to the faults of the G. O. P., quickens them to its merits. Why is Darwin's law of the survival of the fittest defied? Why do the party managers ignore the palpable truth that either clams or Republican prestige must go? Let the sad sea waves answer.—Cranford Chronicle.

An illustration of the advantages of municipal ownership is furnished by Superintendent John B. Heim, of the City Water Works at Madison, Wis.

In 1881 a private company asked for a franchise for twenty years to provide the city with aqueduct water, the plant to be purchasable by the city in five, ten, fifteen or twenty years at the estimated cost of construction with 6 per cent added.

The offer looked fair enough, but then it was suggested that a water supply plant would be a good investment for the city. A little ciphering showed that the plant could be established for $31,000 less than the company's estimate. The city built the water works and as a result the plant has nearly paid for itself, while the water consumers have had lower rents than would have been charged by a private company. In addition the city departments, etc., have had free water, which otherwise would have had to be paid for.

Had the city given the franchise to the private company the public treasury would have been minus $246,225 up to this year, it would have to pay for everything not mentioned in the contract, and it would own nothing and would still be obliged to pay the first estimate of cost of the plant, together with betterments, plus 5 per cent., in order to get possession.

Newark accomplished the same result on a much larger scale and in a different way. The question was simply whether the municipality should undertake the work of establishing a plant in the Pequannock, or whether the work should be given to a private contractor for the city. The latter plan was adopted because of the fear that a work of such a comprehensive character would be mixed up with politics and jobbery.

As a result of the city's enterprise we have a plant that will have cost nothing, and will always be Newark's most valuable asset. Had we given a franchise for a term of years with an option of purchase at the cost price at the end, the city would be paying to the company from $300,000 to $350,000 a year for water and would still have $6,000,000 to pay in order to get possession of the plant.—Newark Advertiser.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A report reached The Clarion office the first part of the week that a minister of one of our nearby villages took a permanent leave of his congregation a few Sundays since in the following pathetic manner:

"Brothers and Sisters—I came to say good-by. I don't think God loves this church because none of you ever did. I don't think you love each other because I never marry any of you I don't think you love me because you have not paid me my salary. Your donations are moldy fruit and wormy apples, 'and by their fruits ye shall know them.'

"Brothers, I am going to a better place. I have been called to be chaplain of a penitentiary. Where I go ye cannot come now, but I go to prepare a place for you, and may the Lord have mercy on your souls. Good-by."—Berea (Ohio) Clarion.

PLAINS AND FA[illegible]

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 2—The Union excursion of the three Sunday-schools in town, together with the Sunday-schools of Westfield, to Asbury Park, tomorrow, will probably take a large part of the town with them, as this is the only excursion from the village this summer. Train leaves Fanwood at 8:15 sharp, both sections, returning in the evening. Those who desire to, can stay until the last section which does not leave the Park until 8:45 p.m. This will give a number a chance to see Asbury Park and Ocean Grove by gaslight.

Mrs. Fred Rose, who has been ill for sometime, but was improving so nicely that she was able to return to her home in Plainfield, has suffered a relapse and has returned to her parents' home again.

Scotch Plains is likely to be represented in the Kenyon 15-mile road race to be held in Plainfield on the 19th inst. Arthur Chapin intends entering, and it is quite likely others will.

The executive committee of the Citizens' League met last evening for the purpose of enrolling as charter members of the league such members as had been handed in.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dout, who have been spending a month with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gere, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

Miss Kittie Buckley visited friends in Westfield last evening, and took part in an entertainment held in Etta Hall.

Miss Sadie Reger, who is spending a week with her sister in Westfield, called on friends in town yesterday.

The special meeting of the Board of Education called for last evening was postponed for one week.

Miss Francis Zangle, of Brooklyn, has been spending a few days with Miss Minnie Hosinger.

Mrs. Frederick Scheelen, Jr., lies seriously ill at her home on Mountain avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Whitenack spent Tuesday with relatives out of town.

Mrs. Albert Darby, of Plainfield, was the guest of her mother yesterday.

John Boorman, the carpenter, has a contract in Westfield.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 2d—J. H. Pencheon, who is well known in Westfield, having only recently moved from here, was badly injured by being thrown from his bicycle near his home at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, last Friday. Mr. Pencheon has been confined to his bed ever since the accident, and the doctor says that it will be several weeks before he will be able to go about again.

Richard Schmitt, of Chicago, who has been spending the past week with his brother-in-law, Carle Sell, at his home in Fanwood, was badly hurt while on his way home in the wreck which took place on the Erie Railroad Sunday. He received a scalp wound.

It has been decided by the vestry of St. Paul's church to enlarge the church edifice by erecting an addition to the rear of the present building. Plans have been prepared which will provide a room for the choir, a vestry room and a chancel.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Kaiserslautern. Hier stach ein 14jähriger Fortbildungsschüler einen 15jährigen Kollegen im Verlauf eines Wortwechsels derart, daß alsbald der Tod eintrat. Der Thäter wurde verhaftet.

Neustadt. Das Dorf Elmstein hat in den letzten Jahren durch zahlreiche Brände fast alle seine alten Häuser verloren. Es wurde immer Brandstiftung vermuthet, aber ein greifbarer Anhalt war nie gegeben. Nun scheint umfangreiches Verdachtsmaterial sich angesammelt zu haben; denn gegen nicht weniger als 15 Einwohner ist wegen Brandstiftung Untersuchung eingeleitet.

Zweibrücken. An der im Bau begriffenen städtischen Abortgrube bei Ernstweiler stürzte das Gewölbe ein und verschüttete sieben Arbeiter. Sechs von ihnen konnten gerettet werden, sind jedoch mehr oder weniger schwer verletzt. Ein Arbeiter wurde getödtet. Die Arbeiter sind sämmtlich Italiener.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Das hiesige „Neue Tageblatt" hat die Setzmaschine Linotype in seiner Druckerei eingeführt. Die Maschine war vorher einige Zeit im königlichen Landesgewerbemuseum im Betrieb ausgestellt und hat allgemeine Bewunderung erregt.—Wegen betrügerischen Bankerottes beziehungsweise Beihilfe hierzu und Urkundenfälschung verurtheilte das Schwurgericht den 26jährigen, ledigen Kaufmann Karl Max Färber von hier zu zwei Jahren Zuchthaus und zehnjährigem Ehrenverlust und den 19jährigen Handlungsgehilfen Albert Silberstein von Wien zu sechs Monaten Gefängniß.

Ellwangen. Der Schultheiß Anton Geiger von Schwenningen wurde wegen Unterschlagung und Urkundenfälschung verhaftet. Geiger soll besonders Mündelgelder—man spricht von 5000 Mark—unterschlagen und sich dabei einer gefälschten Vollmacht bedient haben.

Eßlingen. Der in Leipzig verstorbene Reichsgerichtsrath v. Eger wurde hier, in seiner Heimath, unter großer Betheiligung, zur letzten Ruhe bestattet.

Münsingen. Auf dem hiesigen Truppenübungsplatze kam bei einem gefechtsmäßigen Schießen Oberst v. Münzenmaier mit seinem Pferde so unglücklich unter ein Geschützrad, daß ihm der linke Arm vollständig zerquetscht wurde.

Ravensburg. Als dieser Tage vor der Strafkammer eine Privatklage wegen Beleidigung mit der Freisprechung der Beklagten endete, zog plötzlich die Klägerin, die Schreinersfrau Mühlebach, ein Stiletmesser und sprang damit auf ihre Gegnerin los. Zwei Gerichtsdiener, die mit Mühe die Wüthende festhalten konnten, erhielten mehrfache Messerstiche in Arme und Hände. Nur mit Hilfe weiterer Personen konnte das rasende Weib überwältigt werden.

Ulm. Dieser Tage war Bildhauer Unger aus Berlin hier und besprach sich mit dem Komite für Errichtung eines Kaiser Wilhelm-Denkmals. Es handelte sich um den Platz auf dem Heumarkt oder auf dem Taubenplätzchen; der Heumarkt wurde endgiltig gewählt. Ende September oder Anfang Oktober des nächsten Jahres soll das Denkmal hergestellt sein.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. In einer Sitzung des zur Errichtung des Denkmals für die in Rastatt standrechtlich erschossenen Freiheitskämpfer zusammengetretenen Komites wurde beschlossen, einen Stein aus schwarzem Syenit aufzustellen. Die Inschrift soll folgende Worte erhalten: „Ruhestätte der im Jahre 1849 Erschossenen," unter Beifügung der Namen. Der Gemeinderath von Rastatt hatte dem Komite die Mittheilung gemacht, daß die Polizei jede andere Inschrift verboten hätte. Es darf nicht einmal bemerkt werden, daß das Denkmal eine Widmung von Demokraten und Sozialdemokraten aus Amerika und Deutschland ist.

Heidelberg. Zur Errichtung einer Bismarcksäule, für die von der städtischen Verwaltung ein Gelände am Südabhang des Heiligenbergs ausersehen und bereits angekauft worden ist, hat der Heidelberger S. C. einen Beitrag von 1000 Mark gespendet. Auch die Sammlung unter der Bürgerschaft, die noch nicht abgeschlossen ist, verspricht ein erfreuliches Ergebniß.

Konstanz. Ein leichtes Erdbeben ist dieser Tage im Seekreis verspürt worden.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Die Maßregelung von Arbeiter-Vereinigungen nehmen ununterbrochen ihren Fortgang. Das jüngste Verbot geht abermals vom Bezirkspräsidium des Unterelsaß aus, welches die Genehmigung zur Errichtung einer Zahlstelle des deutschen Holzarbeiter-Verbandes in Schiltigheim verweigerte.

Metz. Wie sich nachträglich herausstellt, ist der in Landorf verhaftete, wegen mehrfachen Mordes verfolgte Verbrecher nicht ein Bruder Luchenis, des Mörders der Kaiserin von Oesterreich, sondern ein gewisser Luchini, der mit dem Genfer Attentäter nicht verwandt ist.

THE REBUS ANCIENT

ORIGIN DATES BACK TO THE BEGINNING OF WRITTEN LANGUAGES.

The Word Said to Be a Survival of the Title "De Rebus Quae Geruntur" Series of Lampoons on Current Events Read By Clerks at Bosche.

The rebus is a representation by means of pictures, letters or figures of some word, phrase or sentence. In its origin it dates back to the beginning of written language, for the Chinese and Egyptian writings are composed of images, and the records of ancient tombs may be looked upon as a series of rebuses, says the Antiquary. Just as primitive efforts in speech needed a great deal of accompanying gestures, so early writing required images for adequate definite expressions of ideas. There is this difference, however, between Chinese and Egyptian picture-writing and the mediaeval and modern rebus, viz., that whereas in the former the intention is simplification, in the latter it is mostly mystification. The ancient Greeks made frequent use of the rebus on coins of their cities and islands. Thus the Greek colony of Selinus, in Sicily, which derives its name from the wild parsley growing there in profusion, was represented on the coins by an image of this plant. In the same way the coins of Rhodes bore a rose, those of Melos a pomegranate, those of Phocae a seal, and the city of Ancona was represented by a bent arm, the word ankon meaning a bend. These have been termed types parlants, or canting devices. Two Greek architects are said to have carved on their buildings the images of a frog and a lizard, these two words in Greek being respectively identical with their names, which they were forbidden to inscribe in written language. Julius Caesar, according to Addison, used the image of an elephant on his coins, because his name happened in the Punic language to stand for that animal. This is, however, doubtful, as the elephant was commonly used as an emblem on coins. There are, nevertheless, undoubted examples of the use of the rebus on Roman coins, as, e. g., those of Quintus Voconius Vitulus on which a calf is represented, and those of L. Aquillus Florus.

It is in Picardy that the rebus more especially has flourished in the past. Sieur des Accords says that the rebus was a special product of that district, just as bayonets were associated with Bayonne and mustard wth Dijon. The people of Picardy were so much pleased with this kind of wit that their use of it became almost a madness, and if all their work of this kind could have been collected it would have been enough, in the language of Des Accords, "to load ten mules." He was judged of no account who did not take part in this kind of exercise. In the time of Edward III the English began to admire these "foreign fooleries in painted Poesie," as Camden says, "and they which lacked wit to express their conceit in speech did use to depaint it out (as it were) in pictures, which they called Rebus by a Latin name well fitting their device. These were so liked by our English there, and sent over the streight of Calice, with full sail, were so entertained here (although they were mostly ridiculous) by all degrees, by the learned and unlearned, that "he was no body that could not hammer out of his name an invention by this wit-craft, and picture it accordingly; whereupon who did not busie his brain to hammer his device out of this forge?" Some French authorities have supposed that the word "rebus" originated from the custom followed by the clerks of the Basoech of making every year in the time of the Carnival a number of lampoons, which were entitled "De rebus quae geruntur," or "Concerning things which are happening." These were read by the clerks, who were drawn through the streets in a cart. According to Merango this custom lasted at Boulogne till about 1630, when it was stopped by the police. The word "rebus" is accounted for as being a survival of this title, "De rebus quae geruntur," the popular mind being able only to remember a portion of the expression. But it is simpler and probably more correct to understand the word as indicating the representation of ideas "by things."

An Earthquake In Mexico.

We have had an earthquake, says the Spectator, and I have never had a sensation like it, either physically, mentally, or spiritually. I was up here writing in my room, which opens with French doors on to a large stone balcony overlooking the court in which the fountain is. For some time there was an increasing trembling which I at first thought was the moving of furniture, though it seemed strange that it should shake a heavy stone building; but when I began to feel dizzy, I said to myself, "earthquake," and I then went out on to the balcony and sure enough, the whole building was visibly swaying and the large hanging lamps swinging like censors. There was no noise, which made it all the more weird. I ran down stairs and found every one hurrying into the street, (it was in the afternoon,) and in the wide street which opens into the Alameda (public gardens) at this point was a very impressive scene.

All the traffic had stopped still, and there were hundreds of people in little groups on their knees praying, some aloud, some to themselves, the men with their hats off; those who were not kneeling were holding on to one another, as no one could stand steady. The lamp-posts were swinging like trees in a wind. Some people were calm, others in abject terror. I can't say that I was not afraid at all, though as soon as I was out of the building I couldn't see the chance of any danger. The earth was not any longer trembling or shaking, but swinging which was most demoralizing. I felt something as though a solemn and dignified nightmare had come true; or as though we had been suddenly transferred to somewhere near the Presence where the working of nature was going on. It was very strange indeed. No one was hurt in our part of the town, and I can see how very little danger there really was, for there was plenty of time to get into the open.

Just six things are requisite
To make our home life sunny;
One is a cook of excellence,
The other five are money.

MODES AND FABRICS.

Summer Cloths—Tunic Skirts Versus Plain Ones.

The new cloths—and cloth is a fabric excessively fashionable at present—are becoming finer and finer, thinner and thinner, and it is now possible to adapt them to all sorts of flexible styles—draperies, plaitings and flounces—without fear of too much weightiness. These new cloths are very brilliant and compose very elaborate and fashionable toilets, usually enriched by embroideries and applications of silk or velvet.

The fashion of tunic skirts—which fashion is of great value to a fine or graceful figure, if it is properly worked out—has brought into prominence beaded or embroidered tulle, which is made up over a lining of silk. Fancy gauzes are also employed for the tunic, over a skirt of silk of the same color, and in the hands of an expert modiste the effect is charming; otherwise it is atrocious. For a tunic, the wearer must have good hips and a graceful carriage and should reach the medium height—a short woman appears to greater advantage in a plain skirt. If she must wear a tunic, however, because the edict of fashion prescribes them, let her beware of a short one or one arranged with drapery. The longer and simpler it is the better for her.

SILK BODICE.

The bodice illustrated has a yoke at the back and an entire front of pale blue satin covered with an application of guipure. The lower part of the back is of straw bengaline and is cut with a coat basque. There are open, pointed fronts of the bengaline, which are held at the top by Louis XV knots of black velvet, from which twists of the velvet pass over the shoulders to the satin back. The top of the bengaline sleeves is of blue satin covered with guipure and is trimmed in the same way with black velvet. JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE WARDROBE.

Crepes de Chine In Favor—Useful Parasols.

Crepe de chine, that softest and most artistic of fabrics, is enjoying the highest fashionable estimation at present and composes some of the most charming model summer costumes. In gray, mastic and ecru it is particularly charming, and it is shown in the warm and delicate colors as well. For tunics nothing could be more attractive, it is so clinging and drapes so beautifully. There is a variety of new weaves, of different luster and size of rib, some having a fine surface, others being heavily wrinkled.

A parasol matching the costume is always elegant, but not always practicable, unless one has a large assortment of parasols, which is expensive. For women of moderate means the best course is to choose one or two of noncommittal shades, which can be carried with all gowns without being inharmonious. Black, white and beige look well with any color, and there are certain fancy silks in subdued tints which are also generally serviceable, such as plaids and broches in black and white, gray, ecru or fawn. As to the handles, those of natural wood, in the native color or stained green or ebonized are the favorites in spite of many odd and fantastic novelties which are offered. If two parasols are to be purchased, it would be advisable to have one a sun umbrella, as it will do for general service, while the other, more ornate, may be kept for nicer use.

GIRL'S COSTUME.

The girl's costume illustrated is of navy blue serge, the skirt having a deep circular flounce headed by a bias band of plaid silk. The little blue bolero is trimmed with stitching and black braid bourgs and opens over a waist of plaid silk, the collar and front being trimmed with plaitings of navy blue taffeta. The high collar is of guipure. The tight sleeves are finished with stitching. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Simplicity in Decoration.

The best decorators are preaching simplicity and chasteness of style. You are told that what you want is a really restful room, and to acquire this colonial furnishings are highly recommended. Hence it is, that quaint, high-backed chairs and seats are now easily obtainable, as well as those more imposing wing chairs covered with rep, velvet or cretonne. Colonial yellow is the color par excellence for the walls, whether painted or papered, of a room to be furnished in colonial style. The frieze should be narrow, and is usually stenciled in browns. In some of the modern built houses in the city it is easy to find a room with a colonial mantel, recognized by the columns for supports and a simple shelf.

What to do with the floors of country house chambers is often a troublesome problem, where one objects to carpets, even mattings, and can hardly afford hard wood. An artist has settled the question for himself by painting them with the colored enamels used on metal bedsteads. The dull shades harmonize beautifully with the walls. For a room in Dutch blue there is a blue enamel which is perfect for the floor. Moss green and dull copper are very effective with white woodwork. The enameled floor should be varnished and beeswaxed to gain the best results.

An Attachment for Sewing Machines.

A new device which will be appreciated by the seamstress is a work-holding attachment for sewing machines, which has been recently patented. This consists merely of a large network basket, which may be either of wire or cord net, stretched over a frame, and means are provided for clamping this to the edge of the sewing machine, which is farthest from the operator. By this idea the seamstress is able to handle delicate work much more quickly, as she is not hampered by being compelled to look constantly to the care of the fabric, for as soon as it has passed under the needle it falls into the basket, where it is entirely safe from contamination.

TO KEEP THE WORK CLEAN.

Hanging Pictures.

A few words may not be amiss concerning the proper hanging of pictures, which is, in truth, an art in itself. The old fashion of hanging the suspending cord in an acute angle from one hook is now considered bad taste. Every picture should hang by means of two cords and the rings should be placed so that the picture will not lean forward from the walls. Oil paintings, water colors and etchings should not be mixed up indiscriminately. Try a couple of water colors by themselves in one wall space and a group of photographs or carbon prints by themselves and note the effect. Pictures should not hang too close, neither too high nor too low for inspection. Disregard of these points spoils many a fine picture.

Chairs With Pneumatic Tires.

The latest proposal in regard to dining room chairs is full of interesting possibilities. The idea is to apply to these chairs the principle of the pneumatic tire. Before a long dinner the seat of each chair will be pumped up and the happy guest will finish the most protracted session in comfort. That is the theory, of course. Whether the practice will bear it out no one can prophesy. Families including small boys would do well to proceed cautiously. A judicious distribution of tacks would make the sitting down of a dinner party like a volley of musketry.

Royal Pancakes.

The royal pancakes for Queen Victoria's table are made as follows: "To each egg allow one ounce of flour, half a gill of milk and one-eighth of a saltspoonful of salt. Whisk them well in a basin, beating the whole into a perfectly smooth batter, which, when ready for frying, should be like thick cream. Cover the pan thinly with butter. Grate a little lemon rind over the cakes and send sifted sugar and cut lemons to the table with them." The younger members of the family have currents and sultanas in their pancakes.

Copper Kitchen Utensils.

A French cooking teacher is advocating the use of copper cooking utensils has sounded a word of warning against putting them or any other dishes used in cooking away in dark closets. Keep them where there is a fresh circulation of pure air, she says, and give no chance for germs to find a lodgment. Copper saucepans are expensive in the first place, but they never scorch, are cleanly, and if burnished every day with an extra cleaning once a week, will last twenty-five years without need of renewal.

Fine nainsook embroideries with medallions of lace introduced here and there add pretty variety to the season's trimmings. Irish point and Venice point effects are also prettily reproduced in the cotton embroideries for trimming summer gowns.

Our Young Folks

ACROSTIC POEM.

Never, never let us tarry, as we go the way of life,
Ever fearless and undaunted, let us battle through the strife.
Verily, 'tis hard to follow in the way that conscience shows,
Even he who plants the seedling, still must tend the flower he sows,

Rendering what God has given, into gentle harmony,
Sowing through the coming harvest we may never, never see,
And although death soon o'ertakes us, when this mission we fulfil,
Yet, although the world forgets us, virtue will remember still.

Dare, then, to exist and labor, close to Mother Nature's breast,
In this world our tasks await us, and we have no time to rest,
Even though the way be dreary, God must know that all is best.

OUR LITTLE GRAY HELPER.

Poorly Equipped by Nature, Yet He Does His Work Well.

We have a little gray helper who cannot hear, nor see, nor make any noise. He wears a little gray coat, and he lives in tiny caves which he burrows out for himself. Our little gray helper has no feet, so he crawls.

He works busily for us all day in the ground under our feet, coming out chiefly at night to get his food. Then he does not take anything which anyone wants, but only fallen leaves and bits of stuff which no one cares about, and which are best out of the way.

Although much less fortunate than we, having neither legs, nor feet, nor hands, nor eyes, nor ears, he has all that is necessary to the performance of the work he has to do; and since our little gray helper has all he needs, and does his work, and does it well, we may think of him as being quite content and happy. And since the work that he does for us is very necessary and important work, and since he does it exceedingly well, we need not regard him with less than respect.

He has a system of blood vessels, a nervous system, and—yes, a brain. When you come to consider him under a microscope and in relation to the work he has to do, he is quite an interesting and exquisite bit of mechanism. He uses his brain, and has wisdom to know what to eat and how to get it. Though he has neither eyes nor hands, before taking anything into his cave, he examines it carefully by means of his one sense (touch), and with his little upper lip, which the scientists call prostomium. This lip is very sensitive.

He is prudent and thrifty, always dragging into his little house enough to secure him against the coming day, for blind and deaf as he is, he knows it is not wise to be out in the daytime, for the birds and their babies like him entirely too well.

He also knows that, being of a chilly nature, he will need to be wrapped up a bit when he goes to sleep in his cave, so he makes his own little bed of blades of grass and bits of leaves which he has dragged in with the little lip that does so much. He seems to like fresh air when he can get it, so he rests with his head near the mouth of his cave; and Mother Nature, realizing that this might give Robin Redbreast an unfair advantage of him, provided him with a head-covering darker than the rest of his coat, and very nearly the color of earth.

Great Names.

This game can be played by as many as like to take part.

Every player is provided with paper and pencil, and at a given signal each begins to write down on the paper all the names of celebrated people that he can recall, beginning with the letter "A"—musicians, artists, authors, Bible characters, or any others—only the player must be able to prove whether he really lived and what he was. One of the players must time the game with a watch. He gives, say, three minutes for the letter "A," and by that time all must stop writing. Then go on with all the letters of the alphabet, giving the same time for each. The one who has the largest number of names is the winner.

The Bells of Cologne.

If you want to hear the "belles of Cologne" just take a silver tablespoon, tie a piece of string around the slender part of the handle so as to have two ends of the string. Wind an end of the string around the first finger of each hand, placing the tops of each finger in each ear. Allow the back of the spoon to strike the edge of a wooden table.

Mabel Wanted to Know.

Little Mabel was visiting in the country and saw some little pigs for the first time. What attracted her attention most was the twist in their tails, and after looking at them in wonder for quite a while, she asked: "Say, grandpa, does the piggies' mamma put their tails up in curl papers every night?"

Colors in the Soap Bubble.

The beautiful colors seen in the soap bubble arise from the fact that the bubble, being very thin, reflects light from both the outer and inner surfaces of the film.

SOME QUEER APPETITES.

Ostriches and Gnats Are Not Alone in the Possession of Them.

The novel operation mentioned recently of the removal of over six inches of hatpin from the neck of a kitten is not altogether without precedent.

Kittens and puppies, and cats and dogs, it was stated, are frequent suffers from a lack of discrimination in swallowing things never intended for consumption. Hatpins, meat-skewers, knitting needles, and ordinary needles and pins are among the articles they have been known to swallow. Only recently a tiny fox terrier was submitted for professional examination on what was supposed to be an abscess on the side. The surgeon, however, decided that a foreign body was present, and nothing could of course be done without the merciful aid of chloroform, for it is both interesting and gratifying to know that even the least painful operation is never attempted until the animal to be operated upon is placed temporarily beyond the reach of pain. The results of this operation disclosed the presence of a wooden meat-skewer in the terrier's stomach, with the point projecting between its ribs. The obstacle was successfully removed and today the tiny pet is as frisky as ever it was.

Another small spaniel paid the penalty of its avariciousness with its life, mainly owing to the fact that its owner was a comparatively poor man. One morning the dog entered the bedroom, and bouncing upon the dressing table, lapped up a diamond stud worth five or six guineas. Ordinary emetics had no effect, and unfortunately under chloroform on the operating table the surgeon was unsuccessful in dislodging the stud. At the wish of the owner a further supply of the drug was given, and a post-mortem revealed the missing gem.

It is attributed to some cats that they show an intemperate inclination for wine corks, and frequently swallow them. Others swallow needles, which gradually work out through their skin, and there is a case on record of an omnivorous goat that swallowed a packet of small needles, and for some months afterward, owing to its porcupine exterior, was a terror to the small boys who attempted to take a seat on its back.

Whale Butchery.

The progress of our age has played havoc with many time-honored industries, but on the other hand has caused new ones to spring up and take their places. Whaling in bygone times was a dangerous business. Sailing vessels fitted out for the purpose had to take along not only a crew of hardy whale hunters, but also men skilled in cutting the lard from the leviathan's sides, cooking it and placing the blubber into oil barrels, carried along for the purpose. A large quantity of fat and other materials was always wasted, no matter how careful the captain and crew went to work. To-day whaling is carried on differently. Steamers fitted with all the modern appliances and covering ten times the ground of a sailing vessel are out after the great cetaceans. When they catch a whale within a couple hundred knots from North Cape they do not stop to cut up the big fish at sea, but tow the animal to Vardoe or Vadsoe, where enterprising Norwegians have started a quite novel business—a whale butchery. They work on a partnership arrangement, paying the ship-owner pro rata of the whale oil rendered and the amount of whale bone secured. Because of their improved facilities they obtain more than twice as much oil, and since the meat of the whale makes a splendid fertilizer and they derive another large source of income by selling whale hides and skeletons for museums to dealers in curios, they are doing very well. They employ at the present 120 men, most of them in former years sailors on board of the whalers.—Philadelphia Record.

A Day Ahead of the Almanac

An interesting circumstance incident to Magellan's circumnavigation of the globe and discovery of the Philippines is that every degree Magellan sailed westward added four minutes to his day, until, when he reached the Philippines, the difference in time amounted to sixteen hours. Curiously enough, this escaped the notice of all. Elcano, the only Captain who made the entire circuit, was not aware, "when he returned to the longitude of his departure, that his ship's logbook" was about a day behind "the time of the port his long-continued westward course had brought him back to. The error remained unnoticed also in the Philippines till 1844, when it was decided to pass over New Year's Day for once altogether." Thus it appeared that the Philippines, instead of lying far to the west of Spain, the direction in which the discoverers had sailed, might more properly be spoken of as lying about eight hours east of Spain. When it is noon in Madrid it is about 8:20 in the evening in Manila, and about 7:10 in the morning at Washington.

Wells That Breathe

Blowing or breathing wells are strange phenomena which exist at Sauk City, Prairie du Sac and Merrimack, Wisconsin.

At those places wells have been put down to depths varying from 60 to 130 feet, and, strange to relate, they exhale the air for a period of 24 hours and then inhale for a like period. In cold weather water is frozen at a depth of over 100 feet, causing the pump pipes to burst in many cases. Recently, Charles Stoddard put some light boards over his well and during the night the exhalation blew part of the boards off.

One man covered his well, except a round hole through one of the boards, and when a hat, folded newspaper or other similar obect was placed over the hole, it would be blown off. The air seems to come from a stratum of very coarse gravel, in which there is no sand or other substance, except a little soaplike matter.

Slate is produced in France to a very large extent and is taken from both open and closed quarries. The best of these quarries are located in the neighborhood of Anger, Department of Maine et Loire. The slate extracted is principally used for roofing tiles; from certain quarries, for large slabs, billiard tables and public toilet rooms.

MONARCH IN CAPTIVITY

How Samory the Dethroned African King Is Existing.

Some interesting details in regard to the present condition of Samory, the dethroned African monarch, have just been received by the French Minister of the Colonies. Samory is now at Kayes, where he occupies a camp, which is guarded by a company of soldiers. He has fifteen wives with him, and sixteen of his children and several servants. He spends his time in reading the Koran and smoking cigarettes.

To outward seeming Samory is calm and contented, but at heart he is quite the reverse. He cannot rid himself of the idea that he will be murdered some day and when one of his guards happens to fire a shot he is confident that his last hour has come. He brooded so much over his coming doom that he quite lost his senses recently, and made a determined but futile effort to commit suicide.

Samory still retains with him a few pieces of his barbaric furniture, but all his gold and silver treasure, which mainly consists of gold rings and silver plates, has been confiscated by the French government and is to be sold. His silver cuirass, however, a massive and unique work of art, will be placed in the War Museum at Paris. Samory, it is said, has grieved much over the loss of these treasures, and it is considered doubtful whether his captors, no matter how kindly they may treat him, will ever be able to reconcile him to his lot.

The Untruthful Mummy.

We saw only the outer gardens and the museum, the chief attraction of which is a magnificent marble sarcophagus decorated with bass-reliefs of Alexander the Great. In one side the conqueror is represented as routing the Persians, and on the other side there is a lively struggle with a wild boar. The guide book does not certify that Alexander ever occupied the sarcophagus, but the guide assured me that he had. The collection of statues, bronzes and sarcophagi is interesting and immensely valuable, and I would like to copy some of the descriptions from the guide book, but space forbids.

One Egyptian mummy case had a "Stranger forbear" kind of an inscription on it. The guide furnished me with a liberal translation. The king on the inside of the case, "swathed in spicery and fine linen," had caused this injunction to be placed on the lid of his sarcophagus:

"Do not disturb these mortal remains, for there is nothing within this casement except my poor body. There is neither gold nor precious jewelry to reward the covetous."

The antiquarians who unearthed the sarcophagus did not respect this appeal. When they examined the mummy wrapped inside of the box they found several pieces of gold clasped in the right hand, which proves that an Oriental will lie even after death.—Egyptian Correspondence to the Chicago Record.

Wanted Her Money for Her Teeth.

A great crowd collected at St. Lazare Station, Paris, one day lately to see a furious dispute between a young girl and an elderly man, during which the girl kept uttering the cabalistic words, "My money or my three teeth!"

At length the police marched them off to the nearest police station, and the girl told her story.

She met a man in Montmartre who so admired her teeth that he offered her 60 francs for three of them. The girl had them pulled, but the treacherous monster did not pay.

The man of St. Lazare Station was, however, not the culprit in question. It was a case of mistaken identity. The police are now looking for the tooth thief.

Teaching the Heathen.

"As I understand it," said the heathen, "you purpose to civilize me."

"Exactly so."

"You mean to get me out of habits of idleness and teach me to work?"

"That is the idea."

"And then lead me to simplify my methods and invent things to make my work lighter?"

"Yes."

"And next I will become ambitious to get rich, so that I won't have to work at all?"

"Naturally."

"Well, what's the use of taking such a roundabout way of getting just where I started? I don't have to work now."—Washington Star.

Music Killed a Horse.

Music caused the death of a beautiful three-year-old filly at Florence, Ala., the other day. A farmer drove his valuable young mare into town, and as he was driving up the principal street a brass band suddenly struck up its blatant music. The mare had never heard any sound like that before, and so startled was she that she dropped dead in the shafts of the trap. A veterinary surgeon who examined the carcass declared that the mare had died of heart failure, due to excitement, caused by the sound of the unaccustomed music of the brass band.

Habituated To Solitude.

Mr. Newlywed (of Lonelyville)—I've been to the employment agency and got a jewel of a cook—coming tomorrow, dear. Said she'd just as lief live here as not, and was three years steady in her last place, just as lonesome as this.

Mrs. Newlywed—And where was that?

Mr. Newlywed—I forgot whether she said it was on a whaler or a lumber schooner, but I know she'll like Lonelyville.—Judge.

A New Test of Diamonds.

It is reported that Prof. William Lispenard Robb, of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., has made X-ray pictures of real and imitation diamonds. The genuine stone was transparent to the rays, while the artificial stone cast a solid opaque shadow. This may prove a valuable test for jewelers' purposes. A combination fluoroscope would enable a jeweller to detect a bogus diamond.

A Confession.

The Novice—Do you find it hard work, my boy?

The Caddie—Well, the hardest part 's keepin' from laughin' when de guys miss de ball.—Puck.

GLOVES IN HISTORY

THEIR ANTIQUITY AND THE VARIOUS USES THEY WERE PUT TO.

They Preceded Shoes and Other Articles of Dress—All Christians Preached Against Their Use—Monks as Glove Makers—Tokens of Love, Honor and Battle.

As an article of costume gloves preceded shoes with primitive man, and other parts of his artificial covering as well.

Prof. Dowkins in his work, "Early Man in Britian," says that the cave men and women wore gloves, reaching even to the elbows, thus anticipating the twenty-buttoned kids that adorn the modern dame and demoiselle. Now, according to geology and the scientists, the cave people lived 100,000 years ago, so it may be seen how ancient the glove is. Neither shoes nor hats go back so far.

When we come to historic times there is no literature that does not mention gloves and the Bible contains many references to them. The early Christian fathers considered them to be a mark of effeminacy and preached against their use, but it availed nothing against fashion's decree, a thing that has often happened since when the pulpit undertook to direct what should be worn in the pews. By and by, somewhere about the tenth century, the clergy began to wear gloves also, and the episcopal glove is now a material part of the bishop's insignia. The episcopal glove, with its tassel or tuft of silk, is well seen on the effigy of one of the archbishops in Canterbury Cathedral. The monks themselves became the earliest glovemakers in Europe.

In coronation ceremonials the glove always bore a conspicuous part, the champion knight throwing down a glove as a challenge to any one who would question the right of the new sovereign to the throne. The new king or queen was also presented with a right-hand glove, with which to grasp the sceptre of the kingdom.

There is a good deal about gloves in Shakespeare. Master Slender in "The Merry Wives" swears by his gloves. "By this white glove," protests Byron in "Love's Labor Lost." "Oh, that I were a glove on that hand that I might touch that cheek," sighed Romeo as he gazed upon Juliet in the balcony.

One of the amusing scenes in "Henry V." turn upon the exchange of gloves between Williams and the king. The latter subsequently gives the glove he received to Fluellan, the Welshman, and when Williams comes up and spies his glove in Fluellan's cap he gives him the promised box on the ear. The king enters, the quarrel is explained, and Williams is presented with a glove full of crowns.

A curious Roman custom is shown by Shakespeare in "Coriolanus," where the women of Rome fling gloves upon the hero as he enters the city returning from his victory over the Volscians.

From the earliest times the glove has been esteemed a token of love, a pledge of honor and a gage of battle. The old knights threw down the gauntlet or the glove in token of defiance and as a challenge to combat, and the custom is still expressed rhetorically in the speeches at the Bar and in the forum. Benton sneeringly rebuked Webster for refusing to take up the glove that Hayne had metaphorically thrown down in the Senate chamber, a rebuke he soon regretted when Webster made his celebrated reply to Hayne.

This use of the glove as a mode of defiance probably originated in the necessity for removing the glove from the good right hand in order to obtain a better grip upon a weapon.

Gloves have always been a favorite gift at the time of betrothals and weddings, as well as at other times, and some times they are lined with gold to make them more precious. It was with these gold linings that Lord Chancellor Bacon frequently received them, much to his subsequent shame and dishonor. Bacon should have followed the example of his great predecessor, Sir Thomas More, who, when a grateful suitor presented him with a pair of gloves filled with gold coin, replied: "The gloves I accept, but the lining you will be pleased otherwise to bestow."

A Real Fortress.

The monastery of Solovetsk in Archangel, Russia, is inclosed on every side by a wall of granite boulders, measuring nearly a mile in circumference, and is the best protected in the world. The monastery itself is very strongly fortified, being supported by round and square towers thirty feet in height, with walls twenty feet in thickness. The monastery consists in reality of six churches, which are completely filled with statues of all kinds and precious stones. Upon the walls and the towers surrounding these churches are mounted huge guns, which in the time of the Crimean war were directed against the British White Sea squadron. The monks who inhabited the monastery at that time marched in procession on the granite walls while the shells were flying over their heads, to prove how little they feared the attack of the British fleet. Ten thousand pilgrims come annually to Solovetsk from all parts of Russia to view the churches and the relics. They are conveyed in steamers commanded and manned solely by monks.

Poets at Low Par in Vienna.

A Vienna paper declares that few persons in that city read poems, and fewer still buy them; that the publishers refuse to print them unless the authors pay all expenses, and that to ask for a volume of poetry in a bookstore is to be stared at as a freak.

How Geese Are Shod.

Bohemian geese, which are driven long distances to market, are shod before starting on the journey by being sent repeatedly over patches of tar mixed with sand. This forms a hard crust on the feet, enabling the geese to travel over great distances.

Turks Eat With Fingers.

Knives and forks are not popular gastronomic tools with the Turks. The thumb and two forefingers do all the work, save in the case or soups and rice, when the spoon is used as a time-and-labor-saver.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

Preparations for the coming football season at Princeton have already commenced, and the team is being figured on. With the exception of Crowdis, left guard; Geer, left tackle, and Black, half-back, all the old players will return. The loss of Crowdis, who has been on the team for four consecutive years, will be felt most. Mills, 1902, and Cole, an entering Freshman, will be the leading candidates for the place. The position of left tackle, vacated by Geer, will probably fall to Pell, 1902, unless some one of the entering men win the place away from him. The rumor that Palmer, the famous left end, is not coming back, has been discountenanced, and in all probability he will be on hand next fall. Taking everything into account, it is thought the team will be as good as that of last year, which won the championship from Yale. The class of 1903 will be larger than its predecessor, and many of the athletes who come in with the class may develop into first-class football material.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The entries for the metropolitan championships of the A. A. U. will close on Saturday. It is a foregone conclusion that the association championships this year will eclipse any former meet given by the organization, and as it is a sort of family affair between the different clubs forming the metropolitan body keen club rivalry exists. The events are the same as last year with the exception that the one-mile walk has been omitted. This leaves the list as follows: 100 yard run, 220 yard run, 440 yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, three-mile run, 120-yard hurdle race, 220 yard low hurdle race, putting 16 pound shot, throwing 16-pound hammer, throwing 56-pound weight, throwing the discus, running broad jump, running high jump, pole vault. The games will take place on Knickerbocker Field, Bayonne City, N. J., and will commence at 2 p. m.

ROD AND GUN.

PORTO RICANS' THANKS.

Lincoln public schools, of Plainfield, in sending to the American Free School, of Ponce, a beautiful National flag and numbers of smaller ones so that our children might appropriately celebrate Decoration Day and the 4th of July, deserves the praise of all persons who truly enjoy the greatness of the American Republic. Fortunately, today, my small island of Puerto Rico is an integral part of that great country, and I, as a Porto Rican, am proud to be called American.

I have unlimited faith in the future of Puerto Rico under the gallant flag of the Stars and Stripes; for a country, formed under the influence of the good advices of Washington, Franklin and Lincoln, cannot but carry, wherever Providence beckons it to go, freedom and progress. I am not at all impatient and am tranquilly awaiting the unfolding of events, being sure that sooner or later we will gain my always cherished ideal: the fulness of American citizenship.

I regret that these flags arrived too late for our 4th of July celebrations, as we received them the day before yesterday, and I immediately sent them to Miss Hollabaugh, of the American Free School.

The flag is the emblem of a country, therefore to love one's flag is to love ones country; nothing, then, is so practicable and important as to carry to the hearts of children the feeling of love towards our flag; and thus will patriotism grow in the hearts of children, and when they become men, the roots of that patriotism will be at such a depth that it will be impossible to tear them from their hearts.

The beauty of the American flag gives it an immense advantage over that of other nations. It is so beautiful that children, and even men, when they behold it for the first time, admire its gallant red and white stripes and its beautiful blue background, where radiant stars, representing a group of the freest States in the world, are shining, begin by being interested in its pretty folds and colors and then learning to love it, as we love and are interested in all beautiful objects which are placed before our eyes; then, little by little, while reason unfolds itself and the spirit penetrates in the ideas represented by the symbols, sentiments are born in our hearts, making clearer to our intelligence the principles that are represented by the flag.

These assertions, which I have the honor of extending to you, are not illusory suppositions, but are born of my own experiences, having noticed it myself and observed it in my loved children. In the first few days of the American invasion in our island, I placed in the hands of each of my four children an American flag and you can not imagine how glad they were to receive, it calling it pretty, graceful, and showing it to everybody especially to the troops, which at the time were seen everywhere.

For these reasons, the gift from the Bryant and Lincoln schools, through your kindness, to the American Free School of Ponce, can be considered as one of the principal elements for the progress of patriotism in Puetro Rico, and also an efficacious method by which, little by little, will be established the union between Americans and Porto Ricans.

I, who had the honor of founding the first American school in Puerto Rico, will endeavor, from this City Hall or outside of it to gain the beautiful end of union and partriotism, as we all wish it.

It is probable that I may go to the United States with my family some time next month, and if so hope to have the pleasure of seeing you.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Luis Porrata Doria,
Mayor of Ponce.

COLOR IS NO BAR.

Rev. E. E. Jackson Writes of the Spiritual Harvest Convention at Minneapolis.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist church, is attending the "International Spiritual Harvest" convention at Minneapolis, Minn. He speaks twice daily to several thousand people. Last Friday evening a reception was tendered him, which he writes The Press was attended by white and colored citizens. The citizens of Minneapolis are most hospitable to the colored delegates. Rev. Mr. Jackson says that he found "no hotels from which a black face is turned; no soda fountain at which the colored race cannot drink and no dining hall from which the negro is barred." He is to speak upon the "Emancipation of the Negro" at an early date. Mr. Jackson has also been invited to speak at Jacksonville, Fla., and other places in that state. He expects to return home early in September.

TALKING MACHINE THERE.

Delightful Social Affair Given By Miss Alice Higgins, of Lafayette Place.

Miss Alice Higgins, of Lafayette place, gave a phonograph party at her home last evening in honor of a few friends, and all had a most enjoyable time. Interspering the phonographic selections the guests enjoyed dancing, singing of popular songs and playing games, after which a bountiful repast was served by the hostess. Those present included Miss Pearl Kinsey, Miss Nettie Chandler, Miss Edith Hurlbert, Miss Alice Higgins, Robert Schellenberger, George Budewack, Ben Eddy, of this city, and William Ferris, of New York.

Ask Him.

Jedediah Smalley, Sanford Robinson and C. V. D. Corle had an experience fishing at Sebring's Mills yesterday, which is best told by Liveryman Corle who is developing into a first class pedestrian.

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. RUIN AND DISASTER IN TORNADO'S WAKE.

Churches, Houses and Trees Fell Before the Fierce Wind Storm of Yesterday Afternoon.

CITY OF ELIZABETH WAS THE GREATEST SUFFERER.

Storm Wrought Much Havoc in Plainfield—Trees and Wires Suffered Much—Local Trolley System Paralyzed—Houses Injured by Falling Trees—Great Destruction of Property Reported in Elizabeth—South Plainfield Suffered Severely—House Blown Down in Dunellen—Many Narrow Escapes—Boy Killed Near Dover—Berkeley Heights School House Struck by Lightning—Fruit Orchards Were Nearly Ruined—"Count" VanNess' Horse Under a Fallen Tree—Many Other Incidents of the Tornado.

Out of the northwest yesterday afternoon there came a wind storm of exceptional violence that became a full fledged tornado in some places. It swept though this section of New Jersey carrying destruction in its wake. From every side come reports of the damage done. The storm was only of short duration but of great fierceness and was accompanied by a very heavy rainfall and a sharp electrical display. Plainfield suffered much in uprooted trees and the disarrange- of overhead wires. The local trolley system was brought to a standstill for three hours. Communication with neighboring towns was in many cases shut off by fallen trees.

It wasn't the kind of a day to expect such a visitation by wind and storm. The morning was delightfully cool and few if any clouds were visible. It grew warmer as the day advanced but the humidity was low and it showed no sign of showers. At noon a long ridge of dark clouds swept over the mountain and advanced on the city. A dim haze proceeded it. The line of clouds drew nearer and assumed a more portentious aspect. Light grey clouds, blown into shreds by the violence of the wind, scudded ahead of the vast heaps of whirling, churning black clouds. Last of all, the dull grey told of the approaching rain.

It was only a few minutes of 3 o'clock when the first drops began to fall. Then came a puff of wind that sent the stray scraps of paper flying and caused a general hustle for shelter. A moment later the clouds seemed to open and the rain came down in sheets while the wind seized upon it and bore it in mighty sheets. For the moment the wind assumed a remarkably high velocity. Branches were torn from the trees, even the trees themselves in many cases fell before the fury of the gale. Stray window shutters, signs and a host of other things were hurled through the air. The rain and wind were blinding. It only lasted a few moments or else the city must have suffered terribly. As it was, there was damage done on every side.

The wind lessened and then the rain ceased. In half an hour from the time when the forerunner drops of the storm specked the sidewalks, there was a belt of bright blue sky visible over the mountain while rain and wind had ceased entirely. It was quite noticeably cool.

During that half hour the local street car system was totally disabled for the time being. The cars were stalled all along the line. Breaks on East and West Front street and at Dunellen were responsible.

All over the city there was a general stripping of limbs, large and small, from the trees. Some were large enough to block the highway and stop traffic for a time. On the outskirts of the city and borough the damage was more severe. Some of the pedestrians who were hurrying along had narrow escape from falling branches. The streets were scattered with the debris blown about by the storm.

Accompanying the wind was a very heavy fall of rain. Street were flooded all over the city. The Park avenue storm sewer again showed that it was able to carry away all the rain that fell there. The street was unusually clear of water and there was no necessity of swimming under the railroad bridge. Some of the other streets, however, had large sized puddles that even overflowed the sidewalks under the railroad bridges.

Just as the storm burst out car No. 20 of the Plainfield Street Railway Company was coming eastward on West Front street under the charge of Motorman Wm. Brown and Conductor Philip Maguire. The car had just passed Washington avenue and Motorman Brown shut off the power. Right in front of the home of George Servias, 440 West Front street, there stood a large maple tree. Already one branch had been twisted off by the wind. As the car passed there was a crash and the tree fell directly over the car. The car passed out from under the branches, which brushed against it and nearly swept the conductor from his place. One of the iron poles that supports the trolley wires was snapped by the falling tree, which carried the trolley wires to the ground Telephone and electric light wires were also snapped. Among the passengers in the car was Charles W. Runyon, manager of the N. Y. and N. J. Telephone Company.

Neal Compton, of West Front street, was riding his wheel, and he had just reached the spot when the tree fell almost upon him. By jumping from his wheel and dragging it back he escaped injury.

The snapping of the trolley wire caused a general stopping of all the cars. As soon as the company was notified of the accident they sent a large gang of men to the scene. The tree was speedily cut up and removed and the wires put back into shape.

A falling limb wrought general havoc among the trolley and guard wires at the curve from East Front street into Watchung avenue. The guard wires were dragging on the ground for some distance. Electric light and power wires were also broken there. Linemen repaired the damage before night.

A great maple tree, standing in front of the property, corner of West Second street and Central avenue, owned by M. F. Marclay, was uprooted and fell on the residence of Ben Eddy, 321 West Second street, next door. The chimney of the house was knocked sadly out of true, and the roof damaged to a considerable extent.

One of the poplar trees in the rear of the First Baptist church on West Front street was split by a gust. A large limb was torn from one of the trees in front of Trinity Reformed church on West Seoond street. Another falling limb nearly blocked East Fifth street, near Park avenue. A small tree was blown down on East Fourth street, opposite A. Hedden's stable.

A maple tree on East Second street was split and fell against the house occupied jointly by Mrs. Miller and William Townley. No damage was done.

The brick chimney on the barn in the rear of Frank Shattle's place at 318 East Sixth street, was blown over by the wind. Ira Beaumont was in the barn at the time and departed in haste amid a shower of falling bricks.

A tree on West Fourth street, near Liberty street, fell blocking Fourth street for several hours.

The local exchange of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company suffered severely from the storm. Out of the four hundred odd lines, fully two hundred were out of order after the storm. In some cases the wind had blown down the lines and in others, the lightning burned out fuses.

Weather Observer Neagle reports that it was the worst storm of the season. During the shower of the afternoon, .50 of an inch of water fell. During the evening shower, the rainfall was .73 of an inch, making a total rainfall yesterday of 1.23 inches.

Patrick Kiely, a well-known resident of the borough, while engaged in trimming a peach tree at his home on Steiner place yesterday during the prevalence of the storm, sustained a severe shock from a sharp flash of lightning. Mr. Kiely was rendered nearly unconscious by the shock and it was some moments before he was again himself.

ELIZABETH SUFFERS.

Churches and Houses Demolished by a Tornado—Damage Estimated Over $100,000.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 3.—For just four minutes Elizabeth was swept by a tonado. It appeared yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock and spread ruin on every side. There was, however, no casualties reported. It came from the southwest and passed through the centre of the city in a track a thousand feet wide.

The damage in the city from the tornado is estimated at from $100,000 to $200,000. The path of the tornado included many churches and other prominent buildings, and it could not have picked out any other path through the city where the possibilities of damage would have been so great.

One of the first buildings to be hit by the blast was the tower of the historic First Presbyterian church. This towering column was snapped off just above the clock and crashed down to the ground. Immediately after the steeple fell the big trees in the churchyard began to yield to the wind, and several of them fell, their roots being torn from the ground, and the bones of men and women buried many years ago being dragged to the surface.

The next place struck was the Lyceum Theatre, on the south side of Broad street. The roof was torn off and the Beerbower pottery was also unroofed.

The whirling, funnel shaped cloud next passed to East Jersey street and struck the spire of the Central Baptist church, demolishing it and part of the church roof. The big bell was hurled nearly across the street.

The top of the spire of the Third Presbyterian church was blown off, and the side of Dr. Moulfort's house was crushed in by a huge tree falling against it.

City Hall Park, at the entrance to Madison avenue, and opposite the Third Presbyterian church, was swept by the tornado and nearly all the fine trees in it were uprooted.

The front of the Home for Aged Women, in East Jersey street, was wrecked by a great sycamore tree over one hundred years old being torn up and thrown against it.

The tornado then swept through Madison avenue and Catharine street to William street, and down this street to Spring street, where its fury ceased and it passed away to the northeast. It was on William street, however, from Catherine street to Spring street, and for the same distance on one side of East Grand street, which runs parallel to William street, that the greatest damage was done, there not being a house on these two blocks that was not more or less injured, and some were completely wrecked.

Charles Kelber's two-and a-half-story house in William street was lifted from its foundation, twisted completely around in the air, and dropped to the ground a complete wreck. Fortunately all the family were away on the Elizabeth Orphan Asylum excursion to Asbury Park and so escaped death or injury.

The roof of the nave of Christ Episcopal church, in Scott place, was torn off and the interior of the church was much damaged by rain.

Broad street, the chief business thoroughfare, suffered much from the tornado, many awnings being wrecked and plate-glass windows broken. The goods in the front parts of many stores were badly damaged.

Henry Gavin, a delivery clerk for J. Potts & Sons, was in a wagon when it was overturned and he and the horse buried beneath it. He was not injured and the horse ran away.

The Elizabeth Journal was temporarily disabled by the stopping of the electric power. The steam plant was finally put in operation and the Journal's extra was soon on the streets.

TRUSTEES DECLARE CLUM SLANDERED THEM

Allege He is Spreading Reports That They Owe Him Money.

TRUSTEES DISCUSSED IT.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES OF CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH LAST NIGHT.

Claim That all They Owed Architect Clum Was $50 for Making Plans of Church and That They Paid Him—Such Reports Injure Them—Their Side of the Story Told Also.

The trustees of the Calvary Baptist church are very indignant at what they claim are slanderous reports that are being circulated by Architect W. H. Clum to the effect that they have not paid him all the money due him. Last night they held a meeting at which they denounced his actions and declared that if he did not cease, they would bring suit against him for slander. Reports of that nature, they claim, are very injurious to their welfare.

The trouble began long before the new structure for worship on Central avenue was erected. The plans for it were drawn by Mr. Clum who was to superintend the erection of it by a builder he was to find. The trustees agreed to give it to whoever Mr. Clum should recommend if the builder would wait for his pay until the completion of the structure.

Now the trustees claim that Clum secured a builder but that he would not agree to their terms and that they then secured one themselves. They also claim that Clum never superintended the building at all. They say he was to receive $100 additional for getting a builder and was to have a percentage of the cost of erection for overseeing the work. These, they claim, he has now forfeited. They paid him, they say, $50 for drawing the plans and that there is nothing more coming to him.

They declare that he must stop telling people that they still owe him money or else they will be compelled to bring suit for slander.

Only Two More Days.

When Specialist Brown, 145 West Second street, will close his Plainfield visit. Mr. Brown has been here long enough and often enough to convince the most doubting that he can completely and perfectly cure any and all ailments of the feet without pain, blood or soreness. Joseph Bird, machinist at Potter's, home 514 West Second street, says: "I was almost a cripple with corns and bunions. Other doctors told me there was no hope for me but to grin and bear it. I was certainly in bad shape when I consulted Mr. Brown. He said he could cure my feet and he certainly did, for today my feet are as sound as a dollar and the bunions or big toe joints are small. I can now wear close-fitting shoes with ease and comfort." Mrs. James Tilby, 27 Summit avenue, Mrs. M. C. Terry, 331 East Third street, Mrs. A. Humble, 91 Somerset street, Mrs. A. D French, West Fifth street, Mrs. F. Cullen, 1001 Second street, and scores of others say that Specialist Brown has permanently and perfectly cured their bunions, corns, ingrowing toe nails, enlarged great toe joints, burning, sweaty and tender feet. You may be sorry all your life if you miss this grand opportunity to obtain a complete and lasting cure for your painful and aching feet. He has cured others; he can surely cure you. Next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock positively ends his visit here.

Will Change Locomotives Numbers.

Superintendent of Motive Power McIntosh, of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, has decided to change the numbers on all locomotives. This is in line with the rule adopted on other roads that have selected higher numbers for engines. Mr. McIntosh intends giving the Central locomotives higher numbers, which has advantages in many respects, The change will be made as soon as possible.

WOMEN FLOCK TO JAIL TO LOOK AT DARLING

But the Middlesex County Officials Refuse to Exhibit Him.

SEES FATHER AND LAWYER.

DEPUTY SHERIFF WESNER SAYS HE IS A MODEL PRISONER.

Many Visit the County Jail in New Brunswick Every Day Since Darling Arrived—Two Young Women From Plainfield Tried It—Big Attendance at Religious Services in Church Sunday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 3.—There have not been so many visitors at the Middlesex County Jail for years as appeared during the last four days since Will Darling, the Plainfield young man who shot Harry Dunham at New Market four years ago, was confined here. Women, young and old, make up a large part of the visitors. Some come with the avowed intention of getting a peep at Darling, while others simply ask Deputy Sheriff Wesner if they may be allowed to inspect the place.

Darling has from the start, however, denied himself to all visitors except his father and Lawyer Winfield S. Angleman, who will defend him on the charge of homicide. Lawyer Angleman was here again yesterday and spent several hours in consultation with the prisoner. He refused to state anything regarding the defence that would be made. He seems very confident, however.

Since Darling's arrival here, he has remained in his cell very quietly except for an occasional airing in the prison corridor. He is still kept under constant supervision for fear he will make an attempt to take his life. While the close confinement has told on him and he looks wan and pale, he does not appear to be suffering any mental anguish. Deputy Sheriff Wesner says that he is a model prisoner.

It is the custom to hold religious services at the jail Sunday afternoons. There was such a large attendance at this service that there were not enough chairs to go around. If the people who attended had any idea of seeing Darling they were disappointed. The jail authorities have decided not to exhibit the man. They covered his cell door with heavy paper, so that no one could see in and Darling rested quietly while the meeting was going on Tuesday afternoon three young ladies timidly walked into the Sheriff's office and asked permission to inspect the jail.

Deputy Sheriff Wesner has not been in office for years with his eyes shut, and he at once sized them up and understood their mission. They didn't mention Darling. It was unnecessary, however. Mr. Wesner was unable to allow them the freedom of the jail, as repairs were being made and some of the floor was torn up. He took them through the women's department, but they were not interested in that. Something was said about Darling.

"Oh, yes; he is from our town," spoke up one of the girls. Then she blushed, as if she had let a secret out.

NOTABLE NEW YORKERS.

Many Familiar Faces to be Found in the Book.

"Notable New Yorkers" is the title of a new book by Moses King, in which there are portraits of more than two thousand New York men, prominent in business, science, law, divinity and philanthropy from 1896 to 1899. The charm of this interesting volume is in finding familiar faces, like that of the Dickens' character, whose knowledge of reading was limited to two letters and who exclaimed "How delightful reading is when you come to a J—O—Jo!" While not taxing to the reading ability, this book has all the attractions of an album.

Among the familiar faces are a few whose home are in or near Plainfield. Among these are Jeremiah Evarts Tracy, lawyer, of the firm of Evarts, Choate & Beaman; Rowland Cox, lawyer; Alexander Gilbert, president of the Market and Fulton National Bank; Lewis V. F. Randolph, president of the Atlantic Trust Company; William Palmer Smith, stock broker, of the firm of Breese & Smith, governing committee, New York Stock Exchange; Ernest Robinson Ackerman, president of the Lawrence Cement Company; Augustus Dennis Shepard, vice-president of the American Bank Note Company, and Scott Foster, president of the People's Bank, of New York. Mr. Foster is not a resident of Plainfield, but frequently spends his summers here, as he is doing now.

MARKED ADVANCE IN PRICE OF COAL.

Local Coal Merchants Have Taken United Action.

HELD MEETING LAST NIGHT.

INCREASE IS CAUSED BY RISE IN PRICE AT MINES.

Local Dealers Claim That They Have Been Selling at a Loss for a Month—Mining Companies and Shippers are After Bigger Profits—Plainfield Price List Raised Fifty Cents Per Ton.

There has been a rise in the retail price of coal in every local yard this morning. The best grades of coal that have been selling for $4.50 a ton are now placed at $5 per ton. The chaper grades that were $3 50, now sell for $4, and so on. The rise in price in each case is 50 cents.

The local coal dealers held a meeting last evening when it was unanimously agreed to make the increase in the price. The reason for the charge is the increase in the price on the part of the mining companies. The trade with the miners has been so brisk that they decided that they could raise the price and make a larger profit as they were sure of a market.

The increase in the price among the mining companies was made July 1st. Since that time, the local dealers claim, they have been selling at a distinct loss. The mining concerns have been selling Upper Lehigh for $4.35 a gross ton delivered in Plainfield, and Honeybrook and other high grades for $4.25, delivered here. The local dealers were selling both grades for $4.50, which, they claim, was less than it cost them, counting in the expense of running the yards and delivering.

Feeling that such a state of affairs would be ruinous the dealers held an informal gathering last night when the action was taken. The news of the raise will be a general surprise throughout the city, and there will be mourning among those who have not yet laid in their winter supply of coal.

The local dealers say that they should not be blamed for the rise, as it is due entirely to the increase in price at the mines.

DECIDED GOODS WERE PURCHASED.

Court Gave Packas a Verdict Against Mrs. Rosa Frucht.

The action of Solomon L. Packas, who trades as the International Cycle Fittings Company, of New York, against Mrs. Rosa Frucht, wife of Sigamund Frucht, a bicycle dealer, of Park avenue, was tried before Justice Moffett and a jury yesterday afternoon. Pope & Runyon represented the plaintiff; S. S. Swackhamer for defendant. The amount claimed by the plaintiff was $45.66. The goods were bought last March. The defendant claimed that she had not purchased the goods outright, but that the goods were sent on approval and were to be returned if they were not sold. This claim was denied by the plaintiff.

The jury, consisting of W. S. Chase, Frank T. Frazee, James Radin, Andrew Love, Jr., and Frank B. Haffner, after being out about three-quarters of an hour, returned a verdict for plaintiff for the full amount claimed.

The Flower of the Family.

The Rev. and Mrs. George W. Gardner, of Park place, are today receiving the congratulations of their many friends over the birth of a daughter, which brought joy and happiness to them yesterday afternoon. The young lady has already asserted her prerogative as the flower of the family.

Sold at Sheriff's Sale.

A one-third interest in the house and lot on Park avenue, now occupied by Captain William Hand was sold at sheriff's sale in Elizabeth yesterday and was purchased by Charles H. Hand, of this city. The former owner was Charles W. Smith, of South avenue.

Told of Father's Death by Cable.

A cablegram was sent on Tuesday to George Serrell, at Santiago, notifying him of the death of his father, but it is not believed that he will be able to reach home in time for the funeral. He is assistant purser on the Transport "Burnside."

Opened Woodland Park.

The new avenues were streets opened in Woodland Park this morning with a little ceremony. Mrs. D. R. Pond had the honor of cutting down the first tree.

WOULDN'T PAY FOR HIS NEW RESIDENCE.

Proceedings Began Against Edward Grauert, of Lincoln.

THE PAPERS SERVED TODAY.

CONTRACTOR I. W. STOUT ALLEGES THAT GRAUERT REFUSES TO PAY.

Stout Had the Contract for the Stone Work on Grauert's Handsome New Residence Near Bound Brook—Contractor Wanted Payment on Account—Reed & Coddington Started Lien Suit.

Edward Grauert, a member of the Lincoln Steel Company, is building a handsome new house at Beechwood Heights, a suburb of Bound Brook. The house is to be an elaborate affair, said to cost about $10,000. The erection of the house, which the citizens of the neighborhood call a mansion, was begun last May. It is to be two stories in height, about 50x50, and will be constructed of stone as far the superstructure and first story is concerned.

The contract for doing the stone work was let to Israel W. Stout, of Lincoln. Mr. Stout has employed several skilled mechanics and a number of teams upon the work. Although the handsome dwelling is well along toward completion, Mr. Stout has been unable to induce Mr. Grauert to pay him any money on account. As Mr. Stout is a man of limited means he found it quite difficult to meet his payments with his men. Mr. Stout repeatedly asked Mr. Grauert for money on account, but was as repeatedly put off with excuses. He promised to give him money last Saturday, but failed to do so. Finally Mr. Stout told Mr. Grauert that if he did not pay him something he would have to resort to some extreme measures.

To this Mr. Grauert is alleged to have replied that he had things so fixed that Mr. Stout would find difficulty in compelling him to make a payment until he felt so disposed. Mr. Stout then decided to take legal advice. He consulted the firm of Reed & Coddington. After listening to Mr. Stout's statement of the case former Judge W. A. Coddington decided that Mr. Stout had a very good cause for action against Mr. Grauert. He has therefore begun a mechanic's lien suit against Mr. Grauert in the Circuit Court of Middlesex county, placing his claim at $1,000. The papers will be served upon Mr. Grauert today.

WEDDED AT PARSONAGE.

Miss Flora Taynor and Edward Edell, Both of This City, Married Last Night.

A quiet wedding took place last evening at 7 o'clock when Miss Flora Taynor, daughter of Isaac M. Taynor, of East Third street, and Edward Edell, formerly of Bridgeton, N. J., but now of East Second street, was married at the parsonage of Grace M. E. church by Rev. George W. Gardner, the pastor of the church. The bride was attended by Miss Cora Scull, an intimate friend, of this city, and the best man was Mr. Taylor, also of this city.

After the wedding the bridal party returned to the bride's home where a small reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Edell will reside for the present at the home of the bride's father. The groom is employed at Scott's Press Works.

Stopped a Runaway.

A team of horses owned by O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, were standing in the barn all ready to go to the North Avenue station this morning. In an unguarded moment they made a dash from the barn and ran through Park avenue at a wild gait. Mr. Finch, son of E. L. Finch, came along in a wagon. He jumped and made a plucky grab for the reins. He caught them and very soon brought the team to a standstill.

Will Lose a Marshal.

At the meeting of the Borough Council tomorrow night the resignation of Marshal John Schenck will be received. Mr. Schenck will return to his trade, that of an engineer, and he has secured a good position at the Plainfield Water Supply Company's plant, this city. It has not yet been determined who will be put in Mr. Schenck's place, in fact, no one may be appointed for the present.

Mrs. Elmer E. Runyon and son, of Madison avenue, have returned from a short visit with friends in Hunterdon county.

Miss Evelyn M. Lewis, of West Seventh street, leaves this evening for Noyes Beach, R. I., where she will spend a month.

Mrs. Edward Mosher and family and Mrs. Doty, of Elmwood place, have returned from a visit with relatives at Junction, Hunterdon county.

WERE JOYOUSLY RECEIVED

Pennsylvania Volunteers Are Warmly Welcomed at San Francisco.

HAVE SPLENDID RECORD

Took Part in the First and Only Severe Fighting With Spaniards in the Philippines.

The Pennsylvanians Participated in the Advance and Capture of the City of Manila—Twenty-Four of the Regiment Killed in Battle or Died in Hospitals.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—The Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment, from Manila, was joyously received here, and the men have been royally entertained.

The record of the Pennsylvanians is one of splendid achievement. Soon after its arrival in the Philippines the regiment took part in the first and only severe fighting with the Spaniards on July 31 and August 1, 1898.

On August 13, 1898, the Pennsylvanians participated in the advance and capture of the city of Manila. On February, 4, 1899, the regiment was engaged in the first protracted battle of the campaign against the natives. The Pennsylvanians were surprised at the Guiguinto siege on March 29, and were almost surrounded by a crescent-shaped formation of 5,000 Filipinos, sustaining the full force of the enemy.

When the Pennsylvania regiment left for the Philippines last year the muster numbered 851 men. Twenty-four were killed in battle or died in military hospitals. The rest of the sick or wounded are on the hospital ship Relief, which has arrived here.

As the official committee on reception to the regiment were late in arriving from Philadelphia, the substitute committee appointed formally undertook that duty.

The committee comprising John Barclay, of Greensburg, Pa.; John M. Beall, agent here of the Piedmont Air Line, formerly of Philadelphia; Alex Coulter, Greensburg, Pa.; M. Ogden, of Gov. Gage's staff, formerly a Pittsburg newspaper man; M. Lear, of Denver, formerly of Greensburg, whose brother W. A. Lear, is captain in the Tenth; Col. Henry Hall, of the Pittsburg "Times," of Gov. Stone's staff, and James A. Campbell, of the Philadelphia "Times," extended a warm greeting to the Pennsylvanians.

Out of respect to the dead regimental commander there was little cheering or other noisy demonstrations. Like the Oregon and Nebraska regiments, the Pennsylvania troops, prior to sailing from Manila, voted in favor of being mustered out in San Francisco.

Lieut.-Col. Barnett, who is now in command of the regiment, in the course of an interview said: "The boys are all glad, of course, to get back home again, but their joy is tinged with sadness on account of the death of Col. Hawkins.

"The Colonel was a most kind and considerate commander, who took a keen, individual interest in his men, and it is little wonder that they feel his loss as a personal bereavement.

"When the final volley was fired at Malolos, Col. Hawkins was riding on the firing line, urging his men onward. After that decisive battle the Colonel's illness increased. The ailment developed rapidly in the unhealthy climate. After we embarked he sank steadily and his death was not unexpected."

The following is a list of the members of the Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment who were killed in battle:

Corporal Walter E. B. Down, Company D; Corporal Jacob Landis, Company C; Private Jesse Nosse, Company E; William H. Stillwagon, Company E; Jacob Hull, Jr., Company E; W. E. Bunker, Company E; Lee W. Snyder, Company E; John E. Brady, Company I; Robert L. Fox, Company I; Alexander Newal, Company H; Fred James Jamine, Company C; George A. Taylor, Company I; Bert Armbrust, Company I.

The following members of the regiment died of disease:

William H. C. Sable, Company C; William B. Braden, Company H; William Dorn, Henry Wedder, Company K; James D. Monroe, Company H; F. Sank Brain, Company C; William K. McAllister, Company B.

Mrs. Belmont Gets the Pew.

Newport, Aug. 3.—The Vanderbilt pew in Trinity Church here is now owned by O. H. P. Belmont, and Mrs. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, will occupy it despite her former husband's desire to deprive her of it. The pews in the church are the personal property of the holders. After the divorce proceedings W. K. Vanderbilt deeded his pew to his son, W. K. Vanderbilt, jr. He transferred it to his mother's husband.

Belgium's Cabinet Crisis.

Brussels, Aug. 3.—The delay in forming a new Cabinet is due to the difficulty experienced in selecting a new Minister of War who will be both an officer and pledged to the principle of personal military service. M. De Smet de Nayer, who is attempting to form a Ministry, says the new Cabinet will be unanimous in favor of an electoral bill embodying proportional representation.

Says He Killed Two Men.

Independence, Kan., Aug. 3.—R. C. Young, a tramp 27 years old, has confessed to murdering A. C. Bush and John Cooley, two Eastern men who were traveling in a wagon for pleasure in the Indian Territory. They allowed Young to ride with them one day, and that night, he says, he murdered them with an axe.

May Release Spanish Prisoners.

Madrid, Aug. 3.—An official despatch from Manila states that the Spanish Commission which has been negotiating with the Filipinos hopes soon to secure the liberation of the Spanish prisoners now in the hands of the Filipinos.

ALGER'S WELCOME HOME.

Detroit in Holiday Attire For the Ex-Secretary of War.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—Detroit put on holiday dress to receive and welcome home ex-Secretary of War Russell A. Alger, who has returned from Wahsngton. Many store windows were decorated with large photographs of Gen. Alger, and flags and bunting were flying from numerous flag staffs or hanging from window sills. Party lines were obliterated. Such well-known Democrats as Don M. Dickinson, Postmaster-General under Cleveland; J. L. Hudson and Mayor William C. Maybury worked side by side with Gen. Duffield, Gov. Pingree and Elwood T. Hanc. Upon the facade of the City Hall a trophy of flags and a spread eagle surmounted a crayon portrait sketch of Gen. Alger.

An electric "Welcome Home" blazed out from the front of the City Hall. There were decorations of bunting in the City Hall corridors, through which the people passed to shake hands with Gen. Alger.

The reception in all its phases was one of the most elaborate affairs of the kind ever attempted in Detroit, and Gen. Alger was moved to tears by the demonstration.

A parade in which thousands of people marched was one of the features of the reception. The event closed with speeches by Gov. Pingree, Mayor Maybury, Gen. Alger, and others.

It is estimated that there were at least 20,000 visitors here from the interior of the State to take part in the reception.

Bank is Reorganized.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 3.—A certificate of reorganization of the wrecked Middlesex County Bank at Perth Amboy, has been filed at this place. The paid-up capital is $100,000. The men named in the reorganization are Congressmen B. S. Howell, Robert Carson, both of New Brunswick; John R. Waterbury, president of the Manhattan Trust Company, of New York; Hamilton Fish Kean, his father, Senator John Kean, and John W. Whalen, of Elizabeth, and Amos T. French, of Tuxedo.

The men held a meeting in the National State Bank Building, and elected Hamilton Fish Kean the president of the new bank, which will be known as the First National Bank of Perth Amboy. The bank will begin business at once. Harry Connard, of Perth Amboy, was selected as the cashier.

Gathering at Rennes.

Rennes, Aug. 3.—The principal witnesses who are to appear before the Dreyfus court martial are beginning to arrive in Rennes, and the town is taking on an animated appearance. Hotel accommodations are at a premium. Press seats at the trial have already been distributed. Few representatives of foreign news agencies are recognized by the French Government. The house of M. Labori, one of Dreyfus's counsel, is closely guarded by police.

President Receives Officers.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 3.—President McKinley received the officers of the 26th Regiment, who came in a body to pay their respects to the Commander-in-Chief of the Army. As all the officers, except Col. Rice and Lieut.-Col. Duvall, are recent appointments it was their first opportunity of meeting the President in an official manner. The President keeps himself fully advised as to the yellow fever situation at Hampton, Va., receiving frequent messages from that point.

Cracked Ice Fell in Storm.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 3.—A terrific rain, hail and electrical storm visited this county. Pieces of ice fell weighing as much as three and one-half ounces, and many pieces were picked up that measured from one to two inches across. They were not round or ovoid in shape, but resembled irregular chunks of ice. Much damage was done to window glass and the fruit corp has been badly injured by the storm.

Iowa Republicans Make Nominations

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 3.—The Republicans of Iowa have finished their State Convention. There was but one contested nomination before the convention. For Governor Leslie M. Shaw was renominated by acclamation; for Lieutenant-Governor James C. Milliman was renominated; for Railroad Commissioner E. A. Dawson and for Superintendent of Public Instruction R. C. Barrett had no opposition for renomination.

Bicyclist Badly Hurt in Collision.

Hempstead, L. I., Aug. 3.—Nelson T. Golden, 21 years old, of Greenwich Point, while riding a bicycle near this village collided with a wagon driven by Frank Harrington of this place, and sustained severe injuries. He was picked up unconscious and taken home, where it was found that he had broken an arm and received two cuts on the right side of his head, and had also broken his nose.

Race Again Postponed.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 2.—The race between the Defender and the Columbia has again been postponed on account of the breaking of the steel mast on the Columbia shortly after the two yachts had started in their second speed contest.

GREAT THOUGHTS.

Earth's noblest thing, woman perfected.—James Russell Lowell.

Though authority be a stubborn bear, yet he is oft led by the nose with gold.

It is only those who are despicable who fear being despised.—La Rochefaucauld.

The covetous person lives as if the world were made altogether for him, and not he for the world; to take in everything and part with nothing.—South.

Some characters are like some bodies in chemistry; very good perhaps in themselves, yet fly off and refuse the least conjunction with each other.

The sun should not set upon your anger, neither should it rise upon your confidence. We should freely forgive, but forget rarely. I will not be revenged, and this I owe to my enemy; but I will remember, and this I owe to myself.—Colton.

Hard to Explain.

If This Had Occurred Anywhere Else Than in Plainfield There Might be Grave Doubts About It.

If this were published anywhere else but in Plainfield, that is, if the statement given below went the rounds of the press, readers in Boston or New Orleans would not believe it. In the very nature of things men and women will not believe that a simple little pill would have any effect on humanity when the subject is in a serious condition. When it has that effect; when the party is a living witness, perhaps a neighbor, Plainfield people at least cannot possibly deny it, particularly so when investigation is courted. Now ask Mrs. R Wortman, living with her daughter Mrs. S. E. Cook, of 204 Somerset St., and see if she will not corroborate the following:

"I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pain across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit ten minutes in one position, but had to be constantly changing about. It was the same way at night time. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney troubles, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and advise all who suffer from a lame back to give them a fair trial."

Doan's Kidney Pills 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

OUTLOOK MORE HOPEFUL.

Yellow Fever Has Not Yet Spread Beyond Limits of Phoebus, Virginia.

THE FRIGHT IS STILL ON.

Inhabitants of Norfolk Leaving the City as Fast as Trains and Boats Will Carry Them.

Health Officers at Washington Are Not Surprised at the Appearance of Fever Outside of The Soldiers' Home—Hopes That it Will Not Reach the Capital.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 3.—There is no yellow fever in Norfolk and no new or suspicious case has been discovered outside of the Hampton Soldiers' Home and Phoebus, a town on the peninsula which adjoins the Soldiers' Home. The exodus from Norfolk, however, continues. The boats and trains are crowded with refugees. All sorts of wild rumors regarding the prevalence of fever at points other than Hampton are in circulation. These, when traced to their source, have all been discovered to be without foundation.

Those who leave Norfolk have so far really no reason for doing so. Some are badly frightened without any reason, but the majority are those who can go without financial loss, and leave because they can do so now, as later their departure might be prevented or might not be so easily accomplished.

Unofficial advices from Hampton said that no new case of yellow fever had developed in that city in the past twenty-four hours, and that no deaths have occurred. This information was received by telephone from a business man of Hampton, and is believed to be entirely trustworthy.

The quarantine against Hampton, Old Point, Newport News and all points on the peninsula is now more strict than before. The Northern mails, which heretofore came to Norfolk via Newport News, will hereafter come via Richmond, as the quarantine officers have decided no longer to permit the Louise, which has heretofore brought the mails from Newport News, to run. The steamboat Hampton Roads has been released in order that she may ply between Hampton and other peninsular points, thus providing the home with food and medicine.

That there has not been any material increase in the fever arer is regarded here, as a very encouraging sign, and people generally are more hopeful than they have been since the outbreak of the fever at Hampton.

They Are Not Surprised.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Surgeon-Gen. Sternberg says that he is not at all surprised at the appearance of yellow fever at Phoebus, near Hampton, Va. "We are just on the edge of it," he added. "There is no reason whatever to believe that such an outbreak as there is at the Soldiers' Home can be confined there. We are going to have more of it. It is not at all surprising that it has appeared at Phoebus."

Gen. Sternberg predicts that the yellow fever will extend beyond Phoebus, but as to whether or not it would reach Norfolk and the northern cities he was in doubt. Dr. von Ezdorf, a yellow fever expert from New Orleans, has arrived at Hampton.

The Health Officer of Washington is hopeful that a quarantine will not be necessary here. Two additional medical sanitary inspectors have been employed, and every train from the South is boarded at Alexandria and the passengers are examined before reaching Washington. Every boat arriving from points down the Potomac is rigidly inspected. There is no suspect in the city, and no person, so far as known, who has been exposed to the fever.

Surgeon-General Wyman of the Marine Hospital Service makes the following statement:

"Acting Assistant Surgeon Arthur Snowden of Alexandria has been directed to keep an outlook for any persons who have recently been at Hampton or the Soldiers' Home or in Phoebus. Similar instructions have been sent to officers of the service in other adjacent ports and places, and advices to this effect have been sent to the Health officials in all the neighboring cities. The Surgeon-General deems this measure as important as the cleaning up of the cities at the present time. It is a proper precaution to take, although there is no reason why it should excite any alarm."

Trying to Pacify Miles and Corbin.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Secretary Root is playing the role of peacemaker between General Miles and Adjutant-General Corbin, who have been at daggers drawn. Secretary Root took Corbin by the arm and escorted him to General Miles's office, where they remained an hour. It is assumed that this is the beginning of the Secretary's efforts to conciliate the factons in the War Department.

No Pay For Warning the Paris.

London, Aug. 3.—The suit of a Falmouth pilot boat owner against the International Navigation company to recover the sum of £300 for warning the steamship Paris of her danger previous to her running ashore on the Manacles, was tried here. Capt. Watkins testified that he did not alter the course of the Paris materially, not taking the pilot boat's signal as a warning of danger. The court dismissed the claim.

M. Delcasse's Mission.

Paris, Aug. 3.—The Courrier de Soir, which is directly inspired by the Foreign Office, says that the visit of M. Delcasse to St. Petersburg is due to the Czar's projected visit to the Paris exhibition, and "perhaps concern also a possible understanding of continental Europe against pretentions dangerous to the peace of the world." The latter is understood to refer to England's attitude in the Transvaal.

ROUGHS RAN THE TOWN

Corry, Pa., Visited by a Gang of Masked Robbers.

Corry, Pa., Aug. 3.—A gang of roughs, supposed to be following a Wild West show which appeared here, took possession of North Centre street and for a time terrorized the neighborhood. Charles Smith, an employe of the circus was assaulted and held up by the band. The robbers took from him a $50 gold watch and a diamond stud. Smith had $700 in bills, which he threw into the gutter, recovering them afterward. Two strangers were held up and robbed of small amounts of money. A carriage driven by Frank Barton was surrounded, but by whipping up his horse Barton escaped, followed by a shower of shots.

Tony Briscen, a Swede, living in East Main street, was attacked by two men as he was entering his home. He was thrown to the pavement and robbed of $100. The men escaped in the darkness. D. B. Simmons was attacked by the gang. He drew a revolver and opened fire, running all the time. He escaped without injury. There is no clue to the outlaws who were all masked.

Industrial School Inquiry.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 3.—Gov. Voorhees summoned the members of the Board of Trustees of the Girl's Industrial School to be present at the investigation into the conduct of Matron Eyler and the general management of the school, but only one member, Dr. Maddock, put in an appearance. Mr. Cook, managing trustee, who is backing Mrs. Eyler, left town on an early train. Before going Mr. Cook declared that all the testimony before Gov. Voorhees regarding a dungeon and girls being placed in dungeons was false. "There are no dungeons at the school," Mr. Cook said. The Governor was told by five witnesses of girls being thrown into dungeons.

Ten Stations For Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 3.—The officers of the ten railroads centring in Atlanta are incensed over the action of the State Railroad Commission in ordering them to build each a separate station, which must be suitable to a city of Atlanta's importance. For a long time there have been many complaints made about the present structure, and every effort has been made to obtain an agreement by which the railroads could build a union station. This plan, however, has been fought and evaded by the railroads, until the Commission exerts its authority and compels the lines to erect distinct and adequate terminal stations.

Burglar Mortally Wounded.

Ballston Spa, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Two burglars entered the store of Lyman Smith, at Stillwater, and took a lot of clothing. They were pursued by Deputy Sheriff Henry. J. Woodworth. When cornered, one of the burglars, Edward Graham, of Fort Edward, fired at the officer. They exchanged a dozen shots, and the burglar fell mortally wounded. One bullet entered just below the heart and the other the abdomen. Woodworth was struck once. The bullet hit his shield and glanced off, entering his shoulder. The other burglar, George White, was also captured.

Negro Girl Burglars.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 3.—Three negro girls, from 11 to 15 years old, have been convicted in the Police Court and sent to jail for burglary. The robbery was planned and executed with the skill of professionals. Entrance to a house was gained through a window opening on an outside stairway. The trio took jewelry and clothing to the value of several hundred dollars from the rooms where the family were asleep.

Big Strike Threatened.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 3.—The 250 machinists in the Grand Trunk shops here went on strike because a non-union man was put at work. Every branch of the International Machinists' Association and the Amalgamated Association of Engineers who have men in the employ of the Grand Trunk was notified, and the strike may extend over the entire system.

Gen. Rufus R. Dawes Dead.

Marietta, Ohio, Aug. 3.—Gen. Rufus R. Dawes, father of the Comptroller of the Currency, died here, aged 61 years. He enlisted in the Sixth Wisconsin Regiment in the Civil War, and rose to be brevet-general, fighting in twenty battles. He served one term in Congress, in 1880-1882. President McKinley tendered him the post of Minister to Persia, but he declined.

Has 350 Sick Soldiers.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—The hospital ship Relief has arrived from Manila and anchored at the quarantine station. She has on board over 350 invalids, representing nearly every regiment now in the field, as well as the Nebraska, Utah and Pennsylvania volunteers, who have already returned from the seat of war.

Climbed Mount Sir Donald.

Revelstoke, B. C., Aug. 3.—Advices from Glacier tell how Count F. le Prince Ringuet, of Paris, and Herr Cortes, attache of the German Embassy at Peking, successfully made the ascent of Mount Sir Donald, the Matterhorn of the Canadian Rockies. This peak had previously been reached but once before.

American Jockeys Win.

London, Aug. 3.—The Rottingdean Plate was won at Brighton by Lord William Beresford's Blacksmith, with "Skeets" Martin, the American jockey, in the saddle. L. Reiff, another American jockey, finished second on Mr. Croker's Salina. Our Grace was third. Four horses ran.

Kaiser's Yacht Wins Again.

Cowes, Aug. 3.—The Royal Yacht Squadron's prize of £100 was won by the German Emperor's Meteor, which saved the time given to the Bona. The Meteor crossed the finish line in 5:36:24.

Over a Million in Gold.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 3.—The American steamer Alameda, which sailed from this port for San Francisco, had on board $1,250,000 in gold.

A gentleman residing in T street, N. W., Washington, D. C., asserts that he suffered for many years with dyspepsia, indigestion and biliousness. He tried every known remedy, consulted many physicians with the hope of getting cured or even relief, but nothing seemed to relieve him. After meals he would feel as if a ball of lead was lodged in his stomach, tired and listless, as though life was scarcely worth living. Finally he was attracted to the ad of and concluded to try them. After taking the first two or three he was surprised to find the relief they gave and soon he felt like a new man. He has never been without Ripans Tabules since, nor has he suffered since.

STORM WRECKS A TOWN.

Lives Reported Lost and a Steamer Probably Wrecked.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 3.—Carrabelle, a prosperous seaport town on the Gulf of Mexico, southwest of this city, is reported almost completely destroyed by a terrific wind and rain storm which passed through this district. Many boats which were in the harbor have been wrecked and most of the long wharf is gone, with large quantities of naval stores. At Lanosk, the houses, pavilion and boats were destroyed. Unconfirmed reports say that the steamer Crescent probably has been lost between Apalachicola and Carrabelle.

Several persons are reported drowned at St. Marks and a few houses were destroyed at St. Teresa.

A passenger train on the Carrabelle, Tallahassee and Gulf Railroad, thirty-five miles below Tallahassee, was wrecked badly, but no one is reported killed or injured.

Lively Storm at Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 3.—In a violent electric and wind storm during which torrents of rain fell, the upper portion of the steeple of the old First Presbyterian Church on Broad street was blown down. The tower of the Central Baptist Church, at East Jersey street and Jefferson avenue, crashed to the ground at the same time the belfry of the Third Presbyterian Church on East Jersey street, a block away, fell. At that moment the roof of the Star Theatre near by was blown off and fell in a heap on the Central Baptist Church opposite. The roof of the Lyceum Theatre, on Broad street was also blown off. No one was injured because the heavy rain kept pedestrians within doors. The loss will reach many thousand dollars. The storm lasted less than twenty-five minutes, but caused great damage all over the upper part of the city.

W. W. Astor is Defiant.

London, Aug. 3.—William Waldorf Astor has been besieged by reporters since the official announcement that he was naturalized a British subject July 11 of this year. He absolutely declines to see any one, but has authorized his agents to say he considers the matter purely personal, has no explanations to offer, is quite prepared for the attacks of the American newspapers, who attacked him when it was previously suggested that there was a possibility of his becoming a British subject, and, in conclusion, that any interviews purporting to come from him are devoid of foundation.

Five Saved From Drowning.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 3.—Mrs. M. Robinson, of New York, a guest of the St. Charles Hotel, while bathing was suddenly lifted from her feet by a large breaker and swept away from her companions. Just as the Guards, Parker and Neill, reached the imperilled woman another cry for assistance came from a bather a few feet away, and then another and another, until five people were calling for help at the same time. The guards kept cool, and in a short while all five bathers—three women, a young man and a young girl—were in safety.

Hot Fighting in Cebu.

Manila, Aug. 3.—Mail advices from the Island of Cebu announce that a company of Americans attacked the Filipinos' trenches situated two kilometers from the town of El Pardo. The natives were commanded by the brothers Chimacos, who are prominent and wealthy persons. The Charleston shelled the enemy and the Filipinos retreated. The American casualties were slight. The presence of the Chimacos with the Filipinos is reported to have been due to orders from Luzon.

Another Striker Arrested.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 3.—John Schoenthal, of No. 56 East End avenue, a striking Big Consolidated conductor, was arrested charged with being a suspicious person. The allegation is made that on July 4 Schoenthal went to W. E. Stokes, of Nottingham, and tried to make arrangements to buy ten pounds of dynamite. Dynamite was afterward used by the strikers to destroy cars and buildings of the street car company.

Children Bitten By Vicious Dog.

Matteawan, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Two children of Supervisor Samballs of the State Asylum were attacked and bitten by a bulldog owned by James H. Peattie of Fishkill Landing while attempting to stop a dog fight. The dog savagely attacked them, biting both of the children a number to times. One of them, a little girl, shows symptoms of hydrophobia.

Montreal Depositors Reassured.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The feeling in banking circles is quieter although the run on the Banque de Hochelaga continues. It is the tail end of the run, however, most of those drawing out being farmers from the outlying districts. A letter issued by Archbishop Bruchesi had much to do with restoring confidence.

Condition of Affairs on the Big Consolidated System in Cleveland.

BOYCOTT STILL IN FORCE

Merchants Adopt New Tactics in Refusing to Sell Goods to Patrons of Street Railway.

Prohibitive Prices Placed on Goods to Boycotted Persons—Big Consolidated Company Declares Its Willingness to Receive Committee of Its Employes.

Cleveland, Aug. 3.—There is practically no change in the strike situation here.

President Everett, of the Big Consolidated, declares that his company has about all the men required, and that the service now maintained on the various lines of the system is equal to that in force prior to the strike.

Mr. Everett stated that he was receiving applications from some of the strikers for reinstatement and that a number of union men had already been put to work.

He was asked whether he would receive a committee of the strikers, should one call upon him. "The company has always said," replied the Big Consolidated president, "that it is willing to receive a committee of its employes, but the strikers are no longer in the employ of the company."

The strike leaders, on the other hand, insist that not a single desertion has occurred, and that their ranks remain unbroken.

There is no indication of any check in the boycott movement, although officials of the Big Consolidated say there is a marked increase in the number of passengers carried down town on their East End lines. As a matter of fact, however, the cars, aside from the Euclid and Cedar avenue lines, continue to run almost empty.

The "spotters" sent out by the strikers are in evidence everywhere along the Big Consolidated lines. They board the cars, if there happens to be any passengers, and endeavor to learn their names. Failing in this, the passengers are followed to their homes or places of business, and as a result in most cases their names go down on the list.

Many merchants who are taking part in the boycott have changed their tactics on account of threats of prosecution, and simply place a prohibitive price on their goods to boycotted persons.

It is stated that Gov. Bushnell will come to Cleveland in person shortly to investigate the situation and to decide how long the troops shall be kept here.

Major J. R. McQuigg has been appointed acting judge advocate by Adjt.-Gen. Axline, commanding the Ohio National Guard troops on strike duty here. It is understood that he will at once take up the legal phase of the boycott, so far as it relates to the soldiers.

Gen. Axline said that proprietors of stores who refused to sell goods either to soldiers or civilians could undoubtedly be punished under the law. He added that reports were constantly being received at his headquarters in the City Hall showing that many storekeepers throughout the city were refusing to sell their goods to the troops.

The business agent of the striking street car men's union said that the boycott had practically passed out of their hands. "The people themselves," he said, "have taken it up, and where the movement will end no one can tell."

Trouble is Threatened.

Denver, Aug. 3.—With the rejection by smelter managers of a settlement of the strike in accordance with the State Board of Arbitration's report comes apprehension of violence. The announcement made by the managers that the plants would remain closed indefinitely, it now appears, was more or less of a blind, as it is announced that the Omaha-Grant plant, one of the company's largest mills here, is to be started up next week.

It is reported that men are en route from the East to operate the company's smelters. The managers absolutely refuse to talk regarding the reopening or the imported labor phase of the situation.

The strikers consider the reports so well founded that they have posted a large number of pickets about the Grant plant, and trains are closely watched by committees of strikers in the hope of heading off any non-union men that may appear. A detail of strikers has the Globe plant constantly under surveilance. It is estimated that the smelters now have about 1,200 cars of ore in their yards here. Notice will be sent out for miners to stop shipping.

Molineux Pleads Not Guilty.

New York, Aug. 3.—Roland B. Molineux pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder in the first degree before Judge Blanchard in Part II. of the Court of General Sessions. Bartow S. Weeks, his lawyer, appeared with him and demurred to the indictment found against him last week. Judge Blanchard overruled the demurrer.

Soldiers Found in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 3.—Two inmates of the Soldiers' Home have been found in Baltimore. One was located in the West End by Sergeant Scott and reported to Health Commissioner Jones. The other old soldier died in the East End. Dr. Jones is thoroughly investigating both cases.

Spanish Conscripts in a Riot.

Barcelona, Aug. 3.—Four hundred conscripts paraded the streets of Barcelona, carrying brooms. The police charged upon the mob and several men were wounded. Further disorders are feared.

Death of Moses Warren.

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Moses Warren, a prominent lawyer and politician of this city, died suddenly at his home here.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

COMING EVENTS.

August 6—Evangelist Thomas Graham will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:15 p. m. Vo al and instrumental music.

August 7—Rev. R. Anderson, of Brooklyn, will conduct Danish Lutheran services in the German Lutheran church on Grove street at 8 o'clock. Vocal music by an English quartette. Rev. C. H. Mengers will assist. All invited.

Just Praise.

Although every Plainfielder who has ever taken the trouble to investigate the status of the Plainfield public schools knows that they stand very high in comparison with the other educational institutions of this and other states, it is gratifying at times to hear a word of praise for them come unsolicited from some prominent educational authority. Shortly before the close of the Plainfield schools for the summer vacation, A. E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, Boston, visited them and addressed the teachers. As a result of his visit here he writes as follows in the columns of the Journal of Education:

Plainfield has the honor, probably, of being the first to establish genuinely free common schools and promoting their general adoption y the State. She has been highly favored by having many public-spirited citizens interested in education who were eminent men. Bishop J. H. Vincent and Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, of Chautauqua fame, are samples merely of men who have been greatly interested in the schools of Plainfield.

At present the schools are in the forefront in every respect. Supt. Henry M. Maxson is one of the most faithful and efficient school men in the country, and he has rallied about him an earnest and capable corps of teachers, and is inspired by a high-minded Board of Education in whom the public has confidence.

I was fortunate in seeing much of the everyday work of the Plainfield schools, and it was uniformly of a high order. Principals and teachers co-operate in every way. They have high professional standards, and are constantly improving themselves for the good of their schools. There is an educational atmosphere in Plainfield that does one's soul good. I brought away with me samples of language work in all grades that I have never seen excelled, and hope later to present some choice bits to my readers.

CARS AT 200 MILES AN HOUR.

At the recent convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers Professor Oberlin Smith said that the time was close at hand when the 200 miles an hour car would be an accomplished fact. The plan he submitted, and which is partially pictured above, was pronounced by the men of high engineering skill present at the convention as thoroughly practicable.

The Proper Site.

The citizens of Plainfield have seen displayed very artistic views of the anticipated addition to the Muhlenburg Hospital. Now while The Daily Press is justly proud of our hospital and its efficiency we do insist that further additions to the hospital upon the present site, which will involve large expenditures of money, would be unwise and wasteful—the jar and noise of passing railroad trains, the whistle and buzz of factories, are not conducive to convalescence in the sick.

There are sights in our city for this all needed institution that will be free from these objections, and will make the building, or rather buildings, a monument and credit to all concerned. The day has gone by when a hospital may be looked upon as a pest house—in reality it is but and invalid home.

It has been well said that the looms do not work for the rich alone, but for the great mass of the people as well. In other words, the extension of education, inventive genius and productiveness of labor have placed the necessaries and luxuries of life within the reach of the whole people. A notable result of this universal prosperity is the fact that it enables the masses to become the merchant's most constant patrons. The intelligent tradesman who recognizes this truth will, therefore, be sure to keep his establishment well stocked with the goods most in demand, while at the same time he will take heed to keep in daily communication with the public by interesting announcements in the advertising columns of a popular newspaper.—Philadelphia Record.

Mayor Smalley, of the borough, has declared war against the unmuzzled and unregistered dogs of that municipality. It is well that he should do so. On general principles it is the duty of the Mayor to see that all ordinances are enforced. In this case, however, the ordinance is a righteous one. Stray dogs, especially in the dog days, have no place in the up-to-date community. In justice to those who own pets and look after them properly as well as to the other citizens who find these homeless wanderers an unmitigated nuisance, the borough authorities should look after them and see that they are disposed of.

All of the Jersey seashore resorts are vieing with each other in their efforts to get up something out of the ordinary to entertain the many guests that are crowding their hotels and bring new ones there. Long Branch is going to have a military tournament, patterned after those of the Madison Square Garden, while Asbury Park has arranged for a boat carnival, a baby parade and "Teddy" Roosevelt.

The past month has seen many strikes among all classes of workmen. The latest to strike are the oystermen who want to give honest measure and get more pay for it.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Prosecutor John S. Voorhees, of Middlesex, avows a zeal to punish others who may be implicated in the wreck of the Middlesex County Bank at Perth Amboy. It is a pity that his solicitude for justice in the case was not awakened earlier, so that the chief malefactor could have got his deserts.—Newark Advertiser.

The Union county Democrats are jubilant over the failure of their Republican opponents to get up a county outing this season, and claim it shows the Republican factions are so bitter toward one another that the leaders are unable to restore harmony. The Democrats will have their outing August 31st to Whitestone, L. I.—New York World.

City Judge Runyon has made himself very popular with the members of the local police force by being promptly on hand at city court at the appointed hour which is usually 9 o'clock. When any of the men make an arrest they have to appear in court next morning to testify against their prisoner. As it is long past their bed time, they naturally want to get home as soon as possible. Consequently they appreciate the fact when the Judge is right on time and allows them to hurry home and make up for the sleep they've lost as soon as possible.

There was a secret society of young women in the West End last winter that has since disbanded, but which, while it lasted furnished its members with no end of excitement, The young women were particularly anxious that it should be thoroughly up-to-date in all ways. Having heard of the wonderful doings of the Masonic goat, they felt that their society should have one. An investigation proved that there wasn't a goat in the neighborhood that they could secure. Now it happened that the father of one of the young women possessed a calf. In a moment of inspiration, she suggested the use of the calf instead of the goat. The suggestion was followed, and although the calf was not used to such performances, it is said that it proved a very satisfactory adjunct to the initiatory proceedings.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 3.—C. H. Dodwell, the popular baggagemaster at the railroad station, celebrated his twenty first birthday Monday evening at the home of his parents on High street. There was a jolly good time, the evening being passed with music, singing and dancing. Guests were present from New York, Plainfield and Somerville, to the number of about thirty. Harry's friends all came with gifts, and the date of obtaining his majority will long be remembered by him.

Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Plainfield, visited Wm. G. Holton Council Tuesday evening, and assisted in working the initiatory degree on one candidate. After the ceremonies the visiting Juniors were handsomely entertained, a bountiful collation being served and an impromptu literary programme carried out.

Charles Vail is enjoying his vacation by visiting friends in Quakertown. During his absence the newsstand is being looked after by his bright little sister, Miss Edna Vail.

Miss Minnie VanMiddlesworth left yesterday afternoon for a visit with friends in New York, Jersey City and Ocean Grove. She will be absent about a month.

Superintendent Morris and family are now occupying their new house on Church street. Mr. Morris is to have charge of the public schools.

Mrs. Fowler Vail has recently had as visitors her sisters, Mrs. M. G. Creager, of Newark, and Mrs. Jacob Beattie, of Hackettstown.

Miss Edna Vail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fowler Vail, is the possessor of a brand-new bicycle of the Special make.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Oakley, of New Brunswick, visited Mayor and Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer Tuesday.

The Seventh-Day Baptist church congregation went to Boynton Beach on a picnic Monday.

Miss Addie Fenner and friends of Plainfield visited with friends in the borough Tuesday.

Mrs. George W. Townley, of Elizabeth, spent Tuesday with Mrs. William H. Terry.

Miss Hoag, principal of the New Brunswick school, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lane.

William H. Terry visited with relatives in Elizabeth and Roselle yesterday.

J. G. Lindsay took a flying trip to Morristown on his wheel yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 3—Miss Nancy Wade entertained a few of her friends Tuesday evening in honor of her friend, Miss Gertrude Wanamaker, of Mahwah, this State, who has been visiting her.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Braker will be pleased to learn that they are spending the month of August as the guests of the Misses Hayes of Fanwood. Mr. Braker's pastorate with the Waltham church has only extended six months, but

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—The members of Warren Engine Company have seen a sample of their new uniforms and they are very much pleased with them.

—The members of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, enjoyed yesterday at Boynton Beach, going and coming by stages. All report a pleasant time.

—The date for the progressive euchre party at the Hotel Hunterston has been changed from next week Tuesday evening to the following Thursday evening. The affair will be given to raise money with which to purchase literature for the soldiers at Manila.

—It was Joseph T. Vail, the real estate dealer, who sold Mrs. Emma Darling's property at Prospect avenue and Rahway road to Howard J. Runyon, of Rahway road, and not S. D. Drake as reported in Tuesday's Press. Mr. Vail was the agent in the transaction from beginning to end.

during that time eighty-two have been added to the church membership and the finance is in a flourishing condition and he feels very much encouraged with the support given him.

Mrs. John Robison and daughter Miss Lulu, have returned from a six weeks' visit with Mrs. Robison's sister in Illinois. A very pleasant part of the journey home was a stopover for a day at Niagara Falls.

The union excursion of the Sunday-schools of the village and Westfield, is well represented by Scotch Plains people and the town has presented a deserted appearance all day.

Robert Long, who has been spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. John Ford, has returned to his home in Long Island.

Fanwood Bucket and Engine Company held an important meeting in their rooms last evening.

Seeley's mills, which have been closed for several months, will shortly resume work again.

Mrs. Charles Smith, of Westfield, was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. C. Lyons, yesterday.

Roy Day spent Wednesday fishing at Amboy and returned with a fine mess of fish.

Mrs. Agusta Miller has returned from a pleasant visit with relatives in Newark.

Miss Mary Westcott, of Fanwood, is visiting relatives at Atlantic Highlands.

Mrs. George L. Dunn has been visiting friends in Newark.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 3.—The Board of Education will hold a meeting next Tuesday evening in the Prospect Street School building, when it is expected that a date will be fixed for holding a special meeting for the purpose of voting an appropriation for a new school which is so badly needed in town. The Board has three sites in view, one on the corner of Elm and Walnut streets, which the voters would not accept at the last school meeting, one at the corner of Elm and Orchard streets, which is offered by former Township Committeeman George H. Embree, and which is probably the best adapted for a school, and one on Mountain avenue, which is offered by W. G. Peckham. This lot is in a good location, but it will cost more than the lot is worth to grade it.

It has been decided to start the bicycle race, which will take place here Labor Day, at the top of the South avenue hill and go to a point just beyond Thatcher's roadhouse at Netherwood. This will be two miles and a half, and three trips will make the fifteen miles and allow the finish to be in Westfield. William K. Embleton has already received a number of entries, and it looks as though there would be plenty of starters.

A party of young people from the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church, of Plainfield, had charge of the meeting at the Fresh Air Camp last evening. The party rode to and from Westfield on their wheels.

A movement is on foot among the merchants in Westfield to close their places of business Saturday afternoons during August and September. Harker's stationery store is the first to close.

Lindsley Woolley and family, of West Front street, are residing for the present on Somerset street, while Mr. and Mrs. Charles VanMiddlesworth are sojourning in the country.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Morris, of West Front street, who have been staying with relatives at Stelton for some time past, will return home this week. Their absence was due to a case of diphtheria.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Die Akademie der Wissenschaften wählte den Stationschef Hartel zum Vizepräsidenten.—Der Stadtrath hat beschlossen, die Igelgasse im Bezirke Wieden, wo Johann Strauß gewohnt hat, in „Johann Strauß-Gasse" umzutaufen.—Der Lehrer und Journalist Egon Borges, alias Schenk-Blum, der mehrere Jahre in Amerika sich aufhielt, wurde hier wegen diverser Schwindeleien zu einem Jahre Kerker verurtheilt.—In einem Hause im Bezirk Rudolfsheim geriethen leere Obstkörbe in Brand, der mit rasender Schnelligkeit um sich griff. Da das Haus Flammen umhüllten, mußten die Bewohner durch Sprung in's Freie sich retten. Zwei Personen sind verbrannt, mehrere erlitten erhebliche Brandwunden.—Der angebliche Ingenieur-Praktikant Ernst Kern aus München ermordete seine Quartiergeberin, eine 63jährige Beamtenwittwe.

Böhmisch-Leipa. Hier wurde ein Denkmal zur Erinnerung an den 1894 zu Prag verstorbenen politischen Führer der Deutschen, Franz Schmeykal, der durch sein gewinnendes Wesen und kluge Vermittelung manche drohende Spaltungen in der deutschen Partei Böhmens zu verhindern wußte, enthüllt.

Bozen. Durch unglückliches Hantiren mit einem Revolver gelegentlich eines Hochzeitsfestes in Molveno schoß der bekannte Bergführer Mateo Nicolussi dem Bürgermeister Abramo Bonnetti eine Ladung in den Leib. Bonnetti wurde lebensgefährlich verletzt.

Gmunden. Hier rollte ein Sturm das Blechdach des Theaters, während in demselben eine Vorstellung gegeben wurde, unter furchtbarem Getöse auf, so daß die Leute glaubten, ein Erdbeben finde statt. Während der in Folge dessen entstandenen Panik wurden mehrere Leute nicht unerheblich verletzt.

Kaschau. Die bedenkliche Zunahme der Ohrenleiden in der Armee hat den Kommandeur des sechsten Armeekorps, Feldzeugmeister L. Fabini dahier, bewogen, einen strengen Korpsbefehl gegen die körperliche Züchtigung der Mannschaften durch Ohrfeigen und Schläge an den Kopf zu erlassen.

Meran. Der Altbürgermeister von Riga, Herr Gustav Hernmarck, Ehrenbürger der hiesigen Kurgemeinde, ist dieser Tage hier im Alter von 95 Jahren gestorben. Er war eine weit über Meran hinaus verehrte und beliebte Persönlichkeit.

Prachatitz. Der in der hiesigen Bataillons-Kanzlei in Verwendung stehende Rechnungsfeldwebel Augustin Czermak hat circa 300 Gulden an ärarischen Geldern unterschlagen und ist flüchtig geworden.

Rottenmann. Hier erstach der entlassene Arbeiter Franz Steiner den Probst Josef Leckner.

Temesvar. Im Bergwerk von Anina fand ein Wassereinbruch statt, dem eine Explosion schlagender Wetter folgte; vier Arbeiter wurden lebensgefährlich, sechs schwer und fünf leicht verwundet.

Schweiz.

Bern. Jüngst hat eine Anzahl Grindelwaldener Bergführer in die Zybachplatten am Wetterhorn einen etwa 160 Meter langen Fußpfad gesprengt, wodurch der Aufstieg zur Gleckstein-hütte, der Klubhütte des Wetterhorns, um Vieles leichter und bequemer geworden ist. Außerdem haben sie etwas weiter unten, im sogenannten Schlupf, eine Schirmhütte hergestellt.

Zürich. Zu dem in Zürich stattgehabten 6. deutschen Journalisten- und Schriftstellertag waren über 400 Theilnehmer erschienen. Als Vorort wurde Berlin bestätigt, als Ort der nächsten Versammlung Mainz in Aussicht genommen.—Der Großherzog von Baden hat der Pensionsanstalt deutscher Journalisten und Schriftsteller eine größere Schenkung überwiesen.

Freiburg. Ein in Bulle wohnender Herr machte dieser Tage einen Ausflug nach der einige Stunden entfernt liegenden Ortschaft Chatel-St. Denis und wurde dabei von seiner trächtigen Hündin begleitet, die hier nun vier Junge warf. Die Jungen wurden in Chatel-St. Denis zurückgelassen, allein am Morgen des folgenden Tages fand der Eigenthümer der Hündin die Jungen sammt der Mutter in seiner Wohnung in Bulle vor. Während der Nacht hatte die Hündin den ganzen Nachwuchs von Chatel-St. Denis hergeholt und zu diesem Zwecke mehrere Mal den mehrstündigen Weg zwischen den beiden genannten Orten zurückgelegt.

Basel. Der große Rath der Stadt Basel hat die Anregung, die Stadt solle das ihr gehörige Bauland an Private und Genossenschaften nach dem System der beweglichen, unablöslichen Grundrente oder nach dem Heimfallsrecht abtreten, mit 58 gegen 20 Stimmen abgelehnt.

Appenzell. Ein Blitzstrahl zerstörte kürzlich sämmtliche Telegraphenapparate der meteorologischen Station auf dem Säntis. Der Leiter derselben, Herr Bommer, befand sich zur selben Zeit auf einer Reise, so daß Frau und Tochter allein der drohenden Gefahr begegnen mußten. Drähte, Schrauben u. s. w. schmolzen wie Wachs, und die Drahtumhüllungen brannten lichterloh. Dem muthigen Eingreifen der beiden Damen ist es zu danken, daß das Feuer nicht weiter um sich griff.

THE USEFUL SHIRT WAIST.

Diversified Forms of the Ever Popular Garment and Its Adornment.

Is it possible to ever grow prosy over the shirt waist? is a question that any reader of fashion notes would stoutly deny, at least so long as there is anything new to tell of these useful garments. Many of them are being made in the form of sailor blouses. The wide, square collar falling over the shoulder may be of white embroidery on an otherwise sober, solid blue or red gingham shirt, else the body and collar may be of gingham and the sailor vest in front will be a V of fine needlework. The sailor type of waist does not preclude the wearing of a stiff linen collar and one of the new shoestring ties, literally no wider than a silk lacer, drawn in a long, narrow bow in front, and the tie made fast to the collar by very small pearl-headed pins such as the men affect. Now, it is an indisputable fact that some sensible women are not going to wear ties at all with their summer shirt waists, provided the shirt's collar is a high band with a deep rolling outer flap. Just under the chin the points of the rolling collars have buttonholes worked, and through these slip a gold or silver linked affair, or a stiff gold loop made on the exact pattern of our cuff buttons, the head ornamented with deep sunk cabochen jewels. A neater, prettier finish for a collar would be hard to find, and this will appeal to women who have no knack for putting a perfect bow in a refractory necktie. Sometimes two handsome pearls ornament the knots of this new collar stud, but the stud is oftenest worn as an exact match for the cuff buttons. Women are going to take kindly to the crisp taffeta ties called the Lady Algy, that have been recently introduced as a companion to the new shirt waist. It takes just seven-eights of a yard of taffeta to make a tie, or you can purchase this detail ready made in the shops. Strict adherence to the rule of fashion demands that one's tie be made not of ribbon, but of piece taffeta, and all edges narrowly hemmed by machine. A Lady Algy consists of a buckram stock covered smoothly with silk and having ever widening sashlike ends drawn forward from the back of the neck joined in an ample knot under the chin and letting fall to the waist line two ends cut in dart points. In the matter of neck finishing the mood now seems to get away from anything like imitation of the masculine mode, such as we have known and followed slavishly for the past two seasons.

A New Spring Jacket.

In jackets there is much to choose from this spring. Never were there wraps more ornamental nor more varied. The illustration shows a spring coat such, as we may expect to see many of, and such as must inevitably pall upon us after the novelty of the first few specimens have passed. While they are fresh, they are pretty enough, but let any woman beware of expecting them to retain their prettiness for any length of time. It is a case of making the most of them while they last. Lawn cloth, cut out and appliqued upon white taffeta and ornamented with embossed and embroidered flowers, is used for this modish little jacket. The spade front appears, and the basque at the sides and back is so short as to barely reach below the waist line—a distinguishing characteristic of all the spring coats. Without doubt, brevity in jackets has come to stay. The revers of this coat are small and sharply pointed. Like the jacket, basque and sleeves, they are covered with the applique and embroidery. This coat is lined with blue and white silk. With it is worn a toque in bright blue straw crushed into an anomalous shape and heavy with white roses and foliage.

An Idea for a Silk Gown.

If you happen to own a big, beautiful old embroidered Chinese crepe shawl with a rich silk fringe, a heritage from an ancestress, who wore the shawl tenderly as a wrap, if it has turned the shade of old ivory and is fragrant with the spicy sachets amid which it has lain for years, bring it forth and turn it into a gown. A white silk gown with an overskirt made of such a shawl is the most modish and sumptuous dinner toilet possible at present. and if you wish to realize what a treasure you possess in your shawl, just go to a dressmaker and price a costume with such a drapery. She will ask you from $300 to $600 for the toilet, the price dependent upon the size and ripe beauty of the shawl drapery. About a skirt of pale cloth or silk the shawl is invariably hung in a series of points, and the fringe and beautiful embroidery suffice for decoration. The most perfectly gowned brides of the Easter and spring season are going to the altar in dresses made from their mother's or grandmother's shawls, and the bodices are skillfully worked up from small fringed shoulder shawls.

Fawn and dull colored laces generally are one of the desirable dress trimmings. Fawn colored lace on a silk waist worn with a fawn cloth suit is the smart thing.

NOVELTIES.

Pretty Things For the Fashionable Wardrobe.

A novelty is shown in the shops of a long boa entirely composed of the shaded and crimped silk petals of poppies. These petals, which may properly appear in red, pink or white, are also seen in blue and maize, the taste of the purchaser being consulted in preference to nature.

The old fashioned long, narrow, straight scarf is revived and is being ranked as a novelty, so long has it been out of date. Of crape or silk, with embroidered and fringed ends, it is a most graceful accessory to a dignified toilet.

A delicate and silvery geranium pink and all the violet tones are the millinery shades of the present and early future.

BATHROBE.

Summer blouses are masses of lace and needlework fine as a cobweb. Those of taffeta are tucked, embroidered and enriched with lace insertion, and those of lawn sometimes have not a square inch of plain material in them. One model, worn over an underbodice of colored taffeta, consists solely of little bands of valenciennes insertion separated by lace beading, through which narrow satin ribbon the color of taffeta is threaded.

The bathrobe illustrated is of ibis pink French flannel. It is mounted on a round yoke, bordered with a circular ruffle and two inches of coral satin ribbon, which also passes around the high flaring collar. The fronts of the gown form two box plaits. The sleeves are in one piece, gathered at the waist with a coral ruche. The girdle is a cord of coral silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHIONABLE GOWNS.

What Is Worn by the Best Dressed Women.

Not so very many years ago the really elegant and well dressed woman always appeared in a dark gown, even a black one, in the summer, but now all that is entirely changed, and not only for ceremonious wear, but for the simplest occasions, light, bright gowns are worn, adorned with lace, guipure and ruffles. The favorite materials are batiste, foulard, pique or muslin. The eternal dark blue and white foulard is, however, well to the front, as usual, and is a pet fabric for street costumes, being comparatively cool and not easily soiled.

Etamine is a useful summer material, being of light weight and thoroughly serviceable for ordinary wear.

A pretty and novel arrangement is the guipure stole falling down the front of the gown from head to foot. It is not loose, but is sewed down at each side and is threaded with rather wide velvet ribbon. Black velvet is most frequently employed.

A picture is given of a gown of cherry foulard with a floral design a shade deeper. It has a princess back and a slight train, and around the foot is a circular flounce. The front of the bodice is gathered at the waist and is crossed by horizontal bands of black chantilly insertion. The tablier is decorated in the same way, as are also the tight sleeves. At each side of the front is a lengthwise band of the insertion, and a band also passes around the foot at the head of the flounce. The black straw hat is trimmed with a black plume, black velvet and a buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Strength of Animals.

A man pressing upon a dynamometer with one hand exerts a force equal to three-quarters of his own weight, and a dog lifting its lower jaw does it with a force equal to eight times its own weight. But crabs and mussels are even more muscular. The pinch of a crab is no joking matter, considering that it is effected with a force equal to 28 times its own weight. Worse still is it to be caught between the shells of a mussel. A mussel closes its shell with a force equal to 382 times its own weight.—London Answers.

WOMEN'S REALM

A Beautiful Costume.

A princesse effect is suggested by this closely-fitted, clinging tunic and seamless, belted round waist, with its elaborately arranged insertion and embroidery decorations, down the entire front; the underskirt is plain and demi-trained, the tunic very long and deeply pointed, the insertion in different widths introduced giving great cachet to this handsome overdress; striped and flowered taffeta, satin foulard, fancy albatross, summer silks in various styles and colorings, grenadine and silk canvas can all be used in copying this model with equally stylish results.

Imitation Jewels.

A leading prima donna wears in one role a beautiful parure of diamonds, and she horrified another singer in the company by telling her that they were French imitations that had not cost one-fifth what they seemed to have cost. The other woman was distressed because all of hers were real and the thought of the money invested in them was too much for her. Imitation jewels have come to be so finely made that detection is almost impossible. Even for ordinary wear they are accounted beautiful, and it is only the knowledge of their falsity which makes them unpopular. For every ordinary purpose they are as useful as the genuine pieces. The last jewels to be imitated with wonderful success are rubies, and they happen to be a fashionable stone just now. The manufactory which has these imitation rubies on the market is situated in London, and it has already been said there that the price of real rubies will certainly fall in consequence of the discovery of these wonderful imitations. The profits of the company making the rubies are said to be $185,000 a year. Sapphires are also manufactured, but they are not considered so successful as the other stones. Artificial rubies weighing forty carats can be produced, but are not, as there would be no sale for stones of that size. An authority has said that there is no way known to him by which these stones can be told from the genuine ones. The stones, although made in England, and in some instances cut by well-known jewelers, are sold only on the Continent. There are several companies manufacturing them, although the best are the product of one firm. A London jeweler questioned as to the possible results of these good and cheap imitations said that the stones impossible to imitate might become the most valuable and the most fashionable eventually.

About the Complexion.

Next to the bath, daily friction is the most powerful auxiliary in maintaining the skin in a healthy condition. A woman who learns where the muscles of the skin are located and will daily practice kneading and rubbing these muscles, will find a wonderful improvement, not only in the texture of the skin, but in the contour of the face, if she persists and keeps up the practice. The Easterners are noted for their fine, smooth skins, and diseases arising from defective circulation and cutaneous difficulties are always unknown to them. They attribute this desirable condition to their general practice of massage both of the face and the entire body.

A Cup Board.

A cupboard—or, to be more specific, a board upon which to hang cups—is a pretty conceit for a dining-room. It is easily made, being simply a board stained and varnished, into which brass cup screws are driven. There may be shelves above, as ornamental as desired, to place the saucers upon, or these, too, may be placed on the board, each supported by two screws. If shelves are used, screws may be driven in the underneath side of them and odd cups, cream pitcher and tiny teapots hung from them with very pretty result. But to keep the entire board and shelves for one's collection of cups and saucers is far more original and effective.

In the grand spring cleaning, when nails and screws refuse to fasten securely in the plaster, and life looks dark and dread by reason of their obstinacy, look up and try this simple remedy, given by a professional picture hanger. Enlarge the hole made by the screw, says this genius, and thoroughly moisten the edges of the plaster with water. Then fill the space with plaster of paris and press the screw in the soft plaster. When it hardens the screw will be found to hold firmly.

THE UNITY OF FAITH.

AN INFALLIBLE TEACHER MUST INTERPRET DIVINE REVELATION.

That the Bible and Infallibility Stand or Fall Together Is the Verdict of Reason, For God Cannot Be the Author of Contradictions.

In an elcquent address on "Infallibilities" in the cathedral of St. Paul recently the Rev. Father J. J. Lawler said in substance:

"Divine revelation and infallibility must stand or fall together. If a wise God has made known supernatural truths for man's benefit—truths which are above human comprehensicn—he must have appointed a living infallible authority to identify them and guard them and explain them. Without such an authority we could never distinguish with certainty the true from the false—genuine revelation from counterfeit revelation. Without such an authority we could never preserve the divine message intact—never transmit to posterity the 'faith once delivered to the saints' in its purity and integrity. Without such an authority we could never ascertain with certainty the true meaning of the Bible which is only one in the mind of God.

"No reasoning Christian can pretend that a wise God would act so unreasonably as to deign to make a supernatural revelation of certain truths to humanity and abandon those truths to the private interpretation of the individual. Was the founder of Christianity less wise than the builders of human governments? If in our own union of states every citizen were authorized to follow his own interpretation of the constitution, regardless of the decisions of the supreme court, it is easy to predict that the end of the glorious republic would not be far distant. Much more deplorable are the consequences in religion when people accept God's revelation, but reject the living infallible authority appointed to interpret it.

"Well has it been said that any supernatural religion that renounces its claim to infallibility it is clear can profess to be a semirevelation only. It is a hybrid thing, partly natural and partly supernatural, and it thus practically has all the qualities of a religion that is wholly natural. In so far as it professes to be revealed it of course professes to be infallible, but if the revealed part be in the first place hard to distinguish and in the second place hard to understand, if it may mean many things and many of those things contradictory, it might just as well have never been made at all.

"The justice of God demands infallibility. The divine commission is: 'Preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth not shall be condemned.' Who does not see that if God makes belief in certain doctrines a condition of salvation, if he lays on humanity the obligation of believing his revelation under the penalty of eternal damnation, his infinite justice demands that he furnish man with the means of knowing beyond all danger of error what that revelation is and what its true meaning is? Infallibility alone can do it.

"Nothing is clearer than that God wills his revelation to be believed in its unity and integrity. Memorable is our Saviour's prayer for unity, 'I pray for them also who through their word shall believe in me, that they all may be one as thou, father in me and I in thee, that they also may be in us, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.'

"Unity in faith is St. Paul's constant teaching. 'One Lord, one faith, one baptism.' 'If any one preach to you a gospel besides that which you have received, let him be anathema.'

"Unity of faith is the verdict of reason, for God cannot be the author of contradictions. Without an infallible authority in religion unity of faith is an utter impossibility, as may be seen from the vast progeny of conflicting denominations that have come into existence during the past few centuries.

"The claim that the true meaning of revelation, the genuine sense of the Bible, can be sufficiently known in all things necessary to salvation by every individual who reads it prayerfully and attentively will not stand the test. Catholics hold that the true meaning of the Bible cannot be sufficiently known by private interpretation and that the whole word of God, both written and unwritten, as interpreted by an infallible church, is our rule of faith, our guide to life eternal.

"The Bible, the written word of God, alone as interpreted by private judgment, cannot be a sufficient guide to what we must believe and do in order to be saved. God wishes all men to be saved and to come to a knowledge of the truth, but at no period of the world's history has the Bible been within the reach of all. What about the primitive Christians who were gathered to their rest before the completion of the New Testament? What about the 15 centuries of Christians who lived and died holy deaths before the art of printing, when a Bible was worth a kingdom?

"The Bible does not contain all the truths necessary to salvation. It is not coextensive with revelation. It is the written word of God, but there is also the unwritten word of God. Christians observe things that are not commanded in the Bible. Christians sanctify Sunday, though the Bible commands them to keep holy the Sabbath day, or Saturday. Where does the Bible annul that command or dispense with it? Are they consistent who sanctify Sunday instead of Saturday if they pretend that the Bible is a sufficient guide to all the truths necessary for salvation?

"The Bible is not intelligible to all. What about those vast multitudes of the world's population who cannot read? To them it is no guide at all. And to those who can read, yet who cannot understand it—who cannot agree as to its true meaning—it is not a safe guide. Why, the Bible is full of difficulties and obscurities even in regard to the most vital truths! If it is so easy to be understood, how is it that St. Peter could write that in St. Paul's epistles there are 'certain things hard to be understood which the unlearned and the unstable wrest as they do also the other Scriptures to their own destruction.' If it is so easy to be understood, how is it that there are hundreds of denominations, all professing to follow the Bible as teacher and guide—all claiming to be sincere—all teaching different and oftentimes contradictory doctrines?

"People will say, thoughtlessly, we have in the Bible the word of God, pure and unadulterated, and what more do we need? Without an infallible authority they do not know whether they have the word of God or not. They may be consoling themselves with the word of Socrates. The objective infallibility of the Bible will not protect the minds of its readers from error. The Bible is the word of God only in the sense in which God inspired it. If they are infallibly certain that they understand that sense, then they claim themselves the very thing they deny to the pope. If they are not infallibly certain that they understand the true meaning, then the objective inerrancy of the Bible is worthless for them.

"The Bible, in the hands of private interpretation, will play any tune. Fallible mortals have made sad havoc of it down through the ages. 'In religion what damning error but some sober brow can bless it and approve it with a text?' Some read it and find in it a denial of hell, while others believe in eternal damnation. Both cannot be right. Some read it and believe in Christ's divinity; others read it and reject Christ's divinity. The Bible cannot interpret itself, cannot say who are right and who are wrong, cannot decide the controversy. Perhaps I am right in my interpretation, says the reader, and perhaps I am wrong! How can such a man elicit an act of divine faith? Faith and doubt are incompatible. Absolute certainty is required. An infallible teacher alone can give it."

Too Stupid For a Butcher.

A pretty story of the late Cardinal Krementz, archbishop of Cologne, is going round the German press. Philip Krementz was a poor boy, the son of a butcher. As the eldest son, his father determined that he should be brought up to the trade, while the mother and the schoolteachers, perceiving his remarkable talents, strove in vain to procure for him permission to aim at a higher calling. One day, however, after school hours, little Philip was sent by his father to the other side of the Mosel to bring over a calf. He was so long away that his father in some alarm went to look for him. Old Krementz found the gentle lad standing on the bridge and weeping beside the calf, which he was trying in vain to urge forward, for his own tender hearted and sensitive nature made it impossible for him to drive the little creature on with blows. The angry father boxed his son's ears, with the words: "You can go and become a student, for all I care. You are too stupid for a butcher!" And this was the turning point of the future cardinal's career.

All In the Arch.

Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia is one of the best known wits in the Catholic hierarchy of the United States. On the occasion of his recent visit to St. Louis to officiate at the golden jubilee celebration of St. John's church the Philadelphia prelate rode in a carriage to the parcchial residence with Bishop Glennon, who also assisted in the ceremonies. Bishop Glennon is rather diminutive in size and of slight build, especially in the stomachic region, while Archbishop Ryan is tall and very robust. As they alighted from the carriage Archbishop Ryan said to his companion:

"Bishop Glennon, I once was asked to explain the difference between a bishop and an archbishop. I answered (and the archbishop extended his arms in a semicircle from his own healthy body, at the same time glancing rather sharply at Bishop Glennon), 'The difference is all in the arch.'"—St. Louis Republic.

The Holy Name of Mary.

Mary's name is the pure and sacred vase which contains the chrism of the name of Christ. Her name is the holy lamp of the wisest of virgins, which burns with the divine oil of the name of Christ. Her name is a garden, "a closed garden," full of flowers, which bloom with the beauty of God. Her name is a pure, white, finite shore that girdles the sea of the infinite. Her name is a golden cloud, floating in the heavens and over the earth, with not one dark spot on it, and filled with the splendors of the divinity. Her name is the beautiful gate that opens into the temple of grace.—Father Ryan.

Disclosed by an Explosion.

The explosion of the powder magazine outside of Rome on April 23, 1891, cast down a picture from the wall where it hung in the Convent of SS. Domenico and Sisto, on the Quirinal hill. When the picture fell, it was seen that the wall beneath, on which it hung, was frescoed and that one of the frescoes was a very beautiful picture of Our Lady of Sorrows. This portion of the wall has been cut away, so as not to damage the fresco, and placed with its beautiful painted Madonna over an altar which all Rome is now flocking to see.

Piety and Charity.

Take away piety and charity. What remedy is then left against the evils of the world? What protection? Vain and worse than vain are the amends sought in dissipation and in the indulgence of all the disorderly inclinations. This is the road of perdition—that dreadful, easy road against which our Lord warns us in the Sermon on the Mount.

HAND IN HAND.

Before our pathways met, dear,
True joy we did not know;
Now we have no regret, dear,
As hand in hand we go.

The glad stars of the night, dear,
Smile with a softer glow,
And day with hope is bright, dear,
As hand in hand we go.

When youth at last departs, dear,
And cold the breezes blow,
Love's clasp will warm our hearts, dear,
As hand in hand we go.

THE VICTOR'S SPOILS

Miss Terrence, going down the line, watched the girl who was coming toward her. There were three men with the girl, and only Lancaster was with Miss Terrence. However, as he was all the world to her, Helena-like, she lacked not words of company. The six met on the walk in front of Captain Lansing's quarters.

Lansing was a cynic who observed his kind and told the result of his observations. Such are deservedly unpopular, but command appreciative audience that are the envy of the good hearted. It was to an audience of the sort that he recounted the meeting the same afternoon when the band had stopped playing and the invading hosts from the town had scattered and left the post to its rightful owners.

"Dorothy Terrence," he began, laying his saber across his knees and settling back to the temporary repose which alone can fall to the lot of the officer of the day: "Dorothy Terrence came up the walk. She had Lancaster with her, and she was looking happy. Miss Leeds—the bankers daughter, you know—came down the walk. She bestowed a sweet and transitory smile upon Miss Terrence, but Lancaster is not the best-looking fellow in the Presidio for nothing. If any of you happen to share my good fortune of knowing her, you will understand what, in the nature of things and of men, happened when she turned her eyes upon him with a trick she has of seeming to look into one's very soul.

She has the most beautiful voice outside of the heavenly choir, and she brought it into play also. Dorothy stood it as long as she could, and then she tried to get him away. He never even heard her. If Miss Leeds had not gazed soul searchingly at him and told him that she must be going, but would see him at the hop, he doubtless would be standing there still with Dorothy anxiously watching him. It will be worth going to the hop to see things happen.

Lancaster stood at the door of the dressing-room and watched Miss Leeds while he waited for Dorothy. He saw her throw back her gorgeous cloak and drop it from her with the careless disdain of a celestial creature discarding some temporary earthly garment. That it fell on a chair and crushed other less splendid wrappings beneath it was a detail which escaped him. He watched her as the budding feminine mass made way for her at the mirror, and she stood unchallenged, leisurely touching her glimmering brown hair and pinning a great white rose upon her shoulder.

Dorothy waited at his side for fully five minutes before he saw her. Then she laughed mockingly up into his face and wished that her laughter might have been a blow.

As soon as he could leave her he went running and sliding across the floor to where Miss Leeds stood at bay before a besieging group. She was backed against the wall, and a sunburst of sables was just above her head.

"There are only 20 dances," she kept repeating, "and I never divide."

Lancaster took two of his fellow officers by the shoulders and put them out of his way. Miss Leeds looked into his eyes and smiled as, it seemed to him, no woman had ever smiled before. She put her card into his hand.

"The two with the crosses are the ones I promised you," she said, and as she had promised and he had asked nothing his heart beat high with triumph.

Not that it was a case of love at first sight. He was in love with Dorothy. But the most faithful of men may pay the court she expects to a belle and and may allow himself to be flattered by her marked favors.

He could honestly, then and for several weeks afterward, give Dorothy the comfort she sorely needed and say that he did not even think Miss Leeds beautiful. "She has style and charm," he passed judgment, "but not beauty. And she is a flirt." He meant that Miss Terrance should understand how entirely he abhorred that.

"Did she try to flirt when you called upon her?"

He had made a point of confessing the call directly it was made, and he thought it tactless of Dorothy to insist upon it. He shrugged his shoulders. "She does that with every man."

It was a truth which he fully appreciated, but its feeble light no longer fell upon the path of duty when the time came that the sun of Miss Leeds' countenance shed its glow upon the highway of inclination. And yet she did her best to make it clear to him.

"Now, listen to something I mean to tell you," she said to him. She set down her teacup and leaned toward him, with her elbows upon her knees and her chin between her soft, pink palms. Her eyes were looking straight into his, and they filled his heart with anticipation. Do you think that this is a risky game we are playing, and that we have been playing it for all its worth that last fortnight or so?"

Lancaster knit his brows.

"It is not worth while to pretend you don't understand. We both know exactly what I mean. But I want to be sure we both know that it is only a game. I am not in earnest, and you must not be."

He gazed at her speechless.

"I suppose you are thinking that the suggestion of serious intentions might come first from you," she said. "That may be your way of looking at it, but it is not mine. I don't care to let you have anything to reproach me with. I have had enough of that in the past. I am a hopeless flirt, you know. I go into the thing for the fun there is in it and it is only fair to warn you."

She leaned back in her chair and fell to watching the passers-by upon the street and to biting at a cube of sugar meditatively.

"If you will accept matters that way we can have a very good time. If you don't, I have warned you, and the consequences, if there are any, must be on your own head."

Lancaster laughed rather weakly. I accept the terms," he said. "It is understood that this is only a flirtation."

Which he explained to Dorothy at much length, but which she would not understand and was so unreasonable about as to break her engagement. Lancaster was deeply deeply aggrieved and rather more deeply relieved. But it made one fact plain to him—that he was seriously in love with a girl who frankly told him he was no more to her than a score had been before, than scores might be thereafter. And it was all in vain that he tried to change her.

"I warned you quite fairly," she reminded him, bending forward to stroke the glossy neck of his black mare. It was the mare that, of old, Dorothy had considered almost her own property, and on which she had almost lavished the overflow of her affection for Lancaster. "I warned you," Miss Leeds repeated, "and nobody has suffered but yourself unless'—she glanced at him with a quizzical little smile—"unless there was another girl."

"There was another girl," he answered.

She shrugged her shoulders tolerantly.

"That was to have been expected. Most problems of the heart are in the rule of three."

He frowned angrily, and his lips curved in contempt. "Are you absolutely heartless? Have you no pity for her?

"Not a great deal. If you were the sort to desert her in a fortnight for a girl who made not the slightest effort to win you, I think, upon the whole, that she is rather well rid of you."

Lancaster was biting his lips, and he was very angry. "She is a better woman than you," he said.

"That may be. But still," she laughed, good naturedly, "do you think I am bad enough for you to be passing judgment upon me?

"I do, for you are doing the thing cold-bloodedly, and I—I," he said despondently, "have lost my head."

She smiled into his eyes. "You don't want to do that. It is such a handsome head. Lose your heart—it is not worth nearly so much."

He turned in his saddle and faced her. "I am likely to lose more than that," he burst out suddenly. "I am likely to lose my life."

"Oh, come," she said; "you are not contemplating falling on the point of your saber or drowning yourself in the bay or superinducing galloping consumption, are you? I have had men do a great number of things for me, but never quite that."

"I am not contemplating doing any of those. I may be a good deal of a fool, but not enough for a woman who cares nothing for me."

"Yet that has been done," she suggested.

"What I meant was—and what I intended to tell you when I asked you to come to-day was—that I am going to the war."

"That was to have been expected, of course. Is your regiment ordered?"

"Not yet. I am especially favored.

"When do you leave?"

"The day after to-morrow. And now I am going to ask you to promise me something."

They had reined in their horses by the dynamite guns and sat looking out over the whitecapped blue sea.

"So that it is something that I can promise."

"Not that. I shall leave that until I come back—if I do come back. If I do not—in short, if I am killed"—She gave a little shudder. He saw that she did and repeated. "If I am killed, I shall leave orders that my most treasured possession shall be sent to you."

"Do you mean this mare?"

"I mean the mare. It would make me as happy as it would seem I meant to be to know that if I die you will have her and will ride her and be kind to her, for you are fond of her too."

Miss Leeds knit her brows and considered. "And if I should not?" she said.

"She shall not go to any one else. I will have Dartmoor shoot her on the day that he hears my death confirmed.'

Miss Leeds switched at the skirt of her habit. "Is there no one else who is fond of her also?"

"No," he answered.

"But the other girl you told me of?"

There flashed back upon Lancaster's memory how Dorothy had been wont to stand with her arms around the arched black neck and her cheek against the warm soft nose; how the mare had followed no other but himself. Then Miss Leeds turned the sun of her questioning eyes upon him. They were serious now, and their gentle light scattered the mists of memories. She only valued the horse for the master's sake, and the master is no longer anything to her. "Will you do as I ask?"

A little ironical smile, the smile of an easy going cynicism, curled her lips. "Unto the victor belongs the spoils. Yes, if anything happens to you I will take the horse. But you must not be rash. I believe I prefer your safety to it."

Two months afterward Miss Leeds, bending forward to stroke the glossy neck of the black mare that had belonged to Lieutenant Lancaster, turned and glanced up into the face of the man who was riding beside her.

"Who was the girl that you bowed to near the gates; the one with the big sad eyes?"

"It was Dorothy Terrence," he told her. "Lancaster used once to be engaged to her."

"No wonder, then, that she looked at me reproachfully." She tried to laugh, but the laughter broke, and she grew white as she set the mare into a gallop. "There may, you know"—she called to him mockingly above the clatter of the hoofs—"there may lurk the adder of remorse among the victor's spoils."

Not Rich Enough.

"I wish I were rich enough to learn elocution."

"You are; a course of lessons does not cost much."

"No, but I am not rich enough to make people listen to me."—Indianapolis Journal.

GIRL SEED PACKERS

MARVELOUS RAPIDITY THEY DISPLAY IN PUTTING UP SEEDS.

Hundreds of Them Employed in the Wholesale Seed Houses of the Large Cities—Somewhat Different Stamp From Ordinary Factory Girls.

Unless it be a lightning-speed stenographer or a bicyclist pedalling for a wager, no human beings in New York work faster than the girls putting up seed packets in the wholesale flower houses.

"How many of those can you fill a day?" was asked of a girl manipulating ounce and quarter-ounces and quarter-pound packages of seed in a downtown store.

"Forty-eight a minute," came the prompt answer, with never a pause in the dipping and measuring and pouring in, and before the visitor could even take in the idea of how many this might mean in an hour, the little flowered paper squares, all sealed and ready for shipment, had mounted up in sufficient quantities to make a newly emptied basket necessary to hold them.

"I have been filling seed packets here for six years," said the expert later, when a momentary lull made conversation possible. "Oh, of course, when I first came I couldn't begin to do what I can now. My fingers couldn't move fast enough, and these little measures seemed too small to take hold of readily, but with a little practice I got on better, and after a time, in a season or two, I could turn round sharp and be of use. By three of us working together, one opening the bag, one filling, and one sealing, we can turn out a quantity.

The firm takes on new girls to help, but experience and practice are needed in the seed business, and in working with high-grade seeds or with the mixed papers a filler has to be exact and trustworthy or she would do damage.

"What are the most expensive seeds we work with? Petunias, the fancy, newly-grafted kind, and calceolaria.

"The finest petunia seed is worth $25 an ounce," the seed measurer went on, "and part of an ounce would furnish ever so many plants, so we put up very small quantities, and the seed is as light and fine as chaff or down, so it must be worked with very carefully to avoid waste. Certain extra grades of calceolaria and petunia seeds come as high as $120 an ounce. I know that $400 a pound for petunias sounds like a fairy tale but the greatest pains are taken to rear those plants. Of course nobody ever buys a whole pound, so the proportionate value is great. In vegetable seeds the most expensive that we have to consider is the cauliflower. That is worth $40 a pound and is put up in very small measurements. The most of the vegetable seed however, are easy to work with."

There are hundreds of girls in the wholesale seed houses. Most of them are taken in November and work steadily until February, but in the spring season, along about May, invariably calls for a fresh relay of workers, and after the first stock of all-ready-to-sell seed packets has been depleted, the girls and all hands have to work to the utmost to get ready a new supply. People who have planted their seeds and had them fail to come up send for duplicate assortments, and those who had perhaps no idea of planting at all are moved to experiment with flowers and vegetables when the first warm days come, and there is a feeling for out-door occupation. For this reason, although the regulation seed orders are all filled and provided for during the winter season, the demand is never to be calculated definitely, and every large firm has to turn in and put up a new supply when the planting season is actually on.

Most of the girl seed workers work under supervision, and are valued only because they are small fingered and alert, and can do the delicate work more expediously than man. Those who, like the 48-package-a-minute expert, have learned the business and are not only quick but exact and reliable, are kept on the payroll all the year and regarded as valuable adjuncts to the business. A leading seed house takes on from 60 to 100 girls in the spring (rush season), and keeps two dozen or so employed regularly. The girl flower-seed worker is seldom a wage earner from compulsion, because there is no help for it, as is the case with the factory girl, the girl seamstress, or the larger proportion of shop girls. The seed business is too irregular to be considered as a legitimate trade to be depended upon for living wages, and so the seed girls are drawn from those having homes and parents to support them, but who work for pin money, and because the business is light, clean and pleasant, and the pay in fair proportion to the work. Most of the girls live out of town in little suburban homes, near Jersey City and Brooklyn, and a man who engages batch after batch of them says that the Irish-Americans seem to succeed best and stick to the business longest. Working among the seeds and becoming familiar with the nature and needs of plants and flowers generally leads the workers to experiment on their own account with growing things in their home plots, and this makes them additionally valuable to the business.

"Some of our girls have remarkable memories and can carry more seed knowledge in their heads for use, off-hand, than any man in the trade," said a seed store proprietor who had been extolling his woman head worker. "They can recall how many inches across a flower is when grown from a certain grade of seed, know all about the shadings and markings of the blossoms, and whether this one is velvety and dark or streaked and light or mottled; what seeds give the best results, whether this variety or the other was best liked by customers, and a lot of such facts that a man would use a notebook to keep track of. No woman is really at the head of or in the most responsible position in any large seed houses that I know of. The florists and farmers seem to like best to tre

CYCLING COMMENT.

The celebrated macadam road between Westfield and Netherwood will be the scene, on Labor Day, September 4, of a fifteen-mile road race, to be run under the rules of the N. C. A. The course is two and one-half miles long and the race is open to all amateurs. The prizes to be awarded are, First Time prize, Spalding bicycle; second, pair of tires, First Place prize. gold watch; second, silver watch; third, camera; fourth, set of boxing gloves; fifth, necktie case; sixth, sweater. Entries close with William K. Embleton, of Westfield, N. J., on Monday, August 28.

The rapid decline in membership of the League of American Wheelmen this year is bringing the officers of the organization to a realization of the fact that some steps must be taken to stop the decrease. Last year the membership ran down from the 100,000 mark, but it was felt that the war was responsible for lack of interest in cycling. The still further decrease this year is positive proof that something is wrong. It has been suggested at different periods during the past three or four years that the league needs reorganization. When it is considered that in about fifteen months the L. A. W. has lost in the neighborhood of 50,000 members, it seems natural that some measures shoud be adopted for its preservation. The executive officers seem to have excellent plans to bolster up the membership, but there seems to be lack of unity to carry out these plan successfully.

DUNELLEN STORM-SWEPT.

New House Wrecked and Many Trees Uprooted by the Wind.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 3—The storm at Dunellen was the most severe one of the season. It began about 3 o'clock and for fully half an hour it raged with terrific force. Great black clouds were noticeable in the western sky a few moments before. Then came a stiff wind that blew in gusts clouds of dust promiscuously about. The wind increased in fury until a small sized hurricane prevailed. It was fearful in its velocity, blowing a gale of nearly sixty miles an hour.

The gale swept everything before it. Trees were dismantled and in some instances their branches were scattered far and wide. Gardens and field crops were greatly damaged and shrubbery of all kinds suffered to a more or less extent. Insecure roofs, fragile fences and chimneys with loose fastenings received the full effects of the high wind.

Following the wind came the rain, which fell in torrents, flooding the streets to the depth of several inches. With the rain came the lightning, which precipitated terrific crashes of thunder, startling in their frequency and thoroughly frightening timid citizens.

As the rain increased the heavy wind became less severe and finally stopped altogether. But the rain continued unabated for the space of fifteen minutes after the dying of the wind. When the storm had cleared away and the citizens of the borough went forth to ascertain the extent of the damage they were not surprised at the discoveries made.

In the depot park the handsome trees had felt the effect of the severe storm. Large branches were lying about and the lawn was strewn with leaves and rubbish.

The frame work of Mrs. Louise Terry's new house opposite the station was completely demolished. It had just been raised and workmen were engaged securing the timbers when the severe storm burst upon them. The wind came up so suddenly and fiercely that the carpenters were compelled to beat a hasty retreat to escape the falling timbers, which were toppled over as easily as if they had been ten-pins. in a bowling alley. Some of the timbers were broken by the fall. A portion of the brick superstructure was also dislodged and will have to be rebuilt.

At Jefferson avenue the wind was very severe and at one time Harry Milligan was afraid that the Avoca Villa would feel the effects of the storm. But like a good ship the villa "rode the waves" and when the storm had subsided it was found to be not in the least damaged. Harry told a Press reporter that pieces of paper, old shoes, tin cans, hats, etc., came sailing through the pavilion in an endless procession. He couldn't say where they all came from.

While the storm was at its height a horse and carriage was seen coming from the direction of Plainfield. The conveyance contained a man and woman. When it reached the Avoca Villa opposite Jefferson avenue the man jumped out and ran into the villa to escape the storm, leaving his frail companion to look after the frightened horse. The woman had all she could do to hold the animal, which did its best to run away. The man said they were from Connecticut and that they were going to Princeton. The woman got a thorough drenching.

A large soft maple tree, which stands on the west side of the street near Jefferson avenue, was struck by lightning during the storm and one of its largest branches was torn off. It fell across the trolley wire and smashed it from the iron supports, which were badly bent. The big branch fell directly across the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway. Car No. 16, in charge of Conductor John Deady, was standing a few feet from the tree, and the large branch came within a few feet of striking the car. Conductor Deady and his motorman had considerable difficulty in clearing the tracks. It was necessary to procure an axe and cut the big branches to pieces and then haul them to one side of the road. By the time the track was cleared the discovery was made that the power was off owing to an accident at Plainfield. For about three hours the car was at a standstill, no cars running to Plainfield. No trouble was experienced on the line of the Brunswick Traction Company.

ROADS WERE BLOCKED.

South Plainfield Felt the Force of a Young Tornado.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

South Plainfield, August 3—A young tornado swept over South Plainfield and vicinity yesterday afternoon, doing considerable damage. Trees all through the town were uprooted, blocking the roads. The fruit orchards in the neighborhood suffered severely, many of the trees being blown down and the fruit from others shaken to the ground.

A great willow tree fell on the barn of E. B. Smith on the Plainfield road, partially wrecking the building. One of Compton Vail's apple trees was blown clear out into the road. Constable Mundy was just driving into town when the storm struck. The top to his buggy was removed with much suddenness, and he was nearly lifted from his seat.

Overseer of Roads Jesse Drayton was out as soon as the storm was over with a gang of men and teams making the roads passable. The road from South Plainfield to Avon Park was the worst. It was completely blocked in a dozen places.

OPERA HOUSE STRUCK.

Hunterdon County Suffered Severely From the Great Wind Storm.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, August 3.—A terrific thunderstorm passed over Hunterdon county yesterday afternoon, doing considerable damage to growing crops. The opera house at Clinton was struck by lightning and set on fire. It was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars. The fire department succeeded in saving the building from destruction.

William A. Abendroth's dwelling and George Green's blacksmith shop were also struck by lightning, but little damage was done.

Two barns near Readington were struck and burned with their contents.

At Three Bridges several grain stacks were destroyed.

CAR SHEDS BURNED.

Destructive Fire in Newark Last Night Started by Lightning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Aug. 3.—The car sheds of the Newark and South Orange line of the North Jersey Traction Company, in South Orange avenue, near the city line, were struck by lightning during the storm last night, and were set on fire. A large quantity of oil stored in the sheds ignited, and there was an explosion that spread the fire. There were about a hundred cars in the shed, and only about fifteen were dragged out without damage. The balance were either burned or badly damaged. The buildings are of brick, and were partly wrecked. The loss is about $75,000. The fire crippled the service on several lines, until substitute cars could be put on.

TREES FELL ON RAILROAD.

Wind Blew Them Across the Lehigh Valley Railroad Tracks at Oak Tree.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Oak Tree, August 3.—The great wind storm of yesterday blew down several trees across the tracks of the Lehigh Valley railroad. They were discovered in time to prevent any accidents. Many trees were uprooted and orchards suffered. Fences were broken down and horses and cattle went wandering about the fields until captured by their owners.

BOY STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Instantly Killed While Riding on a Wagon Near Dover.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dover, August 3—Harry Miller, 12 years old, was struck by lightning and instantly killed while riding on a wagon loaded with oats, which Monroe Hill, a farmer, of Succasunna, was taking from the field to the barn at noon yesterday. Two horses attached to the wagon were also killed, and Hill, who was on the wagon between the horses and the boy, was badly stunned.

SCHOOL HOUSE DAMAGED

Most Severe Storm of the Season Reported at Union Village.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Union Village, August 3—The most severe storm of the season was experienced here yesterday afternoon. Exposed persons were prostrated before its fury. The Berkeley Heights schoolhouse was struck by lightning and badly damaged. As far as is known no one was seriously injured. The crops, particularly the corn, suffered greatly.

STORM AT WHITEHOUSE.

Crops and Orchards Were Badly Damaged—Three Barns Burned.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Whitehouse, August 3—Between Whitehouse and North Branch three barns were struck by lightning last night and totally destroyed, together with the contents. The wind and rain swept through this section with unusual velocity and damaged orchards, crops and trees in every locality. The oldest inhabitants cannot remember a storm of such duration doing so much damage.

PINNED HORSE TO EARTH.

Reports of the Damage Done by the Storm at Scotch Plains.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 3.—The heavy shower of yesterday afternoon played havoc in town for a few minutes, although no very serious results have been reported. A large limb on Front street was blown down breaking the electric light wire and putting Front street, Westfield avenue and Mountain avenue in darkness last evening. The trolley was at a standstill owing to trouble in Plainfield.

A horse belonging to Count J. K. VanNess took shelter under a tree during the storm. The tree was blown over and pinned the animal to the ground. The tree had to be cut to pieces before the animal could be released when it was found that it was not injured in the slightest.

"Count" VanNess had 150 chickens before the storm. Now he hasn't been able to find more than two or three. The last he saw of them was sailing through the air in the direction of Plainfield. Some, he says, were fully 300 feet in the air. As they disappeared in the whirl he heard the shrill call of his pet rooster above the storm.

UNROOFED BARN.

Warrenville Adds Its Exciting Tale of the Wind Storm.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Warrenville, August 3—The storm passed through this section yesterday carrying with it destruction and damage to crops and property. The large barn owned by Mr. Voorhees was made a total wreck. The roof was completely torn off and the building taken off its foundation. Other damage is reported to property in this vicinity. Trees were uprooted and roads were blocked for several hours. The water flooded the lowlands, also the roads, and rushed down the mountain like a river.

AFTERMATH OF STORM.

Edward O. Clark, Dr. Emerson and Thomas U. Smith, of this city, were at Perth Amboy fishing and were out in a boat a good distance from shore when the storm appeared. It was with the greatest difficulty that they succeeded in reaching shore without the boat turning over. Everyone was thoroughly soaked with water and their drive home was anything but pleasant. They encountered many large trees en route and they were obliged to drive through fields to pass the obstructions.

Near the Park Clubhouse one of the largest trees was uprooted and blown across the street. It is just high enough for a horse and wagon to drive under. No damage resulted from falling of the tree.

The framework of a partially-completed house on Rock avenue, belonging to E. R. Naylor, was blown down and the foundation smashed.

TELEPHONE COMPANY ACTS.

Petitioned Bound Brook Council For Permission to Enter That Borough.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, August 3.—At a meeting of the Borough Council, held Tuesday evening, a petition was received from the New York & New Jersey Telephone Company asking for the privilege of establishing an exchange in this borough and set poles here. The ordinance granting such privileges was introduced and referred to the law and ordinance committee and was not debated in open Council. Manager Chas. W. Runyon, of Plainfield, was present in behalf of the telephone company.

GOLD, HARD AND COLD.

Maxwell, Able Seaman, Found the Far North Full of the Precious Metal.

Harry H. Maxwell, formerly of New Bedford, Mass., an able seaman on the brig Fannie E. Lee, reached Victoria B. C., recently, bringing with him $20,000 in gold.

Maxwell says that he went north on the brig named eighteen years ago The vessel was pinched in an ice jam and, after passing from whaler to whaler, he arrived at Cape Barrow in 1880. Acting on information given by the natives he crossed the mountains bordering on the Mackenzie River and found more gold than he could carry in the streams not five hundred miles from Fort McPherson, in a country no white man had ever traversed before.

This land, he claims, has never known the prospector, yet in stream after stream he has amused himself by washing surface dirt and finding it return from 10 cents to as many dollars to the pan. Then he would pass on, as the gold at that time was of less consequence to him than the chance of getting a musk ox, moose or buffalo.

In his wanderings he went as far as Great Slave Lake, as far east as Rum Lake, 220 miles beyond the Great Bear, and as far north as the never-opening ice, and everywhere the colors of gold were obtainable.

The question is, he says, even with steamers in which to travel down the Mackenzie, whether or not the reward of treasure will be sufficient compensation for one to brave the terrors of the land. Winter there lasts never less than nine months of the year, and with such degrees of cold that thermometers are useless for its measurement.

Maxwell started for civilization on Sept. 19 with six dogs and four extras and 200 pounds of pemmican. His food gave out and the dogs were sacrificed until but three remained. The generous offices of friendly Indians saved him from starvation. They gave him fresh dogs which carried him to the upper feeders of the Richpak River, which later became the Yukon.

Here a strange experience befell him. The Indians of that region were panic stricken from the effects of earthquakes which had recently occurred there, and were holding a big propitiary feast to the gods. This feast had been in progress for about two weeks, and a boy of fourteen and a girl of ten were slashed to death with knives as sacrifices. Maxwell succeeded in inducing the Indians to spare the third victim, which they were about to offer up, by saying he was on his way to the Great Water to intercede with the spirits.

BOUND BROOK 'PHONE WAR.

N. Y. AND N. J. COMPANY APPLIED FOR FRANCHISE.

If the Franchise Isn't Granted Then the Company Will String Its Wires Over Private Property and Establish a Service Anyway—Decision of Supreme Court Gives Company That Right.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, August 4—The efforts of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company to secure a franchise from the authorities of this place to erect long distance telephone lines through the streets of this borough are meeting with strong opposition. This opposition appears to come from the stockholders and officers of the Home Telephone Company, a local concern.

Two years ago Judge William A. Coddington, of Plainfield, on behalf of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company appeared before the Common Council of Bound Brook and asked for a franchise, but it was refused.

The local company appeared to have a monopoly of the telephone business and it proposed to keep it. Although the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company offered to give the citizens the same rates as that charged by the local company, viz: $30 a year and also to give them the benefits of a longer service by allowing the citizens to talk to Somerville, as well as in the borough, the offer of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company was refused. To those on the outside it looked as though the Home Telephone Company had so entrenched itself into the good graces of the members of the Common Council as to be able to keep out for an indefinite period any outside telephone company.

Then the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company set about carrying the war into Egypt, as it were. They secured the right of way from owners of private property to string their wires over the housetops. The Home Company endeavored to restrain the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company from carrying into effect such a procedure. A decision of the Supreme Court, handed down recently, gives a telephone company the right to string wires over the tops of houses when the right of way had been secured from the rightful owners of the property; but that no poles can be erected in the street in front of a property owner's premises.

Tuesday evening Judge Coddington, together with Charles W. Runyon, the local manager of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, as already told in The Daily Press, appeared before the Common Council of Bound Brook and again made application for a franchise to erect poles and run wires through the streets of that borough. At this meeting the application was referred to the committee on borough ordinances with power. What the decision of this ordinance committee will be can only be conjectured.

If the franchise asked for by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is not granted in a reasonable time the latter company will at once begin to string its wires over the private property of the citizens, which has been acquired from those who are favorably disposed to the opposition company.

ROBBED BREIGS ESTATE.

ANOTHER CRIME LAID AT THE DOOR OF GEO. VALENTINE.

It is Now Alleged That He Borrowed $4,600 Belonging to Mrs. Breigs Without Securing Her Permission.

Perth Amboy, August 4—It has been developed by easy stages that Valentine robbed the Middlesex County Bank, the Perth Amboy Savings Institution and the building and loan association of which he was the treasurer. Now a new robbery has been discovered. As trustee of the Breigs estate Valentine had in his possession $4,600 in building and loan stock that belonged to Mrs. Breigs. He took the liberty of transferring this stock to himself and then deposited it with the National Bank in South Amboy as security for a loan. Mrs. Breigs will sue the bank to recover the stock.

As investigation progresses, it is believed that a very large part of Valentine's stealings were sunk in the dredging business he tried to establish, and which undertook a contract for the Government in Portland Harbor. Oliver Ramsay, son of a Perth Amboy ship builder, was interested with Valentine. Neither knew anything of the dredging business and Valentine awoke one morning to find himself $150,000 to the bad and his plant libelled.

One of the principals in the New York Dredging Company said yesterday: "All of us, who had had any experience in dredging, knew that Valentine was bound to lose before he started."

OLAF SANGSTAD WEDDED

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE OF HIS MARRIAGE TO VIRGINIA BELLE.

Ceremony Took Place at Bride's Home, Falls Church, Va., June 20th—It is a General Surprise to His Many Friends.

In the issue of the Falls Church (Va.) Monitor for June 24th, the following notice of the marriage of Olaf Sangstad, of this city, appeared. It was received at The Press office this morning. The announcement will be a general surprise:

"At the residence of the bride's father, Dr. N. F. Graham, last Tuesday morning, June 20th, at 10 o'clock, Miss Elizabeth Graham and Mr. Olaf Sangstad, of Plainfield, N. J., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, by Rev. Dr. McGill. So quietly had the arrangements proceeded that the most intimate friends of the contracting pair were taken by surprise.

"Mr. and Mrs. Sangstad took the 12 o'clock car for Washington, thence to Deer Island, Me., where they will spend a couple of months. They will make their future home either in New York or New Jersey. Miss "Bessie," as she is known here, is a young lady of rare accomplishments. We congratulate Mr. Sangstad on his good fortune in winning her.

"Falls Church will mourn her loss, and she will be greatly missed in the home circle.

"The Monitor wishes her much happiness in her new life."

A ROUTE TO WESTFIELD.

Trolley Company is Bothered in Finding a Satisfactory One

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 4.—The surveyors of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company have been busy in this neighborhood for the last two weeks selecting suitable routes between this place and Westfield.

Last week a survey was made from Cook's corner straight through to Jerusalem road, then on to Westfield. This plan seems to have been abandoned now and a new survey has been made by way of Forest avenue to the Fanwood line, then across private properties to Westfield avenue, through Joseph Patterson's place and by a roundabout route finally reach the town. The company would much rather build on the original route, but this seems impossible, so one of the two surveys mentioned will probably be used.

Borough Escaped Easily.

The general amount of damage in the borough last Wednsday by the storm was the smallest in its history. There was scarcely any damage whatever. This partially accounted for by the borough being so close to the mountains.

WHY THE BOROUGH GROWS BETTER DAILY.

Tough Characters Now Spend Night at Plains and Dunellen.

LESS LIKELIHOOD OF ARREST

SALOONS AT OUTDOOR RESORTS KEEP OPEN ALL THE TIME.

So Those Who Used to Wind Up in the Borough Lockup Now Leave Plainfield and North Plainfield Alone and Depart By Trolley to Scotch Plains and Dunellen—Lost Trade Also.

The borough marshals have at last come forward and offered a solution to the great mystery as to why so few arrests are made in their domain. The extension of the trolley is responsible for it, for instead of the disturbers invading the borough they now go to Scotch Plains and Dunellen and seek pleasure resorts where there is more freedom and less likelihood of arrest. It is an acknowledged fact that at these outside resorts everything is free and easy and plenty of attractions are offered, so there is little trouble in getting the crowd.

Heretofore, the class of people who usually wind up in the lockup, have sought the borough and remained there until the early morning hours, owing to the fact that the saloons on this side close early, while in the borough, they are open all night practically. The saloonkeepers close for a few minutes at midnight, only to open again soon after 12 o'clock, and they have succeeded in holding the crowd until late in the morning.

Things are now different and the saloonkeepers are now feeling the loss of patronage in the borough, and they have no way of inducing the crowd to come their way. At these outside resorts liquid refreshments are sold at all hours to suit the public, and then there is not so great a chance of being discovered if one happens to get a little more than is good for him, and he stands a better chance of reaching home with the assistance of friends. In the borough there is a chance of getting locked up, having one's name in the paper, and altogether much publicity is given to a little spree.

However, the borough officials are pleased, for it reduces expenses to a minimum and it does not require nearly as many men to keep peace and quite in that place. Then there is no one to be sent to Somerville and the county is relieved of a burden of keeping people in the jail.

Altogether the borough's lot is a happy one and so long as there is no serious trouble on hand everyone ought to be satisfied.

EARNINGS OF ELECTRIC ROAD.

Interesting Figures Given in the Report of Receiver.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Aug. 4—David Young, as receiver of the New Jersey Electric Railway Company, which was bought by Chandler W. Riker for $1,500,000, and sold by him to the White Line Traction Company for $4,000,000, has filed a petition in the United States Circuit Court asking to be released from the receivership.

In his petition Mr. Young gives some interesting figures. From April 10th to June 30th the gross receipts amounted to $68,568, and this figure included $715 from the sale of some old scrap iron belonging to the company. The cost of running the line from April 10th to June 30th was $61,953, and the net profit of the road in that period was $6,613.

Just One More Day.

When Specialist Brown, 145 West Second street, will close his visit here remember this is the last and only opportunity to consult this expert specialist. Time and again we have published testimonial after testimonial in reference to the complete and permanent cures accomplished years ago here in Plainfield by Mr. Brown. When the feet are in a sound and healthy condition we feel good all over. W. W. Warnock, baker, 138 North avenue, informs us that for years his bunions and corns kept him in misery. Nothing or nobody could do any good. He was advised by cured friends to consult Mr. Brown, 145 West Second street. Mr. Warnock says he went to the specialist's office limping and when he left he felt like dancing with joy, and what is marvelous the treatment is painless and bloodless, not a bit of pain after. To-morrow, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, Mr. Brown will positively close his visit here. No patients will be received on Sunday.

Mrs. G. M. Randall, of West Ninth street, has gone to Claremont, N. H., where she is stopping at the Claremont Hotel.

BURNED BY MOLTEN IRON

KETTLE OF METAL OVERFLOWED ON JOHN NEWMAN.

Covered His Left Leg and Foot, Inflecting Terrible Burns—At Pond Tool Works—Was Taken Home.

John Newman, of Liberty street, an employe in the foundry at Pond's was terribly burned about the the left foot and leg while at work this morning.

He, being a helper, was assisting another man in making a casting, and the large quantity of red hot iron overflowed the large kettle used. Newman was standing close by and a quantity of the molten iron completely covered his leg and foot. The excruciating pain caused him to give heartrending shrieks, which brought a gang of men to his assistance. It was noticed that Newman's burns were of a serious nature, and he was hastily taken home and a physician was called.

The patient was made as comfortable as possible, and the physician does not now fear any danger. Newman will be confined to the house for several weeks.

HOW FULTON LIKES IT.

M'CONNELLSBURG PAPERS DISCUSS CONTEST OVER DARLING.

The Fulton Democrat Tells of the General Feeling at Sheriff Sheets' Action—Says He Was a Quiet Prisoner.

McConnellsburg, Pa., has had lots of excitement over the capture and subsequent contest over Will Darling. The newspapers of that town are filled with the details of the case. In reference to it, the Fulton Democrat, of McConnellsville, says in its issue of yesterday:

"The arrest, detention and contest over Darling have given Fulton county a prominence it might not otherwise have gained in a long time. Whether this was desirable we leave our readers to judge. The city papers, east and west, were filled with accounts of the case, some of them exaggerated. Our officers were criticised, more or less, fun poked at us because our county has no railroad, just as if that fact had any bearing on the case. Our own people manifested much interest in the proceedings, but the report in the Philadelphia Inquirer that business places closed, and our merchants, with others, stood about all day long in groups on the corners discussing it was simply the imagination of the reporter, who expected pay for the space filled.

A difference in opinion existed as to Sheriff Sheet's persistence in holding on for his pay. About everybody thought he should be paid before he surrendered the man, many thought his charge of $275 too high while some thought it none too much for the risk in making the arrest. Others feared that a result of the case would be heavy expenses for the county to foot. For the information of such we can say that it has not cost the county one dollar.

The sheriff has $45, the New Jersey authorities have the prisoner. Besides, the sheriff has the promise of further pay from Middlesex county. He may or he may not get it. We advise him not to spend what's promised until he gets it.

What will be done with Darling no one now knows. New Jersey is noted for its sure and swift justice to offenders. We promise our readers to give them the benefit of all authenic information we can obtain until the end.

"Darling was a quiet prisoner and gave the sheriff no unnecessary trouble. That he contemplated suicide is evident from the fact that with a small piece of tin picked up in the yard, as he admitted, he attempted to bleed himself to death by cutting into his wrist. He failed to sever the artery though inflicting a small wound."

MAY SEND CHIEF DOANE.

National Convention of Fire Chiefs to be Held at Syracuse.

The national convention of fire chiefs will be held at Syracuse, N. Y., the week beginning August 21st. Last year the Common Council appropriated $25 toward defraying the expenses of Fire Chief Doane of the Plainfield fire department. No action has as yet been taken on the matter this year. It is beneficial to the efficiency of the department, and to the good of the service that the chief of the department should have all the knowledge possible concerning fire matters. At these conventions the chiefs compare notes; and they receive suggestions from each other's experience that prove highly beneficial to them and often result in increased service to the very important positions held by these officers. Chief Doane is not in position to attend these conventions at his own expense. At next Monday evening's meeting of the Common Council the matter will probably receive the attention it deserves.

AVOCA VILLA WAS DISTROYED BY FIRE.

Cause of Conflagration is Still a Mystery.

HAPPENED LATE AT NIGHT.

FIRE DEPARTMENT OF DUNELLEN TURNED OUT.

Harry Milligan, the Proprietor, Left the Place Shortly After 11 O'clock—At 11:45, the Villa Was Discovered Enveloped in Flames—Was Partially Insured—Milligan Lost Everything He Had.

The Avoca Villa, a small frame structure, situated on the south side of Front street, just over the line in the borough of Dunellen, was totally destroyed by fire late last night.

The place was run as a dancing pavilion by Harry Milligan. It was also used as a waiting room for patrons of the street railroad companies. The building was built early in the spring.

The fire broke out about 11:45 o'clock. No dance was held at the place last night. Milligan, the proprietor, had been away from the place nearly all of yesterday. He returned towards evening and was on duty from that time until shortly after 11 o'clock. At about that hour Milligan went to town to the baker's for supplies. While talking with Cornelius Taylor the alarm of fire wns sounded. Before he could get back to the villa the frail structure, was wrapped in flames. The borough fire department responded, but the fire plug was too far from the fire and the firemen were therefore handicapped. The building burned quickly and nothing was saved. Milligan lost everything he had in the place, including four suits of clothes and several hundred cigars, a fresh stock put in yesterday.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. When Milligan locked up the refreshment part of the place a short time after 11 o'clock, there was nothing to indicate that a fire was soon to break out. Milligan places his loss at about $800. He carried a small insurance on the building and contents, which is in the agency of E. M. French, of this city. Milligan told a Press reporter this morning that he was doing a successful business. As soon as he can have his loss adjusted he will rebuild the villa.

ADDITIONS TO BABY CAMP FUND.

$22.30 was Received at The Daily Press Office Yesterday for That Charity.

The good work done by the King's Daughters, of Plainfield, in providing a suitable camp for sick babies is appreciated, not only in Plainfield, but by the good people of the adjoining towns as well. The efforts of The Daily Press in behalf of that worthy charity are still meeting with success. Yesterday the sum of $22 30 was received at The Daily Press office for the advancement and support of the charitable attempt of the King's Daughters.

The Daily Press is in receipt of a letter from Rev. George P. Noble, pastor of the Mendham Presbyterian church. He enclosed a check for $15.30, the offering of the Christian Endeavor Society of his church. The money was raised by the society for the benefit of the Fresh Air Fund. This part of the work appealed to him more than any other, and so he suggested it to the Christian Endeavorers of his church. They fell heaartily into the plan, and so the money was sent. "A Friend" also contributed $2, and the Misses A. L. & M. D. Gorsline, of Park avenue, generously added $5 to the Baby Camp Fund.

The fund stands as follows today:

Previously acknowledged and check sent to Mrs. H. M. Myers, treasurer	$271 85
Mrs. Chas. Potter	5 00
Y. P. S. C. E. (Mendham)	15 30
A Friend, (Mrs. M.)	2 00

SALOONS VS TOWNSHIP.

WILL SUE PISCATAWAY TO RECOVER LICENSE FEES

Saloonkeepers in Piscataway Township Claim Fees are Excessive and Have Taken Matter Into Middlesex Courts.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 4.—Piscataway Township has a novel law suit upon its hands. At the next term of Court, the little municipality will be called upon to defend itself against a charge of extortionate fees in the matter of liquor licenses. Several of the saloonkeepers in the township claim that they are illegally charged an exorbitant price for the privilege of dispensing their wares, and they will appeal to the Courts to make proper adjustment.

In Piscataway it seems that the license fee is regulated by the number of inhabitants in the township. The original fee of $150 was made when Dunellen was included in the municipalty. When Dunellen became a borough and was set apart from the township, the Committee continued to charge the same price, although the saloon-keepers claim that it should have been reduced to $100.

In order to test the legality of the matter several of the saloon men have assigned their claims to Francis Mulvey, who has brought suit against the township for $1,000, to recover the alleged excess in the license fee. The Township Committee have refused to return the excess and the saloonkeepers have accordingly brought suit. Alan and Theodore Strong have been retained by them to press the suit, which will come up for disposition at the next term of Court.

STATE FAILS TO PAY.

OWES RUTGERS COLLEGE FOR TUITION OF FREE STUDENTS.

Secretary of College Faculty Explains Why Rutgers Has Not Made Greater Efforts to Increase Number of Students.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 4—President Austin Scott and friends of Rutgers College generally are annoyed by articles which have been appearing in newspapers for some time, criticising the management of Rutgers College because it has not made a more strenuous efforts to induce young men to take advantage of the free scholarships provided by the State in the agricultural section. Prof. William S. Myers, secretary of the faculty, has been actuated by a desire to set the matter straight, and he said:

"It is true that the Legislature did, in 1890, pass a law providing for the free scholarships, and that since then some 400 students have taken advantage of this law. But Rutgers College has never received a cent in payment for this tuition, the State failing to live up to its contract. The free scholarship law was passed in 1890. It provided for 60 scholarships, one for each of the old Assembly districts. It is not true that we receive appropriations from the State as the State pays nothing to the college from its own treasury. The United States pays a sum which merely passes through the hands of the State Treasurer.

"Although the State has never appropriated any money for the support of the State College, the trustees have at their own charge gone to an expense of $75,000 to accommodate the extra students coming as free State scholars.

"Rutgers College cannot be expected to go out in search of students from whom she will receive no financial return for the expense involved. As I have said, every one who comes here as a State scholar is welcome, but the number is now satisfactorily large for our equipment and a much larger number would involve many changes to the college, which would mean further great expense. The State now owes up in the neighborhood of $70,000, and when this sum is paid and the State lives up to its contract, then the college would do more than its duty in seeing that the free scholarships are filled.

"A state commission of investigation, as suggested by some, would be most welcome at any time."

ELIZABETH RECOVERS FROM THE TORNADO.

Will Require Weeks of Work to Repair Damage.

LOSS WILL REACH $100,000.

MANY CURIOUS VISITORS WENT TO ELIZABETH TO SEE DAMAGE.

Some Wanted Relics of the Visit of the Tornado—Boys Went Early and Stole Bones and Pieces of Coffins—Wm. A. Eddy, Tornado Expert, Gives Interesting Facts About Elizabeth's Tornado.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 4—There were many curious visitors in Elizabeth yesterday, to view the work of the tornado which swept through the centre of the city Wednesday, leaving damage in its wake. The work of clearing the streets went on all night, and by yesterday morning things did not look half so bad as they did the night before. Still it was bad enough, for it will require many weeks of work to restore all the wrecked portions of buildings and years to replace the grand old trees that went down.

Many relic seekers were about in the section seeking for some interesting thing to carry away as a memento of the affair. There were a few enterprising boys who early in the morning made a descent upon the church yard of the old First church and gathered up coffin plates and handles and bones which were brought to the surface by the uprooting of the old trees in the yard. The bones which were brought up were replaced as nearly as possible this morning in the positions they formerly occupied and those which could not be put back were carefully gathered up and the packages marked so they may be put back later.

The streets last night were fairly clear, and in them only some piles of debris, gathered up into heaps, showed the section through which the storm passed. Workmen were summoned to make the damaged buildings as safe as was possible pending permanent repairs. The buildings that lost roofs were temporarily boarded over, and made as nearly water tight as possible.

The loss is still unknown and will always remain so. The police now place the loss at $100,000

William A. Eddy, who for the last fifteen years has visited the tracks of all tornadoes throughout the country for the Weather Bureau at Washington, made an investigation in Elizabeth. He said:

"The tornado which swept over Elizabeth Wednesday had several peculiarities. The only thing that saved the part of the town through which it swept from utter destruction is the fact that it stayed most of the time at a height of at least forty feet above the surface of the earth. Had it struck the ground, as did the one at Cherry Hill, the result would in all probability have been a terrible loss of life, and a real estate loss that would have ruined many property owners. The tornado travelled from southwest to northeast.

"I find that the Elizabeth tornado made two descents. The first was in the rear of the Presbyterian church, on Broad street, where it tore down trees and dug up the earth, exposing the bones of the dead. It did not run along on the surface, as they often do, but rose immediately, carrying away the frame steeple of the church, but, strangely enough, it did not disturb the brickwork of the spire foundation. Here it did not get nearer to the earth than about twenty feet. If then rose to a height of about one hundred feet and dropped to about fifty feet, and nothing at that height in the course of the tornado was spared.

"The second and only other descent was made at the corner of William street and Madison avenue, where it approached the earth to within eight or ten feet and ran along at that height for about a quarter of a mile, unroofing houses and leaving destruction in its path. The distance between the two places of its descent is about a half mile or a little more. Much of the property of the town was saved through the fact that it is a town of many trees, and the fury of the wind was spent to a great extent upon these.

"The width of the path of the storm was really not more than two hundred feet. It seemed to be much wider, as is always the case. Two striking peculiartities of this tornado were the facts that it dropped its wreckage near to the place where it picked it up, instead of carrying it long distances, as is more usual, and comparatively few missiles were picked up and hurled through walls and buildings. This latter is accounted for because the funnel did not approach the earth as close as usual. Tin roofs and such objects were carried considerable distances, but the wreckage from the church spires was dropped close to the churches."

SERIOUS TROUBLE AHEAD.

Indian Outbreak in Mexico is Threatening the Town of Nogales, Arizona.

CAVALRY TROOP NEEDED

Maruding Indians Calling Together the Members of Their Tribe From Many Sections.

Two Gatling Guns and a Detachment of Artillery Soldiers Hurried Southward—Reenforcements From All Quarters Are Ordered to Scene of Hostilities.

Nogales, Ariz., Aug. 4.—Two Gatling guns and a detachment of artillery soldiers form the City of Mexico, via El Paso, have been hurried southward, en route to the scene of the Yaqui Indian war. Troops are being marched across the mountains from points in the State of Chihuahua and Durango to join the forces now in the field, and other reinforcements are hurrying from all quarters.

It is reported that emissaries have been sent by the Yaqui leaders to ranches and mines all over the State of Sonora, where men of the tribe are at work, calling them to arms. Many Yaquis employed in big mining camps and on haciendas as laborers have disappeared.

Even in this vicinity, 300 miles from the scene of hostilities, the Yaquis are in a state of disquiet, quitting their employment and going away, and those coming here from outside points in Arizona, where there have been many Yaqui laborers, report the same condition of affairs.

They usually travel by night, and small squads are reported passing through the town or nearby, all going south.

Some fears are expressed of a descent upon the town similar to that of August, 1896, when an attacking party took possession of the Mexican customhouse early in the morning and was dislodged only after a severe battle, in which nine men were left dead on the field, besides some twenty wounded.

In that fight, Company G, of the Arizona militia participated, and it is from motives of revenge that the Yaquis now on the war path have killed the Americans whose deaths have been reported. In the former wars, they have always respected Americans, never molesting them.

The situation is here considered so grave that Mayor Overton has asked Gov. Murphy to request the War Department to send a troop of cavalry from Fort Huachaca, for protection of the town.

Big Power Plant Burned.

Newark, Aug. 4.—The fire which broke out in the big power house and car sheds of the South Orange division of the North Jersey Railway Company proved far more disastrous than was at first supposed. Nearly eighty cars were totally destroyed. Two palace cars owned by the directors, which cost $5,000 each, were also totally destroyed. The officials estimate the loss on the building at $300,000. The loss is covered by a blanket insurance. There is little doubt that the fire was caused by lightning which struck that portion of the building where oils and paints were stored.

James K. Wetmore Dead.

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 4.—James K. Wetmore, President of the First National Bank of Bainbridge, well known in New York and one of the most prominent financiers in this part of the State, died suddenly at his home here. He had been in his usual health, and started to attend a meeting of the bank directors, but said he did not feel well, and changed his mind. His family physician was called, but he died almost immediately. He was in his 80th year, and had been a resident of this section over thirty years.

Celluloid Collar May Cause Death.

West Union, Ohio, Aug. 4.—During an ice cream supper at Blue Creek a lot of fireworks were being shot off. John Lauderback, a young farmer, was hit with a roman candle ball, which set fire to his celluloid collar, burning it from his neck and setting fire to his other clothing. He was seriously burned and is in a precarious condition.

Soldiers Can Tell All.

Paris, Aug. 4.—The Minister of War, General the Marquis de Gallifet, has absolved all military witnesses at the Court-Martial of Capt. Dreyfus at Rennes, from professional secrecy. He has requested them not to divulge the names of French agents abroad or disclose anything which could complicate the foreign relations of France.

Spanish Internal Reforms.

Barcelona, Aug. 4.—At a meeting of the Municipal Council the civil government announced that the administrative decentralization demanded by the Catalans would be shortly introduced, with the co-operation of the government. The announcement made an excellent impression.

New 1,000-Mile World's Record.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 4.—The world's bicycle record for a thousand miles, held by T. A. Edge, of London, has been broken by A. A. Hansen, who has finished his long ride, covering the distance in 92 hours and 44 minutes. The time made by Edge was 105 hours and 19 minutes.

Pennsylvania Veterans Land.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 4.—The Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteers have landed from the transport Senator and, escorted by the Nebraska troops, marched to the Presido, where they will camp until mustered out.

2,500 Miners go on Strike

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 4.—The employes of five big collieries in the anthracite region have gone on strike because of alleged excessive dockage. Nearly 2,500 men are idle.

CUBAN BLACKMAIL SCHEME

General of Cuban Army Accuses Officers of Extorting Money.

Havana, Aug. 4.—A Cuban general, in a letter in the "Independencia," says some commanders of the Cuban army have taken advantage of the $3,000,000 gratuity to get money from soldiers for granting them the certificates necessary to collect their quota. He gives three cases of men who were charged money by Rames, a colonel in a Cuban regimnet. In another instance, it appears, a man could not get his certificate, owing to the lack of money to pay for it. The writer says:

"Every day sees that the Americans are more and more right. Many years must pass before the Cubans learn how to handle money without letting it stick to their fingers."

The general then asks, in view of the facts adduced, what would have happened if the Americans had intrusted the distribution of the gratuity to Cuban commissioners.

Senor Casanova, owner and director of a paper published at Guayacamayo has been arrested under the decree recently issued by Major-Gen. Ludlow. Senor Casanova has repudiated his responsibility in connection with any objectionable article that appeared in the paper, seeking to throw blame on the "jail editor," so-called, because he takes the responsibility for whatever appears in the paper. The "jail-editor" has not yet been arrested, and, meantime, Senor Casanova is in custody.

Gov. Roosevelt Talks to 15,000.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 4.—Governor Roosevelt addressed an audience of 15,000 persons in the Ocean Grove Auditorium. Fully 10,000 more crowded around the colossal building in the vain hope that they might hear a few words from the distinguished speaker.

To that vast throng Mr. Roosevelt no longer was the Governor of a great State. He was the Rough Rider of San Juan. His welcome at the railroad station was spontaneous and he was greeted with flattering enthusiasm by 5,000 persons. Bradley's Beach Band played "Hail to the Chief," while policemen made a way through the crowd for the distinguished party. The Governor's speech which was intensely interesting was received with great enthusiasm.

Negro Slashed in a Fight.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 4.—John A. Speaks, a negro coachman, employed by Dr. James S. Hall, in this village, was sent to the Nassau Hospital badly used up as the result of a quarrel. George Boyd, a negro bootblack, took offence at a remark made by Speaks, and in a quarrel which followed, Speaks, it is alleged, struck Boyd. A big negro, Walter Reed, took Boyd's part, and gave Speaks a terrible beating. Speaks's right eyelid was cut through horizontally, and it is supposed that Reed used a razor or a knife.

Maládу May be Infectious.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The new malady which has appeared among children in this city, and which has been characterized as infantile paralysis, assumed an alarming phase, when it was pronounced infectious by Dr. Henry D. Chapin, professor in the Post Graduate Hospital, at Twentieth street and Second avenue, New York, who has had great experience with diseases of children.

Plate Won by Arthur's Challow.

London, Aug. 4.—At Brighton the Brighton Town Plate of 150 sovereigns, the winner to be sold at auction for 200 sovereigns, one mile seven furlongs and forty-four yards, was won by Mr. E. M. Arthur's Challow, ridden by Martin. Mr. Horatio Bottomley's Benedictus was second and Mr. Gortham's Clondalkin third. Fifteen horses ran.

Strikers Use Dynamite Again.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The withdrawal of several companies of troops has been followed by another dynamiting outrage, but fortunately nobody was hurt. The explosion occurred under a Jennings avenue car, on which there were six passengers. It smashed the flange of one of the wheels and splintered the running board at the side.

Lashed to Boat All Night.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 4.—After being out all night in a fearful storm, clinging to the bottom of their overturned yacht, Dr. Frank L. Southern, lecturer in the University of Pennsylvania, and Frank Tash, his sailing master, were rescued at daylight. The men were thoroughly exhausted.

Life Guards Incorporated.

Albany, Aug. 4.—The Rockaway Beach Life Guards, an organization formed for the purpose of saving life and property endangered at sea, has been incorporated with the Secretary of State. The principal office is in New York city.

West India Firm Bankrupt.

London, Aug. 4.—D. H. McGowan & Co., West India merchants, who also have an establishment at Demerara, have been declared bankrupt. Their liabilities are £75,000.

A Marriage Fee.

A clergyman of Georgia was once standing in the Court House, says the Homiletic Review, when a Hoosier came in to see the ordinary in order to procure a marriage license. The countryman asked for a "pair of licenses," and on making the purchase necessary to being united in the holy bonds of matrimony inquired of the ordinary: "Who can I git to marry me?" The ordinary replied that he could perform the ceremony, or the parson, standing near, would probably accommodate him. The countryman turned to the parson and asked if he would marry him. The parson readily consented, and asked the would-be bridegroom, "Where's your gal?" He replied, "Out yonder—in the street." The parson said, "Fetch her in." Then she was "fotch" in and the "knot tied." The bridegroom asked the parson the amount of the indebtedness incurred, and was told that no charge was made, but that he always left the matter for the bridegroom to decide. The latter replied: "I've got no money. I've got a load of punkins out yonder; I'll give you a punkin."

IN MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF Jacob Blimm Administrator OF William Blimm, DECEASED, FOR SALE OF LAND TO PAY DEBTS. } Order to Show Cause.

Jacob Blimm, Administrator of William Blimm, deceased, having exhibited to this Court under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said deceased is insufficient to pay his debts, and requested the aid of the Court in the premises: It is, on this nineteenth day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, and real estate of said William Blimm, deceased, appear before the Court, at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, on the twentieth day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why so much of the said lands, tenements, hereditaments, and real estate of the said William Blimm, deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay his debts, or the residue thereof, as the case may require. And it is further ordered that this order be set up and published in one of the newspapers of this State as by the Statute directed by the Court.

DANGER POINT IS PASSED

Believed That the Yellow Fever Epidemic Has Been Successfully Broken.

EXODUS HAS STOPPED.

No New Cases of the Plague Have Been Reported During the Past Twenty-Four Hours.

A Wonderful Change Takes Place in the Attitude of Norfolk People—Quarantine Against Coal Boats Unnecessary—The Physicians Give Hopeful View.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 4.—The fear, believed by many to be baseless, that the yellow fever would spread from the Soldiers' Home in Hampton and invade Norfolk appears to have passed. A wonderful change in the attitude of Norfolk people has taken place in the past twenty-four hours and many here are laughing at the fear which possessed their acquaintances. The change in public sentiment was made apparent when the boats and trains outward bound left. Not one-quarter so many passengers embarked upon them as had done so in the earlier part of the week. The fact made known that another day had passed without increase in the number of yellow fever patients at the Soldiers' Home and the correction of certain false reports to the effect that a number of cases had been discovered at Phoebus have contributed to allay the alarm here, an alarm which the cool-headed have from the first believed wholly unjustifiable.

Notwithstanding rumors to the contrary, no case of yellow fever has been discovered outside of the Soldiers' Home with the exception of those at Phoebus. The fact that the first cases of fever developed at the Home on July 21 and that thirteen days have passed without any case having developed outside of the Home and its immediate vicinity is reassuring. Inasmuch as Phoebus and the Home are contiguous the best physicians hereabouts express their belief that the danger is passed.

The belief is general here that the yellow fever scare will be over within a week. Dr. Field of the Marine Hospital Service here expressed the belief that there is but the most remote possibility of the fever ever crossing the broad water between Norfolk and the peninsula.

Quarantine Unnecessary.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Surgeon-General Wyman, in reply to a question by the Health Officer of New Bedford, Mass., notified him that it was unnecessary to quarantine against ships from Virginia ports laden with coal.

Surgeon Vickery, in charge of the Soldiers' Home, Hampton, sent the following telegram to Surgeon-General Wyman:

"No case and no deaths. Von Ezdorf arrived last night. If epidemic continues limited, one surgeon, Tuten, will be enough at present also two male and two female nurses ordered. Please hold others until further advices."

Dr. Wyman said that it was too early yet to make any prophecy as to the extent of this outbreak, but that the situation was very encouraging. He pointed out that in several cases within recent years the epidemic had been successfully confined to the limits within which it was discovered, and that while in some instances it did not totally disappear until frost, in others it had been checked before frost, and danger from infection reduced to a minimum. At present he did not look for a spread of the disease, and said persons desiring to travel toward or through the South need not be alarmed.

Brought the Fever To Hamton.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Surgeon-General Wyman was notified by Surgeon Wasdin that the name of the soldier who is held accountable for the introduction of yellow fever into the Hampton Home is William Thomas. He has been found in Columbus City, Wash. His baggage was shipped to Phoebus, Va.

He entered the home at some period between July 2 and 5, and left after a few days. It is supposed he had a slight attack of the fever while in the home. Surgeon-General Wyman considers it very fortunate that Thomas went to the North instead of the South, as it reduces the danger of the spread of the fever through his travel to a minimum.

Odd Fellows Suspect Foul Play.

Warren, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Reports of foul play have been received at Cortland by the family of L. D. Casterline, the Klondiker who died while returning from Dawson City and was buried at sea. It is claimed Casterline had $5,000 in gold dust, while his effects after death showed only $1,800. The report indicating foul play comes from Odd Fellows in Seattle, Casterline having been a member of that order.

Her Eleventh Divorce Suit.

Indianapolis, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Augusta Cordes, wife of Herman Cordes, a brick manufacturer, for the eleventh time has brought suit for divorce. She now demands $15,000 alimony and custody of their youngest daughter. Of her many suits for divorce but one was ever forced to a conclusion, and then she remarried her former husband soon after. Mr. Cordes is worth $50,000.

Strike Marked by Good Feeling.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 4.—The miners' strike at Blairsville has been settled on a basis favorable to the men, who have returned to work. The miners struck for 30 cents, but compromised for 28 cents. This strike has been marked by the very best of feeling between the operators and their men.

Mrs. Ingersoll's Sister Dead.

Woodstock, Ont., Aug. 4.—The death occurred here of Mrs. Edward Merrigold, a sister of Mrs. Robert G. Ingersoll and a sister-in-law of Sir Roderick Cameron of New York.

THEY FEAR ANNEXATION.

Kingston Calls on Europe to "Curb American Ambition."

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 4.—Commenting on a London cablegram relative to possible American intervention in Santo Domingo, the Gleaner says it anticipates the "finding of an excuse to add the Island of Hayti to the string of Antillian gems on the new colonial diadem," and invokes the Powers to "curb America's ambition."

A despatch received by a messenger who had passed through Hayti indicates that the assassination of President Heureaux was not on the programme, the purpose of the revolutionists being to capture Moca, with the President, thus decapitating the Dominican Government at the first blow, the insurgents not possessing the means of prosecuting a protracted conflict.

The premature departure of President Heureaux threatened to frustrate this scheme. Thereupon an enthusiast who was watching the President's movements committed the act. A subsequent attack on Moca being repulsed the insurgents withdrew into the fastnesses between Moca and Porto Plata, hoping to secure sufficient accessions of men and arms to attack Porto Plata and prosecute the movement, in spite of its initial failure.

Another Feud in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 4.—Another feud has broken out in the mountains. Information has been filed that in Letcher county a feud has broken out between the Wrights, Holbrooks and other families on one side and the Reynolds and Bentley factions on the other. The factions are heavily armed and moved on each other. They are posted in the mountains on Barnes Fork and news of a battle is expected momentarily. These families have never before participated in a feud, but the epidemic of feuds in eastern Kentucky is supposed to have started the war. Gov. Bradley's official statement that he could not legally interfere with feuds is thought to have had much to do with the outbreak.

Mayor Jones Running His Boom.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 4.—Mayor Jones of Toledo, who so recently embarked on the political sea of the State, has already met with disappointment. He has refused to pay the expense of sending emissaries about the State to work up petitions in his behalf. The labor committeemen in Lucas county represented to the Mayor that it would not do to depend upon voluntary sentiment, but that men must be put to work to arouse enthusiasm. In a word, he must hire men to ask him to run for Governor. Mayor Jones refused to view things in this light, and has decided practically to run his campaign to suit his own ideas.

Spain's Wheat Crop Poor.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The State Department has received from Mr. Mertens, in charge of the consular agency at Valencia, a report to the effect that the wheat crop throughout Spain has been very poor this year. During the month of May 8,000 tons were imported from Russia, 5,000 tons from the United States, 4,000 tons from France and 18,000 tons from other countries, including British India, South America and Australia (a trial shipment of 1,000 tons from the last-named country). In the first five months of the year 109,000 tons were imported.

Camden's Novel Strike.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 4.—About fifty weavers from Philadelphia were put to work to take the place of the striking young men and girls at the Fries-Breslin rug works, who quit work because a popular foreman was transferred to another department. Superintendent Carroll says he will not recognize the strikers in a body, but will take back as many individuals as he needs who apply for their former places, but the strikers still remain firm.

Mrs. Botkin Has a Chance.

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—In view of the decision of the Supreme Court, granting Albert Hoff, the murderer of Mrs. P. A. Clute, a new trial, on the ground that the Judge's charge to the jury was improper, the police are worried lest Mrs. Botkin may secure a new trial for the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning, of Dover, Del., on the same ground. It is alleged that in both these cases the Judge delivered practically the same charge that was used in the Durrant murder case.

Killed by Bursting Bottle.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Nels Madsen, a 13-year-old boy, of 6,117 Madison avenue, was the victim of a singular and fatal accident. A bottle of root-beer had been given to him by a neighbor for doing an errand, and he was carrying it home when the bottle burst. A piece of the flying glass struck him in the neck and severed the jugular vein. He died twenty minutes later.

Depositor's Money Taken.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 4.—L. A. Catt, merchant, started to drive to the bank. On the seat alongside of him was a bag containing $78 in gold and silver. After stopping in front of the bank building and fastening his horse the animal jerked its head to one side, breaking the strap. While he was fixing it some one walked away with the intended deposit.

Shamrock Battles With Atlantic.

Fairlie, Scotland, Aug. 4.—The Royal Ulster Yacht Club's challenger for the America's Cup, the Shamrock, has sailed for New York from the Forth of Clyde. Sir Thomas Lipton, her owner, gave her a private signal to start on her long voyage from his steam yacht Erin, which will escort her across the Atlantic.

TRIED IT ON THE DOG.

I have taken about five dollars' worth and know that Ripans Tabules are the best medicine in this world. I was sick for ten years, not only feeling bad with one complaint but it seemed to me I had everything. I never knew what a well day was and could not eat nor sleep hardly. I know I spent a hundred dollars or more with doctors with very little result, but after taking Ripans Tabules I can say I am a well woman. They have also done my husband more good than anything he ever took. He is an old soldier and got very feeble and deaf and could not work. He was three weeks under the doctor's care and I got him to take Ripans Tabules and he is now all right. I had a dog and he got the mange and lost all of his beautiful hair. My husband was going to have him shot, but I told him he should not do anything of the kind till I had tried Ripans Tabules for him, and I did try them and they were just the thing. My dog to-day is well and fat and his hair has all come in. I would not take fifty dollars for my dog and every one around here knows what a sight he was and what a beauty he is now.

A lady who read the above testimonial said: "If I knew how to give R·I·P·A·N·S to my dog I should like to make use of the same remedy." On inquiry it was ascertained that by cutting a slit in a piece of meat and inserting a Tabule therein the dog swallowed it readily and had his medicine in him before he knew it.

WANTED:—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send five cents to Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, or 12 packets for 48 cents, may be had of all druggists who are willing to sell a low priced medicine at a moderate profit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the packet. Accept no substitute.

CRISIS IN SMELTER STRIKE

Outbreak Likely to Occur Soon and Authorities Prepare For Trouble.

Denver, Aug. 4.—The situation in the smelter strike is critical and an outbreak is likely to occur at any hour. The first sign of real trouble occurred last night when a non-union machinist employed at the Globe plant was held up by union pickets and roughly handled. As a result the authorities have been called on by the smelter managers, and announce that deputies will be sworn in for guard duty. The first detachment, it is understood, will number twenty-five men. These will be assisted by Pinkerton men. This intended action has stirred the strikers and the number of union pickets on guard at the Globe and also at the Grant smelter was increased.

The managers of both plants assert that if the union men can be prevented from resorting to violence they will have no trouble getting men in this city. This statement the strike leaders deny and say that if the managers get men they will be outsiders. In this connection it is stated that there are a number of imported men already here. That the managers of the trust plants are making arrangements to blow in the furnaces is no longer denied. The minute this is done it is believed that serious rioting will occur. No attempt on the part of the trust managers to start mills has been made at Pueblo.

Put Paris Green in Well.

Owego, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Jerome Smith and her fourteen-year-old grandson, Earl, are in jail here charged by Philo Barden with placing paris green in the well from which drinking and cooking water was supplied to his family and farm. It is stated that the Smiths and a neighboring family named Gibbs have had law suits, and the former wished Mrs. Barden to testify on their behalf. Owing to failure to do so the Bardens say she tried to kill them. Mrs. Smith is said to have provided the poison and accompanied her grandson to Barden's place. Barden, fortunately, did not use the water from the well and was made suspicious by the green color of the water he drew from it.

Negro Saved From a Mob.

Newnan, Ga., Aug. 4.—John Mullins, a negro, who attempted to assault Mrs. James Cook, near Senoia, has left for this city under the protection of a strong posse. After Mullins attempted the assault he fled and made a circuit of fully twenty miles. Twice he was betrayed by members of his own race, and at last was captured near here while hiding under a bundle of fodder. It was nip and tuck several times between a mob and the authorities, but it is thought now that Mullins will reach this city in safety.

College of Social Science.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—There is a probability that Chicago will be the site of the American College of Social Science, the proposition for the establishment of which was made at the recent sociological conference at Buffalo. The choice of sites has been between Boston and Chicago, with Boston preferred at first. The use of the People's Temple in this city has been given the new institution, free of charge of rent, heating and lighting, for one year, and this has been announced as the headquarters of the college.

To Fight Grasshopper Plague.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 4.—Western Nebraska, Kansas and Eastern Colorado are just now in the grasp of a grasshopper plague, the worst on record for fifteen years. Crops are being devastated and the farmers are worried by the inroads of the pest, according to reports received at the State Horticultural Department. In fact, the grasshoppers are doing so much damage that the entomologists of the three States have decided to hold a meeting to devise a plan to combat them.

Bridge Jumper is Alive.

New York, Aug. 4.—Herman Hauser, who jumped from the Brooklyn Bridge, and was picked up in the river late yesterday afternoon, is still alive at Gouveneur Hospital and will recover. He will give no reasons for making the jump, and will not say whether he intended to commit suicide or not.

Mysteriously Murdered.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—George C. Gallagher, a young plumber, was mysteriously murdered at his hime last night while his mother and cousin were asleep in an adjoining room. The only clews to the murder are a torn window netting in Gallagher's room and a revolver found in the rear of the house.

Ferdinand Schumacher Married.

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The Akron friends and relatives of Ferdinand E. Schumacher, the former oatmeal king, were surprised to receive telegrams from him announcing his marriage in San Francisco to Miss Mary Zipperlen, daughter of Dr. Adolph Zipperlen of Cincinnati.

Belgium's New Cabinet.

Brussels, Aug. 4.—In the new Belgian Ministry being formed under the Premiership of M. de Smet de Nayer, the Finance portfolio will be held by M. de Nayer, while M. Descamps will be Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Cabinet is practically formed.

Italy's Chinese Plans.

Milan, Aug. 4.—"Il Corriere de la Sera" in an article much commented upon declares that Italy has abandoned all idea of territorial acquisition in China and is negotiating only in connection with commercial matters.

Keene Tries New Automobile.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 4.—Foxhall Keene has received his new automobile from Paris. He has tried it for the first time. He attracted much attention, as it is the only one of the latest French model in America.

Canada and Pacific Cable.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—The bill providing for the payment by Canada of a proportionate share of the cost of construction of the proposed Pacific cable has passed the Senate, thus becoming a law.

A MESSAGE FROM OTIS.

The War Department is Informed of the Present Situation in the Philippines.

General Otis Sends in More Nominations For Officers — Secretary Root Preparing to Increase the Fighting Force in Philippines to at Least 40,000 Men.

Washington, Aug. 4.—It appears probable that Secretary Root has in contemplation an army of quite 40,000 men for the Philippines. While Mr. Root has been at the head of the Department only a brief time he has been making diligent inquiries among the bureau chiefs regarding supplies and equipments and the trend of his questioning has been in the direction of an increase in the available force in the Eastern Archipelago. The belief is growing in army circles that Secretary Root has in mind a plan practically matured to make Gen. Otis's available force at least 40,000 men.

Third Calvalry's Departure.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Arrangements for the transportation of the 3d Cavalry to the Philippines have been completed by Col. Bird, Assistant Quartermaster-General, after a consultation with Secretary Root. It has been decided to send the eight troops of cavalry on the St. Paul and the stock vessels, Athenian and Garonne, instead of on the St. Paul and Morgan City, as was previously proposed. It was learned that the St. Paul could accommodate 850 men and the two stock vessels 150 men. In this way the Morgan City can be used for other troops.

The camp at Seattle for the 3d Cavalry is completed and orders have been issued for the Cavalry troops to reach Seattle not later than Aug. 15, by which time it is expected their horses will be on hand. After their trip by train the men and horses will enjoy a rest of four or five days. They will depart for Manila about Aug. 50.

Otis Nominates More Officers.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The following despatch from Gen. Otis, giving additional nominations for the volunteer regiments, has been made public.

"Manila, Aug. 3.

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Additional nominations original vacancies in 37th Volunteers: Captains—Ernest D. Scott, Second Lieutenant 6th Artillery; John E. Moran, Captain, Montana; Charles N. Clark, First Lieutenant, Minnesota; Sergeant Henry A. Hutchins, 14th Infantry.

"First Lieutenants—Sergeants Edward T. Balch, Troop L, 4th Cavalry; Jesse G. Lowenberg, late corporal D, 6th Artillery; Frank Auswald, recruit 37th, late sergeant, Kansas; John S. E. Young, Sergeant Major 12th Infantry; Dan T. Bowman, 37th, late private, Montana; John L. Nussell, sergeant, South Dakota; Ira Keetly, recruit, 37th, late sergeant, Kansas.

"Captain, vice Croft declined, Albert J. Ericson, 36th Infantry.

"The above completes list, except one assistant surgeon, 36th Regiment, numbering 500 equipped, sent to San Fernando; 37th, numbering 500, being assembled for equipment, Lockett's regiment recruiting rapidly, and nomination of officers telegraphed soon.

OTIS."

Another Typhoon Near Manila.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Gen. Otis, in a despatch to the War Department, says that another typhoon is approaching Manila and will indefinitely delay the departure of two of the transports. He says:

"Four transports in harbor, cargoes discharged. Pennsylvania nearly coaled; takes on recruits, received organizations in Southern waters. Leaves 6th inst; returns all men discharged under General Orders 40; Sheridan being coaled; leaves San Francisco 8th inst. with Montana and South Dakota troops. Valencia and Zealandia require 1,200 tons coal; time of sailing indefinite, as approaching typhoon interferes. OTIS."

The words "received organizations" are believed to have been changed in transmission, as the sentence should propably read: "Takes on recruits, relieved the organizations in Southern waters."

Six Regiments are Ready.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Reports from recruiting stations are to the effect that the ranks of six of the ten new volunteer regiments intended for service in the Philippines are almost filled. More than nine thousand men have been enlisted thus far, and less than five thousand more are required. Three of the regiments will, it is expected, srtart from San Francisco on August 20.

Will Not Use Machines.

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 4.—The McCloy and the MacBeth lamp chimney factories are setting pots and putting the plants in condition to resume work August 15. They have decided not to introduce the Owens blowing machines this fall and the two plants will as usual give employment to 900 hands.

Badly Burned by Varnish.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 4.—H. Upjohns was frightfully burned about the body in a fire at Schrack & Co.'s varnish works. Upjohns was working about a pot of varnish when it boiled over on him. He was covered all over by the boiling fluid which also set fire to the plant.

Crashed Into by Trolley Car.

Pittsburg, Penn., Aug. 4.—Two carriages filled with mourners in the funeral cortege of Mrs. Harry Smith were struck by a consolidated traction car on Fifth avenue, and nine persons were severely hurt. The injured will recover.

An Evidence.

The ways of the space-writers are many. The following remarkable statement, which was evolved in the ever-resourceful brain of the Plainfield correspondent of the Newark Advertiser, is an evidence of the wonderful things a writer, blessed with a vivid imagination, can see when circumstances necessitate it:

Baggagemaster Garretson, of the Jersey Central, at Plainfield, is having his usual summer trouble with golfers who insist on wearing red golf coats when they come to the depot. He says their presence on the track is apt to mislead the engineers of fast trains and cause them to slow down under the impression that the red coat is a danger flag. Last summer one of the Royal Blue Line trains came to a halt when the engineer saw a red coat in the distance, and ever since then the baggagemaster has tried to keep golfers off the platform unless they will stand out of sight. Every morning during the summer some of these red-coated young men ride to the depot with their fathers who commute, and Garretson has had to give them orders to keep away.

Insatiable Curiosity.

The curiosity of the American people threatens to wreck the life of little Marion Clark, the child who became famous by being kidnapped in New York city, some time ago. Her parents took her to a secluded sport near Albany, N. Y., but a crowd of curious ones found her out and haunted the place much to the detriment of the child's health which was already very poor. Now the Clarks have fled to some unknown place with the faint hope of escaping from those who persist in trying to see the child.

Big Revenue for Jersey.

The fact that so many corporations and trusts have filed their articles of incorporation in New Jersey has caused much comment adversely and otherwise. There is one thing certain, however. The treasury of the State of New Jersey is being rapidly increased by the revenue derived from the filings of the certificates of incorporation. During the month of July, the State received $58,569, an amount slightly less than that received during June, as the revenue from this source.

Elizabeth has a hankering after the lion's share of everything that comes along. Her politicians always expect the major portion of the plums when the time of distribution comes. But when the tornado of Wednesday afternoon visited most of its strength on the county seat the Elizabethans didn't feel the slightest desire for any more patronage on the part of the tornado. Fate, however, saw that Elizabeth's policy was adhered to and the county seat looks rather delapidated in consequence.

Middlesex county has been brought more to the attention of the country in the last two weeks than for many months before. A defaulting bank cashier with two banks involved and the capture of an alleged murderer have kept Middlesex before the public. In both cases, however, Middlesex wasn't to blame for the prominence, it came unasked.

There has been a deal of worry for the depositors of the Perth Amboy Savings Institution in the last few weeks. They are now enabled to draw a sigh or relief for President Pierce says that they will suffer no loss and that every account in that institution will be made good.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

And now the ladies are flocking to see William Darling, the alleged murderer. It is the old story, woman's curiosity or infatuation. When the multi-murderer, Holmes, was confined in a prison cell women called to see him, to offer sympathy and to shed tears. They showered him with flowers and gifts. Murderers have received the same attention in New York and other places. Now Middlesex women are taking up the fad, and if the jail authorities were willing, would probably be entertaining him with afternoon teas.—New Brunswick Home News.

* * * * *

The Prosecutor of Middlesex county can set himself right in the eyes of the people only by pressing against Valentine, the bank plunderer, the other charges which lie against him. In this way due punishment can be meted out to the thief, and Jersey justice can be vindicated, notwithstanding Judge Strong's absurd leniency in sentencing the culprit. Valentine will have served out his sentence and will be at liberty long before Perth Amboy recovers from the disaster he has brought upon it, unless his term of imprisonment is extended. It is perfectly fair that the public should demand this and that they should look to Prosecutor Voorhees to have him indicted, convicted and sentenced on each of the separate crimes which he has committed. If Judge Woodbridge Strong's idea of justice is any impediment to this course, the prosecutor can ask for a change of venue, or for the trial of the cases before another judge.—New York Tribune.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

In regard to the recent visitation from a wind storm it is an interesting fact to remember that the property owners and not the city are responsible for the cleaning up and removing of trees that fall before the force of the wind. When the city decides that a tree must fall to allow some plan of the city officials to go forward, the owner is entitled to just compensation. The tree therefore belongs to the property owner. If it falls down or is blown down, then the property owner must see to its removal.

The Newark News tells as follows of a novel predicament in which one Jersey editor finds himself:

Although one of the most ardent advocates of free silver in New Jersey, the Hunterdon County Democrat, the oldest newspaper in the county, has been captured by "Yellow Jackets." A large colony of the insects has taken up its abode in the walls and ceilings of The Democrat office, and the number has increased so alarmingly that Editor Killgore fears he will have to move out.

An alleyway between the printing office and the adjoining building has been completely captured by the yellow jackets and the last man to make the hazardous trip through it was laid up for several days with a badly swollen arm and face. All work at the printing office had to be abandoned one afternoon last week, as the yellow jackets took possession of type and presses. They enter the building from a number of different places and there seems to be no way to exterminate them.

The intuition of the average Italian hand-organ grinder is often amusing. One of the piano organs struck town a few days ago. The instrument was loaded with all kinds of tunes, from those of ancient composers to the popular songs of the day. But the way the Italian could discriminate as to nationality was a caution. A Press reporter watched the fellow awhile. Stopping in front of a business place of a descendant of the Emerald Isle, the organ played "The Wearing of the Green." In front of the store of a Frenchman near by the wily Italian struck up the Marseilles Hymn, greatly to the delight of the son of sunny France. Getting his eye on a large beer saloon further up the street, the swarthy Italian trundled his big organ, which he planted directly in front of the German's place and immediately began to turn the handle of his discordant music box on "Die Wacht am Rhein. Instantly the jolly features of the teutonic dispenser of the "amber fluid with the white collar" was wreathed in smiles as familiar sounds of the German national air burst upon his ear. With an eye to business the son of sunny Italy then moved further up the street and selecting a certain well-known store, immediately began to pour forth from his machine that old tune, so familiar to the Scotchman—"The Campbells are Coming, Hurrah, Hurrah." About this time the reporter could stand it no longer and he suggested to the fellow that he play an American tune. The good natured Italian smiled approval and twisting a small catch at the side of the piano instantly began to send forth "Yankee Doodle" to the delight of all within sound of the instrument. Thus the foreigner was able to please the representatives of all nationalities and at the same time coax plenty of pennies from the pockets of the guilless but patriotic citizens.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

J. W. Yates, of East Seventh street, is detained at home by illness.

John VanMiddlesworth, of Somerville, is visiting relatives in Plainfield.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Aug. 4—The citizens were kept busy yesterday looking after and repairing broken chimneys and fences and clearing up generally after the great storm of Wednesday.

The citizens of the borough are not deriving the benefits from the transfer system on the Plainfield Street Railway that they supposed. As the cars of the Brunswick Traction Company do not run as frequently as those of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, passengers are often compelled to walk up town or wait for a car about fifteen minutes. The citizens would have been better accommodated had the Plainfield Street Railway Company run cars up to the railroad station. However, the citizens have got what they sought and they will now have to be satisfied with the present arrangement.

The timbers on Mrs. Louise Terry's new house, which were thrown down by the high wind Wednesday afternoon, have again been raised. The damage to the frame work was not as great as at first suspected.

The telephone service was completely crippled in the borough Wednesday owing to the heavy storm, and it was not until last night that the service was in working order.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 4.—Miss Anna Anderson, of Montandon, Pa., is visiting friends in town.

The union Sunday-school excursion, held yesterday to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, took out the largest excursion that has ever left town, and the village during the day assumed a Sunday-like appearance. No accident was reported to mar the pleasure of the day and all returned thoroughly tired out, but just as happy as when they left in the early morning.

A dramatic entertainment will be held in the Fanwood club house tomorrow night. Two short farces, entitled "Lend Me Five Shillings" and "Betsey Baker," will be presented. Proceeds are for the benefit of All Saints church.

Miss Emma Adams, a former teacher in the Methodist Sunday-school, journeyed all the way from her home in Middletown, N. Y., to be able to attend the excursion yesterday with her old class.

The gypsy camp does not seem to be as great an attraction for people as it was last week. May be the camp's advertising agent is to blame for the loss of patronage.

On account of the excursion yesterday the usual Thursday evening meeting of the Literary Club of the Methodist church was dispensed with.

Mrs. A. D. Beekon and family, of Fanwood, left yesterday on their summer vacation which will be spent along the Long Island coast.

Mrs. William Gere is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brockwaay, in Brooklyn.

Miss Mamie Merceir, of Plainfield, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Merceir, Thursday.

The township committee meets in the town room this evening. Routine business will be transacted.

Adelia West, of Newark, visited friends in town Thursday.

Goodwill Lodge met in their rooms last evening.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—Special lot fine china, VanEmburgh's 10c. department See ad.

—Everybody likes fresh vegetables. You can find them at Neuman Bros.

—August 14th Mizpah Lodge, U. O. of I. O. L., will give an entertainment in the Sons of Temperance rooms.

—Trolley employes were busy all day yesterday putting the line in shape and replacing broken poles and wires.

—The employes of the local telephone company have about completed their work of repairing the damage from Wednesday's storm.

—N. K. Barnes, grocer, 245 West Front street, has made a grand smash in special prices for Friday and Saturday of this week. Save money by buying of him. See his advertisement in another column.

—Next week Thursday the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school will go to Asbury Park for a day's outing. The excursionists will remain at the shore until 7 o'clock, giving all a full day at that popular resort.

—Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the Baptist church, New Market, will occupy the pulpit of the Seventh-Day Baptist church August 5th and 12th. August 19th and 26th Rev. W. C. O Donnell, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will preach.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on L. W. Randolph, Druggist, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c. and $1. Every bottle guaranteed, or price refunded.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 4.—Wednesday of next week the case of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, represented by G. White Smith, against Vorice Spice for alleged cock fighting at Linden, will come up before Justice of the Peace Collins. This trial was held here June 19th when the jury disagreed.

Charles H. Denman has decided that Westfield must have a baseball team next season and is already making arrangements to organize a club, which will hold meetings during the coming winter and pay dues which will go towards paying the expenses of the team during the summer.

The sale of lots on the Harrison property which was advertised in the Daily Press to take place July 25th, and which was postponed on account of the heavy storm that day, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Friends of W. H. Grogan will be tendered a crab supper at the North Avenue Hotel Thursday evening of next week. About one hundred invitations have been sent out.

Mrs. J. J. Schmitt has purchased the bakery business which was recently sold to W. H. Finger by George Sheelen.

The business at the Westfield post office Thursday was the largest done there during the present year.

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Berlin. Die Begründung eines Vereins für Unfallverletzte ist dieser Tage beschlossen worden. Derselbe wird durch Vermittelung von Arbeitsgelegenheit sowie durch Gewährung von Rechtsschutz und Unterstützungen, soweit erforderlich, für Personen eintreten, welche in Folge von Unfällen ihre Erwerbsfähigkeit verloren haben.—Jetzt steht auch eine Lohnbewegung der Böttcher in Berlin und Umgegend bevor. Zu diesem Zwecke nehmen sie zur Zeit eine Statistik ihrer Lohn- und Arbeitsverhältnisse auf und wollen, wenn sie das Material zusammen haben, mit ihren Forderungen hervortreten.—Der Bildhauer Gustav Castan, ein Mitglied der bekannten Berliner Familie, ist gestorben.—Eine Aenderung der 50-Pfennigstücke ist im Werke. Die neue Form dieser Münze soll sehr fühlbare Ränder erhalten, so daß diese selbst unter starker Abnutzung entgegen den jetzigen nicht zu sehr leiden. Derselbe Durchmesser, wie bei den bisher geprägten 50-Pfennigstücken, ist beibehalten worden, ebenso das Gepräge.

Beeskow. Durch Blitzschlag wurde auf dem Gute Lindenberg der Schafstall eingeäschert. Ueber 500 Schafe, 10 Hühner und 2 werthvolle Hunde kamen in den Flammen um. Menschenleben sind nicht zu beklagen.

Spandau. Eine Entzündung von Knallquecksilber fand im königlichen Feuerwerkslaboratorium statt, wobei drei Arbeiter leichte Verletzungen davontrugen. Die Leute verrichteten in der betreffenden Werkstatt eine Arbeit, zu der sie gar nicht befugt waren; darin ist auch die Ursache des Unfalls zu suchen.

Provinz Hannover.

Hildesheim. Neulich Morgens waren zwei Arbeiter der Voß'schen Sparherd-Fabrik in dem Nachbarstädtchen Sarstedt damit beschäftigt, eine Eisenstange von der Straße in die Fabrik zu transportiren. Hierbei berührte die Stange die Hauptstromleitung der elektrischen Straßenbahn Hannover-Hildesheim und die Arbeiter erhielten einen so starken elektrischen Schlag, daß sie beide getödtet wurden.

Leer. Die Stadt beschloß den Bau eines Seehafens. Die Kosten belaufen sich auf 2,500,000 Mark.

Papenburg. Ein schweres Unwetter richtete erheblichen Schaden an. Bei Meppen ist ein großer Theil der Ernte verhagelt. Viel Vieh wurde auf der Weide erschlagen.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Frankfurt. In der Stadtverordnetenversammlung theilte Oberbürgermeister Adickes mit, daß die Stadt Frankfurt zum 150. Geburtstage Goethes als Erinnerungszeichen eine Goethe-Gedenkhalle errichten werde, die Säle für Volksvorträge und für die Volksbibliothek erhalten soll.

Holzappel. Großen Schaden hat hier eine Feuersbrunst verursacht; 30 Gebäude gingen in den Flammen auf.

Oberursel. Nächtlicherweile ist ein kleiner Theil der Motorenfabrik dahier durch Feuer zerstört worden. Da das Feuer auf einen Theil der Montagesäle beschränkt werden konnte, und besonders die Dreherei und Schlosserei unversehrt geblieben ist, so geht der Betrieb weiter.

Wiesbaden. An Bord des Dampfers „Kaiser Friedrich" brach neulich Abends gelegentlich einer Festfahrt des Mainzer Feuerwehrtages zwischen Wallauf und Biebrich eine Prügelei aus, wobei es auch Messerstiche absetzte; ein Schwerverwundeter wurde in Biebrich ausgesetzt.

Provinz Pommern.

Stettin. Hier ist eine Falschmünzerbande, die seit längerer Zeit preußische und bayerische 2-Markstücke und preußische 20-Markstücke anfertigte, durch die Kriminalpolizei abgefaßt worden. Der Hauptthäter ist der Schlosser Paul Ulrich in Grabow an der Oder; seine Ehefrau hat mit den Familienangehörigen und Bekannten das falsche Geld verbreitet.

Anklam. Um den Kaiserpreis für den besten Reiter der Kavallerie eines Armeekorps unternahmen vom zweiten Armeekorps 29 Offiziere der Pasewalker Kürassiere und der Demminer Ulanen einen Fernritt, der sich auf 120 Kilometer in den Kreis Greifswald erstreckte und unsere Stadt zum Start und Ziel hatte. Als bester Reiter legte Rittmeister Graf v. Posadowsky die Strecke in zehn Stunden zurück.

Provinz Posen.

Posen. Gewitter mit Wolkenbruch und Hagel haben die nördlichen und nordwestlichen Theile der Provinz schwer heimgesucht, die Ernte betroffen und viele Dörfer sehr geschädigt.

Bromberg. Bei Kanalisirungsarbeiten auf dem Friedrichsplatz stürzte in Folge des Durchsickerns von Triebsand eine abgesteifte Bretterwand zusammen. Zwei Arbeiter wurden getödtet.

Schneidemühl. Der Steingutmaler Hahn in Kolmar, ein Oesterreicher, wurde mit seiner Familie ausgewiesen, anscheinend wegen sozialistischer Umtriebe.

HOUSE HOLD TALKS

Rules to Observe When Buying Prunes.

When buying prunes, the California prunes will be found more satisfactory and far cleaner than the foreign fruit. Do not soak them over night, as that allows the prunes to break, while the syrup is not so clear. They should, however, be carefully washed, one by one, in tepid water, allowing them to stand in the water two or three minutes to "plump." Follow this by a second washing; then put in the saucepan, allowing a cup and a half of water to every cup of prunes. Simmer slowly on the back of the range or in the oven for two hours and a half, never allowing them to boil. If desired, sugar may be added, but the long, slow cooking brings out the natural sweetness of the fruit and is approved now by first-class cooks. Prunes treated in this way emerge lustrous, tender, sweet and with the real prune flavor, totally at variance with the justly derided prune of the average boarding house.

Decorating a Piano Back.

The back of an upright piano nowadays is always turned toward the room on account of the superior acoustic advantages of the position. The arrangement of its flat surface therefore becomes a serious subject for decorative consideration. It goes without saying that it must be draped, but this requires a skilful touch to do it gracefully, especially as a table placed against the board is apt to interfere with the tone.

A PRETTY PIANO BACK EFFECT.

A pretty arrangement is shown in the accompanying sketch. The drapery of embroidered Chinese silk is held at the two corners with fans, those on the left being of peacock feathers, and on the right of small Oriental braided and embroidered straws. A couple of portfolios, with the boards covered with brocade embossed with gold and silver, are arranged to hold music, and are affixed to the left side of the piano above the other with ribbons to hold the outside lid slightly open.

An Invalid's Dish.

Prepare a young pigeon and lay it in a stew-pan containing equal parts of milk and white stock seasoned and boiling slowly. No fat must be on it. Simmer the pigeon in this for half an hour, then take it out, thicken the sauce, boil it up and serve round the bird. A few peppercorns and a small onion are a great improvement to this dish.

Model Dish Towels.

A servant is much more likely to be fastidious in her dish washing and careful with dish towels if she is provided with proper ones in the beginning. The ideal cloth for washing dishes is made by taking a square of cheese cloth, doubling it twice (making it four thicknesses) and quilting it in large meshes on the sewing machine. This makes a towel soft, thick, agreeable to handle and easily kept white.

A Kitchen Aid.

A double chopping knife should find its way into every well-equipped kitchen. Upon the theory that time is money, how much of it is wasted in chopping apples for the mincemeat, suet for the pudding, or ham for sandwiches, with a single-bladed, old-fashioned chopper that will only do half the work of a double one in the same time!

Luncheon Made Easy.

An appetizing dish for luncheon or supper, that requires neither great outlay of time, strength or money, is salmon loaf. To one can of salmon allow four crackers rolled fine, two well-beaten eggs, one-half cupful sweet milk, butter the size of an egg, salt and pepper to taste. Mix thoroughly, put in greased cans and steam one hour.

The Pincushion Popular Again.

The pincushion, for awhile superanuated and retired from active service, is again out in force, and much larger than life. Many of the new cushions are almost the size of the top of the dressing table, and as ornate as fancy can devise and fingers execute.

When Making Curry.

Meats left from beef tea should be saved for use when making curry. The water draws out the flavoring and the stimulating principles of the beef, but the fibre, which contains the greater part of the nourishment, is left undissolved.

Standard Facts in Cooking.

All dry materials should be sifted before measuring.

A speck is what you can take on the tip of a penknife.

A cup holding just half a pint is the standard measuring cup.

Half a spoonful is measured by dividing through the middle lengthwise.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 6, "Drifting"—Text, Eph. iv, 14; Jas. i, 1-8.

"A double minded man is unstable in all his ways."

Anchor up, all sails set and no one at the helm is a risky way to navigate. Drifting never brings any one into port. In the religious life as well as in navigation considerable depends on the currents which surround one, the winds of opinion, the trimming the sails of action, the load one carries and many other items, but the most influential factor is the working of the rudder that directs the course. The will is to us what the rudder is to the vessel. It determines destiny. It decides between impulses and settles action and fixes character.

It needs training to stand at the wheel and steer a ship. No less does it require discipline for one to hold control of his will and direct his actions according to reason and the highest good.

Many opinions and often conflicting ones will be met with. Many questions are of no importance to us, and we need to put aside all curiosity about them and resolutely refuse to waste time on their consideration. Some things we must decide. Look over all the evidence available, balance the probabilities, choose the most reasonable. Hang to it till more light comes. Be confident after you have once decided. To be continually doubting or debating prevents all positive action. Go ahead with firm grip on the wheel after you have consulted chart, chronometer and compass and taken your bearings.

Fewer mistakes are made by confident, strong action than by wavering indecision.

Indecision is as fatal as wrongdoing.

It requires nerve to face things and decide, but it pays.

The sense of strength and the glow of satisfaction which come after one has studied his duty and, after perplexity and trial, determined to stop drifting and sail right pay for all effort.

Bishop Merrill.

Bishop Stephen M. Merrill is the senior effective bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church. He was elected to the office in 1872 with seven others. Bishop Thomas Bowman was the first one elected and so would rank as the senior living member of the Episcopal board. Bishop R. S. Foster was also elected on a ballot previous to Bishop Merrill, but both of these bishops are noneffective on account of age and infirmities.

Bishop Merrill was born in Ohio in 1825 and entered the ministry in 1846. He is not a graduate of college, but ranks among the most scholarly of men in special lines. He is the best living authority on Methodist law and usage, and has written a number of books which have become standards in doctrinal matters. He was pastor, presiding elder and editor. From the latter position he was elected to the episcopacy.

A well known English minister a short time since preached a Sunday evening sermon on "Hypocrisy." Soon after he received a letter from one of his members, who was manager of a large concern, saying: After hearing that sermon he had gone home and, thinking the matter over, had said to himself, "I am living the life of a hypocrite." He could not afford to do it. He sat down and wrote his employers, resigning his position because their business was being conducted in a manner that was injuring his spiritual life. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were dark days. He had no prospects, and to throw up his position seemed folly, yet his soul said continually, "Better starve than be false to God!" Thursday came the answer. His employers had carefully considered the matter. They recognized his value and requested him to keep his position and conduct their business in a manner consistent with his spiritual convictions. It pays to be true to God. "Godliness is profitable to all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come." No man can afford to do business for himself or for others in a manner his conscience cannot approve. The best business policy is godliness and Christian integrity.

Fiji is Christian as few communities in the world are. Many other of the south Pacific groups of islands follow closely after. Yet these islands were but a generation since pagan and cannibal of the lowest type. The conversion of the South Sea islands is one of the most thrilling stories yielded by this eventful age.

It was Hallam who said: "I see that the Bible fits into every fold and crevice of the human heart. I am a man, and I believe that this is God's book, because it is man's book."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 6—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Drifting.—Eph. iv, 14; Jas. i, 1-8.

We are living in an age characterized by the unsettlement of faiths. The tendency of the age is to cast reflection and doubt upon the beliefs of the past, in science, literature, history and religion. Many past scientific beliefs are doubted or discarded. Literature and history fare little better. Doubt has been cast upon Homer's authorship of the "Iliad" and "Odyssey," William Tell's existence, Shakespeare's title to the plays which have been attributed to his name. This spirit is specially prolific in the sphere of religion. What is not doubted by some one? The result is that many are unsettled and unstable. Many do not know what to believe. They are drifting. They are "children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive."

The tendency to drift with the current in such times is strong. On the other hand, the importance of steadfastness and stability in religious faith is unquestioned and unquestionable. He that wavereth, that doubteth, hath no power with God. "He that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. Let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord." Strong, real, unquestioned faith in God is the first essential to a satisfactory, progressive religious life.

To safeguard ourselves against drifting is therefore a very important matter. Some directions for doing so are suggested in the topical references.

1. Knowledge is a safeguard against drifting. Ignorance is the cause of much lack of stability. Knowledge is therefore the cure. The ignorant, like children, are easily influenced and easily deceived by the cunning craftiness of men. Christ has therefore appointed teachers of His word—apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors—for the very purpose of the edifying of the saints that they may not be imposed upon and deceived by false teachers. The regular attendant upon the ministry of the word is better safeguarded against the assaults of the tempter than one who neglects God's house. God also promises us wisdom in answer to prayer. "If any man lacketh wisdom, let him ask of God * * * and it shall be given him." Pray for wisdom to remain steadfast in faith.

2. Christlikeness is a safeguard against drifting. The reception and practice of Christian truth leads us "unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," and thus we are safeguarded. The nearer we are to Christ in thought, word and deed, the harder it will be to lead us away from our faith in God, in Him and in a blessed future life with them.

Bible Readings.—Deut. x, 20; Job xi, 14, 15; Math. vii, 24-29; I Cor. xv, 58; Col. ii, 5; I Thess. v, 21; Heb. ii, 1-4; iv, 14; x, 23; xiii, 9; I Pet. i, 6-9; v, 8, 9; II Pet. iii, 17, 18; Rev. ii, 10.

The Company of Christ.

It was said of Melik Shah, one of the noblest of the Seljuk emperors, that "to belong to his household, to hold his commands, was not merely an honor and a privilege. It was also an apprenticeship in principles. In serving the sultan one grew like him, and a standard of conduct was thus set up, modeled upon the life of the royal master, the pattern and exemplar of the age. A chief or governor was esteemed by public opinion in accordance with the degree in which he conformed to the sultan's example."

These words could scarcely be improved upon as a statement of the privileges and duties of Christian discipleship. How truly to belong to Christ is "not merely an honor and a privilege," but "also an apprenticeship in principles!" If in serving the famous sultan one grew like him, much more is this true of the follower of Jesus Christ.—Evangelist.

Good Advice.

It will not pay to be always asking, Will it pay?

Infidelity plucks the flowers and scoffs at the gardener.

It is only the coward that finds it necessary to be cruel.

It is not opposition without, but apathy within that hinders.

Competition may be the life of business, but it is the death of the church.

The safety vaults of your heavenly treasures may be the hands of the needy.

To turn a new leaf is not enough, there must be a new life to make the record.

Many a man will slam the door in the devil's face and open a window to let him in.—American Hebrew.

A Dear School.

Experience keeps a dear school. But fools will learn in no other, and scarce in that, for it is true we may give advice, but we cannot give conduct. However, they that will not be counseled cannot be helped, and if you will not hear reason she will surely rap your knuckles.—Franklin.

Escaping Debts.

The Christian who prays that his debts may be forgiven of God should not act on the assumption that in lieu of that forgiveness he may escape his just debts to man.—Christian Intelligencer.

Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled.

Let not your heart be troubled.
Have faith. Believe in Me.
I go to prepare a mansion
In Father's house for thee.

Let not your heart be troubled,
Although I go away;
I will come again and receive you
Unto Myself some day.

Let not your heart be troubled.
How sweet those words to me—
That where He is, there also
I shall forever be.

FARMERS' COLLEGES

SCIENTIFIC METHODS TAUGHT THE AMBITIOUS AGRICULTURISTS.

Uncle Sam Is Backing Science and Nearly Every State in the Union Has Some Schools Devoted More or Less to the Farmers' Interest.

It used to be the rule that when a man wasn't fit for anything else he was considered good enough to be a farmer, that if he hadn't brains enough to master military tactics or the intricacies of the law or of medicine or of theology, and was utterly lacking in creative ability, then his proper sphere of usefulness was the farm. And in those days even the "gentleman" farmer was a man of inferior standing, and he was made to feel his insignificance whenever he came in contact with the superior persons who ruled the State and made or expounded its laws. Society spoke of him as a "gawk," and his sons and daughters were "country bumpkins." But all this has changed, and is destined to still further change. Science, which has done so much for the world at large, has taken the farmer in hand and is investing the man and his work with the dignity and standing that are his of right. The masses are being made to realize what they have known dimly all along but never fully appreciated—that it is the farmer who feeds them, and that he is more necessary to them than they are to him; that without him works great and small would come to a stop and the people of all the earth be reduced to a state of savagery and cannibalism.

Science is bringing not only the public to the realization of the importance of the farmer, but the farmer himself to an appreciation of the importance of his work and of the necessity of fitting himself for it by studying nature and inducing her by scientific means rather than by haphazard to yield her store. Formerly he farmer would tell you "when" without knowing "why." Experiment showed him that rotation in crops made his land produce better and last longer, but he couldn't tell nature's reason for it, nor explain the thousand other seeming mysteries of the soil. Science has done and is doing that for him. It is experimenting for him day in and day out the year around, and teaching him the why and the wherefore. Uncle Sam is backing science in this matter, and the farmer is getting the benefit without cost. The farmer learns from the bulletins that are sent out by the Department of Agriculture and all over the land the farmer's sons and daughters are taking courses in agriculture and horticulture, farm gardening and dairying, and stock breeding and stock raising, in colleges supported jointly by the State and Federal governments.

Their instruction is practical, too; for the colleges have farms under cultivation and herds and droves of cattle and swine and dairies and truck farms and orchards. The instructors are men who are entitled to write "Bachelors of Science" after their names. They know all about the soils and the seasons, and what crops are adaptable and what are not, and their science goes so far as to include conditions in foreign countries and to be able to judge from them whether corn, or wheat, or barley, or whatever product of the farm will be most in demand for export and so command the readiest market and the best price. They have reduced farming to a science, and are teaching it as a science. The course in agriculture includes history and government, French and German, English and the higher mathematics and music, so that our farmers of the next generation will not only know how to get the best and the most out of the ground, but will be able to hold their own for general information and polite accomplishments with the elect of any land.

Colleges of agriculture are maintained in universities, with the aid of national funds in Arizona, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Louisiana, Maine, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New York Ohio, Tennessee, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming. In Massachusetts Harvard University has a school of agriculture known as Bussey Institution. Beside these, agricultural and mechanical colleges have been organized in Alabama, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Washington. Separate institutions of this sort are maintained for colored students in Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, and Virginia. Massachusetts has the only college whose curriculum is wholly devoted to agriculture.

Patrice—You know Will is training in a rowing crew.

Patience—Is that so?

"Yes, but I don't think much of the trainer they've got."

"What's wrong with him?"

"I heard him tell Will he didn't know how to use his arms."—Yonkers Statesman.

"I want a good soap for washing the clothes; they wear out too fast, and I believe the damage is done in the laundry."

"Let me send you a box of Ivory Soap. We know it is pure, and will not injure anything. Many of our customers will not have any other for their laundry work."

The box was sent, and one more family uses no other. Try it for one week in your laundry, and ask your laundress what she thinks of it.

GOLF.

Several private matches at golf will be played on the Hillside course tomorrow afternoon. During the vacation season these private matches have become very popular and interesting, and afford an opportunity for amateurs to become experts in the game.

An English golfer, in accumulating statistics for the purpose of determining the cost of playing golf in Great Britian, has reached some some surprising figures. He estimates that there are a thousand clubs in the United Kingdom, with an average membership of a hundred players. This makes a total of one hundred thousand players who are estimated to spend annually about $135 each in pursuit of the game, for traveling expenses, luncheons, clubs, balls, caddies, etc. This makes the surprising total of $12,500,000 spent in the enjoyment of the royal and ancient game. In this country, where golf has been taken up so enthusiastically and indulged in on such a lavish scale, the figures would hardly be believed if estimated. Adding to the individual cost of the game to each player the money spent in building and maintaining clubhouses and courses, the total would reach figures that would perhaps more than double those given above. It must not be forgotten, however, that golf has supplied not only a new form of amusement, but a means of exercise for old and young that was much needed.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Alex Ayers, clerk at Crane's hat store, claims to have riden his wheel from Plainfield to Boynton Beach in forty minutes. Pretty fast time, Alex.

The first century run from Elizabeth will take place Aug. 13; the start will be in two divisions, the first to start at 6 a. m. and the second at 8. The run will be from Elizabethport to Newark, to Springfield, Bound Brook, and return to Elizabeth for dinner, after which it goes to Perth Amboy and New Brunswick, returning to Elizabethport via Plainfield. Entries may be received at Harry Burke's and James Campbell's, 437 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth. From the number of entries already in the run promises to be a very enjoyable and successful one.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Some of the best horses in this vicinity will appear on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association tomorrow afternoon, and there will be good racing.

Death of Mrs. Ann Conneely.

Mrs. Ann Conneely, widow of the late John Conneely, died this morning at the home of her son-in-law, Peter McDonough, of South avenue. Mrs. Conneely was nearly eighty years of age.

MANY WERE PRESENT TO HONOR DEPARTED.

Impressive Funeral Ceremonies of Lemuel Wright Serrell.

SERVICES HELD YESTERDAY.

THEY WERE CONDUCTED BY REV. DRS. YERKES AND LOWRY.

Funeral Was Held From First Baptist Church at 3 o'Clock—Beautiful Flowers and Music—The Clergymen Told of the Christian Character of Mr. Serrell and of His Many Good Acts.

The First Baptist church was filled yesterday afternoon with relatives, friends and associates of Lemuel Wright Serrell, who gathered to pay a last tribute to one who had filled an important and successful position in life, but who now has passed to his heavenly home. About the pulpit platform there was a simple but beautiful decoration of flowers, greens, etc., all blending in perfect harmony with the unpretentious life of the departed.

The service was held at 3 o'clock, and as six colored bearers carried the remains into the edifice and up the aisle a funeral march was rendered on the organ by Howard Case, organist of the church. Preceding the funeral cortege there were Rev. Drs. D. J. Yerkes and Robert Lowry, while following were the honorary bearers, Edwin L. Bonny, J. B. Probasco, Geo. H. Batchelor, George F. Brown, L. W. Randolph and H. E. Needham, all of whom are deacons of the church except Mr. Needham, and he took the place left vacant by Mr. Serrell. Then came the relatives and friends, who occupied seats reserved for them.

A quartette, consisting of Mrs. H. E. Rider, soprano; Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto; Morris C. VanArsdale, tenor, and B. T. Barnes, basso, rendered effectively "The Homeland," after which appropriate selections from the Scriptures were read by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes. This was followed by a beautiful solo, "God Shall Wipe Away All Tears," by Mrs. Ward. Dr. Yerkes then introduced Dr. Lowry, as one who had known Mr. Serrell when he was a member of his church in Brooklyn many years ago.

Dr. Lowry's remarks were very impressive and to the point. He stated that it was forty years ago when he and Mr. Serrell met and there was never a time when he did not always have the highest regard for him. He said it was strange, but true, that nowadays one seldom finds a man in the church who has common sense, modesty and aggressiveness, and yet Mr. Serrell possessed these traits. In his opinion a man who came short of being a "Trinity" in this respect, was not a full man. The speaker told the audience that Mr. Serrell was well known as a citizen and as a church man. He had a missionary spirit that was far-reaching. He belonged to a church in Brooklyn that was the issue of a missionary spirit. It was originally a warehouse on Flatbush avenue, and Mr. Serrell started a mission there. It is now the Sixth Avenue Baptist church, of Brooklyn, and to Mr. Serrell more than anyone else, is due the credit of erecting that church. It stands as a glorious monument to his memory. Dr. Lowry also spoke of Mr. Serrell's efforts at the East Third Street mission. He spoke of his beautiful character, and remarked that he could say something of the departed that he had never been able to say of anyone else at a funeral and that was he could not remember that he had a single fault.

The last word uttered, so far as known, by Mr. Serrell, was "Mother," and the speaker felt sure that he felt a consciousness of her and that he must have seen her as in a vision.

Dr. Yerkes followed Dr. Lowry and spoke of the deep loss occasioned by the death of Mr. Serrell. He felt a personal bereavement. He then likened him to Paul the Apostle, who had fought a good fight, finished the course and kept the faith. Dr. Yerkes remarked that Mr. Serrell was a thorough Christian man, he was always serving the Lord, he could always think of him as a servant of the Lord. He was not a selfish man, but always doing for others, having a profound sense of duty and fidelity, and he did not believe that he ever did anything contrary to his convictions. His life was a complete and rounded one, and his Christ-like spirit made him an exceptional officer in the church. He was a Christian man everywhere, at home and in business, and he leaves an example for all. In conclusion Dr. Yerkes spoke a few words of comfort to the bereaved children and relatives, and told them that

STRUCK BY FLYING HOOFS

MRS. CHARLES KRAMER, OF FANWOOD, SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Was Kicked in Abdomen and Leg by a Horse—Animal Wandering Along Highway—Internal Injuries Feared.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, August 5.—Mrs. Charles Kramer, of this place was seriously injured yesterday by being kicked by a horse. Two horses were grazing along the highway, and as Mrs. Kramer passed one of the animals kicked her in the abdomen and in the leg. The injured woman screamed for help and her husband ran to her assistance and carried her into the house. Dr. Westcott was summoned to attend her. It is feared that Mrs. Kramer is injured internally. The horse was on the highway in violation of the State law. Mr. Kramer is considering the question of bringing a civil action against the owner of the horse.

WEALTHY HORSE THIEF

HAD BIG ROLL OF BILLS WITH WHICH TO PAY FINE.

Alleged That He Tried to Sell a Rig That He Had Hired From Liveryman Newton O. Dunster, of Somerville

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, August 5—A tall, well-dressed young man, with pleasing manners, representing himself as Alfred Mooney, of Jersey City, and a traveling salesman for A. D. Chase & Co., of Rochester, N. Y., registered at the TenEyck Hotel here yesterday morning. He obtained from the clerk the names of several rural towns and then called at the livery stable of N. O. Dunster and hired a horse and buggy under the pretence of making a business trip. Several hours later he went to Martinsville, where he offered Dunster's $200 rig to "Stonewall" Jackson, a horse dealer, for $50. Jackson had his suspicions aroused and drove with the stranger to Bound Brook, where a liveryman recognized the horse as the property of Dunster.

Mooney was brought to the county jail here last night. It is the belief of the authorities that the man is not an experienced horse thief, but that he is slightly demented. His bail was fixed at $500, which he offered to pay from a big roll of bank bills which he drew from his pocket.

WEDDED IN NEW HOME.

Miss Agnes Head and George Vetter Were Wedded Wednesday Afternoon.

On Wednesday afternoon last at 4 o'clock took place the marriage of Miss Agnes Ferguson Head, of East Fourth street, to George A Vetter, formerly of Newark, but now of this city. The bridemaid was Miss Mary E. Watson, of Brooklyn, and the best man was Neil Head, brother of the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel. The wedding was an extremely quiet one and was attended by only the very near relatives of the contracting parties. Mr. and Mrs. Head will reside on East Third street, in the house where the ceremony took place.

No Place Exempt From Tornados.

Experts of the Government Signal Service declare that no portion of the United States is exempt from the ravages of the tornado. The recent distructive storm in Elizabeth calls special attention of every property owner to the wisdom of carrying a policy of insurance against loss or damage to buildings or contents from wind storms. The Home Insurance Company, of New York, write such policies at nominal rates. J. C. Pope & Co., at 110 East Front street, represent the company and will be pleased to quote rates.

Victors at Quoits.

Notwithstanding the hot weather the members of Columbia lodge, A. O. U. W., last evening enjoyed themselves in pitching quoits. Messrs. Lounsbury and Mosher were pitted against Messrs. Waldron and Pearson. The first two won two games out of three. Refreshments, consisting of cake and ice cream, were served and a pleasant time enjoyed.

Walked on a Wheel.

Hackman Kennedy's horse became somewhat fractious yesterday afternoon in front of the Hotel Kensington and walked upon the sidewalk stepping on a wheel owned by Wm. Hedden. The result was a number of spokes were broken.

HOW FARMER ORATOR PLAYED AT GOLF

Made His Debut in the Game at Forest Hill.

THAT HAPPENED LAST FALL.

JAMES E. MARTINE, OF THIS CITY, ASTONISHED THEM ALL.

Was Looking for a Friend and Found Him on the Golf Links—Golfers Insisted that Mr. Martine Play—Although His Form Was Not Equal to Mr. Douglass, He Surprised All.

The appearance of James E. Martine, the well-known Democratic politician and "Farmer Orator," of Union county, at the North Avenue station the other day with a caddy bag of golf clubs in his hand was made the occasion for much laughter on the part of many of his friends. The "Farmer Orator," they declared, was going to try to win votes for the Democracy this fall from among the golfers, and had therefore taken up the sport.

In their belief that Mr. Martine was new to the game of golf, they were greatly in error. He made his debut on a golf course last fall. On this occasion, however, the Democratic leader was not preparing to play, but with his characteristic courtesy was carrying the golf clubs for a friend who was about to take the train.

Concerning Mr. Martine's first participation in the ancient and honorable game, however, it was a most auspicious one and brought forth the opinion of one of the crack golfers of Newark that the "Farmer Orator" might become champion of Union county if he would devote a little time to the game.

Mr. Martine was called to visit a friend at Forest Hill, a suburb of Newark. On arriving at the residence of the friend he was told that the latter could be found on the neighboring golf links. Thither he went to find his friend deep in the mysteries of the game in company with a bevy of young women.

After the usual introductions one of the young women remarked:

"Of course, Mr. Martine, you know how to make a golf tee."

The Plainfielder was compelled to say that he didn't. His only idea of a golf tea, he explained, was a gathering of fair young women and a cup of tea. They laughed, and all declared that he must learn to play. Now Mr. Martine has faced many an unruly mob in the course of his career as a public speaker and he has stood unflinching at his post. But it was an entirely different thing to face this laughing, smiling assemblage of beauty and try to show his skill in a game he did not know. Mr. Martine is a brave man, however. When he found that his protestations were in vain, he declared his willingness to exhibit his prowess.

Two caddies were sent out some fifty yards in front of the teeing ground.

"That isn't far enough, I can send it farther than that," declared the Union county politician. The caddies were ordered out to the flag, a hundred yards away.

"That isn't far enough," persisted Mr. Martine, but his friends laughed and told him to go ahead.

Shutting his eyes the "Farmer Orator" made a terrific swing at the little white sphere, teed in front of him on a tiny mound of sand. He didn't stop to "address" the ball or "sole" his club, or do any of the other little stunts that the expert golfer considers positively necessary. He just struck at the ball. Wonderful to relate, he caught the ball squarely on the face of the club. With a whistle of surprise the ball shot forth into space while a prolonged "oh-h-h" burst forth from the party. On it went, straight for the hole and far above the caddies' heads. At last it came to the ground, nearly 200 yards away, within easy distance of the putting green.

"Who said you could'nt play golf?" exclaimed Mr. Martine's friend, who was the first to recover his speech. But the "Farmer Orator" refused to play out the hole, and journeyed homeward with his friend soon after.

Will Be At Home Tonight.

Louis M. Dunavan, one of the popular members of the fire department, is the possessor of a number of pigeons which he prizes highly. Last night some miscreant, with malice aforethought, helped himself to Lou's pets, at least the thief carried away fifteen of them. Mr. Dunavan lives at 242 East Second street. He says that he will be at home tonight to give a warm reception to meddlesome neighbors and prowlers.

TROLLEY WINS AT LAST.

CONSENTS IN ARLINGTON AVENUE FINALLY SECURED.

Street Railway Company Claims to Have Secured Consents From a Majority of the Property Owners There.

At next Monday's meeting of the Common Council the Plainfield Street Railway will make application for permission to lay track through Arlington avenue. The company claims to have secured the consents of a majority of property owners necessary to secure the right of way. If the company is granted the privilege it seeks it is proposed to lay rails from West Fourth street up through Arlington avenue to Randolph road.

Progress in the building of the Arlington avenue extension has been delayed for some time, owing to the fact that the necessary consents could not be secured, and there was some talk of running the extension to the southern part of the city on the eastern side of Park avenue. The company has been using its best efforts to get through, however, and now claims to have succeeded.

PRICE OF LUMBER RISES.

EFFECTS OF LUMBER TRUST IS BEGINNING TO BE FELT HERE.

Will Have Its Effects on Local Buildings—Even Poorest Grades of Lumber Jump $7 Per One Thousand Feet.

There are bright prospects in store for the man who contemplates building in the near future. Along with the other troubles that are caused by the trusts comes the word that lumber has advanced to such an extent that it will make house building a luxury. Of course, people who have made contracts for lumber will not be affected immediately, but to some extent building operations will be crippled by it.

There has been a great advance all along the line. The very poorest grade of lumber has jumped $7 per thousand feet, while some of the better grades have jumped still higher. The lumber combination is protected by the tariff, which cuts off all benefit of competition from Canada, which would regulate the price of lumber in this country and prevent combinations to extort money from consumers.

A Daily Press reporter interviewed one of the local dealers yesterday and learned that the advance in price would be felt in this city, but he maintains that it will still stimulate the building business to a large extent and make a boom in building.

The cause for the rise is the trust formed among the big lumber dealers, and they have succeeded in getting a corner on lumber. The outcome will be watched with a great deal of interest by all persons likely to be affected.

OFF FOR BARNEGAT BAY.

Frank Hedden, One of Plainfield's Best Fishermen, Goes There Monday.

There isn't a more enthusiastic fisherman in all Plainfield than Frank Hedden, of Central avenue. He is a frequent visitor at Green brook and the South Plainfield pond and stories of his remarkable catches at both places are many. Monday he leaves for a week to be spent at Barnegat Bay with a party of friends. They have hired a yacht and intend to have a good time if such a thing is possible. Most of the time will be spent in fishing and Frank's friends are trying to persuade him to make arrangements with the railroad company to run a special freight train from Tom's River to Plainfield and so bring home some of his catch.

Funeral of Mrs. Conneely Tomorrow.

The death of Mrs. Bridget Conneely, widow of the late Patrick Conneely, occurred yesterday at the home of her son-in-law, Peter McDonough, 1329 South avenue. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the late residence, and at 2:30 o'clock from St. Mary's church. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Thomas Jefferson in Court

Thomas Jefferson was entertained in the city court this morning. Charles J. McNabb was present to tell what a good man he was. The cause of his visitation was a little charge of drunk and disorderly. He admitted to City Judge Runyon that it was true and the Judge kindly suspended sentence.

More Gypsies Here

There are a number of new arrivals at the gypsy camp on South avenue. Nailor Harrison and family, E. Cooper and family and Hugo Dudestock and family are now encamped there, making about a hundred gypsies in all. The new comers brought more horses with them.

The Misses Mae and Stella Codington, of Manning avenue, are spending a week with friends in Bound Brook.

RIKER TROLLEY LINES FURTHER EXTENDED

Freeholders Give Permission for Rahway-Westfield Line.

MEETING HELD THURSDAY.

FREEHOLDERS ROBISON AND SWAIN VOTED AGAINST IT.

Agreement Reached With the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company for a Trolley Road Between Westfield and Rahway—Company Grants a Number of Concessions for the Franchise.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 5—The Riker trolley syndicate is steadily advancing its lines through the length and breadth of Union county. Now the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, which is owned and controlled by the Riker syndicate, has secured permission from the Union County Board of Freeholders to build a branch line from Westfield to Rahway. The necessary permission was secured at a meeting of the Freeholders held Thursday afternoon.

After transacting the usual amount of business not of interest to Plainfield and consisting of routine matters, a resolution was introduced recommending that the agreement presented to this Board by the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company be accepted. This resolution was adopted, Freeholders Robison and Swain voting in the negative.

This agreement recites that the Westfield and Elizabeth Railway Company having applied to construct, maintain and operate a double track street railway on Westfield avenue, between Broad street and South avenue in the township of Westfield; on Westfield avenue in the city of Rahway, from the easterly side of St. George avenue to a point 1,753.6 feet from the beginning; and on Central avenue, in Westfield, from Grove street to Westfield avenue, permission was granted to them. This permission was granted on condition that the rails be of standard size and laid at a certain distance from the centre of the street, except at curves and under bridges; that the company pay its proportionate share of the expense of paving the streets, and that it repair the same properly; that all work be done under county inspection and supervision, and that the company construct a sewer to drain the street where its tracks pass under the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Also that this company should forfeit its right to object to or oppose the construction of any parallel line of railway within two block, and that it permit other roads to cross its tracks.

The agreement was signed by Chandler A. Riker as president of the company.

The agreement concerning permission given to the railway company to use the county bridge over the Rahway river in Cranford township caused a good deal of discussion. Freeholder Roll wanted the agreement changed, and finally Freeholder King's resolution was adopted. This resolution empowered the director to sign the agreement when it was so changed that the necessity of the construction of a new bridge could be determined by the joint authority of the Board and the railway company, and that the agreement be made to read "the railway company, its assigns or successors." The agreement must also be approved by the county attorney.

Freeholder Robison offered a resolution, which was adopted, directing the county collector to report to the Board the expense the county had incurred to date in the plan to widen Westfield avenue, or what is known as the county boulevard. The collector was also directed to report what amount, if any, has been paid to the county by the Elizabeth Street Railway Company on account of the boulevard.

Have Good Positions Now.

Two more recent graduates of Plainfield Business College have obtained good positions—Miss Mayme A. Myers, in the Graphite Works at Bound Brook, and Miss Elizabeth H. Voorhees, with Lawyer Hugh K. Gaston, of Somerville.

Mayor Loved Not Music.

Last evening, prior to the meeting of the borough Council, a hand-organ appeared in front of the Council building and discoursed sweet and popular airs. It was about time for Mayor Smalley to call the meeting, but before he could do so he was obliged to send Chief Marshal Campbell on the street and request the dispenser of music to move along.

Henry Haurand and party of friends have returned from a sojourn at the fishing banks where they had a pleasant time.

FREE DELIVERY GRANTED

CITIZENS OF CRANFORD ARE JUBILANT OVER THE NEWS.

Postmaster Derby Has Received Official Notification to That Effect From First Assistant Postmaster General.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Aug. 5.—Postmaster John L. Derby has received notification from First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath that the Cranford office is entitled to free delivery and that the system will be established here on October 1st. There will be two carriers and sixteen drop boxes. The Civil Service Commission, so a communication to Mr. Derby states, will take necessary steps to organize a board in Cranford so that applicants can be examined.

FRANK GREEN IS MISSING

Peculiar Coincidence in Disappearance of Plainfield Woman at Same Time—Mrs. Green Declines to Talk.

Frank Green, of Somerset street, and until recently an engineer at the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company on North avenue, left his home last Wednesday morning on his bicycle and nothing has been heard of him since. He, together with his brother, Harry Green, on Jackson avenue, worked alternately as engineer at the station, one working nights and the other day time. Frank Green said nothing to his brother previous to his departure, and he does not know where his absent brother is.

A Daily Press reporter called at the home of the missing man this morning to interview Mrs. Green, but the latter refused to discuss her husband's disappearance. She said that the trouble was her own and she declined to have anything to say regarding them. When asked if she knew where her husband is, she again declined to talk about the matter.

A peculiar coincidence in connection with Mr. Green's disappearance is that at the same time he left town a prominent Plainfield woman also left the city. It is not known that there is any connecting link between the two disappearances, but circumstances are peculiar.

Mr. Green went away on his wheel and he was dressed in his bicycle suit. He did not take anything with him beside his wheel, and so far as can be learned he gave no intimation to anyone as to where he was going. Mrs. Green appears nervous and worried regarding her husband's absence, but she does not have any idea as to when he will return. No reason is given for the disappearance of either party.

JUDGE RUNYON IN DOUBT.

Troubles of Duruso and Opezo Still Unsettled in Court.

City Judge Runyon is still in doubt as to the exact circumstances of the trouble between Peter Opezo and Mr. and Mrs. Patsy Duruso. Duruso, it will be remembered, keeps a candy and fruit store in the Rink building, Watchung avenue. He says that Opezo stole a $1 bill off the counter Tuesday night, and incidentally assaulted himself and wife.

This morning, Opezo came up for trial. He brought several witnesses who swore that they saw him and that he was not in Duruso's store when they saw him but they couldn't swear that he hadn't been there at all. Duruso forgot that he was to bring a cartload of witnesses and begged the Judge to give him a chance to remember. The Judge told him to come whenever he felt inclined.

Chas. Crouse Stopped Them.

In Thursday night's Daily Press an exciting runaway of O. T. Waring's team of horses was noted. The credit for stopping the team was given to Mr. Finch. It should have been given to Charles Crouse. He was passing in a carriage and saw the runaway. Jumping out, he stopped them in a very clever manner.

A Grand Old Man.

The church-going people of Plainfield have a treat in store for them tomorrow in the person of Rev. Peter Stryker, D. D., of Asbury Park, who will preach in Trinity Reformed church at the morning service. There will be no evening service in this church during the month of August.

Another Dynamo.

The dynamo used for the first electric cars run in Bridgewater township, was removed yesterday from the power house at Finderne to Plainfield to be used at the electric light works here, for the Plainfield Street Railway Company, while their other dyamo is being repaired.

WILL SELL PROPERTY TO PAY ASSESSMENTS.

Borough Council Acts Regarding Unpaid Assessments.

JOHN SCHENCK RESIGNED.

BOROUGH WILL PAY FOR IMPROVEMENTS ON FRANKLIN AVENUE.

Assessments on Property for Improvement and Widening of Watchung Avenue Must be Paid or Property Will be Sold—Warrant Empowering Collector to Sell Property Issued by Council Last Night.

There was a full attendance at the regular August meeting of the Borough Council last evening and despite the very warm weather the members showed no disposition to conclude the work, but on the contrary wanted to remain and discuss various topics of interest. After transacting a great amount of routine business the members finally decided to adjourn to Friday evening of next week when they will go over the books of the assessor.

Collector George F. Brown presented his monthly report which gives the following summaries: Taxes and interest, $452.29; special school, $69.13; Board of Health, $2.18; Watchung avenue assessment, $1,327.12; rent, property owned by the borough, $87.25; City National Bank rebate on interest, $8.06; bills payable, note, $1,000; total receipts, $3,069,11; cash on hand July 1st, 1899, $6,269.29; disbursements, $7,495 67; cash on hand August 1st, 1899, $1,862.73; borough fund, $799.84; Watchung avenue fund, $1,062.89.

Clerk Rowley presented his report as follows: Licenses, $5; fines, $17; sale of stone and labor, $6.05; macadamizing Orchard place, $115.

Caroline Wise, who purchased a lot on Fairview avenue some time ago, petitioned the Council to deduct an amount assessed against her, as the amount was standing against the property when she purchased it from A. D. Thompson, and she claims that she did not know it until recently. The matter was referred to the proper committee. Marshal J. H. Schenck tendered his resignation, and the same was accepted. Secretary Julius Stahl, of Warren Engine Company, reported that R. M. Clark and Otto Smith had been elected to membership, and the resignation of J. F. Buckle had been accepted. He asked the Council to confirm the action which was done.

Clerk Rowley read the legal notice notifying all persons affected by the opening and improvement of Watchung avenue that their property will be sold, where the assessments remain unpaid. In connection with the reading of this Mr. Swackhamer offered a resolution providing for the issuance of a warrant on the tax collector empowering him to sell the property affected. It was also stated by the Mayor and Council that it is their desire that all persons affected know that the matter is now out of their hands, and that they are desirous that the law take its course.

Mayor Smalley appointed P. J. Beagan a marshal chiefly for the purpose of doing special duty as night watchman. The appointment was confirmed.

Mr. Clark, chairman of the committee on streets, presented his report which showed that $950 had been expended for cleaning Somerset street, $15.90 for placing pipe on Brook avenue, and $32.85 for macadamizing Orchard place, and $580 for macadamizing for Mr. Fawcett. There was used during the month over 114 tons of stone, costing $102 92. The total cost of labor was $64.05.

Mr. Valiant offered resolutions providing for the drawing of warrants to pay $2,000 certificates and interest on same in connection with the opening and improvement of Watchung avenue.

Mr. Coddington brought up the old question of making improvements on Brook and Franklin avenue in front of property owned by J. B. Mills. The latter wanted the Council to pay for cost of the material used in providing a proper drain to the property in the gutter and Mr. Coddington's resolution provided that a warrant for $18 be drawn in favor of Mr. Mills to pay for the material.

The resolution was strongly opposed by most of the members for they thought that if the gutters were in a bad condition and needed attention it should be a matter for the Council to look after, and if it was of a private nature Mr. Mills should make his own improvements. The question was discussed at great length, and finally Mr. Coddington's resolution was sidetracked, and one was substituted by Mr. Valiant which provided that the borough

WHOLE FAMILY WIPED OUT.

Insane Father Kills His Three Children and Then Ends His Own Life.

FOUND BY NEIGHBORS.

Sad Case of Murder and Suicide in the Little Village of Brandt, Pennsylvania.

The Community is Greatly Excited in Consequence of the Terrible Tragedy—Yarger Thought to Have Been Driven Insane Brooding Over His Wife's Death.

Susquehanna, Pa., Aug. 5.—Charles Yager, 40 years old, of Brandt, a little manufacturing village on the Jefferson branch of the Erie railroad, five miles south of this place, cut the throats of his three children with a razor and then committed suicide by cutting his own throat.

Neighbors found the children all dead. They had evidently been killed while sleeping. The children ranged in age from 5 to 12 years.

In an adjoining room the father was found outstretched upon the floor, the bloody razor in his hand. Yager was employed in the Brandt chair factory and had been known for years as a steady and industrious man. He was a widower. It is supposed that the deed was committed while Yager was suffering from temporary aberration of mind. There is great excitement in the village.

It is thought by those in the best position to pass judgment in the case, that brooding over the death of his wife had unbalanced his mind. He had always been devoted to the care of his children and provided for them all the comforts of life that a man in his circumstances could furnish. This, together with the fact that he was generally of a mild disposition, are the reasons for believing that he was insane.

Millionaire Commits Suicide.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Charles A. F. Autenreith, senior member of the firm of Moelling & Autenreith, bankers and brokers, and himself a millionaire, committed suicide here. His body was found half submerged in a bath tub in his town home, 627 North Twelfth street, with a pistol wound in the left side of his head. The body, which was found by his son Frederick, was clothed only in a short undergarment, and only the head was above water. In his hand was clutched a 38-calibre revolver.

Transvaal Harmony.

London, Aug. 5.—The stories published in New York of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, renewing his warrings with President Kruger and the British Cabinet's approval of such action, are evidently baseless. Mr. Chamberlain's proposal for a joint inquiry as to the effect which the new franchise proposal of the Transvaal Government will have on the position of the Uitlanders, was only presented to the Transvaal Government Wednesday, and the latter is still considering its acceptance.

The Governor Kept Mob Back.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 5.—Gov. Candler visited the scene of the threatened lynching of John Mullen and personally took charge of the prisoner and escorted him safely through the howling mob that was seeking to destroy his life. The Governor says there will be no more lynchings in Georgia while he is the chief executive of the State and that he will shoot if necessary to protect the lives of those suspected of crimes. He means that all shall have a fair trial.

Minnesota Troops Coming.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Gen Otis has cabled the following:

"Manila, Aug. 4.

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Error cable yesterday. Minnesota and South Dakota take transports, not Montana. OTIS."

The cable of yesterday caused considerable dissatisfaction in Minnesota, as it had previously been announced that the Minnesota regiment was to sail next. Inquiries from the War Department developed the error.

Juveniles Prepare for Wedding.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 5.—David W. Keller is only seventeen years old himself, but his age is venerable as compared with that of the child who is to become his wife at Eprata, a village near here. The bride-to-be is Katie M. Snader, who was thirteen years old July 13 and who is heiress to a wealthy father. Young Keller is an employe in the big cigar factory of A. P. Snader, the indulgent papa. Mr. Snader has given his consent after much temporizing, and has promised to provide handsomely for the youthful pair.

Scarlet Fever in a Hotel.

Catskill, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Scarlet fever has broken out in the Summit House, Tannersville, and the place, which was occupied by over three hundred guests, is practically empty. Within ten minutes after it was discovered that a child had been seized with the fever the house was depopulted. Landlord Silverman has leased the Grand Central House and saved himself from ruin.

Havana Papers Censored.

Havana, Aug. 5.—Major-Gen. Ludlow has established a new office here which relieves him of the responsibility for any objectionable articles appearing in the newspapers. The blame for them now rests on the "jail editor," who is held to a strict accountability for whatever appears in the local newspapers. One editor has already been arrested.

More Recruits for Philippines.

Washington, Aug 5.—The number of Philippine army enlistments Friday was 391, making a total of 9,481. This leaves 3,609 yet to be enlisted.

MANY LIVES LOST IN STORM

Fifteen People Said to Have Been Killed in Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 5.—Reports from Southern and Western Maryland indicate that the storm destroyed many lives and much property.

At Point Patience, Calvert county, John H. Marburger, was killed by the cyclone. Marburger and George Jones, a negro, entered the former's store. There was a flash of lightning, a crash of thunder and the entire dwelling fell upon the men. Both were killed.

In Prince George's the barn belonging to Thomas Keech was blown down, and two of the colored men who were stripping tobacco were killed. Eight others were injured.

In Malcolm, Charles county, "Jeff" Washington, colored, was instantly killed under the beams of a falling barn. There were a number of other fatalities, but all the wires are down, and no full report can be obtained. It is believed that fully fifteen persons were killed.

Cloudburst in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 5.—A cloudburst struck southern Minnesota near Preston. The water is the highest in the history of that section. Much damage was done to property in Preston and the surrounding country. A number of cattle were drowned and much grain destroyed. A mile or more of railroad track was washed away. All bridges on Willow Creek were destroyed. A continuous stream of grain in bundles has passed down the river since the water rose. So far as is known, no lives were lost.

Indian Trouble More Serious.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 5.—There passed through Austin on a northbound express train for Indianapolis, a gold hunter named Arnold, who said he was from the scene of the Indian uprising in Mexico. He reports that just before leaving that section it was reported that the Yaqui Indians had entrapped a force of several hundred Mexican soldiers in a defile in the mountains and had begun an old-time warfare in throwing rock down upon them, with the result that many of them were killed. He says the far is being conducted on a guerrilla plan and the Indians have sufficient force to maintain the war for months, as they are perfectly at home in the mountains and the Mexican soldiers are no match for them. The reports coming to the minnig camps to date were that the Mexicans had lost several soldiers, while the Indians lost comparatively few.

Rate War on in Earnest.

New York, Aug. 5.—W. K. Vanderbilt has hurled a challenge in the face of J. Pierpont Morgan and a battle between these giants is on. On one side is the greatest railroad manager that the country has ever known and on the other is America's most prominent banker. This will be a struggle to the finish unless one side capitulates, and there seems little chance of it. The fight began by a cut in railroad rates which will affect all travel between Chicago and New England Points. The Vanderbilt lines cut the rates, and the Chicago and Grand Trunk met the cut. The Erie Railroad, which is controlled by J. Pierpont Morgan, filed a protest and made an appeal for arbitration. It appears that the fight is on to stay for some time as both sides are unwilling to yield.

Good Witness For Gen. Otis.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The interviews with volunteers returning from the Philippines have been read with much interest by the new Secretary of War, who, as a lawyer, finds them valuable corroborative evidence that General Otis has carried out his instructions from Washington.

Will Have Nearly 48,000 Fighters.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The magnificent army with which the fall campaign against the Filipinos will be opened, and to the proper organization and equipment of which Secretary of War Root is giving his personal attention, will consist of 47,685 active fighting men.

Dived to Save Comrade.

Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Peter Haight, 17 years old, rescued George Lackner, 16, from drowning in Seneca Lake. Lackner jumped off the lighthouse pier tower and did not rise to the surface again. Haight made ad ive in a daring fashion, and with difficulty rescued the drowning boy.

Burglar Made Fatal Mistake.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Thomas Gallagher was killed in his lodgings by a man who got ten cents for it. That was all the money Gallagher had. A Mrs. McNulty, who had $500 in her purse, had moved from the room and it is supposed that the murderer was after her money.

Nominated For Assembly.

Watertown, Aug. 5.—At the Republican conventions oft he First and Cecond Assembly districts of Jefferson County Charles O. Roberts and Morgan Bryan were unanimously renominated for members of Assembly.

Aeronaut Drowned in Leech Lake.

Walker, Minn., Aug. 5.—E. M. Earl, an aeronaut, fell into Leech Lake while making an ascension and was drowned. It is supposed that his parachute failed to work. It was Earl's fourth ascension.

Number Thirteen Not Unlucky.

Old Settler—Talk about the figger thirteen bein' unlucky, why I knew a feller once who fell out of the thirteenth story of a buildin' at No. 13 Thirteenth street. It happened on the thirteenth day of the month, and the day was Friday. In spite of it all, he wasn't killed—

Chorus—Wasn't killed?

Old Settler—Wasn't killed, until he hit the sidewalk.—Cleveland Leader.

MINERS' PAY ADVANCED.

The Frugality Coal and Coke Company Voluntarily Raises the Scale.

MEN GREATLY PLEASED.

Recent Settlement of Difficulties in the Dubois Region May Not Prove to Be Lasting.

Their Discontent Receives Encouragement From Miners in Other Sections—Men Apply For Their Old Places at Mines in the Somerset District.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 5.—The Frugality Coal & Coke Company, owned largely by Supreme Court Justice John Dean, with main offices in Philadelphia, has granted to miners a voluntary advance of 2½ cents a ton.

The prospects are that the recent settlement of the miners difficulties in the Dubois region will not prove lasting. The Reynoldsville men threaten to go out again unless the R. B. & P. Railroad Company agrees to carry them free to and from the Big Soldier Mnies. Their discontent is encouraged by other miners of the district, who ask advances that the operators say are wholly unreasonable. In the Somerset district, where the strike has been maintained all summer, the men are weakening. Forty-five men have applied in a body for their old places, and a general break is expected at any time.

Not so Quiet at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 5.—The recurrence of violence in connection with the street railway strike causes apprehension here. There are only 400 troops in town, 1,200 having been released from day to day, and it has been the intention of Gen. Axline to release 100 each day until all have departed. Gen. Axline said this morning that it was now too late to modify the programme he had mapped out, and that if nothing further happened to change his plan he would order all troops away by Monday of next week.

A Scovil avenue car was attacked on Pearl street. The conductor, whose name is Barclay, told Sergeant Washington that three shots were fired through the windows near the Nickel Plate crossing on Pearl street and that two stones were hurled through the windows from other points. The sergeant at once despatched a squad of men to the scene of the shooting. Shortly after this a Scovil and Pearl street car bound north arrived at the barns. The car contained two broken windows where stones had gone through. From the position of the holes in the car windows it looked as if the stone had been thrown from the window of a house. Police were sent to investigate this also. The first arrest under the Civil Right law as a direct result of the boycott now in force in this city has been made.

Charles C. Triesel, a barber, was arrested on complaint of Patrolman Issacs, whom he refused to shave recently. The attorney for Triesel in the police court sought to have the information quashed, but the Court refused to rule on the motion to quash until Aug. 7.

Sheep Range Raided.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 5.—A number of masked horsemen have raided the range south of here in Logan county, Col., on which Senator Warren of this city had a band of several thousand sheep grazing. The raiders were masked and had the brands on their horses covered. The sheep were being herded by two young men, who were driven away at the point of rifles. The raiders then commenced shooting down the sheep and scattering the band among the hills. When the terrified herders returned they found that 200 sheep had been beaten, kicked and whipped. The perpetrators of the outrage are believed to be employes of a company which recently turned several thousand head of cattle out to graze on the sheep range. The range has been occupied by the Warren bands of sheep for the last two years.

Driven From West Point.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 5.—Relatives of Sigmund S. Albert, son of Adolph Albert, a well-known merchant of this city, declare that he was driven from West Point Military Academy because he was a Hebrew. Young Albert has just resigned from the Academy. One of his relatives declares that the story of the cadet's trouble, if made public, would "set the country by the ears." Young Albert will not talk except to say that he resigned because he disliked a military life.

Protect Property at Sea.

Christiana, Aug. 5.—At Friday's session of the Inter-Parliamentary Conference a motion of Messrs. Samuel J. Barrows, of Boston, and Richard W. Bartholdt, of St. Louis, in favor of the immunity of private property at sea, was unanimously adopted. Their action was suggested by President McKinley's reference to the subject in a message to Congress.

Albert J. Aikin's Leg Broken.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Albert Akin, founder of Akin Hall and Akin Library at Pawling, and who is now ninety-six years old, was thrown from his carriage and sustained a broken leg and many bruises. Mr. Akin is the millionarire owner of Quaker Hill, a large summer hotel at Pawling. He suffreed a broken leg a year ago.

Another Double Execution.

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 5.—James E. Phelps and "Sam" Bailey, negroes, were hanged in the county jail from the same scaffold. Phelps killed a policeman and Bailey killed a companion in a quarrel over cards.

Robert Lowe, of Brooklyn, Dead.

Saratoga, Aug. 5.—Robert Lowe, of Brooklyn, whose legs were amputated by a Ballston terminal railway train, is dead at Saratoga Hospital.

FEVER OUTBREAK CHECKED

No Deaths or New Cases Reported at Hampton.

Norfolk, Aug. 5.—No new deaths or cases of yellow fever have been reported on the peninsula and no suspicious cases have been discovered on the mainland upon which Norfolk and Portsmouth are situated, and the conviction grows that the fever will be confined to the Soldiers' Home at Hampton and its immediate vicinity and will be conquered there.

The prompt and efficient work of the United States Marine Hospital Service authorities has apparently checked the disease. The number of persons who have left this city during the past two days has been only normal, and business in the city shows signs of recovery already, and there is reason to believe that things will soon go on as usual.

There is no change in the situation at Old Point Comfort. The troops at Fort Monroe are awaiting the arrival of the transport McClellan, sent from New York, upon which they will shortly embark for their new station at Plum Island.

Will Supply Food.

Washington, Aug. 5.—A despatch has been received by Surgeon-General Wyman from Surgeon Smith at Norfolk stating that arrangements have been made by the Old Dominion Steamship Company to supply the quarantined cities with food by sending it in tugs to a barge anchored in the bay, from which other boats could carry it ashore. There would be no trouble, he said, about the revenue cutter Windom transporting provisions for the Soldiers' Home from Norfolk to the steamship Jamestown.

The Dreyfus Trial.

Rennes, France, Aug. 5.—Owing to the active newspaper campaign against holding the Dreyfus court-martial in the insanitary Salle de la Manutention, the authorities have decided to hold the trial in the Lycee, where a magnificent hall is available. Officers here who do not belong to the garrison have been ordered to depart, and the officers of the garrison have been ordered to return at once. The first session of the court is expected to be short. After reading the report of Major Carriere, who represents the Government, the court will adjourn, to allow the defense time to study the secret dossier. The trial is expected to be resumed Wednesday or Thursday.

Our Grain Going to Europe.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Six steamships laden with grain sailed down the Delaware River for European ports. The list includes the Selby, for Granton, with 111,131 bushels of corn; the Farrinford, for Rotterdam, with 180,023 bushels of corn; the Virginia, for Limerick, with 113,394 bushels of wheat; the Ruysdael, for Korror, with 110,000 bushels of corn; the Osborne, for London, with 100,000 bushels of wheat, 30,000 bushels of oats, 25,000 sacks of flour and a large general cargo, and the William Anning, for Cork, with 115,000 bushels of corn. The average value of these cargoes is over half a million dollars.

South American Alliance.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 5.—Senor Aspiroz, the Mexican Minister to the United States, who is here, was much interested in the news dispatches reporting the departure of President Roca, of the Argentine Republic, with the Minister of Foreign Affairs and thirty Senators from Buenos Ayres, for Brazil. Senor Aspiroz thought there could be no foundation for the report that an alliance was contemplated between South American republics against the United States.

Loyal to Col. Hawkins.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 5.—Lieut.-Col. Barnet, of the Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteers, has declined the proposal to elect him Colonel, in place of the late Col. Hawkins. He says the Tenth has known but one Colonel for twenty years, and he would like to see it mustered out as a Hawkins regiment. Efforts are being made to have the Tenth Regiment stop at Denver en route East and parade. Other plans have in view a parade in Chicago.

Go to the Trial Armed.

London, Ky., Aug. 5.—A force of fifteen mounted men, armed with Winchesters and revolvers, was passed between here and Pittsburg going in the direction of Clay County. They were members of the Griffin faction, and probably went into Manchester to attend the examining trial of Green Griffin. Green is to be tried for the killing of Edward Fisher in the feud battle two weeks ago in Clay County.

Mob Chasing Alabama Negro.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 5.—John E. Thomas, a negro, was surrounded in a swamp near Cuba, Ala., by a lynching party and wounded in a number of places during a running fight. He finally managed to make his escape, with the posse still after him, after slightly wounding several of his pursuers. He is charged with an attack on the wife of a sawmill operator. It is probable that Thomas will be captured and lynched.

Dolphin Just Escaped Wrecking.

Boston, Aug. 5.—The story comes from Gloucester that the United States dispatch boat Dolphin narrowly escaped going on the rocks at Briar Neck, nearly opposite Thatcher Island. A fog prevailed all night. She was sighted at daybreak anchored quite close to the rocks at Briar Neck. She had evidently got in there during the fog and dropped anchor. A few hundred feet further and she would have hit the rocks.

Cursed Town With Last Breath.

Van Buren, Ark., Aug. 5.—John W. Maxey, a negro, who assaulted a woman, was hanged here. He maintained his innocence to the last and in a speech on the gallows invoked the curse of God upon the people of Van Buren for the injustice they had done him.

Croker on His Way Home.

Southampton, Aug. 5.—Mr. Richard Croker is among the passengers on the American Line steamer St. Paul, which sailed from this port to-day for New York.

AT

J. R. BLAIR'S, 126 Park Ave.

About the year 1840 a gentleman at that time prominent in New York society, while at Lake George with his family, was taken sick with an attack of cholera morbus. No doctor was at hand save a sort of half Indian local practitioner, who was sen for. He prescribed a preparation of rhubarb and soda which he mixed himself. Its effect was excellent and so pleased was the tourist with its results that he brought the prescription to New York and used to have it compounded at Delaplaine's drug store at the corner of 14th Street and Sixth Avenue. For many years this mixture was in use in the family, one member of which was a son who afterwards arose to eminence as a physician. This son, as is related by a brother, was: "as well as the rest of us, brought up on this medicine, so to speak." He was, therefore, very familiar with it at the time he caused its introduction at the hospital where it afterwards became so famous. It was from the origin here related that The Ripans Chemical Co. has since made the most successful of modern remedies—Ripans Tabules.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York, or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of grocers, general storekeepers, news agents, and at liquor stores and barber shops.

LIEUT. BRYDE DISMISSED

Ninth Regiment Officer Found Guilty by Court Martial.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The general court-martial convened to try First Lieut. Wesley E. Bryde, of the Ninth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., for directing the names of Sergt. Bodamer and Corporal Reidy to be placed upon the muster and payroll of Company F, Ninth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., as qualified for service in the volunteer regiment, and entitled to pay as members of the National Guard of New York, has submitted its findings to the Adjutant-General.

The court finds Bryde guilty of abetting the deception, and sentences him to be dismissed from the service. Bryde pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting the scheme, but denied that he caused the names to be placed on a payroll.

On the 17th of May, 1898, Bryde, while in camp at Peekskill, and in command of Company F, Ninth Regiment, permitted Privates Betts and Hahn, members of said company, to personate Sergt. Bodamer and Corporal Reidy, of the same company, and to appear in the uniform of the sergeant and the corporal before the Board of Examination, composed of surgeons appointed to determine the qualifications of men enlisted in the National Guard, New York, for service as volunteers.

Betts and Hahn did appear as such non-commissioned officers, were examined, and having been previously passed for volunteer service as Privates, Betts and Hahn were passed as Sergt. Bodamer and Corporal Reidy, the latter mentioned having been rejected several times by said board.

The Adjutant-General approved of the court's findings, and pursuant to the foregoing sentence, Lieut. Bryde ceases to be an officer of the National Guard.

Sage Worth Over $50,000,000.

New York, Aug. 5.—Smooth-shaven, clear-eyed, lithe and erect, almost as quick in action as in thought, Russell Sage began his 84th year in life and opened a new set of books to begin a second half-century of business in Wall street.

As for the new books, the entry of quick assets over liabilities will show something more than profits of $50,000,000 in the half century of work in Wall street, but they did not come in at the rate af $1,000,000 per year. His director's fees for a twelve-month now will more than cover the earnings of some of the earlier years.

Lineman Shocked to Death.

Philadelphia, Penn., Aug. 5.—Henry Stocker, 28 years old, of 3,240 North Fifth street, an electric light trimmer in the employ of the Manufacturers' Electric Light Company, was shocked to death at the top of a pole at Kensington avenue and Madison street. The lamp on the pole had burned out and he put in a new carbon. Just as he had about completed his work several persons who were passing at the time heard him utter an agonized cry. At the top of the pole Stocker's body could be seen hanging on the weak supporters. A policeman, with the assistance of half a dozen men, succeeded in lowering Stocker's body to the street. A physician was called and he pronounced Stocker dead.

Sisters Marry the Same Doctor.

Kansas City, Aug. 5.—Two beautiful sisters have become the wives of Dr. Park L. McDonald. The one was the wife of John Wherritt and got a divorce to marry the doctor. She then took to the stage and the doctor got a divorce, and now he is the husband of her sister. The sisters were the Misses Farris and lived with their father at No. 1305 East Twelfth street.

This Mayor Must Resign.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 5.—Mayor G. Woodward, of this city, will be removed on impeachment proceedings unless he resigns by Monday. Two months ago his retirement was demanded by the Rev. L. G. Broughton, but the charges were dropped on his promise to refrain from drink. On Monday he had a relapse and has been unable to perform his duties.

Iowa Captain Said to be a Coward.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 5.—The Adjutant-General is in receipt of Manila advices to the effect that Captain A. F. Burton, of Company D, Fifty-first Iowa, from Villiseca, has been suspended for cowardice and is now at Manila awaiting dishonorable discharge. He is said to have sent his company into action while he remained at the rear.

Assistant Superintendent Dismissed.

LIQUID AIR IS SUGGESTED

A New York Man Thinks it Could Be Employed to Stop Yellow Fever.

TO LOWER TEMPERATURE

Thinks the Government Would Find it a Cheap, Successful and Harmless Experiment.

Senor Manuel Pena, Among the Distinguished Foreigners in Washington — Secretary Root Gets to His Desk Early—Sir Julian Pauncefote's Prestige.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The new Secretary of War has not quite got into the habit of Washington life—that of not making his appearance before 9 o'clock in the morning. Since his arrival in the city he has been an early riser, and finished his breakfast by 8.30. He has surprised the messengers and clerks at the War Department by getting at his desk some time before 9 o'clock, which is an unheard of thing for a Cabinet officer. It is an unwritten law among the higher officials not to appear out of their houses before 9 o'clock in the morning, otherwise they might be taken for Department clerks. Uncle Sam requires his clerks to be at their desks by 9 o'clock, and hence during the morning, between 8.30 and 9 o'clock, a perfect stream of men and women are seen hurrying towards the big department buildings.

"It seems to me that yellow fever can be very easily stamped out by the use of liquid air." This was the assertion made by G. L. Anderson, of New York, in talking about the epidemic of yellow fever at the Soldiers' Home at Hampton. He added: "I don't pretend to be a yellow fever expert, but I do know something about liquid air and its possibilities. I have been an interested investigator of the question for some time and I believe that it will do all that is claimed for it. Now, it is said that yellow fever germs cannot live in a low temperature. Frost is said to kill them immediately. Why should not an artificial temperature be created by means of liquid air? If frost is all that is needed, there would not be a germ living in any of the rooms where old soldiers are. The temperature could be reduced to any extent desired if the windows in the room were closed. There would be frost on the panes and ice in the water pitcher in no time at all. I believe that the Government would find it a very cheap experiment, and at least, a harmless one."

That Sir Julian Pauncefote will return to Washington with additional influence and social prestige is assured by his elevation to the peerage, which has just been announced. The Pauncefotes have always been at the head of the Diplomatic Corps in this city, and powerful factors in the social life of Washington itself. This is due not to the fact alone that he is the representative of England, but to a great extent to his personal ability and strong characteristics. It has long been expected that he would be elevated to the peerage, and his success shows how a man in the English service may rise from the ranks and reach the top of the ladder in as short space of time as he could in America. Lord Pauncefote comes from what is known in England as the middle classes, and there is not an attache in the British Embassy here who in point of birth does not rank him.

Among the distinguished foreigners in Washington at present is Senor Manuel H. Pena, of the United States of Columbia. He is here on business with the legation, and, in speaking about the country, said that "there is a great deal of what the Americans call progress among us. Railroads are being built, and all the agricultural industries are being developed. Coffee is, of course, the chief product, but there are many fields to which capital can turn. Our mines are rich in gold and silver, and the greatest inducements are offered to investors from other countries. We think that we have the most delightful of tropical climates."

The free silver men in Washington are much pleased over the nomination of John Walter Smith as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Maryland. They claim that it is a great victory for the Bryanites and the silver men, and that it will have a great effect upon the National campaign. Their reason for this feeling is that Mr. Smith, who is a member-elect to the next Congress from Maryland, completely surrendered to the silver forces just before his election last fall.

Dewey's Visit to Boston.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Secretary Clarke of the Home Market Club dined with Secretary Long at Hingham and talked with him with regard to the Dewey reception in Boston. Mr. Clarke said that the Secretary told him that the Olympia would probably come to the Charlestown Navy Yard for repairs, and that the visit would be made in November. He thought that the Admiral would accept the reception from the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the dinner of the Home Market Club.

Woman Drowned in Reservoir.

South Manchester, Conn., Aug. 5.—Mrs. E. H. Coburn, of New York, who was spending the summer here at the home of her son, Hewett Coburn, president of the Glastonbury Manufacturing Company, was drowned in the reservoir. Mrs. Coburn and a Miss Halstead started out for a drive and when near the lake, Miss Halstead alighted and walked in front of the horse. The animal took fright and backed into the lake. Mrs. Coburn was sixty-five years old.

August 7—Rev. R. Anderson, of Brooklyn, will conduct Danish Lutheran services in the German Lutheran church on Grove street at 8 o'clock. Vocal music by an English quartette. Rev. C. H. Mengers will assist. All invited.

A Joint Sewer.

Anything relating to successful sewage disposal is of much interest to Plainfield as it is only a question of time before this city will be compelled to deal with that important question. It is a known fact that the sewer beds, now located on Rock avenue, are not a success as now conducted. There must be either a change in the method of disposal or in the policy now in vogue at the beds. A joint sewer to tidewater from Plainfield, North Plainfield, Westfield and other adjoining towns has been suggested as a solution of the disposal problem.

Newark, Vailsburg, Irvington, West Orange, South Orange, Summit and Milburn are discussing a like project which seems quite likely to be adopted. Its progress will be watched with particular interest by the people of Plainfield. It is proposed to have this joint sewer empty into the Staten Island Sound at Bayway, Elizabeth. Of course, permission will have to be obtained from the city of Elizabeth and it is a question whether that municipality will ever grant the necessary right. The sewer is expected to cost at least $300,000.

The Unheard Merchant.

Experiences have shown that if a bell be rung in an absolute vacuum it will make no sound. The air, therefore, is the vehicle by which the noise of the vibrations is carried to the ear. A merchant who does not advertise is much like a bell in a vacuum; nobody can learn much about him or his business, and he therefore receives scant patronage. He requires a medium by which to attract the notice of the public, and the one great agency for the successful attainment of that purpose is judicious, interesting advertising in a newspaper which enters the home of all the people.—Philadelphia Record.

An Ideal Spot.

The recent tornado that swept the neighboring city of Elizabeth brings to mind the fact that topographical formations most favorably protect Plainfield from these disastrous visitations. Our mountain range on the north and west, the short hills in the east, place our fair city of the plain in a delightfully sheltered position; we are never affected by winds or storms of great force. The mountain range in the south also protect us from fierce winter blasts—the short hills on the east protect us from the saline effects of ocean. All this conspires to make Plainfield an ideal spot for homes.

Judge Strong, of Middlesex county, has again incurred considerable criticism for his very light sentence of prisoners brought before him. His sentence of George Valentine, the defaulting bank cashier, was generally believed to be far too lenient. His last act has been to sentence a man, convicted of running a lottery, to pay a fine of $300 only. The extreme punishment for the crime was seven years imprisonment or $2,000 fine.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Westfield is the latest of New Jersey towns where the women have associated themselves together to beautify the place on the lines upon which the Woman's Municipal Improvement Association of this city was organized. There should be little difficulty in cultivating a practically unanimous sentiment in favor of municipal improvement in a town with Westfield's quality of population.—Newark News.

An unfortunate printer stole 86 cents in Middlesex and was sent to jail for fifteen days.

This is at the ratio of about sixteen days' imprisonment for the theft of a dollar. If the Perth Amboy bank wrecker had been given an equivalent in punishment for stealing $300,000, one may figure that he would be a long time in duress beyond the allotted three score and ten years of life.—New York Press.

Plainfield is setting an example which cities of the second class might follow profitably. It was evidence of bravery to beard a big telephone monopoly and order it to bury its wires, but the action reaches the dignity of true heroism whem the authorities see that the work is done promptly and well. The overhead wires is a menace and an encroachment upon public property. Its going is a modern necessity.—New York Press.

The making of corporations proceeds apace. In one day at Trenton, N. J., this week, certificates of corporation were awarded to concerns for the manufacture or use of whiskey, electric power, compressed power, iron, cotton yarn, switches (not for feminine use, but for railroads,) lead, asphalt, railroads, coal, automobiles, fuel, dry goods, bobbins and shuttles, salt, plantations, lead and metals. Yet it was not a particularly busy month for New Jersey's Secretary of State.—New York Evening Sun.

Plainfield papers acknowledge that their town is "buggy," and two residents of this place who were there Saturday night are willing to swear that such is the case. The Bound Brookers were on the outside of more beer than they could consistently carry, and after a few words with a policeman they were taken to jail. Here they were surprised by bed bugs and the City Judge released them until Monday morning. At that time sentence was suspended upon one, while the other was compelled to pay a fine of $5—Bound Brook Chronicle.

The Plainfield Press announces with that positiveness which comes from authority, that James E. Martine, the "farmer orator," will not be a candidate for Assembly next fall on the Democratic ticket. It would be just like the Democratic party to put him on the ticket. When there has been any hope whatever of Democratic success Mr. Martine has been relegated to the rear; when the Democratic party knew it could not succeed it has given Mr. Martine a place on the ticket. Mr. Martine has given all his eloquence, all his influence, all his energy to the Democratic party, and the party has given him the marble heart.—Elizabeth Journal.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Two young men of this city, John Conway, of West Seventh street, and John Phillips, of Madison avenue, were out driving last Wednesday afternoon when the great wind storm burst upon them. They had left Scotch Plains some distance behind and were traveling out the Springfield road. They did not notice the approach of the storm until the first gust of wind came. They then decided to brave the storm and kept on after putting up the side curtains. Wind and rain came with a rush. The young men say that the wind struck them with such force that horse and wagon were lifted clear off the roadway and deposited in the gutter. Luckily they were not upset. The horse found his way back into the road and continued on his way after the violence of the storm had ceased.

A local wheelman tells of a remarkable experience he had with a rooster while wheeling near Rahway one afternoon a few days ago. There was a whole gathering of fowls in the roadway, and, as the rider approached, there was a grand scattering. One stately game cock completely lost his head and started directly for the wheelman. The rider struck the bird with his front wheel and it passed over the biped. Then his pedal struck the rooster and knocked him under the rear wheel. As the bird passed under the rear wheel there was a loud report and the tire flattened out immediately. The wheelman jumped from his saddle and investigated. He then found that the rooster had driven his spur far into the tire, cutting a deep gash in it and practically ruining the tire for further use. The wheelman walked to Rahway where he took a train for home. He says he didn't notice what became of the rooster after the accident.

should do the work. Messrs. Burtis and Clark opposed the resolution, while Messrs. Coddington, Rogers, Swackhamer and Valiant supported it.

Mr. Valiant offered another resolution providing for the borrowing of $1,000 for four months, and still another that the sum of $6.55 be remitted from the tax bill of J. Bremen for 1897, as it had been shown that he does not owe that amount for the fact that in that year he was allowed $500 exemption for being a fireman, and since then the property has been in his wife's name.

An amended ordinance regulating and licensing auctioneers was called up and adopted on the third reading. The ordinance reduces the fee from $25 to $15 per year.

At this time Mr. Rogers moved that the Council examine the books of the assessors, but Mr. Swackhamer thought it was pretty late, and on his motion the examination was deferred till next week Friday evening.

After the Council passed a little time in discussing the question of putting a marshal on in place of Mr. Schenck, who resigned, and it was decided that at present a man was not needed, the Council adjourned.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 5—Harry Milligan, whose dancing pavilion was destroyed by fire on Thursday night, carried an insurance of $700—$300 being on the stock and fixtures. There are some suspicious circumstances in connection with the origin of the fire, which is to be thoroughly investigated before the loss is adjusted. Milligan claims to have lost about $60 or $70 in cash, which he says he left in a waistcoat that was hanging in a private apartment at the side of the refreshment counter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Logan have as their guests Daniel Tynan and his daughter, Miss Mildred, of Cincinnati. Two other daughters arrived two weeks ago. The entire party has gone to Ocean Grove to spend a couple of weeks.

The heavy storm of Wednesday afternoon broke down trees in the yards of F. H. Gise and Mrs. Thomas. The roof of the Methodist church was also damaged somewhat, a large number of slates being torn away.

The Baptist church will go on an excursion to Boynton Beach next Wednesday, weather permitting. If it rains the excursion will go the following day. The excursionists will go by stages.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 5.—Rev. Mr. Shott will give a short lecture Sunday evening upon the life and work of A. J. Diaz, the Baptist Apostle to Cuba. Mr. Shott intended to give this lecture in a series of short talks before the young people at their meetings Sunday evenings, but has decided that the life of Diaz as a missionary to Cuba, while that country was under Spanish rule, is interesting and thrilling enough to take up an evening service. Mr. Shott is personally acquainted with Mr. Diaz and his talk will be on his personal knowledge of the man and work and will no doubt be very interesting and a large audience should be in attendance.

Joseph Guenier, who is employed by Matthias Schmidt, the florist, had a narrow escape during the heavy shower of Wednesday. Mr. Guenier was working around the greenhouses when a bolt struck nearby, knocking him down, and it was sometime before he entirely recovered from the effects of the shock.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Phillips and family, of Plainfield, have taken possession of Mrs. West's Fanwood cottage on North avenue.

John G. Cook has improved the sidewalk in front of his Park avenue property by putting a layer of fine stone on.

The Town Committee met in their rooms last evening. Routine business was transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. Glover and family, of Bayonne, have taken up their residence in Fanwood.

Mrs. John R. Haskard and family spent yesterday very pleasantly at Boynton Beach.

Charles Stout, of Mountain avenue, has just returned from a business trip to Tennessee.

Miss Sarah Drake, of Bartle avenue, is suffering from a severe attack of sore throat.

Mrs. Wm. Maguire has returned from an extended visit with friends in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Barros, of South American, is spending a few days in town with friends.

Mrs. John Ford is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Kruce, of Brooklyn.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., met in their rooms last evening.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 5—The fight between the Holmes brothers, of Mountainside has been settled by Justice of the Peace Collins. Last Thursday Jacob Holmes sued his brother, Henry Holmes, for $200 damages alleged to have been done to furniture at the time that the latter took forcible possession of the former's property at Branch Mills. Justice Collins reserved decision at the time but yesterday decided that the plaintiff was entitled to $75 damages and costs which will amount to about $5.

John Smiler, Jr., Fred. Smiler, Fred. Ritter and John L. Titus, all of Linden, will be tried before Justice of the Peace Collins in the town rooms Tuesday on complaint of Sebastain Petrus who charges them with having conducted a cock fight at Linden in February last. The prosecution will be the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This is the same fight for which Vorice Spice, of Linden was arrested and tried here the 19th of June. The jury at that time disagreed and Spice has now left the State and these other men are to be made to answer. The fight is alleged to have taken place at the home of Spice.

A party of Westfielders, consisting of Rev. and Mrs. N. W. Cadwell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierson, Mrs. V. O. Burtis, Miss Jane Morrow, Miss Estel Clark, Miss Carrie Fowler and Miss Anna Littel will attend the two weeks, conference of Mr. Moody at Northfield, Conn. They will leave Tuesday.

The sale of choice lots on the Harrison property takes place this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Königsberg. Dieser Tage fand hier die Grundsteinlegung der Königin Luise-Gedächtnißkirche statt.—Der bekannte sozialdemokratische Führer Herbig hat sein vor dem Tragheimer Thor belegenes Rittergut Maraunen an die Berliner Land-Bank zum Preise von 606,000 Mark verkauft.

Gumbinnen. Der konservative Landtagsabgeordnete Ernst von Wedel, Vertreter für den vierten Wahlkreis Gumbinnen (Stallupönen, Goldap, Darkhenen) ist gestorben.

Heydekrug. Im hiesigen Kreise hat man begonnen, Strafgefangene in größerem Umfange bei der Entwässerung der Moore zu verwenden. Das ausgedehnte Augstumaler Moor wird auf diese Weise der Kultur erschlossen; dort arbeiten 50 Sträflinge. Auch die nothwendigen Gebäude werden durch Sträflinge aufgeführt.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Danzig. Die Meisterschaft von Deutschland im Rudern errang Dr. Schultze-Denhard (Berliner Ruder-Klub) mit einer Länge von ihrem Vertheidiger Max Sommerfeld (Danzig).

Elbing. Der in der Müller'schen Weinhandlung angestellte Buchhalter Volkmann würde wegen Unterschlagung verhaftet. Die unterschlagene Summe beläuft sich muthmaßlich auf 5000 Mark.

Kulm. Unter den Gutsarbeitern in Paparczyn sind die schwarzen Pocken ausgebrochen. Bis jetzt sind einige Todesfälle vorgekommen. Muthmaßlich ist die Krankheit durch Russen eingeschleppt worden.

Rheinprovinz.

Köln. Professor Bardenheuer amputirte dem Weihbischof Schmitz wegen eines langwierigen Kniegeschwüres das rechte Bein oberhalb des Knies.

Aachen. Hier wurde die neuerbaute evangelische Dreifaltigkeitskirche unter allgemeiner Theilnahme der Gemeindemitglieder eingeweiht.

Barmen. Der verstorbene Rentner Hugo Hoesch hat 1,000,000 Mark zu wohlthätigen Zwecken vermacht.

Coblenz. Die Stadtverordneten lehnten die von der Regierung angeregte Anstellung von Schulärzten ab. Ebenso wurde die von der Regierung beantragte Eingemeindung des Nachbarortes Moselweiß abgelehnt.

Remscheid. Der vor Kurzem in den Ruhestand getretene Oberbürgermeister v. Bohlen ist in Kassel gestorben.

Bohwinkel. Das Dampfsägewerk Kergel u. Greuffel ist durch Feuer zerstört. Der Schaden ist sehr beträchtlich.

Provinz Sachsen.

Magdeburg. Im Walde bei Gommern wurde der Grundstein zu den Gebäuden für die Frauen- und Mädchenheilstätte gelegt.

Gardelegen. Dieser Tage fand hierselbst das 28. altmärkische Gauturnfest statt. Der offiziellen Feier ging ein Gauturntag voran, auf welchem beschlossen wurde, das nächste Gauturnfest in Bismarck abzuhalten. Zum ersten Male zeigte sich hier eine Damenriege öffentlich. Es war der Damenturnverein Stendal, der an den gemeinsamen Uebungen theilnahm und namentlich den Stabreigen exakt und recht gefällig aufführte. Es waren gegen 1000 Turner des altmärkischen Turngaues bei dem Feste anwesend.

WOMAN LEGISLATOR:

INCIDENTS IN THE CAREER OF "MRS. SPEAKER" LEE OF COLORADO.

Her Amiable Qualities and Great Popularity With Her School Companions—Bright and Witty Sayings That Made Her the Life of Her Class—An Exemplary Mother.

Since "the Woman Legislator" of Colorado has occupied so admirably the centre of the stage, winning applause from an audience that included spectators in every State, she has become intensely interesting to her schoolmates—who were, and all remain, her friends.

Fannie Brandt Lee was in those school days Fannie Brandt. Her rise to such an eminence in politics has surprised us; not because there was any idea among us that she was not capable of great things, but because we did not imagine that her abilities would lead her in that direction. In her school days she gave no promise of budding into "Mrs. Speaker," simply because she did not then discuss political issues. She was always an excellent parliamentarian.

She was always very bright and was the wit of her class; and her wit was pleasant. Her girlhood ambitions were for intellectual and educational equipment that would enable her to attain prominence, and to support herself after leaving school. The last, indeed, was necessary, for her father's family was large and he was not in affluent circumstances.

She graduated June 13th in the class of '84; the first class to graduate from the West Denver High School. There were only six members. The class "Chronicles and Prophecies," by Francis S. Brandt, were very witty, written in Biblical language and diction, and especially interesting to those mentioned; but the prophecies failed to foretell her own political honors and successes.

MRS. LEE AS SHE APPEARED WHEN SHE WAS GRADUATED.

About two years before she left school, the "Brandt twins" arrived to be sisters to her. From that day on, no matter what happened that was unaccountable, or what went wrong at school or with her—if she was late, failed in her lessons or forgot anything—she always gave "The Twins" as the cause, and they became a byword. Her schoolmates, following her example, the mischiefs, mishaps and burdens of the whole school were laid on the four little shoulders of the "Brandt Twins."

Everybody liked her and enjoyed her sunny nature and disposition. Her family depended upon her advice for almost everything; and she was counselor for all her schoolmates. A wise one, too. Her husband says now that the family continues to come to her for advice before making a purchase of anything, whether a dress or a house and lot.

She was quick and witty in repartee, but never vicious or caustic.

A party of girls took lunch one day at a restaurant where the style was great, the fare poor and the prices high. "All that you get for your money here is niggers and napkins," one of the party quoted. "I don't like watered milk," she added. When they stopped at the cashier's desk to pay for this lunch the obsequious functionary inquired if they were well served, and Fannie answered:

"The oranges were too dry and the milk too wet."

As they reached the sidewalk a boy darted around the corner and right among them, giving a terrific boyish yell that startled every one of them. One of the girls said to him:

"You little beast! What do you scream like that for? Frightening folks out of their wits!"

"Let him alone, isn't this a holler day for him as well as it is for us?" said Fannie.

When discussing arrangements for a contemplated party there was a divergence of opinion as to which room should be devoted to refreshment purposes, and Fannie was asked:

"Which do you think the best room for supper?"

"Mushroom!" she answered.

She was married to Frank Lee in January, 1885, early one freezing morning; and as it was a very impromptu affair they walked from the church to his home. Through some unforseen circumstance, no one was yet out of bed there; so the bridal couple had to go in and light the fires and cook their own wedding breakfast. She could cook well, too, as she did everything, well.

"I invented a cake yesterday and baked it last night; now I have to invent a way to eat it or it will be wasted," she once remarked in the chemistry class.

The Lees now have a nice home of their own and six children, to whom she is an exemplary mother. They do not suffer because she is in politics.

Her natural ability and aptitude, combined with her husband's political aspirations and experience, have conspired to place her in her present position. Undoubtedly it was her marriage that led to development of her abilities as a parliamentarian and a political leader. Mr. Lee was always an alert political agitator and her natural force, abilities and aptitude combined to elevate her to that active prominence that made her the conspicuously available one for the Speaker's chair to which she was called in the Colorado House of Representatives.

DEADLY BACTERIA.

HOW FLIES AND MOSQUITOES DISTRIBUTE GERMS.

Scientists Daily Making New Discoveries—Majority of Our Soldiers Lost in Spanish American War Died From Typhoid Fever Carried by Flies.

The relations of insects and bacteria to man are of the highest importance and are only just beginning to be appreciated in a vague manner by the public.

The extent to which diseases are conveyed by insects is appalling. Scientists are daily making new discoveries of this character. As a very pertinent illustration of what takes place it may be pointed out that the majority of our soldiers lost in the late war died from typhoid fever carried by flies.

Texas fever is conveyed by the Southern cattle tick. Professor Koch found that the Tsetse fly, which causes an enormous loss of cattle in Africa, kills not simply by its bite but also by introducing harmful micro-organisms into the blood of its victim.

The germs of malaria are inserted into the blood of man by mosquitoes. The insect finds the germs on the decaying animal and vegetable matter on which it feeds. The mosquito also conveys the horrible filaria diseases of the East, which include elephantiasis. Leprosy is communicated by mosquitoes and other biting insects.

The "pink eye" of the Southern United States is attributed to the horse tick. In the Fiji Islands Europeans have to wear a veil to protect themselves against a serious native eye disease, which is spread by the gnats.

Flees played an important part in causing the recent terrible outbreak of bubonic plague in Asia. The horse fly and a common variety of biting fly (stomoxys calcitrans) infect cattle and even men with the germs of anthrax.

Even without the intervention of flies and other insects man is always loaded with a swarm of microbes. A well known bacteriologist recently set about classifying the various orders of bacteria which are found on the human skin. He gave up the task after he had counted two hundred kinds.

Every one of these different kinds was found to the number of rarely less than five million. Thus it seems that every man carries about with him microbes considerably exceeding the entire population of the world.

Fortunately we are not utterly at the mercy of these microbes. Very often it is only the sick whom they can hurt. Nature, who never creates a pest without supplying some means of combating it, has furnished the human body with several lines of defence against the microbial hordes.

The first line of defence is the skin, which most of the micro-organisms are incapable of penetrating. It is just here that we perceive the dangers to which we are exposed from the stinging insects. They introduce into the blood germs which would otherwise not be able to pass the skin. The common house fly does not bite, but it may spread infection by depositing the germs in the mouth, nose or eyes.

Besides the skin there is another line of defence against the microbes in the mucous membrane lining the mouth, throat and digestive tract. The pneumonia bacillus and the diphtheria bacillus are frequently found in the throats of healthy persons and cause them no inconvenience whatever. They are unable to gain an entrance to the tissues unless there is an inflammation, caused probably by a cold or some other violent disturbance of the normal health.

The body has another very important defence against the army of microbes in the gastric juice of the stomach. This contains free hydrochloric acid, which is extremely destructive to germs. The cholera germ in particular is unable to flourish in this acid, and therefore a stomach in a thoroughly sound condition is a sure protection against cholera.

The blood also possesses certain properties of defence against microbes the nature of which scientists are only just beginning to find out. Microbes will flourish in the blood of certain animals. Diphteria, for instance, does not infect rats or mice. There are in the blood of these animals certain floating substances which have destructive properties so far as the bacteria of diphtheria are concerned. When the bacteria attack any point of the organism these substances receive an automatic signal and float to that point. There they help to destroy the invaders.

Acting in co-operation with these substances are those corpuscles of the blood which are called "phagocytes." They not only attack the microbes, but eat them.

The human blood possesses phagocytes, and it is by their action that we acquire immunity against smallpox and other diseases after one attack. When the smallpox germ first attacks the body the phagocytes hasten to defend it. If the body lives the phagocytes in the blood have become so vigorous that they will be able to repel any future attack of the smallpox germ with ease.

THE PEPPER-BOX TRICK.

An Interesting and Amusing Trick Easily Performed.

Procure a common pepper-box, and get a tinman to unsolder the bottom, and then fasten on to it a tube of tin that will just fit the inside of the box, like a telescope. At the bottom side of this tube a slit must be cut that will let a quarter slip through. In the lid of the box a duplicate top is to be fastened, leaving inside a piece of tin, that will rattle when shaken. Now for the trick. Take the box in the left hand, ask one of the company for a quarter, and to mark it that it may be identified. With the right hand draw off the lid, and request that the money be put into the box. It will of course slip through into your left hand. Put on the lid and push up the telescope bottom quickly, and passing the box to the right hand, rattle it, and ask where the money shall fly to. Have a cup at hand (near the left), and as a feint, say "Here it is!" at the same time letting the money fall into the cup. "Presto! Fly!" It is now again in the box, and by rattle it appears so. Remember all the while to hold the money fast in the cup, to prevent detection. "Presto! Fly again!" It is now down Willy's throat—is it not so? Place the cup to his ear; out it falls! Is it the same quarter? To be sure it is; there's the mark! This completes the pepper-box trick; but the routine indicated for its performance can be easily varied by any adept at legerdemain.

Elephant vs. Sparrow.

A pugnacious sparrow the other day flew into the elephant house in the Central Park menagerie, New York, and began picking up the crumbs from the table of the elephant then inside. The mammoth and midget apparently did not see each other for some time, until the former, in shifting his position, nearly placed his ponderous foot on the latter. The fighting little speck of fuss and feathers evidently accepted his thoughtless act as a challenge to battle, and at once flew in the elephant's face. The great beast looked astonished, and, sending a small cyclone through his trunk, raised such a cloud of hay and dust that the bird was lost sight of.

When the air was cleared, the biped was seen on the quadruped's back. A shake of the elephant's loosely fitting, tough, though sensitive hide, frightened the little fellow, who hopped to the floor and looked into the face of his antagonist.

Thus they stood as though trying to recover breath for a few seconds, when the elephant reached out his trunk towards the sparrow. The bird with outstretched wings and ruffled feathers, threw himself, with full force at the end of the threatening proboscis. Then came a gentle blast of air from the elephant's lungs, and the sparrow was blown against the wall of the house. The little fellow, without even so much as a parting look at his huge antagonist, mounted to the open window and disappeared.

Amusing Knowledge.

Take a hard boiled egg and place it on the edge of a plate, holding the tip of the pointing finger lightly on the other end to keep it in position. Having first wound a light string around the body of the egg, a quick spinning motion can be obtained by pulling the string quickly. The egg will be seen spinning for some time within the plate. There is also another method of standing an egg on end and making a new Columbus discovery.

Instead of making the egg spin on the plate one can also chase it around the room, like a top, by using a whip of well twisted cord. As the egg will necessarily strike in some corner or crack while spinning, one may use an artificial egg instead, such a one as is used for darning stockings. This "unbreakable" egg can be spun with all zest around the floor as long as the impelling force keeps up.

Bringing Two Separate Coins Together.

Take two cents, which must be carefully placed in each hand, as thus: The right hand with the coin on the fourth and little finger, as in the illustration. Then, place at a short distance from each other, both hands open on the table, the left palm being level with the fingers of the right. By now suddenly turning the hands over, the cent from the right hand will fly, without being perceived, into the palm of the left, and make the transit appear most unaccountable to the bewildered eyes of the spectators. By placing the audience in front, and not at the side of the exhibitor, this illusion, if neatly performed, can never be detected.

THE TRAMP WON THE BET.

How an Ingenious Tramp Won Five Dollars.

"There's a queer story connected with that chair," said an old caterer of this city, pointing to a substantial piece of furniture in his private office. "I had it originally in my bar for my own use, but I never got a chance. It was always occupied by some visitor or other who couldn't resist the temptation to sit down, it looked so comfortable. I got exasperated about the thing, and one day I was expressing myself pretty freely when a tramp wandered in to beg a drink.

"'What'll you give me if I fix that chair so nobody'll use it but you?' he asked.

"'Five dollars,' I replied, never supposing he was in earnest.

"He went down to the telegraph office, stole a small piece of insulated wire and wrapped it around the arm of the chair. 'There you are,' said he, 'now watch what happens.' In a few moments a customer sauntered in, edged over to the chair and was about to sit down when he saw the wire. 'No, you don't!' he exclaimed, backing away. 'You can't catch me!' He got his drink and went out, chuckling over his cleverness. In half an hour five or six others approached the chair, with the evident intention of camping there, but noticed the wire and beat a retreat.

"In the course of the day only one man really seated himself. He was a fat old fellow, and didn't observe the attachment until he had settled down. Instantly he began to struggle to his feet. 'Don't you turn on that current!' he yelled, 'don't you dare do it, or I'll have you arrested!' As soon as he could get up he shot out. I gave the tramp his $5 and enjoyed undisputed possession as long as the chair remained in the bar. Everybody supposed it was rigged up for a practical joke."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Carnival Time in Russia.

Shopping, shopping, shopping, goes on without intermission, says Good Words. Those who can prepare to adorn their bodies with one or more articles of new clothing, but all make preparations for a sumptuous feast. It is interesting to watch the shops, especially in the public markets, to see the avidity with which every article of food is bought up. The butchers come in, perhaps, for the largest share of custom, as flesh, especially smoked ham, is in universal demand. Ham among all classes of the community is indispensable for the breaking of the fast and the due celebration of the feast. Dyed eggs are in universal request. The exchange of eggs, accompanied with kissing on the lips and cheeks in the form of the cross, accompanies all gifts or exchange. The "koolitch" and "paska" have also to be bought. The koolitch is a sweet kind of wheaten bread, circular in form, in which there are raisins. It is ornamented with candied sugar and usually has the Easter salutation on it: "Christos vozkress" ("Christ is risen"), the whole surmounted with a large gaudy red-paper rose.

The paska is made of curds, pyramidal in shape, and contains a few raisins, and, like the former, has also a paper rose inserted on the top. These are sine qua non for the due observance of Easter, but what relations they may have, if any, to the Jewish feast of the Passover it is difficult to see, although in many other respects there is a striking resemblance to the service of the temple in Jerusalem in the ritual of the Russo-Greek church.

Not His Kind.

Two members of a well established firm that does business in the wholesale district indulged in the following dialogue the other afternoon:

Junior Partner—Why didn't you give that man a chance? We need another clerk here, and I rather liked his looks.

Senior Partner—I liked his looks, too, but he's no good.

Junior Partner—How do you know that?

Senior Partner—When a man who is looking for a job comes to me and says, "I suppose you don't want to hire any one to-day, do you?" that's enough. If he had anything in him he'd come right out and say what he meant. If he supposed we didn't want to hire any one why did he waste our time and his by coming in to bother us?—Chicago Times-Herald.

Mrs. Calliper and the Colonel.

"Jason," said Mrs. Calliper to her absent-minded husband, looking toward the clouds as she spoke, "what a lovely bluefish sky!"

"'Bluefish sky,' Cynthia?" said the Colonel, with more than his usual dazedness of manner, "'bluefish sky?' Oh, you mean mackerel sky, Cynthia, mackerel sky."

"No, I don't, Jason," said Mrs. Calliper, usually, however, much put out she might feel over the Colonel's failure to appreciate her little jokes, accepting his corrections cheerfully, but this time, at least, revolting. "No, I don't, Jason," she said; "I don't mean mackerel sky at all. If you don't like bluefish I am ready to call it green fish or yellow fish, or any color, but not mackerel."—New York Sun.

THE SALMON'S LEAP.

REMARKABLE ACROBATIC FEATS PERFORMED BY THIS FISH.

One Observer Recorded a Spring of Eighteen Feet—The Height That Can be Attained Depends Upon the Build of the Creature—Speed Required at the Start.

A few years ago in a fisherman's nook in London, we were discussing the height to which a salmon could leap, and an Englishman stated that he had known salmon to make a clean leap of twenty feet perpendicularly. This was questioned by a Scotchman present, who said that he had been on many a salmon river and had never yet seen the salmon that could clear ten feet perpendicularly. Several different views were expressed upon the subject and since that time I have taken occasion to measure falls in several rivers where salmon were leaping, for the purpose of determining how far a salmon can leap.

The question allows of some elaboration, and several important factors must be taken into consideration. First, the character of the "take-off," or, in other words, the water from which the salmon starts below the falls. If he can start from a quiet, deep pool or eddy just below the falls he can make a much higher leap than if he must start from broken water or shallow water. In some rivers salmon are much longer and slenderer than in others, and the slender salmon make much higher leaps than the more robust ones. A fresh run salmon may be so fat that he is clumsy, and not able to do his best at leaping, but after three or four weeks spent in the river he may perform some remarkable acrobatic feats.

In the Washecootai river I have seen salmon thrown back time and again from a leap of about six feet, and do not remember ever having seen a salmon make more than an eight-foot leap in that river. On the Olomana river I have seen salmon thrown back repeatedly from a leap of ten feet, but having been foiled several times in succession these fish jumped approximately fourteen feet on two occasions, and sixteen feet in one instance, while I was watching them. On the Kegashka river I have seen salmon leap about twelve feet, but in this river the leaping place was not where I could measure the height of the chosen spot. On the Coal river, Newfoundland, salmon seem to have difficulty in clearing eight feet of the fall, and this is due probably to the character of the rocks beneath the fall, but as the water from which they leaped was white water I could not see the character of the "take-off." On the north branch of the Humber river salmon were leaping very much higher with ease over falls similar in character to those of the Coal river.

The highest leaping that I have ever seen was on the first falls of the White Bear river, in Labrador. The salmon in this river are not large, and the adult fish weigh quite uniformly from eight to ten pounds; but they are very slender and have tremendously broad tails. A photograph of one of those salmon of ten pounds weight placed by the side of a sea trout of four and a half pound's weight shows the breadth of tail and the more graceful outlines of the salmon of this river. I measured the height to which the salmon were leaping, approximately, by standing above the falls and letting my line run from the top of the falls into the pool below, and this line was marked with knots three feet apart, so that while the distances were not measured accurately, I was able to determine that most of the salmon leaping in the falls at this point were making a leap of about twelve feet. Salmon would occasionally leap far past this chosen spot into another spot, which was approximately eighteen feet from the pool below.

Reducing the question to one of mechanics we may estimate that a salmon of ten pounds weight leaping from a still pool requires an initial velocity at the moment of leaving the water of eighteen miles an hour in order to have momentum sufficient to carry him twelve feet perpendicularly. A velocity of twenty-three miles an hour is required for carrying this same fish eighteen feet perpendicularly.

Luther as a Joker.

The Rev. William Conan, depicts grim old Martin Luther as a man not only fond of the good things of life but of an almost Rabelaisian humor. Says Mr. Conan: "In 1546, during his last visit to Eisleben, the conversation having turned upon sickness and death, Luther playfully said, "If I get back to Wittenberg I will take to good eating and drinking, so that the worms may have a fine fat doctor to devour.' A grim joke, but it was the way of the great man. The devil figures largely in the jokes of the Reformer. Luther's devils were a set of athletic, cross-grained ill-conditioned wretches, with vile shapes and fiendish faces, who, like the 'Killkrooph' of Germany, or the 'Far Darrig' of Ireland, gave buffet for buffet, hate for hate, and joke for joke. At one time in the cloisters of Wittenberg he heard that peculiar noise which attests the devil's presence. It came from behind a stove, resembling the sound of throwing a faggot on the fire."

A Costly Bible.

The most costly book in the royal library at Stockholm is a Bible. It is no wonder that it is considered precious, for there is not another just like it in the world. In weight and size alone it is unique. It is said that 160 asses' skins were used for its parchment leaves. There are 309 pages of writing, and each page falls but one inch short of being a yard in length. The width of the leaves is 20 inches. The covers are solid planks four inches thick.

A Sea Cocoanut.

A "sea cocoanut" was picked up on the beach at Biddeford pool, Me. recently. It is a solid mass of sea mosses and grasses, bunched by the action of the sea and rolled into spherical shape. It is a queer-looking object and is regarded as a curiosity, though dwellers by the beach say that similar specimens are occasionally picked up, some as large as a golden pumpkin.

Will Rebuild Pier.

The Board of Freeholders of Middlesex county have taken steps to erect a trestle and shoring under the west end of the Albany street bridge at New Brunswick. The pier, abutment and retaining wall of the elevated approach are in a dangerous condition. The pier will have to be entirely rebuilt, and will cost about $70,000.

Has a Kissing Bug on Exhibition.

What is claimed to be a real "kissing bug" is now on exhibition at the pharmacy of Edward S. F. Randolph, conner of West Fourth and Liberty streets. Mr. Randolph captured it the other evening and now has it on exhibition. It is a black insect of quite goodly proportions, with an ugly pair of horns sticking out of its head.

Miss Nora Thompson, of Jersey City, is visiting her friend, Miss Annie Kelly, of New street.

WANTED A MARSHAL

LIVELY DISCUSSION BETWEEN MAYOR AND BOROUGH COUNCILMAN.

Mr. Rogers Thought it Would be Well to Have Another Marshal —His Reasons Why—Mayor's Reply.

Councilman George T. Rogers took occasian at the meeting of the Borough Council last evening to speak of the efforts of the administration to get along with one less man on the police force. He said that he would be willing to pay a little extra to have a marshal pass his property once every hour during the night. He remarked that a few nights ago he found a drunken man on his lawn and he had evidently been there long enough to sober up.

To the above the Mayor remarked that he did not know that there were such characters in Washington Park, but Mr. Rogers fully convinced the other members that the man found his way there from another part of the borough. However, Mr. Rogers commended the spirit of the Mayor in waiting until he could secure a man who would earn $50 a month, the salary paid to marshals.

CROP OUTLOOK IN JERSEY.

Apples and Pears Will be of Unusually Good Flavor This Year.

Although the apple crop in New Jersey will not be above the average this year as far as quantity is concerned, farmers all over the State say the fruit will be much better than usual; that it will be larger and finer in appearance than it has been for several years and that the crop will bring good prices. In the region near Freehold the crop will be very much larger than usual, and the farmers there say that the fruit will also be of superior quality.

The Keifer pear crop will be an average crop, judging from the prospects. The pears will be of fine appearance and quality.

The drought in Southern Jersey has been more severe than in the northern part of the State; yet the farmers are getting good prices, and expect an average year as to net receipts.

A Vaudeville Show.

A vaudeville entertainment is to be given at the Mountain Park Inn this evening by Isham's Octoroons, of New York.

Miss Ella Coddington, of Grove street, has accepted a position as stenographer and typewriter in New York.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

PERSONAL GOSSIP OF INTEREST TO CITY AND BOROUGH.

In Brief are Told the Daily Doings of Many Residents and Visitors Who Go and Come in a Social and Business Way

Miss Anna Darrow, of Pluckamin, is visiting friends in Plainfield.

John Schorb, of this city, has been visiting relatives at Warrenville.

Miss Martha Reid and the Misses Sheehan, of this city, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Casey, of Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, of Jackson avenue, have gone to Royce-field, Hunterdon county, for the benefit of Mr. Martin's health.

Miss Katherine Brooders has returned to her home at Roundout, N. Y., after a two weeks, visit with Miss May Hughes, of Jackson avenue.

Captain James Parker, who is counsel for the depositors in the Middlesex Bank at Perth Amboy, which was wrecked by the defalcation of Cashier Valentine, is an old resident of Plainfield.

A promising son has come to gladden the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. John Calder, of Stone street. The little man became a boarder early Thursday morning. Congratulations are in order at the Calder residence.

Councilman J. F. Buckle, wife and daughter, of Westervelt avenue, went to Woodmont, Conn., yesterday afternoon to spend a few days with Councilman R. I. Tolles and family, who are summering at that place.

Jacob Sperling, of the Campbell Printing Press Works, who is located at Scranton, Pa., returned to the latter place today after a short visit with Plainfield friends. His wife and family accompanied him to Scranton.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on L. W. Randolph, Druggist, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c. and $1. Every bottle guaranteed, or price refunded.

That Artistic Temperament.

One evening at a social function where Sarasate was among the guests, a young violinist had the bad taste to play one of Sarasate's compositions with variations of his own creation, says the Argonaut. The latter were inappropriate and inartistic, and jarred upon the ears of all. The performer ended his work and made his way to Sarasate, doubtless expecting a word of recognition or praise. Sarasate said nothing, and the player finally asked: "I hope you recognize that piece?" "Certainly," Sarasate promptly replied, "it was a piece of impudence."

She Slept With a Snake.

Miss Mary Myers, residing on Shepherd's "Lower Farm," near Shepherdstown, W. Va., awoke the other morning to find that she had occupied the bed that night with a huge black snake. The young woman prepared to rearrange her bed, and found upon removing the covers his snakeship comfortably coiled in the center of the bed. It was immediately despatched by her father, W. S. Myers, and was found to be over three and a half feet long.

First Envelope Made.

One of the odd exhibits in the British Museum, London, is the first envelope ever made. It is a crude, hand-made affair, but constructed on lines similar to those in use to-day. Up to the middle of the present century modern envelopes were unknown. Correspondents folded their sheets into little squares, sealing the flap with wax and writing the superscription on the blank back.

Wanted Her Money's Worth.

Australian women must be thrifty. A while ago a Sydney woman went to the Lavender Bay baths, disrobed and plunged into deep water, though she could not swim. The proprietor's sister jumped in, clothes on, and rescued her. Woman then dressed, and on going out asked for her thripence back, as she had not had her swim.

G. W. COOLEY LEADS FOR M'CUTCHEN CUP.

Official Standing of Contestants Given Out by the Committee.

FEW PLAY LAST SATURDAY.

DULL SEASON NOW AT THE PARK GOLF CLUB.

G. W. Cooley and Chas. E. Faber Were the Only Contestants Out for the Cup Saturday—They Made High Scores—Had to Play in the Rain—Cooley's Play Landed Him First for the Cup.

Between the hot weather, the prospect of showers and the summer vacations of the golfers, Saturday afternoon saw very few players on the links of the Park Golf Club. It was the smallest attendance since the course was opened for play in the spring. Considering all the conditions, however, it is rather wonderful that any turned out at all.

Somehow it didn't seem the right kind of a day to play golf and those who did brave sun and shower and ventured out found that playing came mighty near being very hard work. There were only two competitors for points for the Mrs. C. W. McCutchen cup and so they had everything their own way. They had to play right through a brisk shower so their scores ran far above the usual number of strokes.

Gifford W. Cooley and Charles E. Faber were the only ones to hand in their cards for the cup. The day was not conducive to low scores and they didn't make any. There really wasn't any need of any for they had no one to beat. There scores follow:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Charles E. Faber.....	147	24	123
Gifford W. Cooley.....	141	9	132

The point they added to their little collections were just as good, however, as if they had both done the eighteen holes in less than the even hundred. There were a few other players out, principally new but wildly enthusiastic players whom nothing outside of a genuine tornado could persuade to keep away. They gave the few caddies that turned up something to do. No records were broken, however.

The most important happening of the day was the official announcement of the greens committee of the standing of the various competitors for the McCuctchen cup. There were several changes from the standing heretofore published in The Press and compiled from the reports of each week's play. Several scores, entered after the reports were furnished, introduced several new candidates in the contest and reduced the lead of others. A. C. Crowe's high score for one week was not counted. The result, after including the points scored Saturday, showed that G. W. Cooley was in the lead, with Charles E. Faber second and Meredith Dryden third.

The official standing of the candidates for the cup follows:

Gifford W. Cooley.....	8
Charles E. Faber.....	7
Meredith Dryden.....	6½
G. W. Faber.....	6
W. de la R. Anderson.....	4½
Samuel Townsend.....	4½
E. T. Douglass.....	3½
H. D. Hibbard.....	3
Arthur Peck.....	3
Fred P. Taylor.....	2½
S. S. Squires.....	2½
Wm. A. Townsend.....	2½
A. B. Laine.....	2
Fred S. Overton.....	1½
Clarence S. Boome.....	1½

PROGRESS OF TROLLEY.

Roselle Council Will Consider Trolley Franchise Finally Thursday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, August 7—At a meeting of the Borough Council the ordinance and petition of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway was ordered taken from the table after consultation between Col. Hine and the Council, the further consideration was adjourned to Thursday. On motion the borough attorney was asked to draw up an agreement to cover the cost of opening streets and to indemnify the borough against loss.

Will Petition For Franchise.

This evening a regular meeting of the Common Council will be held at which time the Plainfield Street Railway Company will petition for a franchise to locate and operate a trolley line through Arlington avenue. No doubt there will be strong opposition to the trolley road, but it seems almost a certainty that the franchise will be granted.

Endeavorers at Camp Woolfe.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue church will take charge of the evening gospel meeting at Camp Woolfe, the fresh-air mission in Westfield. The meeting will be led by Miss Annie Wyckoff, and there will be special music. The Endeavorers will go to Westfield by stage.

WILL LICENSE MILKMEN.

IMPORTANT AMENDMENT TO BOARD OF HEALTH ORDINANCE.

Will be Acted on at Meeting of Common Council Tonight—Welcomed by Milkmen Who Want Protection

At the meeting of the Common Council this evening an amendment will be made to the Board of Health ordinance regulating the sale of milk. If the ordinance is adopted in the future milkmen will be licensed and they will be obliged to carry a license number on their wagons for which they will probably have to pay $1 which will pay for the clerical work necessary. The Health Inspector will then be obliged to keep his eye on all the local milkmen and their dairies. Such protection to the residents of Plainfield has been needed for a long time and the adoption of the ordinance will be welcomed by all.

As stated recently in The Daily Press the milkmen welcome such an ordinance for they feel their business will then be protected against careless dealers. The State milk inspector does not make his rounds as often as he should and it gives milkmen so disposed plenty of opportunity to conduct their business in a careless manner.

ROOM IN CARPET MAKING

VANDEVENTER CARPET CO. BUILDING NEW FACTORY AT GREENSBORO.

Plainfield Factory Will Not Be Given up—Will Soon Have to Run Overtime to Supply the Demand—Sixty Employed.

That a wave of prosperity seems to be rolling about is evidenced by the fact that the VanDeventer Carpet Company, of this city, is now building a new factory, much larger than their present one at Greenboro, N. C. The engine department and dyeing establishment are now about completed and work is being pushed rapidly on the main structure. It is likely that the new mill will require nearly one hundred hands to run it. There are advantages in the location of a carpet mill at the above place for the reason that it will be near to the cotton market and they intend to make a higher grade of goods.

The mill in this city is running full time, and will not be given up as reported. In a short while the mill will be run overtime to meet the increasing demands for goods, and, according to those in charge of the mill, business is now on the boom. There are about sixty people employed at the Plainfield mill.

The new mill at Greensboro will be a two-story building, 50x100 feet, and the product will consist of ingrains and art squares. It is reported that in all parts of the country the carpet business is better, and the mills are in better condition than for many years past.

LIFE LONG RESIDENT GONE.

Death of Miss Margaret Sanford, Aged Sixty Years, at Westfield Saturday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 7—During the heavy thunder storm Saturday afternoon Miss Margaret Sanford, aged sixty years, died at the home of her brother, Edward C. Sanford, on First street. Miss Sanford was a lifelong resident of this town and had many friends. She has been suffering for several years with what the doctors called leakage of the heart. The funeral services will be held from the residence of her brother Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, the services being conducted by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the Methodist church, of which she was a member.

This is the second death that has occurred in the Sanford home during the past week, Mr. Sanford's mother, Mrs. Thomas Falyn, of Cranford, having died there while on a visit last Sunday. Her funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, just one week before.

FREE DELIVERY FOR MADISON.

Madison to Have Free Mail Delivery After November 1st

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Madison, August. 7—It is now assured that Madison will have free delivery of mail matter. Postoffice Inspecter Snow's recommendation of two weeks ago has been approved, and according to the letter received by Postmaster Larison, from First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath, the service will be inaugurated about November 1st.

There is to be three carriers, one substitute carrier, and eighteen letter boxes.

Report to be Presented Before Congress Meets

Hon. H K. Carroll, U. S. Commissioner to Porto Rico, has completed about one-half of his report. It will be very large and must be finished before Congress meets in regular session in December.

DRAGGED CHILD FROM FAST FREIGHT'S PATH

Brave Act of Gatekeeper Charles Williams, of Dunellen.

NEVER HAD AN ACCIDENT.

HAS BEEN AT THE CROSSING FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Was Warned of Situation By Screams of Those Who Saw Child's Danger—Reached Her Just in Time—Engineer Could Not Stop Fast Freight—Child Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A Carpenter.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 7—The frantic screams of some children and the heartrending shrieks of several women attracted the attention of Charles Williams, the faithful gatekeeper at the Grove street railroad crossing in rear of Taylor's Hotel at Dunellen at 6:30 o'clock last Monday evening.

Gatekeeper Williams had but just let down the long bars at the approach of a fast freight train. The screams came from the direction of a group of children playing at the side of the roadway just in the rear of the hotel. The shrieks emanated from two women on the opposite side of the tracks.

Williams looked first towards the children and then across the tracks. There, directly before him on the tracks, stood a child.

The fast freight was running at a speed of thirty miles an hour. The child—a mere infant—stood directly in the path of the train. It was toddling as fast as its little feet would let it, at the same time calling to the children opposite.

Williams hesitated but a moment. His hand was still upon the handle of the crank which had just closed the gates. If that child's life was to be saved he must act promptly.

Quick as a flash Williams slid beneath the lowered gates. With one lunge forward Williams grasped the little one in his arms and throwing himself to one side fell to the tracks.

With a rush and a roar the ponderous engine swept by. It was a close shave.

Those who had seen the child on the tracks and saw Williams make an effort to save the little one, had turned their backs to the scene, for they did not expect that he would succeed.

When the woman and children did find courage to open their eyes they were surprised to see Williams and the little child safe and sound.

Though the engineer of the fast freight could see the danger of the child he was unable to stop his train. He did, however, succeed in checking its speed. He supposed he had struck both the child and the gatekeeper. It was not until the following day that he learned of the clever work of Mr. Williams.

The child whose life Gatekeeper Williams saved is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carpenter, of Brooklyn, who have been visiting Mrs. Ambrose Merinscheck.

When Gatekeeper Williams was asked by a Daily Press reporter about the affair, he simply said: "Oh, that was nothing. I did the best I could." It required considerable tact on the part of the reporter to get Mr. Williams to admit that he had saved the child's life. He finally did say that "he pulled the kid out of the way." Those who were witnesses to the brave act, however, did not hesitate to tell the reporter the facts.

The rescue of the little Carpenter girl is the third life Mr. Williams has saved at this point. He has been in the employ of the Central Railroad as gatekeeper and flagman for nearly twenty years, and he is proud of the fact that he has never had an accident. Certainly, such fidelity to duty deserves just recognition.

R. F. Murray Plays Golf.

In notes "On the New Jersey Beaches" the following rocord is made of one of our honored citizens stopping at Seabright: "R. F. Murrry and Mrs. Murray, of Plainfield, N. J., the former a member of the New Jersey Assembly, are at the Peninsula. Mr. Murray is a great golf player and spends much of his time on the links of the Seabright Golf Club."

The Firemen's Parade.

Warren Engine Company has invited six fire companies from various parts of New Jersey to join them in their firemen's parade to be held October 12th. If the West End Hose Company decides to join Warren Engine Company in the affair it is likely that twelve companies will be invited.

IS NOW TREATED WELL AT MIDDLESEX COUNTY JAIL.

Strict Guard Kept Over Him and He is Not Allowed to See Any of the Other Prisoners—Takes Outing in Corridor of Jail Accompanied by Deputies—He Told How He Escaped

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 7—The life of William Darling, the young Plainfield man accused of the murder of Harry Dunham, and now confined in the Middlesex county jail here, continues without incident. There are still many visitors at the jail, but they are not allowed to see Darling. He is very quiet and orderly and has not given a bit of trouble so far.

The prisoner is well looked after and has part of his meals from the sheriff's table, which are all paid for by the prisoner and his family. When the other prisoners are locked up in the afternoon Darling is allowed to walk up and down the corridor and take a little exercise. He is always accompanied by two of the deputies on these little airings. He is not permitted to mingle with the other prisoners.

Since his imprisonment here Darling has had very little to say. He reads part of the time and spends the rest in reflection.

While he was locked up in the Fulton county jail at McConnellsburg, Pa., he there told where he went the night after the murder. The story was repeated to the officers that went after him and by them related here. After shooting Dunham, Darling says he sprang on his wheel and rode over to New Brunswick. Turning about he came back to Plainfield by the way of Metuchen, and stopped a few moments at his home on Prospect avenue. Then he wheeled over to South Plainfield where he dumped his bicycle into the pond and boarded a westbound freight train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The train passed through New Market, and from his place of observation Darling could see the crowd of people about Dentz's saloon, only a short distance from the railroad. They were looking for him then, but had no idea that he was quite as close as that. Darling then went west, and after traveling about for a time, finally made his way into the mountains of southern Pennsylvania, close to the Maryland line, where he thought he ocuid easily cross into the other state should his pursuers ever come there in search of him. He felt quite secure, however, there.

LOWER TAX RATE FOR WESTFIELD.

Rate This Year Will be $2 56, Two Cents Lower Than Last Year.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 7.—The tax rate in Westfield township for this year is $2.56 on a hundred. This is two cents lower thad 1898, although the county tax was increased $20,000, and there was an increrse of $1,250 in the township on the special school tax. The valuations this year are the same, but new properties have kept the rates down. The rates were made up as follows: County tax, 58 cents; State school tax, 28 cents; roads, 34 cents; street lights, 18 cents; poor, 5 cents; fire, 5 cents; hydrants, 4 cents; county roads, 4 cents; sewer maintance, 18 cents; special school tax, 82 cents, making a total of $2.56.

MARRIED VETERAN OF LATE WAR.

Miss Ruth Moore and Richard Davis Were Married Saturday Night.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Ruth Moore, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Terry, Sr., of East Third street, to Richard Davis, also of this city. The event took place last Saturday evening at the home of Rev. H. W. McKane, of West Second street, who performed the ceremony in the presence of Mrs. Terry, who gave her daughter away. The groom is a carpenter by trade and is 38 years of age. He enlisted in the war against Spain and served in Cuba, returning home at the close of the contest. His wife is 18 years of age. The couple will reside at the home of the groom in this city.

"The Word Of Lord is Precious."

Was the subject of a most excellent sermon by Rev. Peter Stryker, D. D., of Asbury Park, in Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning. A large congregation was present and the grand old divine gave them one of his best sermons, taking his text from 1st Samuel, last clause of the first verse, third chapter.

PREACHED SERMON ON THE SUBJECT SUNDAY MORNING.

Doubted Right of Man Who Signed License Application to Christian Citizenship—Too Many Think Church Work Falls on Pastor and Women—Denouncement of Great Influence on Election Day.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 7.—Rev. Mr. Shott continued his moral agitation yesterday in the interest of the Citizens' League. At the morning service he took his text from Jeremiah, 1; 7 and 8 verses—"But the Lord said unto me, 'Say not that I am a child; for thou shall go to all that I shall send thee, and whatsoever I command thee shalt speak. Be not afraid of their faces for I am with thee to deliver thee.'"

The sermon was a scathing arrignment of the licensing of eight drinking places in the township and borough. He pointed out the fact that it took ninety-six Freeholders out of a voting population of a little over 300 to sign eight applications for licenses. Mr. Shott said in part:

"If a man—a member of a church—signs an application for a license, saying he believes such a place a necessity to the community. I doubt that man's right to Christian citizenship. If such a man is here, I say 'thou art the man!' You go on granting licenses to deal out damnation to your boys. If Jesus Christ was in Scotch Plains, what would be His attitude? Would He go up to a court and say that He believed a place to deal out damnation in the town was a necessity, and that the Sunday-selling of rum was advancing the moral interest of the town? You say no. Then if we are here representing Jesus, we must endeavor to do as He would do. There are too many men who think the work of the church falls upon the pastor and the women of the church. How many of you men present will be at the church prayer meeting Friday evening? Don't make your excuses to me; make them to God. If I did not believe it was God's call my coming here, I would not stay twenty-four hours. The popular masses of the day are dropping the church. What influence has this little church of one hundred and fifty years? The man with influence at the polls today is the man who is filled with beer or its influence. You cannot elect law-breakers and expect them to arrest themselves. But the day will come when I hope some other influence will be felt at the polls election day. I believe the tendency in the church of today is man's fear of man, more than his fear of God. There are some things in our town that must be thrown down, and then upon the debris let us begin to plant and build anew."

In the evening Rev. Mr. Shott gave the first of a series of very interesting talks upon the life and work of A. J. Diaz, known as the Baptist apostle to Cuba.

SUBSCRIPTION EUCHRE PARTY.

Will Be Given at Hotel Hunterston Thursday Evening.

The subscription euchre party, to be given by the guests of the Hotel Hunterston Thursday evening, bids fair to be a great success both socially and financially. The proceeds will be used for the purchase of reading matter to be sent to the soldier boys in the Philippines who are away from home and many of whom are without friends to write them a line.

Tickets have been sent to many prominent people in the city who have responded liberally. Persons who have not received tickets can find them at the principal drug stores or at the hotel on the evening of the entertainment.

Aside from the benefit to the soldiers a delightful evening will be spent. The game will be called at 8:15 o'clock sharp and will continue until 10:30, when a number of handsome prizes will be awarded to the successful players. Dancing will begin at close of the game and continue until 2 o'clock. For the benefit of persons attending the party and dance, special trolley cars will be run from Netherwood until 1:30 o'clock.

Charles Foster and family, of Jersey City, spent Sunday in Plainfield with relatives.

Miss Maude Allen, of Jackson avenue, has returned from a two weeks' visit with her cousin, Miss Mamie Cavalier, at New Brunswick.

LIGHTNING HIT HOUSE.

PETER RUSS WAS THROWN FROM HIS CHAIR UNCONSCIOUS.

Was Sitting in the Room Saturday Night When Bolt Came Down the Chimney—All Family Felt the Shock.

Peter Russ, a machinest employed at the Potter Press Works, received a severe shock of lightning last Saturday evening. Mr. Russ was at his home, 540 West Fifth street, at the time the storm came up. He was in the sitting room with his family when there was a sharp flash of lightning. Instantly Mr. Russ was thrown to the floor and was rendered unconscious. The bolt of lightning came down the chimney and passed directly through the sitting room. Mrs. Russ was terribly frightened as were the other members of the family, who also felt the shock. Mr. Russ was not seriously injured and soon was brought back to consciousness. The chimney was damaged a trifle, several bricks being knocked loose.

This is the second time this house has been struck by lightning, the first damage being done about a year ago. Mrs. Russ is so frightened that she declared her intention of procuring other quarters.

WHEELED INTO BROOK.

STORM CAUGHT J. H. SCRIVEN AND HE COULDN'T STOP.

Was Wheeling Back of Scotch Plains Saturday Night—Lost Control of Bicycle and Took Header Into Brook.

Isaac J. Scriven, janitor of the Babcock building, had a thrilling experience Saturday evening. He was up to Scotch Plains and Feltville on his wheel. When coming down the long hill at the "back pond" he found the wind rather strong. It was about 7 o'clock and a storm was coming up. Scriven thought he could get to a place of shelter before the threatening rain came. In this he was mistaken. Before he realized his predicament the storm had burst upon him. At that time he was coming down the hill. The breeze became a gale and in a jiffy he was literally sailing along. His speed increased. Then he attempted to check the speed of his machine by putting on the brake. But that did little good and he came down that hill at a mile a minute clip.

Before Scriven was aware of it he had lost control of his wheel. It took but a few seconds to reach the bottom of the hill. Then Scriven took a header over the bushes into the brook. He picked himself up and took an inventory of his injuries, which consisted of scratches on his face and hands. The rain was pouring in torrents and Scriven took to a neighboring farm house for shelter. Fortunately his wheel was not damaged and he was able to ride home after the storm abated.

SECOND CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Has Been Organized and Officers Chosen—Meetings Held at Members' Homes, Now.

The Second Christian church, of Plainfield, has been organized as a regular church, and the following officers have been chosen to guide its affairs: Pastor, Elder J. A. Foster; deacons, H. A. Mears, Henry VanMiddlesworth, W. H. Keoyer, E. E. Steen; deaconess, Miss Carrie Wright; treasurer, W. H. Keoyer; secretary, Henry VanMiddlesworth. At the next regular meeting of the church trustees will be elected. The church is now in a healthy and prosperous condition, and new members are being constantly taken in. There is an average attendance at all services of about thirty persons, and there are chances that at some future date commodious meeting quarters will be secured. Services are now held at the homes of the members.

RANG ALARM BY HAND.

Westfield Fire Alarm System Would't Work Saturday Night For Fire.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Aug. 7—During the heavy storm which visited this town Saturday afternoon, the handsome residence of H. H. Brown at the corner of Dudley avenue and Clarke street was struck by lightning at the top of the cupalo. The house took fire, but the rain which came down in torrents extinguished the flames, although the fire department responded promptly to the alarm which was sent in. The fire alarm refused to work, and Chief W. H. Chamberlain was compelled to climb to the top of the fire tower and ring the bell by hand.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Haynes, of North avenue, spent Sunday with relatives at Clinton, Hunterdon county.

Arthur Serrell, son of Harold Serrell, of Myrtle avenue, is confined at his home with an illness resembling typhoid fever. Dr. Fritts is in attendance.

BRAVED BIG STORM IN OPEN CATBOAT.

Thrilling Experience of Party of Plainfielders.

SAILING IN NEW YORK BAY.

STORM CAME UP BEFORE THEY COULD REACH SHELTER.

Spent the Day on the Water—Anchored Near Bedloes Island When Squall Came—Flag Pole Struck by Lightning—Were Compelled to Jump Out and Swim Ashore—They Reached Island Safely.

Five young men, three of them from this city, gathered in the shelter of a little shed on Bedloes Island, under the shadow of the Statue of Liberty, late Saturday afternoon, and congratulated each other on their miraculous escape and watched their trim little craft drift away to probable destruction. They had been out sailing in New York Bay and were caught in the terrible storm that swept over New York, just escaping with their lives.

The party, which consisted of Edward Maxwell Honeyman, of Grove street, his cousin, Dr. Fred B. Zandt, of Jamesburg, N. J., Henry Baldwin Drake, of Duer street, George A. Horne, of Willow avenue, and his guest, Edward H. Hammond, of Boston, Mass., started out early Saturday morning in the catboat "Adelaide," from Communipaw. The morning and most of the afternoon was spent very enjoyably in sailing about New York Bay. In the afternoon, they started to go into the lower bay and had reached the Narrows when they saw a great storm approaching. Coming about, they started back without delay. The boat rode the waves well but when they were abreast of Bedloes Island, the squall was upon them. They came to anchor between Bedloes Island and Oyster Island hoping that the islands would break the violence of the storm.

The wind, rain and hail came altogether and the waves rose rapidly until they dashed over the boat. Everything was swept overboard except what the young men wore. The anchor dragged and the yacht approached dangerously near a line of rocks jutting out from the island. Seeing that a wreck seemed inevitable, they all sprang into the water and tried to keep their craft off the reef. Believed of their weight the boat swept off while the force of the waves compelled them to swim for their lives. They finally reached the shore much exhausted, and took shelter in a little shed there.

Vivid lightning played about the mast before the young men left the yacht, and Horne was slightly shocked by the electricity. They saw the flag staff on the island nearby shivered by a bolt. The lightning struck the great statue repeatedly, but it seemed to glance off.

An old sailor, who witnessed their efforts to reach the shore, told them that it was a miracle that they escaped. When he saw them drifting, he declared he thought that they were surely fated, for the waves were so high that it would have been impossible to rescue them had they capsized.

They remained on Bedloes Island until the storm passed away and visited the lighthouse there. When the rain and wind ceased, some of the Government employes on the island assisted them in getting their yacht off. It had drifted into shoal water near Oyster Island, where the anchor held, and was not much damaged by the storm. It was half-full of water, however. The young men sailed back to Communipaw and took the train for home, reaching here about 8 o'clock.

PLAINFIELDERS AT OLD FORGE.

Took Part in the Opening of the Racquette Lake Railroad in Adirondacks.

News from Old Forge, N. Y., in Saturday's issue of the Mail and Express give the opening of the Racquette Lake Railroad in the Adirondacks with the following item of interest to Plainfielders: "A colony of New York business men, whose homes are in Plainfield, are with their families at the Bald Mountain House. In the party are Mr. and Mrs. William L. Patten, Miss Winifred Patten, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Haven, Winifred Haven, Elvise Haven, Alice Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Miss Huntington, Josiah Brown and family, W. H Brown and family, Miss Charlotte Brown and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Miller."

Effects Still Felt.

The storm of Saturday night caused a suspension of business with some of the local telephones, and on account of yesterday being Sunday repairs were not made until today.

FIFTY PEOPLE ARE KILLED.

Trolley Party Meets a Frightful Slaghter in a Runaway Car at Stratford, Conn.

CAR JUMPS HIGH BRIDGE

Two of the Most Horrifying Accidents of the Year Happen to Excursion Parties.

Thirty Dead Bodies Taken From the Wrecked Car—Many Others Badly Injured—Two Hundred Thrown Into Deep Water by Breaking of a Gang Plank—Twenty Drowned.

Strarford, Conn., Aug. 7.—Thirty passengers were killed and a dozen injured near here, by a trolley car plunging over a trestle fifty feet high.

The line had just been opened for travel, and evidently the car was not under control, as it approached the trestle at a high rate of speed. The wheels left the tracks immediately and bumped along the ties, then the car plunged over the side, the trestle not being protected by guard rails.

In its flight of fifty feet to the mud flats below the car turned completely over. As it struck the ground the huge four-ton motor was torn from its fastenings and broke through the floor of the car, crushing many passengers to death against the roof, which was imbedded deeply in the mud.

Five minutes before that the passengers on the crowded car, delighted with their first opportunity of seeing the beauties of the Housatonic River on such a lovely day, were laughing and singing. When found by men who hurried to their assistance they were simply jammed into a human mass beneath the great motor.

There was only one eyewitness to the scene. That was a young woman who had noticed the unusual speed of the car. When it toppled over the trestle and the shrieks of the passengers rang in her ears, she could bear no more and fainted.

The exact number of passengers on the ill-fated car is not known. Almost immediately after the accident, and while men were trying to rescue the living and extricate the dead, some employe of the road took away the register of passengers and secreted it.

Broken Gangplank Drowns Twenty.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 7.—While endeavoring to crowd upon a ferryboat at Mount Desert more than twenty persons were drowned and five times that number were pulled from the water in time to escape death. The victims were all excursionists, endeavoring to reach Bar Harbor to get a view of the fleet, which was expected here.

The point of the accident is eight miles from this place and is the terminus of a division of the Maine Central Railroad, in whose charge the excursionists were at the time of the accident. The crowd of 200 were thrown into the water by the breaking of a gangplank.

They had little more chance than if they had been thrown into a well, and that the death list is not a hundred instead of twenty is a miracle to all who saw the accident.

The freight house at Mount Desert has been turned into a morgue. Twenty identified dead are in it, and how many more there are whose bodies have not been recovered is not known, as there was a strong ebb tide running at the time, and many are believed to have been carried out to sea.

The accident indirectly was the result of the over-anxiousness of the excursionists to see the fleet. The Maine Central early in the week advertised excursions to Bar Harbor. The Central runs as far as Mount Desert, and at that point the travelers are sent to Bar Harbor by the ferry. It is an eight-mile sail. The distance from the terminus of the road to the ferry is only a few steps, and it was in these few feet that the score were drowned and some thirty injured. It is thought that of the injured about fifteen will die, and some of the others will be disabled for life.

Rapid Fire Guns For Otis.

Washington, Aug. 7.—General Otis has asked for a number of Sims-Dudley guns, Gatling guns and Hotchkiss 12-pounders. All are rapid-fire guns and are especially adapted to such a warfare as must be prosecuted in the Philippines. The Ordnance Bureau has been busy gathering the guns asked for by General Otis, as they have been scattered about the country in different forts and arsenals, but a sufficient number to meet the present demand has been procured and ordered shipped to Manila.

Capt. Train's Daughter Weds.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 7.—Miss Susie Train, daughter of Capt. Charles J. Train of the United States battleship Massachusetts, was married here to August Noble Hand, son of Richard E. Hand, of Elizabethtown, N. Y. The ceremony was at St. Saviour's Church. Bishop Lawrence officiating.

DREYFUS' TRIAL BEGINS

The Prisoner in Court for the Second Time Charged With Treason.

Rennes, France, Aug. 7.—This city was astir at an early hour this morning and a large crowd was present at the military prison to see Capt. Dreyfus march out under guard to the Salle des Fetes, where his second court-martial on the charge of treason was opened shortly after seven o'clock. Colonel Picquart and General Mercier, who was Minister of War when Dreyfus was condemned, were in the room when the prisoner entered. Dreyfus looked careworn but gave no outward expression of fear or uneasiness. He was conducted to the court room in the Lycee between a double row of gendarmes and did not look to the right or to the left, but kept his head erect and maintained his military bearing until seated in the prisoner's dock. Dreyfus was also accompanied by his attorney. Nothing of an important nature transpired at the morning session, but developments of an interesting nature are looked for at any moment.

The authorities are apparently becoming anxious regarding the maintenance of tranquility during the trial, owing to the invasion of the town by a crowd of anti-Dreyfusard agitators, and heoric police measures have been taken to insure peace.

Cards of admission to the trial were issued to the representatives of the press, every two foreign correspondents without exception receiving one card between them, which means that the leading papers of the world outside of France will only be able to be represented every other day. All of the correspondents who had passes were on hand and entered the building as soon as the doors were open.

Death Along Their Trail.

Hermosillo, Mex., Aug. 7.—The Mexican Government anticipated the Indian outbreak and had been making heavy shipments of war material into the State of Sonora for two months. On the other hand, the Yaquis had been preparing for the conflict for two years. The Government will place 10,000 men in the field if necessary. The rebellious Yaquis now number four thousand well-armed warriors. Sixty Indians were killed in the fight Saturday, and twice that number wounded.

The telegraph wires between Vican and Potam have been cut by the rebels, and the troops are without communication with headquarters.

It is authoritatively reported that the Indians have slaughtered both women and children, and that many American prospectors in the mountain regions have been slaughtered.

The war so far as it has proceeded is one of unparalleled cruelty on the part of the Indians, and it is as much uncalled for as it is cruel. Whole families have been murdered in the most fiendish manner, and settlers are in a panic stricken state in every locality. Hundreds of head of cattle and horses have been killed or driven away by the warring tribe. The Indians are well acquainted with the country and know just where to operate in order that their depredations will yield the proper results, and this is the way they are carrying on their warfare. They skulk around, keeping away from the troops as much as possible, and slaughter indiscriminately, any and all people they come in contact with. It is positively known that more than 200 people have already been murdered and it is feared that many more outrages of a like character will be enacted before the troops can successfully end the uprising.

Flagmen Have Been Removed.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 7.—Residents of both town and country west of this city, along the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, are circulating petitions and preparing to protest to the president of the road against the economic policy which in the last few days has removed flagmen from several crossings. The New Jersey law provides that railroads can be compelled to protect crossings with flagmen, gates or otherwise if the municipality concerned can show in court that such protection is needed.

Manila Steamer Burned.

Manila, Aug. 7.—The steamer Saturnus of the Compania Maritima, coasting under the American Flag, was burned, and her crew is missing. The details of the affair are not known. The captain of the Saturnus once obtained possession of a ship belonging to the Maritima Company, held at San Fernando by the Filipinos, by mooring the Saturnus alongside and hauling the other vessel away in the night.

New Yorker Clung to the Canoe.

St. Paul, Aug. 7.—C. B. Hersey, of this city, was drowned in Long Lake, Wis., by the capsizing of a canoe. He was out fishing with a friend, Mr. Cole, of New York, Cole clung to the boat and was rescued by campers. Mr. Hersey was twenty-four years old, and was proinent in society. He was married nearly two years ago to Miss Helen Sterritt, of Paterson, N. J.

Sloan Will Ride For Whitney.

New York, Aug. 7.—Tod Sloan the celebrated American jockey who has just arrived here from England, announces that he is under contract to ride for W. C. Whitney. He says he may ride a race or two at Saratoga, but cannot say definitely yet whether he will or not.

Locusts as Food.

In Morocco at certain seasons, entire wagon loads of locusts are brought to the market in Fez, because they form a regular article of food for the Moors who inhabit this part of North Africa. Here, also, the locusts are eaten in every style, pickled, salted, simply dried, smoke, or in any other possible way, except raw. The negroes on the northern coast of Africa prefer locusts to pigeons, and they eat from two hundred to three hundred at a sitting. They remove head, wings and legs, boil them for half an hour in water, then add salt and pepper, and fry them in vinegar. In a similar way locusts are prepared at other points in Africa and Asia. Preserved in salt pickle they form a staple article of commerce. Locusts in Africa are also compressed, when fresh, in barrels, and are then dished out like butter at meal times.

REVOLT MAY COME SOON

Prospects of Trouble in Haiti Appear to be of a Very Serious Nature.

IN A STATE OF FERMENT.

Minister Powell Has Cabled State Department That War Ships May be Needed.

The Legation and Consulates Are in Danger—Authorities at Washington Watching Developments—Ready to Order Two Ships There on Short Notice.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Hayti is in a state of ferment, perhaps from sympathy with the neighboring State of San Domingo. United States Minister Powell has cabled to the State Department that the presence of a warship may be required, if the present threatening conditions continue, to insure the safety of the legation and consulates.

The department is closely watching developments, and has been in communication with the Navy Department on the subject, ready to dispatch orders at short notice to Commanders Longnecker and Logan of the New Orleans and Machias respectively. These vessels are now at San Domingo, only half a days' sail from Port au Prince, and will, it is believed, be sufficient to meet the Minister's needs.

General Jiminez Sails.

Havana, Aug. 7.—General Juan Isidro Jiminez, accompanied by six Cubans and four natives of San Domingo, has left here probably for the Dominican Republic. It has not been ascertained how the party sailed; but if, as it is thought, they went on one of the Herrera line steamers for the north coast, expecting to obtain a schooner at Nuevitas, they probably will be arrested or prevented from continuing their journey. General Jiminez said he was ill Saturday, but on account of the many visitors whom he received later, it was believed that some movement was on foot. One thing is certain, and that is that he has gone, taking his baggage with him, as did also his companions. The authorities are making a close investigation in order to discover in which direction the party went.

More Gold Certificates.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The Treasury Department has made requisition upon the Bureau of Engraving and Printing of gold certificates to the amount of $10,000,000 in denominations of $20 each. The treasurer now holds a large unissued supply of certificates of the larger denominations. It is the evident intention of the Treasury Department to be in a position to issue gold certificates freely for gold coin should the fall movement of currency lead to a demand at the Treasury for gold certificates in exchange for gold coin. It is to be noted that while gold coins can be freely had in denominations of fives and tens, the law restricts the issue of gold certificates to denominations of $20 or multiples thereof. It is a debatable question, therefore, whether gold certificates will adequately meet the demand for money of small denominations.

Seeking a Place of Refuge.

London, Aug. 7.—Interesting information comes from the British North Borneo Company to the effect that it has received a request from the Philippines asking the company to lease or sell to the Filipinos Banguey Island, just south of Palawan Island. It is only sparsely inhabited by natives. The Filipinos who are engineering the deal say that in case of their defeat Aguinaldo and other leaders, with a large section of the Filipinos, may settle at Banguey, under British protection and the company's rule. The Board is now considering the question, but it is understood the company is not averse to leasing the island on very favorable terms being offered.

Five Persons Drowned.

Baltimore, Aug. 7.—Five persons were drowned here by the capsizing of a small rowboat in the northwest branch of the Patapsco River, near this city. The victims were Andrew Deems, William J. Lyman, James Welsh, Edward Garry and Mrs. E. Hoover, Mrs. Deems, who completed the party, was rescued. All the bodies were recovered.

Struck an Unmarked Rock.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 7.—The steamer Benedick, Captain Cox, laden with pulp wood, from Rocky Bay for England, struck a sunken rock off Gooseberry Island. The rock is not marked on the chart. The Benedick is in a leaky condition, and a diver is now making an examination of the ship to ascertain the extent of the damage she sustained.

"Coffee Coller" to Fight Ryan.

New York, Aug. 7.—Tommy Ryan, the middle-weight boxer, who has frequently announced that he drew the color line in fighting, has evidently changed his mind. Ryan has signed with the Coney Island Sporting Club to box Frank Craig, better known as the "Coffee Cooler," on Sept. 4. The men will meet in a twenty-five round bout.

Horse's Kick Caused Instant Death.

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 7.—James H. Joline, father of Receiving Teller H. W. Joline of the Long Branch Banknig Company, was kicked by a horse in the livery stable of T. L. Worthley and instantly killed.

Have Gone to Bucksfield.

Boston, Aug. 7.—Secretary of the Navy Long, accompanied by Mrs. Long and Master Pierce Long, have left for Bucksfield, Me., Secretary Long's native town, to remain several weeks.

Nearly 10,000 Volunteers Recruited

Washington, Aug. 7.—The enlistments for the Philippine service Saturday were 322, making a total of 9,825.

BOYCOTT ON THE DECLINE.

Cleveland Meochants Agree to Disregard the Ban.

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—No violence of any kind has occurred in connection with the street-car strike for more than thirty-six hours, and as a result two additional companies of militia have been relieved from duty.

That the boycott sentiment is on the decline there is no longer a doubt. There is a marked increase in the number of passengers carried on the Big Consolidated lines each day. This is especially true along the Broadway and Brooklyn lines, where the boycott movement has been most pronounced. The business men, wholesale and retail merchants, representing nearly every line of trade, have, in conjunctoin with the Chamber of Commerce, taken steps toward making an organized fight against the boycott. Committees have been appointed to canvass the city in order to procure the co-operation of tradespeople generally, and already many of them have agreed to disregard the boycott from this time on.

The strikers, on the other hand, declare that they are receiving liberal donations for their support and are in a position to keep up the fight indefinitely.

Think They Have Dunham.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 7.—The local detectives have arrested a man whom they think is James C. Dunham, accused of a sextuple murder in May, 1896, in Santa Clara County, Cal. He answers the description sent broadcast. The arrest was made by Detectives Harding and Armstrong, and they will divide $11,000 reward if the man now in their custody really is Dunham. The prisoner says his name is C. F. Netherfield. He has been a painter here for a year. Recently he confided to a friend that he was wanted for murder. He is a morphine fiend. The murder was committed in a house between San Jose and Los Gatos. Dunham, thinking he would come into possession of a fortune, killed his wife, her mother and stepfather, a man and a maid servant, and a man who had interfered.

Man of 75 Sent to Jail.

New Haven, Aug. 7.—Bowed by the weight of seventy-five years, Selectman Wilbur Fields, of Hanford, has been sentenced to seventy days in jail by Judge Dow for cruelty to his horse. Dr. Adams, of the Connecticut Humane Society, warned Fields a week ago not to drive the crippled beast any more. Fields disobeyed. He said that he and his family would starve without the horse. "My wife and children have not tasted meat in several days, and if my horse is killed and I am sent to jail they will starve," he faltered. He was led away and his horse killed.

Brooklyn's New Second Baseman.

Toledo, O., Aug. 7.—Erve Beck, Toledo's crack second baseman, has become the property of the Brooklyn team. Manager Strobel sold him to Ned Hanlon, through Ted Sullivan, who closed the deal. Beck finishes the season here. Both parties refused to give the price, but Strobel took $500 less than the price offered in order to keep Beck till the season is over. It is understood $1,000 was the sum paid. Beck has made a gret record since he has been with Toledo.

Forty Per Cent Raise in Wages.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 7.—At a meeting of the Lake Carriers' Association, controlling the wages of 90 per cent. of the large shipping interests on the Great Lakes, it was agreed to advance wages on lake vessels 40 per cent., the advance taking effect on August 15. This is the greatest advance in pay ever made by lake carriers, and does not come in response to threats of any strike, but simply because men are scarce.

Tried to Blow up Court House.

Milwaukee, Aug. 7.—Reports made here lead the police to believe that several small fires which have occurred in the Milwaukee Court House within the last six months were a part of a plan to blow up the Court House and destroy the County records. Each time the fire was gotten under control before serious damage was done. It is thought some one is interested in the destruction of the records.

Chicken Thief Shot Dead.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 7.—J. E. Ritter, a raiser of fancy chickens in the eastern part of the city, placed an electric alarm on his chicken-house door and connected it with his dwelling house. The ringing of the alarm awoke him about midnight. He ran out and fired a load of buckshot into a man near the chicken coop and the man fell dead. The man was identified as William Hall.

Mr. Perot Seeks English Law.

London, Aug. 7.—It is stated that Mr. W. H. Perot, who recently came to England to secure his grandchild, Gladys Perot, intends to apply to the High Court of Justice for a writ of habeas corpus in order to obtain a decision as to who is entitled to the custody of the child.

Drew Unfortunate in Old Age.

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—W. H. Drew of Oneida county, N. Y., son of Samuel A. Drew, an Indian Commissioner under President Jackson, has been committed to the City Infirmary. Drew is 81 years old, and belongs to a prominent central New York family.

Mayor Asked to Resign.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 7.—The members of the City Council in caucus adopted a resolution that Mayor James G. Woodward resign, because he broke his promise to abstain from excessive use of whiskey.

Despatch Boat Sinks Steamer.

London, Aug. 7.—The British despatch boat Surprise sank the British steamer Netley Abbey in a fog in the Channel. No lives were lost. The bows of the Surprise were stove in.

Seventeen Killed in Wreck.

Paris, Aug. 7.—Seventeen persons were killed and thirty-seven injured in a collision on the Orleans Railway in Juvisy. The disaster was the result of imperfect signaling.

A sign in South Clark Street reads: "Stomachs Washed Out While You Wait." It means just what it says. A doctor who has an office at the head of the stairs does the work of renovating stomachs that have become diseased through bad treatment by the owner. For the modest sum of 50 cents he inserts a rubber tube down the esophagus and pumps hot water into the human reservoir until the cavity is thoroughly flushed out. The benefits of the treatment are said to give so much satisfaction to the sufferer that the doctor has many regular customers, and he is making a good living.—From Printers' Ink (Chicago Correspondence), January 27th, 1897.

GLOBE SIGHTS.

When a doctor looks grave, people believe in a cancer.

Every woman objects to the manner in which men shake hands.

When people we don't like die suddenly, it is always a "judgment."

The "training" a man receives before marriage doesn't go after he is married.

Every mother believes her baby is so nice that lots of wicked people are waiting for an opportunity to steal it.

We imagine that kissing a girl wearing glasses would be a good deal like kissing a man with a baseball mask on.

When a woman bore calls, the hostess is compelled to get rid of her twice; when she gets up to go, and at the front door.

A man under 40 is at a disadvantage in that he cannot excuse his attentions to young women on the ground that they are "fatherly."

When a man does a good deed, the women never say, "That's just like a man," and when a woman is wise, no man ever cries, "That's just like a woman."

When there is a dog fight on the street, and the injured dog goes yelping away, all the other dogs take a bite at the injured dog, and they get him by the foot if they can, the foot being the tender part of a dog. People do the same thing. When a man is in trouble, it never seems to occur to any one to attempt to make his situation less miserable; everybody wants to take a bite of his foot.—Atchison Globe.

RESIGNATIONS HANDED IN

Inmates of Hudson House of Refuge on the Rampage.

Hudson, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Miss Abbey Parker, a matron at the Hudson House of Refuge, has handed in her risignation to the Board of Managers, and the resignation of Keeper Charles McArthur was demanded by the board and also handed in.

The retiring officials of the Hudson House of Refuge severely criticise the present methods of governing the institution. Since the "no-corporal-punishment rule" has gone into effect at the House of Refuge it is claimed that a state of anarchy practically reigns. With no punishment allowed for the breaking of the rules, it is asserted, the inmates have totally ignored the orders of the supervisors and the matrons, and it is said they take every opportunity to perpetrate all kinds of acts of vandalism. Dishes are broken and furniture is smashed daily, and the language used to the matrons is alleged to be totally unfit for publication.

Tore up the Car Tracks.

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 7.—Tracks of the Sylvan Lake Street Railway Company, on Saginaw street, the main thoroughfare of the city, were torn up by a gang of men from Detroit. The men are understood to have been employed by Aldermen and other citizens.

The cause for indignation against the company is the fact that the railway company opposes paving of the street, and has enjoined the city from proceeding therewith.

The work of demolition continued until the entire east track was disabled by three gangs of men working at as many different points. The men were cheered and otherwise encouraged by more than a thousand people gathered along Saginaw street. Protestations of the street railway people were wholly in vain. The company is now operating on one track with a few cars running.

The Sylvan Lake Company's franchise requires it to pave the streets between its tracks. It had, it is understood, refused to do this unless other new concessions are made.

Radicals Under Arrest.

Colon, Colombia, Aug. 7.—The government of Colombia suspecting the radicals of Cundinamarca and Santander of being concerned in a revolutionary plot, promptly ordered the imprisonment of the ringleaders, Senors Martinez, Figuardo, Suarez, Pinaros, Ruiz, Neira and Uribe, at Cundiamarca; Castillo, Cordoba, Aramburo and Saa, at Cauca; Rivera; Muirgueritio, at Palmira, and Diaz, at Cartago. The local officials here are without further news, but the opinion is unanimous that the attempt was futile and without importance. The Isthmus and the neighboring cities are perfectly tranquil.

Yukon Railroad Finished.

Seattle, Aug. 7.—The White Pass and Yukon Railway will be formally turned over to its owners—Close Brothers & Co.—on Aug. 20, by its builders, the Pacific Construction Company, Limited, of London. The forty-mile stretch between Skaguay and Lake Bennett was constructed at a cost of $2,000,000. This is exclusive of equipment and rolling stock. It is said that the work of extending the line to Fort Selkirk will begin at once, and continue until winter.

Schooner Sinks in River.

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The schooner Enterprise of Saugerties, loaded with coal from this city, sunk off Matteawan. She left the Pennsylvania Coal Company's dock here leaking, which increased, although two pumps worked, and before Capt. Lynn of Port Ewen could run her over on Fishkill flats she went down. She had on eighty tons of coal. The Captain and two men got ashore in a yawl.

Street Riot in Salzburg.

Salzburg, Austria, Aug. 7.—There have been renewed disorders here, a demonstration in the streets after a meeting at the German National Club ending in a free fight. The people stoned and fired revolvers at the police. Several persons were injured. Finally the police charged with drawn swords, but had to be reinforced by troops before they cleared the streets. A number of rioters were badly injured.

Papers in Daly Case Filed.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 7.—The application of Philip Daly, Jr., of Long Branch for a divorce from his wife, Jennie Joyce Daly, has been filed with the clerk of the Chancery Court. The petition filed with the application states that Daly and his wife, whose maiden name was Hass, were married in July, 1894, and that they lived together until recently.

"Nonsense," Says Laurier.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Premier Laurier was shown the Washington dispatch in which F. W. Fitzpatrick describes his reception in Ottawa to have been a chilly one, and gives the substance of the remarks made by Sir Wilfred when asked to visit Chicago. The premier said that Mr. Fitzpatrick's statement was the sheerest nonsense.

Anti-Imperialists Still Active.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—A well attended meeting of the Anti-Imperialistic League was held in Bealie Hall. Professor H. Laurence Laughlin of Chicago University was the principal speaker. Addresses were made by Professor A. H. Tolman and Paul E. Shorey of Chicago University, Frank H. Scott and Sigmund Beisler.

Good News Killed Him.

Marion, Ind., Aug. 7.—William F. Snider, an inmate of the National Soldiers' Home, received notice that he had received a pension and $600 back pay. His joy was so pronounced that it caused an apoplectic stroke, and he died within a few hours. Snider was formerly a wealthy Wabash County farmer.

Negroes Mobbed in Pana, Ill.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Three negroes who arrived in Pana were set upon by sympathizers of the union miners, pelted with stones and driven out of the city. In the party who assaulted them were several women.

IN GRASP OF FIERCE STORM

Lightning and Wind Cause Death and Destruction Along the Coast.

WORST OF THE SEASON

Many Small Boats Wrecked and Excursion Steamers Have a Hard Tussle With the Elements.

Several Persons Drowned and Others Killed By Lightning Bolts—Wind Causes Almost a Tidal Wave at Coney Island—More Damage at Kingston.

New York, Aug. 7.—A thunder squall struck this city and for some time the wind blew a gale, its velocity increasing within the space of a few minutes from three to sixty-six miles an hour. The approach of the storm was very rapid, but Manhattan Island did not feel its full force. The rain fall here was not particularly heavy and the lightning did no damage to speak of. In Brooklyn, Bath Beach Coney Island, Bayonne, N. J., and many neighboring settlements, however, the rain fell in torrents and the wind and lightning did great damage. Many steamboats running to nearby resorts, including the Grand Republic, the Republic and the Columbia of the Long Branch Line, and the Taurus and the Cygnus of the Iron Steamboat Line, were caught in the storm. All these boats had big crowds on board, but no accidents were reported. Lightning struck two baby carriages in Fort Greene Park, Brooklyn. A child had just been removed from each.

Lightning struck a car of the Third avenue line at Third avenue and Thirty-ninth street. The motorman was shocked, fell off the car and could not be induced to get back. The car was crowded with women and children. They began to scream and jumped from the car, the roof of which was blazing.

James Sanders a boy sixteen years old was killed by lightning, and Henry Hutchins, a lad about the same age was killed by coming in contact with a live electric wire, knocked from a pole by a bolt of lightning.

At Brighton Beach race track 10,000 people were in attendance. They were thrown into a panic. The flag pole was struck by lightning and part of the paddock building torn loose and carried about 100 feet by the wind.

Coney Island felt the full force of the storm. The beaches were torn up by the wind, and bathing houses, chairs and other wooden articles were swept out to sea. The rain set the Bowery afloat, and Surf avenue was a river, over which the shop keepers built temporary bridges.

When it reached the ocean's edge the storm became a sort of whirlwind. Persons making for shelter were blown off their feet and blinded by the sand, spray and rain and many of them sustained serious injury as a result of being tossed about by the elements.

Following is a list of those known to have lost their lives, in addition to the ones mentioned above:

George Ludwig, sailor on the schooner Henry H. Grant; swept overboard in a collision. Frederick Schneider, of Jersey City, drowned from a cat boat off South Brooklyn. J. Risher Rowe, of Bayonne, Stepped on a storm-grounded wire.

Boats great and small were capsized in Jamaica Bay, and several fishing parties who went out before the storm are still missing. The life-saving crews at Arverne and other points along the shore put out to the aid of those in peril, and were the means of saving many lives.

Electric Storm in Kingston.

Kingtson, N. Y., Aug. 7.—An electric storm, accompanied by heavy rain, visited this city, and in severity was almost equal to that of last Wednesday, when the record of severe storms was broken. Streets were flooded cellars filled with water. Lightning struck the residence of President G. Hamburger of the City Council on Chestnut street, tearing away a chimney and a quantity of shingles. A bolt also struck the residence of Samuel Bishop, a few doors away, tearing off a part of the cornice and doing other damage. A house of S. D. Gibson, on Wall street, was struck and set on fire, and the residence of Patrick Curnan on West Chestnut street was struck and somewhat burned. The wires of the fire alarm system were struck continually, the current following the wires into the engine house, burning out several indicators and wrecking the machinery. In Hurley a cornhouse of Samuel Ostrader was badly damaged by lightning and a cow and two calves killed that had taken refuge under the building. Esopus Creek overflowed its banks and much damage was done to oats and other crops on the lowland farms, many being completely inundated.

To Investigate French Shore.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 7.—The Governor of Newfoundland started on a tour of the island. During the trip he will make a special investigation of the French shore question. On the revenue cutter Fiona with the Governor were Minister of Finance George Shea and Dr. W. S. March, superintendent of Fisheries. A large crowd assembled on Queen's wharf and cheered the party on the Fiona.

Mauna Loa Quiet Again.

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—The Hong Kong Maru, from Honolulu July 29, reports that the flow of lava from Mauna Loe, stopped suddenly on the night of July 23. During the day the island was shaken by earthquakes. No damage was done, but the selesmic disturbances, it is thought, indicate that the volcanic action is only temporarily suspended.

Mortally Hurt, But Killed His Man.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 7.—Deputy United States Marshal J. A. Blair was shot and mortally wounded in Morgan County while trying to arrest L. F. Lewis, an alleged moonshiner. Blair killed Lewis after being wounded.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

COMING EVENTS.

August 7—Rev. R. Anderson, of Brooklyn, will conduct Danish Lutheran services in the German Lutheran church on Grove street at 8 o'clock. Vocal music by an English quartette. Rev. C. H. Mengers will assist. All invited.

Dangerous Steps.

In view of the recent order of Judge Fitzgerald adjudging the councilmen of New York in contempt and imposing a fine of $100 and imprisonment, for refusing to vote for a certain bond issue, which His Honor thinks they should, prompts the average layman to ask of what use are juries and common councilmen if they are to be automitons and subject to the dictation of judges. Councilmen derive their power from a source and spring quite as high and pure as do the judges, since both get authority from the people. The layman cannot repress the thought that such steps on the part of judges are fraught with grave danger and may be the cause of much mischief.

To the average mind Judge Fitzgerald is exercising not only judicial functions but legislative also. It would generally seem that it was safer to trust the judgment and wisdom of a body of councilmen (in this case some fourteen) than the judgment of one, no matter how learned he may be. The argument that the councilmen are only acting in a ministerial capacity is ridiculous—that the legislature should pass a law making the body of councilmen of the great city of New York mere automatons and tools is too absurd to be even entertained.

THE DEWEY ARCH IN NEW YORK.

One of the features of the welcome which New York will give to Admiral Dewey will be the unveiling of a memorial arch. The National Sculpture Society has submitted an outline design for a triumphal arch, which is herewith reproduced. The arch will be about 90 feet high. It will probably be erected on Broadway at Madison Square.

More Promises.

When McKinley was elected on the Republican ticket three years ago, it was with the distinct promise that legislation on the currency question would be taken at once. So far nothing has been done. Now the monetary convention at Atlantic City promises action by Congress this year. H. H. Hanna, chairman of the executive committee of that convention, declares that a law will be passed this winter establishing a gold standard, with such supplementary legislation as is necessary to maintain a parity of all forms of money.

Cranford and Madison have been promised free delivery this year by the post office officials. Poor Westfield, however, had its request for free delivery refused as the revenue from its postoffice did not reach $10,000. It goes hard with Westfield to see her smaller neighbors secure the wished for privilege while she fails. There is only one thing to do, however, and that is to grin and bear it.

The time is not many years away when all the trucking and carting will be done in automobiles and horses will have disappeared except when driven for pleasure. Then the street committees of the cities will not have such a hard time in keeping the streets in good condition.

Trenton is following in the footsteps of Plainfield and is having the overhead wires put below ground. The newspapers of that city are now exulting at the great improvement.

Let the City Fathers remember, when they meet this evening, that Plainfield has a city jail that is a sad blot on the otherwise fair reputation of this city.

Former Governor Altgeld declares that free silver coinage will not be the paramount issue in the campaign of the Democratic party next year.

If "all the world's a stage," as Shakespeare says, how is it that more of us are not riding this weather?

President Reed, of the State Senate, has been acting Governor for a little while. We beg to remind Senator Reed that acting as Governor is a practice attended with some political peril. Senator Voorhees acted as Governor for a time, and the people made him Governor. This is said as a kindly warning to President Reed.—Elizabeth Journal.

The best, the most successful advertising is that of the newspapers. The dodgers, handbill, pamphlet and other modes of exploitation are ephemeral at the best. People rarely read them, and resent the practice of sending them through the mails, or of delivering them at their houses. The public expects to see advertisements in the newspapers. It recognizes the fact that they are a necessary part of the make-up of a live newspaper. It looks in the advertising columns for sources of supply.—New England Editor.

The politicians are getting ready with the material with which to make the political soup for the fall. The caldron is ready and when the firewood contributions are collected, piled up in the authorized place, the will be placed under the caldron and burned up. When the soup is boiling the candidate will be thrown in, the "fat" extracted and the most suitable one fished out for the political pot pie. Some of the expectant gormandizers will have to eat boiled crow, and many others whatever they may be able to grab. Truly the preparation of the political pot is a mysterious and mystifying part of the science of political cookery.—Trenton Times.

The return of the able Plainfield, N. J., attorney, Winfield S. Angleman, as counsel for the alleged murderer, William Darling, seems to indicate that a pretty legal fight is to ensue, for Mr. Angleman has already shown very clearly what he is capable of, having an excellent reputation as a lawyer well versed in both civil and criminal law. He is a man of less than forty years of age, and has been a member of his profession only eight years, but that has been ample time for him to have shown his mettle in a number of intricate cases in which he has been retained by prominent business houses and individuals. His preliminary training by his general and legal studies and his extended travel was so thorough that he has rapidly forged to the front. Darling has just been brought to Jersey from McConnellsburg, Pa., the alleged crime having taken place some four years ago, since which time it has been impossible to locate him.—New York Financial Review.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A precocious youngster, whose parents live over the brook, listened intently a few days ago to his aunt's description of the disastrous hurricane at Elizabeth. The good woman told of the damage to the churches, and those who listened to her recital were as much interested as the little fellow appeared to be. Suddenly the little chap brightened up and said: "Mamma, did the wind do any damage to the saloons?"

"No, my darling, I didn't hear that it did--why do you ask?"

"'Cause I always heard you say that God punishes all who go to the saloons, but I guess it must be because they are so low that the wind didn't touch 'em."

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 7.—Mayor Swackhamer has received a communication from W. J. Winges, chairman of the citizens' committee, asking that the Mayor stop the Watchung Water Company from distributing through the pipes water from the Green brook, which is not considered wholesome. This evening a protest will be made to the Common Council with reference to the matter. It is claimed by some that the water furnished is not pure and wholesome as the Green brook receives the sewerage of the Plainfield sewer beds.

William J. Winges, chairman of the citizens' committee, has sent a letter of thanks to E. H. Radell, secretary of the Brunswick Traction Company, thanking the company for its prompt manner in consummating the agreement made with the committee on the 18th of July with reference to transfers to and from Plainfield, which recently went into effect.

The New Market pond is a popular resort these days. Nearly every day parties from Plainfield, Bound Brook and Dunellen go there to enjoy a sail or to have basket picnics. It is about the only breathing spot, save the mountains, in this vicinity.

The repairs to the Lincoln School building have been commenced. The school committee also intends putting the grounds in good order.

Mrs. Eliza Brown and son Frank, of Oak Tree, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Pizie, at New Market.

Maguire's educated horses will be exhibited in the borough Wednesday evening. New Market Thursday.

Miss Alice Pierce, of New Market, who has been visiting friends in Philadelphia, has returned home.

John Dumont, of Gladstone, has been visiting his aunt, Miss Mary B. Dunn, of New Market.

Frank Holder, stenographer at the Steel Works, has taken up his residence at Lincoln.

Lud Frazee has secured the contract to paint the schoolhouses and has begun the work.

William Partington, of Lincoln, has severed his connection with Contractor Stout.

Work has been commenced on Peter Hanson's new dwelling at Lincoln.

Wm. Polhemus is putting up a new dwelling at Lincoln.

The Common Council will meet this evening.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 7.—The Gypsy camp, along South avenue, was the favorite place for a number from the village yesterday. The camp has been enlarged by the addition of two other tribes during the week.

The Scotch Plains end of the trolley did its share of business yesterday. Every car was crowded and the village streets were thronged all the afternoon with visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Plainfield, were the guest of Mrs. Grant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Paff, Sr., yesterday.

Miss Anna Andrews, who has been spending a few days in town with friends, has returned to her home in Montandon, Pa.

Edward Emery, of Bayonne, was the guest Saturday and Sunday of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Emery.

It is reported that Walpole's Hotel has changed hands, the purchaser being a hotel man from Martinsville.

A meeting of the board of deacons of the Baptist church was held after the regular service Sunday morning.

Mr. Barros, of New York, has returned to his home after a three days' visit with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, of Washington Valley, are entertaining friends from New York.

Miss Addie Johnston led the young people's meeting in the Baptist church last evening.

Richard Robison has returned from a week's camping at Rockaway.

Miss Bella Mercier spent Sunday with her aunt in Elizabeth.

George Goodwin, of Fanwood, has purchased a new trotter.

Charles French spent yesterday with friends in town.

The Appetite of a Goat

Is envied by all poor dyspeptics whose Stomach and Liver are out of order. All such should know that Dr. King's New Life Pills, the wonderful Stomach and Liver Remedy, gives a splendid appetite, sound digestion and a regular bodily habit that insures perfect health and great energy. JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—For breakfast use Roger's sea food.

—The work of placing new gas pipe in Park avenue is now completed.

—Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, will hold a regular meeting in Masonic Hall tonight.

—There will be a regular meeting of Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F., this evening. Several candidates will receive the first degree.

—J. H. Schenck, of the borough, has started work in his new position as engineer at the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company.

—Sexton Maynard, of the First Baptist church, is now thoroughly cleaning the church, according to the usual custom during the summer months.

—Rev. J. P. Taylor, of Park avenue, occupied the pulpit at Holy Cross church yesterday in the absence of Rector Downey, who is enjoying his vacation.

—Chief Marshal Campbell, of the borough, still continues to comply with the law in shooting worthless dogs whose owners have not complied with the law.

—Next Friday evening the Borough Council will meet in special session for the purpose of going over the books of Assessor French. No doubt it will require several evenings to complete the task.

—Woodhull & Martin report a most satisfactory business through July and so far in August. They have not had any dull season yet, and they do not expect to. They claim the reason is they are selling goods at a price that makes business if it does not make profit.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 7.—The electric light system was crippled in this town Saturday night and the town was in darkness for awhile. About 8 o'clock the street lights were burning but the lights in the houses and stores refused to burn and the merchants did business with the assistance of oil lamps and as there was not enough in the town to go around some of the stores were in semi-darkness while others were closed altogether.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

THEATRICAL.

Lovers of high-class refined vaudeville, which is now dominant in the theatrical world, find their choicest enjoyment at F. F. Proctor's theatres in New York city—the Twenty-third Street Theatre, just west of Sixth avenue, and the Pleasure Palace, at Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue. These houses are quite the most comfortable in town, with their special cooling apparatus and fans, and indoor amusement is no longer a summer terror at the Proctor houses. The stars at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre this week are: McIntyre and Heath, the famous black-face comedians, in a new farce; Lina and Vani, acrobatic novelties; DeWitt and Tourjee, Chevriel and some twenty others, including jugglers, song and dance artists, and the like. At the Pleasure Palace this week are: Tony Farrell and Jennie Leland in a bright comedietta; Chas. Seay and Helen Weathersby in a farce; Bennett and Rich, illustrated songs; Anderson and Anderson, and twenty other standard variety "turns" The special summer prices to the ladies and children of 10 cents to the orchestra in the afternoons is still proving a huge success, and will be maintained throughout the balance of the summer.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Der bei einem hiesigen Dachpappenfabrikanten beschäftigte Kaufmann Wilhelm Otto Storsberg unterschlug diesem Beträge in der Gesammthöhe von 19,000 Mark. Er wurde von dem hiesigen Landgericht zu drei Jahren Gefängniß und fünf Jahren Ehrverlust verurtheilt.—In den Dresdener Vorstädten Plauen und Löbtau ist der Typhus ausgebrochen und werden aus letzterer Vorstadt über 100 Erkrankungen gemeldet.

Annaberg. Der nationalliberale Landtagsabgeordnete Kaufmann Crüwell ist gestorben. Er vertrat seit einer Reihe von Jahren den 19. städtischen Wahlkreis (Annaberg) in der zweiten sächsischen Kammer.

Chemnitz. Der hiesige Journalisten- und Schriftstellerverein hat beschlossen, aus Anlaß des 150. Geburtstages Goethes den Grundstein zu einem Denkmal für den Dichter zu legen. Für den Fonds sind bereits erhebliche Beiträge gezeichnet.

Herrnhut. Die allgemeine Synode der Brüdergemeinde, welche hier tagte, hat beschlossen, das Missionswerk in Grönland, dem mehrere deutsche Ansiedelungen dort ihre Entstehung verdanken, aufzugeben und zu fernerer Pflege der dänischen Staatsregierung zu überlassen.

Leipzig. Der größte der sächsischen Konsumvereine, „Leipzig-Plagwitz und Umgegend," hat im diesmaligen Berichtsjahre 6,361,870 Mark, das heißt nahezu 1,000,000 Mark mehr vereinnahmt als im Vorjahre. In den Betrieben sind 440 Arbeiter beschäftigt, die Mitgliederzahl stieg um 2664, das heißt auf 18,841. Ein Betrag von über 600,000 Mark kommt in Gestalt einer zehnprozentigen Dividende an die Mitglieder zur Auszahlung.

Thüringische Staaten.

Eisfeld. Das hiesige Amtsgericht verurtheilte zwei Bewohner aus Heubach wegen unerlaubten Vogelfanges zu je 14 Tagen Haft.

Jena. Dieser Tage beging der Senior unserer Universität, Geheimer Justizrath Professor Wilhelm Leist, seinen 80. Geburtstag. Er gehört dem Lehrkörper der hiesigen Universität seit 46 Jahren an. Der Jubilar hat auch für das nächste Semester eine Vorlesung angekündigt.

Rudolstadt. Die hiesige Strafkammer verurtheilte den Redakteur Levy vom sozialdemokratischen „Volksblatt" in Saalfeld wegen Beleidigung der meiningischen Regierung zu einem Monat Gefängniß. Die Beleidigung wurde in dem Satze gefunden, daß sich die Regierung zur Einstellung der Kinderarbeit erst entschlossen hätte, nachdem sie vor aller Welt beschämt worden war.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Kapitän Karlowa, die Offiziere und die Mannschaft des Dampfers „Pretoria" der Hamburger Packet-Dampfschifffahrts-Gesellschaft haben vom Kaiser Orden und Geschenke erhalten, weil sie im Februar auf hoher See gelegentlich eines schweren Sturmes eine anerkennungswerthe muthige Haltung bewahrten, trotzdem das Steuerruder gebrochen war.—Neulich Vormittags erfolgten in dem in der Hoheluft-Gärtnerstraße belegenen Laboratorium des Kunstfeuerwerkers Berckholz, vermuthlich durch Selbstentzündung, neun größere Explosionen. Zwei Schuppen wurden zerstört, drei andere und ein Pulverlager durch die Feuerwehr gerettet. Der Materialschaden ist sehr bedeutend. Menschenleben sind nicht zu beklagen.

Bremen. Die Auswanderung über Bremen weist in den ersten sechs Monaten dieses Jahres eine Zunahme von rund 12,000 Personen auf. Es wanderten insgesammt in dem genannten Zeitraum 42,022 Personen aus.—Hier ist Wilhelm Goltermann, ein Bremer Original, der Verfasser zahlreicher plattdeutscher Erzählungen und Gedichte, 76 Jahre alt, gestorben.

Lübeck. Ein aus Afrika zurückgekehrter Schlachter, Schmidt mit Namen, welcher sich, nachdem er mit einem Schiff in Hamburg angekommen war, über Lübeck in seine Heimath Neustrelitz zu begeben gedachte, wurde hier vom Eisenbahnzuge, wenige Stunden von der Heimath entfernt, tödtlich überfahren. Der Unglückliche war auf den bereits im Fahren befindlichen Zug gesprungen und von diesem abgeglitten.

Oldenburg.

Oldenburg. Ein furchtbares Unwetter hat viel Schaden in der Stadt und auf den Feldern angerichtet. Nachts stürzten 50 Meter der Kaimauer der Hunte ein. Der Blitz hat mehrfach gezündet und Vieh getödtet. Durch fallende Bäume wurde die Telegraphenleitung nach Zwischenahn zerstört.

Mecklenburg.

Rostock. Ein 19jähriges Mädchen in Marnitz wurde beim Beerenpflücken von einer Kreuzotter in den Fuß gebissen; es starb 24 Stunden später.

Dish-Drainer.

A dish drainer of the style shown in illustration will be found a labor-saving device in the kitchen. It can be made very plain or ornamental, as desired. The bottom is formed of lattice work; the sides and front may be of the same if desired. A piece of oilcloth should be tacked under the drainer and extend to the top of the back of the sink, to protect the wall. A dish-drainer will save many weary steps to the average housekeeper and many valuable minutes as well, and what is of importance, also, if dishes are properly washed and rinsed when placed to drain, they will be found to possess a lustre equal if not superior to that produced by polishing. The ordinary wiping and polishing of table ware consumes not less than ten minutes for each operation, in a common-sized family; by using a drainer a saving of three and one-half hours can be affected in one week.—Practical.

From a Housewife's Note Book.

Old boot tops, cut into shape and lined, make excellent iron holders. The lether keeps the heat from the hand most effectually.

To prevent kerosene lamps from smelling, as they sometimes will do, even when perfectly clean, put a tablespoonful of salt into the oil.

To stop a leaking pipe until the arrival of the plumber, mix together yellow soap and whiting with a little water to a thick paste. Place this thickly over the leak and the water will stop flowing at once.

To keep kerosene burners clean, they should occasionally be boiled in a strong solution of soda. This will remove all dust and dirt, and not only will the lamps produce a better light, but they will be prevented from smelling rusty.

To Wash Soiled Swansdown.—Baste the strips on a piece of muslin and then wash in a lather of warm water and Castile soap. Then rinse and hang in the wind to dry. Remove the strips from the muslin an drub them carefully with the fingers to soften the leather.

Linoleum should never be scrubbed, but may be washed with soap and water and then dried with a cloth. It is a good plan to polish it with equal parts of oil and vinegar applied with a flannel. This should be rubbed off carefully with a cloth so that not the least stickiness remains.

A good plate cleaning mixture, which is also excellent for polishing brass, is made as follows: Take a cup and half fill it with whiting, then fill to the brim with cold water. Pour this into a bottle and add to it one ounce of ammonia. Shake well before using. Wet a flannel cloth with this and rub it on the metal, afterwards polishing it with a soft cloth or leather.

To use up the candle ends.—Candle ends should always be saved, and when a little collection has been made they should be melted, and as much turpentine should be added as there is candle grease Let this cool and then use for polishing floors, oilcloth, etc. It wil be found to make an even better polish than beeswax and turpentine.

When a new sewing machine is heavy to work take out the cotton and thoroughly oil every part of the machine with parafin. Work it briskly for a few minutes that the oil may penetrate thoroughly and extract all dirt and grit, and then wipe every part of the machine carefully with a soft old duster. When the parafin has been removed, oil the machine with the proper lubricating oil. Parafin should never be allowed to remain on the machine, for it heats the bearings and causes them to wear out.—Home Notes.

To Break a Child of Biting the Nails

This is often a difficult matter, but I have known of one little girl on whom the usual remedies of painting the fingers with bitter aloes, dipping them in mustard and even corporal punishment, were all tried in vain, and ws finally cured by an appeal to her vanity.

It was pointed out to her how ugly biting the nails made them look, and how it thickened and spoiled the shape of the tips of the fingers. Then the mother showed the half-moons in her own finger nails and ttold her little girl that she had the same, but that they were hidden up by the overgrowth of skin.

Of course, the little girl wanted to find them, and then came the mother's opportunity. She told the child to fetch her own manicure box, and then and there she trimmed the little nails and polished them with some pink powder. The child was interested, and when her mother promised to give her a manicure set of her own if she would use it she was glad to promise to do so.

The result was that the little girl began to take an interest in keeping her hands nice, and, as her mother encourged her, the interest was kept up, and the habit of nail biting was soon forgotton. The appeal to her vanity—or, rather should I not say, to her self-respect—answered when every other remedy was found unavailing.—Home News.

UNDERWEAR.

Excessive Elaboration the Order of the Day.

The delicate, elaborately trimmed underwear now in vogue is more tedious than difficult to make, and, provided that a woman is deft with her needle and has ample leisure, she can make a charming outfit at much less cost than it can be obtained readymade, even readymade by machine. Handmade tucks, hemstitching, etc., are much prettier and infinitely more expensive than those made on the sewing machine.

In ornamenting a garment with insertion in the form of squares, lozenges, spirals, vandykes and other decorative shapes, the insertion should be arranged upon the goods in the desired shape and firmly basted and sewed before the material beneath is cut away to leave the lace transparent. This prevents the garment from pulling out of form. If tucks are to be the decoration, the goods should be tucked before the garment is cut.

In cutting straight ruffles of muslin, it is best to pull out a thread to make sure that the ruffle is really straight, the line left serving as a guide for the scissors.

NEW PARASOLS.

In cutting a curved ruffle, the goods should be pinned straight on a large newspaper, and newspaper and all should be cut. The paper will hold the goods and keep it from stretching.

The cut shows a group of new parasols and novel handles. The latter are in the form of animals' or birds' heads, except one, which is an enameled frog. The first parasol is of red taffeta, with a border of white embroidered insertion. The second is also of taffeta, with bands of chine designs. The third is of mauve silk, entirely covered with white ruffled ribbon, and the fourth has lace butterflies applied on a white ground.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Tucks and Hemstitching in Fashionable Favor.

Tucks are increasing in favor as a decoration and are used for all sorts of materials. They are made straight, bias or across each other in squares and diamonds. Chemisettes, corsages, flounces and skirts are thus adorned, and all over tucking, by the yard, of silk or nainsook, is employed for entire bodices.

Hemstitching is another mode of decoration which has been borrowed from wash fabrics for the enrichment of silk. There are hemstitched tucks as well as hemstitched borders, and lines of drawn threads hemstitched into openwork are a favorite decoration for silk waists. As for hemstitched cravats, their name is legion.

There are many tailor made gowns of pique and even of taffeta, and a curious revival of the old fashioned nankeen is inaugurated. Entire costumes are made of nankeen, the favorite waistcoat material of our forefathers.

The cut shows a bodice of tucked red taffeta. The tucks are horizontal at the back and oblique in front, and the top of the tight sleeves is also tucked. The front edges are slightly scalloped and finished with cordings, and the plastron and collar are of puffed golden yellow mousseline de soie. The cuffs are finished with corded ruffles. The belt of white grosgrain is fastened with a gold buckle.

Powder Puffs.

The airy powder puff is heavy with the lives of slaughtered young birds. It is stated that as many as 20,000 young swans—cygnets, as they are called—are killed every year to supply this dainty fluff, to say nothing of the innumerable young birds of the eider duck and wild variety. One cygnet will make nearly a dozen average sized puffs, which shows how many women must be addicted to the use of powder. The puff is highly profitable, as may be judged from the fact that the down of the cygnet costs little more than 25 cents, the poor little creature often being plucked alive so that it may bear another crop, while the puffs are sold from 50 cents upward.

See This Flare.

This is the season of exaggeration in many things, and in none more than the pronounced flare of the skirt shown above. The style is eminently of the French.

Styles For the Fall.

According to the latest advices from abroad the principal and almost fashionable colors for fall wear will be light and will include many pastel shades. Despite a great many arguments to the contrary we still wear what Europe wears and take our cue to colors according to the standard set up by European fashion leaders, regardless of the fact that a great many of these colors are altogether unsuitable for the American climate or the average condition of things. The Parisian, London or Viennese woman of fashion who has always a carriage at her disposal can dress in as light a color as she prefers on her shopping expeditions, which are never undertaken in the same manner that we do ours. But the average American woman uses the cars and the streets on her shopping tours and could not possibly go in for light colors without soiling her gown hopelessly the very first time she wore it.

There are several new shades of gray, and among these there is a pearl gray that is particularly desirable, because it is neither so delicate as the one we have known not is it too deep to be classified among the pearl tints. Then there is an ash gray which, in my opinion, will be very popular, because it is not so light as to soil easily nor too dark to show the dust. It is really the color of the ashes of white ash coal. Then there is another shade which is almost a beige, a second which verges on the castor and three dark shades of bluish gray.

There are three new shades of violet and of these violettes de champes is the preferable one, being an intermediatte tint not too light and not too trying. In order to suit all tastes there are two brilliant tints known as Solferino and Orchidee, which could be used to advantage as trimmings.

The pastel colors show about fifteen new shades, and of these a delicate lilac is known as Marian Delorme. Then there are two pretty bluish-gray tints and a handsome pink which has been named Mignard by the manufacturer. A color of positive beauty is a very light, delicate robin's-egg blue which would make up handsomely for dressy costumes.

The tan shades are of course always popular and fashionable as well as conservative. We never seem to tire of blue, and no matter how many new shades each season offers we always go in for all of them. The popular French blue returns to us this fall under tthe name of Hussard blue, and besides there are two beautiful new shades on the same color line known as St. Jacquin and Ceramique. A very brilliant color that is almost a violet is called Victoria, but beware of it, it will not do at all for general wear, and can be adopted only by those fortunate women who have unlimited means to spend on dress.

Petrole is also a new shade of blue and Phedre, a purple shade, is also very handsome.

Several reddish-brown shades and also automobile-red are still holding their places abroad and can be had in six new shades, of which the two lightest are the most desirable.

On the whole the craze for violet has not abated, and it seems that our women have gone violet mad. Violets are more admired than the rose and violet perfume is the reigning fad.

It is said that the fall season of 1899 will be one of the best plaid seasons that we have had for several years. There seems to be a demand on the part of our women in general for extremes in materials. They want a tailor-made suit which is simplicity itself and then they want something striking by way of change, and of course nothing wil suit them but the plaid skirt, and the larger the plaid the better they like it.

Homespun and all mixed suitings will be worn a great deal, and black as well as a deep rich blue come first in the list of favorite colors for general wear.—Toilettes.

Her Gown as Man Sees It.

"Dorothy, I saw a beautiful gown in one of the shop windows to-day."

"What was it, Julius?"

"Well, it was that zigzaggy kind of cloth, and it had those braided things across the front and down the back and some awful stylish pointed things on the skirt. I wish you would get one just like it."—Tit-Bits.

A striking feature of Havana is the absence of women in the streets. The fact has led to the town being spoken of as the "male city."

YOU WILL FORGET.

You will forget. The flowering tide of Spring
Stands still at flood; the blossoms overflow
For gladness, and beside that tender glow
Of life, you kiss me, and yet I dumbly know
You will forget.

The summer comes. Ah, sweetheart, love is sweet;
The very breath of God lies on the land;
You draw me close to you, but though my hand
In faith seeks yours, I dimly understand
You will forget.

The earth grows chill. The banner of the frost
Flames gold and crimson in the wood. We start
As from a dream, and wondering, stand apart:
Ah, what is this? Hush, hush, my beating heart,
You will forget.

Can I forget? The harvest of my soul
Lies winnowed at your door. The meadow-rue
Which binds it as of old is not more true
Than I, and yet I walk alone, while you—
You will forget.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

That Miss Foster was different from and more charming than all the rest of her sex might have been proved from any of the fifteen men to whom she had been engaged in the last two years since she had come back from school, beginning with Cadet Ferris and ending with Cady.

That Capt. Foster was exactly like all the rest of mankind, and little deserved the blessing he had in his daughter, was manifested by his drawing from his pocket a letter, and saying as he gave it to her, "By the bye, Kitty, this came for you yesterday while you were riding with Cady, and I forgot to give it to you."

Miss Foster looked at the postmark, and at the almost feminine chirography, and knew that the letter was from Fort Bowie and from Gloucester. She laid it beside her plate and finished her breakfast. Afterward she took it up to her own room and read it. Then she sat with folded hands and looked, unseeing, at the photographs of the fifteen upon the wall before her. She was very white.

The most astute woman will frequently stake anything and play all her game upon honor in man. When that chances to fail, her calculations are set at naught, and the bottom falls out of her universe.

And Gloucester's honor has failed. He wrote—Kitty read it again—"So you are engaged to Cady. That means little to you; but it may mean much to him. Therefore, to prevent his being made the fool that I have been, I have taken the liberty of sending him by this mail the letters you have written to me within the last month—four in number—that he may know with what manner of woman he has to deal."

Now, fourteen times before Miss Foster had not been in earnest. But this time she was. Unfortunately, the fact that she cared greatly for Cady had not prevented her from writing to Gloucester more affectionately than prudently, in order to keep him—t'other dear charmer who was away—upon her string, so long as it would hold him without snapping. And the letters, sent while she was actually engaged to Cady; were going to fall into his hands. It was a desperate situation. But, with all her blue eyes, and curls, and bewildering ways, Miss Foster was the woman to meet it.

After some time she rose to her feet and set her lips. It is a peculiarity of Cupid's-bow lips that they can set, upon occasions. She knew that Cady had not yet received those letters. And she determined that he never should. She would rob the stage.

Guard mounting was just over and the stage was not due until noon. Kitty set a big hat a-tilting upon her curls and walked down to the post-office. Fate, with her partiality for the brave and fair, willed that the post master should have left his desk. Miss Foster pushed open the gate and went behind the rail. The keys to the mail bag hung upon their hook. She put them in her pocket. When the postmaster came back she was placidly marking his clean blotter with the letter stamp.

"If you please, Mr. Jones, I want this letter registered."

An hour later Miss Foster reined up her horse on the top of a rise and looked across the flat stretch of greasewood, and cactus and sage. Far away a tiny speck was crawling toward her along the white road. It was the stage. She had been born upon the plains, and she had an unfailing eye for its distances. There would be fully half an hour to wait. She cast about for some way of killing time and found a deep, wide fissure in the patched earth. It appealed to her daring. She put her horse to a run and jumped it time and again until he was winded. Then she rode again to the crest of the slope. The stage was near. She dismounted, felt of the girths, and sat down, hugging the tiny noonday shade of a tiny mesquite bush, for the sun was burning down from a hard, blue sky. A big red ant was carrying a beetle's wing many times larger than itself. Kitty watched it until she heard the clatter of traces as the stage climbed the other side of the slope. Then she commended her soul to heaven and brought her quirt down upon the horse's flanks.

The stage driver drew up his stock, and the one passenger put out his head and shoulders and gazed at the slender gray figure rising alone in the midst of the prairie.

"Whatever, Miss Kitty"—the driver stopped short. He saw the horse grazing off a bunch of stumpy grass, a hundred yards away. Kitty went a step nearer and laid her hand on the wheel. She had seen that there was no woman in the stage. A woman would have upset all her calculations. She raised her big blue eyes. The men who could have resisted them were few. Those in the stage listened now to a tale calculated to melt a heart of stone.

"I was just out for a little ride," said Kitoty, "and my girths were loose, so I dismounted to cinch up, and that horrid Dandy got away. If you had not come, I don't know whatever I should have done."

Miss Foster would not have been the woman she was if tears—the genii of the lamp of fair femininity—had not risen at her will. The driver looked again at the horse and back at Miss Foster. He had known her from the day of her birth. When he was in his first enlistment, long before he had returned to civil life, he had been her father's striker. He had held her upon a burro and taught her to ride before she could walk. Therefore, he was justly annoyed. For the cleverest conspirator is apt to overlook a detail, and Kitty had forgotten that the horse of a good rider, which has broken away, should have the bridle over his head.

"I'm sure, Miss Kitty," he said, "that it weren't me learned you to leave the reins hooked over the pommel when you dismounted—and I should have thought you could have mounted alone anywheres.

Kitty flushed. Of all things she was proudest of her horsemanship.

"Do you think, O'Rourke, that you could catch Dandy for me?"

"I dunno," said O'Rourke, "'tain't so easy to catch a horse when the reins is over the pommel."

But he wound the lines around the brake and jumped down. The passenger was not to be outdone. He jumped down, too, and together they went trotting across the plain.

Kitty had seen others try to catch Dandy. She climbed leisurely into the stage, and dragged the mail pouch from under the seat. She was frightened now, and cold and trembling, and she threw quick glances to where O'Rourke and the passenger were advancing, and retreating, and deploying—never within arm's reach of Dandy. When she had stowed away in the crown of her cap a small package postmarked Bowie and addressed to Cady in a pointed, scrawling, almost feminine hand, she snapped the lock. She had left the keys in the bag. For she knew that the postmaster had duplicates. Then she steadied herself with a longdrawn breath, and, gathering her ridingskirts about her, walked toward Dandy, holding out her hand. Dandy had been brought up to believe that this meant sugar or nutmegs. He came, with neck outstretched, and muzzled in the little gloved plam.

"He is sorry he was naughty," said Miss Foster, scratching the back of his ear, "and he is going to be good, and never, never run away from his mistress again."

And then she rewarded O'Rourke by putting her booted foot in his great palm and springing in a manner that did his training credit. She smiled on the passenger and thanked him sweetly.

"I hope the postmaster will not be angry with me for delaying the transportation of the government mails," and she cantered away.

Cady sat himself upon the top step of the porch of Capt. Foster's quarters. Miss Foster did the same. Cady's face was stern and set. Miss Foster's was white and scared. There was a silence. Then Cady drew from his pockets a package of letters. They were in Kitty's writing. Kitty drew from her pocket another package. They were in Cady's hand. Cady spoke first.

"Here," he said, "is a bundle of letters—four in number. They came to me in to-day's mail. They were accompanied by this note from Gloucester. I need not assure you that I have not read them, but I gathered from what he says that they are of an exceedingly personal nature and of a very recent date. You may guess my opinion of Gloucester. "But," he bent upon her a look of withering scorn, "you cannot guess my opinion of you."

He held the bundle out to her. She pushed it away. Then she held up before his eyes a package of much the same size. He reached out for it quickly.

"Not yet!" said Kitty. "Here," she continued, "is a bundle of letters—six in number. They came in to-day's mail. They were accompainied by a note from Miss Fowler of Bowie. I need not assure you that I have read them. They are of an exceedingly personal—I may say affectionate nature and of a very recent date. They were written by you to Miss Fowler. I read too, the note with which she returned them. Here it is. You may find it of interest—I did.

Cady took the package she held out to him. Miss Foster took the one Cady held out to her. And again there was silence.

Then the lieutenant spoke. "To whom may I ask, were the letters from Miss Fowler addressed?"

"To you...

"And may I also ask how, in that event, they came into your possession?"

Miss Foster considered. "No."

Cady put his package in his pocket and fastened his blouse over them. Then he sat looking over the parade ground. After a time he put his hands on his knees and turned and faced Miss Foster.

"Well," he said. Kitty's eyes had been cast down, so that her long lashes lay upon her cheeks. She raised them. He looked down steadily into their blue and twinkling depths.

"Well?" echoed Kitty. And then he smiled.

Miss Foster gave a huge sigh of relief. "Isn't it curious," she said, how exactly alike Miss Fowler and Mr. Gloucester writes? Any one might have been deceived."

Which was not very relevant; but Cady did not ask what she meant. Irrelevancy was one of Miss Foster's many charms.

The Unlucky Hindoo Widow.

Action is being taken by certan enlightened natives to ameliorate the shocking condition of the average Hindoo widow. To begin with, the Indian widow is shaved bald, and can only hide her baldness with her cloth; she is deprived of all jewelry, wears coarser clothes than the rest of womenkind, must fast on certain days, and every day has fewer meals than are taken by the rest of the family. The scheme of relief afoot is that no widow shall be shaved until she is twenty-one, the age at which it may be supposed that she will be able to show a will of her own in case she objects.

DATE WAS UNLUCKY.

Men Who Constantly Give the Surgeons Some Work.

The old proverb, "While there's life there's hope," gains a good deal of force from these brief sketches of men who triumphantly survived almost every form of accident:

A few months ago died Thomas Rushton, of Walkden, Lancashire, England. Most of his life was spent in hospitals consequent on his many mishaps. When five years old he fractured both thighs, and before he had fairly recovered he fell down stairs and sustained a double fracture. Thenceforward his life was one long series of misfortunes, for besides breaking both legs twenty-four times, he sustained many other injuries and underwent countless operations.

A short time ago the "Lancet" mentioned the case of a man who had fractured his limbs six times, and on each occasion the accident occurred on the same date—namely, August 26. Before he was 16 he had met with five such mishaps, so he resolved for the future always to remain at home on the fatal 26th. It chanced, however, that twenty-three years later, forgetting his resolution, he went to work on the unlucky day, and on his return slipped down and broke his leg.

Ham-Smelling as a Business.

One of the curious businesses that men engage in is ham-smelling in packing-houses. It is a business allied with that of tea-tasting, wine-testing, and the like. The ham-smeller is technically known as a ham-tester. It is his business to inspect meat products and judge of their soundness. This is done before the meats leave the house or when they are brought from other concerns to fill a shortage.

The ham-smeller's only tools are a long steel trier and his nose, says the Kansas City Star. It is often necessary to test hams after they come out of the sweet pickle and before they go into the smokehouse. The ham-smeller stands in a barrel to keep his clothes from being soiled by the dripping brine, and the hams are brought to him by workmen. A ham is laid before him, and he plunges his sharp-pointed trier into it, withdraws it and passes it swiftly beneath his nose. The trier always goes down to the knuckle joint. In testing meat in that manner the man with the trier judges by the slightest shade of difference between the smell of one piece of meat and another. The smell of the meat is almost universally sweet and that is what he smells; the slightest taint or deviation from the sweet smell is therefore appreciable. It is not the degree of taintedness that he expects to find, but the slightest odor that is not sweet. When he detects an odor he throws the meat aside, and if it is not unwholesome it is sold as "rejected" meat, but if it is tainted it goes to the rendering tank. The ham-tester smells meat from 7 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock at night, and his sense must never become jaded or inexact, or his usefulness would be at an end.

Ham-testing is not a pursuit dangerous to the health, as tea-tasting is supposed to be, but the ham-smeller with a cold in his head is like a piano player who loses his arm in a railroad wreck.

Providence Takes Care of Them.

"The beautiful and delicate shades on the eggs of birds are not very fast, especially if they belong to the lighter class of colors," remarked an ornithologist to the Washington Star. "In many instances some of the finest and most characteristic tints of eggs disappear almost entirely on exposure to light. A common example is the beautiful pale blue of the starling's egg, which, on exposure to sunlight for a few days, loses its clear blueness of tone and becomes purpler, approaching more to a slate tint. Such also is the case with most of the greenish blue eggs, like those of many sea birds, the common guillemets, for instance, the beauty of which largely depends on the clear freshness of its blue tints. It is, therefore, wise for egg collectors to keep the glass cases containing all such specimens carefully covered up when not being inspected, otherwise much of the beauty of tint will be lost in course of time."

Colors of Bird's Eggs.

When 500-pound shells charged with Lyddite tumble over a bank with the mules which are drawing them and the men who are driving the mules, and men and mules regularly survive, the Lord may be said to be good to man and beast. At Gibraltar a new battery was being constructed on the highest part of the rock. The shells are placed separately in small barrows drawn by a mule, with a man holding the handles. The paths are narrow, and in some places not more than three feet wide, with deep ruts in them. Many accidents have happened, and in some cases mule, man and shell have fallen over the side, but explosions seem not to have resulted.

Methuselahs of the Forest.

The greatest longevity assigned to any tree is perhaps credited to the celebrated taxodium of Chapultepec, in Mexico, 117 feet in circumference, which is thought to exceed in age the baobab of Senegal, inferred to be 5,150 years old. In Lombardy there is a cypress tree which is said to have been planted in the year of our Saviour's birth. There is even an ancient record that it was growing in the time of Julius Caesar. Near the ruins of Palenque are trees whose age is estimated to be from 4,000 to 6,000 years. The mammoth tree has been estimated to live 4,000 years in California.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Remarkable Instrument.

One of the most remarkable instruments on record has been recently completed, and actually measures one-millionth part of a second. The instrument is necessarily very complicated, but the vibrations of a very sensitive tuning fork form the basis of the measuring process.

Volcanoes and Electricity.

In certain conditions of the atmosphere electricity is so abundant on the top of the big volcanoes in Hawaii that an English geologist found that he could trace electric letters with his fingers on his blanket.

QUEEN WILHELMINA.

AN INGENIOUS EFFIGY MADE FOR HER CORONATION.

How the Ingenuity and Patriotism of an Inventor was Shown to the Young Queen at Her Coronation—Her Profile on Wood.

When Queen Wilhelmina of Holland was crowned, the opportunity was supplied for every inventor in her realm to do his best to honor the occasion. A fac-simile of one of the cleverest bits of workmanship executed in commemoration of Her Majesty's coming to the throne has reached this country. It is a souvenir effigy turned in rare wood. The wood was brought from India at enormous cost, and its exquisite shades and markings are well worthy the attention of a Queen. The design is very clever and the workmanship extraordinary delicate.

A plain bevelled bar of wood is the foundation for the wooden portrait. To this background is fastened a piece of carving of a semi-cylindrical shape, bearing a series of ridges which at first sight seem fantastically devised. It will be seen, however, that the outer line of the wood, when held in any position, is the counterpart of the young Queen's profile. The likeness to Her Majesty is so cleverly suggested that Wilhelmina herself is said to have been highly pleased with the fanciful tribute.

The compliment which the inventor intended to convey had reference to the symmetry of Her Majesty's face and the beautiful simple and harmonious lines of her profile. Though Wilhelmina has never been considered a beauty she promises to develop into one. The strength of character which gives the Dutch people such confidence in her as their ruler is shown in her firm chin and well-balanced head. Her eyes are blue and honest, and her subjects say that she is sure to carry out any promise she makes to them.

Dublin Bootblacks. 1780.

Among the populace of Dublin in 1780, says The University Magazine, the shoeblacks were a numerous and formidable body. The polish they used was lamphlack and eggs, for which they purchased all that were rotten in the markets. Their implements consisted of a three-legged stool a basket containing a blunt knife, called a spud, a painter's brush, and an old wig. A gentleman usually went out in the morning with dirty boots or shoes, sure to find a shoeblack sitting on his stoool at the corner of the street. The gentleman put his foot in the lap of the shoeblack without ceremony, and the artist scraped it with his spudd, wiped it with his wig, and then laid on his composition as thick as black paint with his painter's brush.

The stuff dried with a rich polish, requiring no friction, and little inferior to the elaborated modern fluids, save only the intolerable odors exhaled from eggs in a high state of putridity, and which filled any house which was entered before the composition was quite dry, and sometimes even tainted the air of fashionable drawing rooms. Polishing shoes, we should mention, was at this time a refinement almost confined to cities, people in the country being generally satisfied with grease.

Light From the Wind.

An electric-lighting plant has just been installed in West Ardsley, England, which is to be run by wind power. A large windmill drives the dynamo, and there are storage cells which will contain eight days' supply of electricity in winter and more than a fortnight in summer, in case the wind does not blow. As a good windmill can be bought for $200 or less, this system seems a feasible one for small, isolated country places

STEVENS MEETS A RAJAH.

His Experience in a Stucco Royal Palace.

At the door of the stucco palace a dishevelled sentry presented arms with even more than the usual fervor. Then I understood—and perceived coming slowly, slowly, and quite noiselessly toward me down a corridor a small human figure. It wore a white turban, a tabard of lilac silk lined with salmon satin, a long muslin scarf round the neck, snow-white linen drawers, tight, yet shapeless, and white cotton socks. It came up, always quite noiselessly, appearing to be moved rather than to move; I saw a brown face, melting black eyes, a long-haired, fine-haired, oiled, black beard.

The figure took my hand in a hand that seemed made of soufflet, and with the same mysterious, unmoving motion led me across a high-roofed hall, with chandeliers like forest-trees and the paint peeling off the skirting-board, into a verandah that overlooked a reeling chasm of torrent bed and a lowering heave of mountain beyond. He sat me in a chair beside him, the interpreter opposite, then turned and fixed his eyes on me. If the movements were inhuman the eyes were unearthly. Eyes weary beyond satiety—eyes utterly passionless and purposeless, as if their owner neither desired anything nor intended anything, had neither never had interest in the world or had quite finished with it. Looking into those black pools of sheer emptiness, you wondered whether he were a newborn baby or a million years old; you almost wondered if he were alive or dead.

That was the Rajah. And then, in a voice that seemed to fall among us from nowhere, he told the fat-cheeked, gold-spectacled babu to tell me he trusted I was in the enjoyment of good health!

Awhile the conversation floated at this level, and I began to think that this Nirvana-eyed Rajah was—if one may so speak of princes—a fool. But presently the babu's circumambient periods began to call themselves round a definite subject, and the Rajah was instructing me on the political question of the hour. It does not matter to you what the question was; it did not matter to me. The interest to me lay in comparing what the Rajah suggested with what I knew to be true. In black and white he said nothing, but he hinted words. The suggestions were so subtly nebulous that you could hardly be sure they meant anything at all; the subject seemed to be in the air rather than in his conversation. I found it quite impossible to speak a language so evasive, and had to fly to brutal verbs and nouns. He accepted my remarks, though with deprecation of their bluntness; so that at least I had the satisfaction of knowing we were both talking about the same thing.

But the astonishing and inhuman feature of his talk was that he continually conveyed to me views of the questions of the hour which I knew to be false, which he knew me to know to be false. At least, he knew that I came with the Resident, and might have known that I would ask him about things and believe what he said. Yet, without the least encouragement, he insinuated and insinuated and insinuated away, till I felt almost a traitor to sit and listen to him. He cannot have thought I should take his side, or that I could be of any service to him if I did; but that appeared to matter nothing. Intrigue was his nature, and in default of a better confederate he kept his hand in by trying to intrigue with me.

And then suddenly, without a flicker in the eyes of either Rajah or interpreter:

"His Highness hopes that on your return to your country you will write to him from time to time, and give him your advice on affairs of State."

I gasped. "His Highness has heard much of your good name and high reputation," pursued the bland, relentless voice—he had first heard, and forgotten, my name three hours before—"and he is sure that your opinion on the government of his country would be very valuable to him."

And while I still gasped, His Highness motionlessly rose, handed me out of the chair with his soufflet-touch, and prattled, in English, "Do not forget me."—London Mail.

The British Cook and Rice Pudding.

The British cook, writes W. L. Alden in Pearson's, who is told to make a rice pudding will take some flour, a few eggs and as much milk as she can spare from the mistress's tea, and all the rice that is left in the rice jar. She mixes these ingredients, and after putting the composition in the oven wonders what it will turn out to be. Sometimes the result is a plum cake. At another time it is a suet pudding, and at another a beefsteak pie. Statistics prove that it becomes a rice pudding only once in four hundred and seventeen times.

There is all the charm of a lottery, or of gold mining, in British cookery. It is so purely a matter of chance that it is probable that rigid application of the gambling laws would land every British cook in jail. The cook stakes her flour and butter and eggs, in the hope that they will emerge from the oven in some desirable form. If she wins, her employer regards her as an admirable cook. If she loses, and the oven returns to her a dish which is absolutely uneatable, her employer wonders why she can never learn to cook. So long as the British cook prefers chance to science, and thinks that it is simpler to take "some" of various ingredients instead of taking a definite and unalterable number of grams of each, so long will British cookery remain among the mysteries of life.

She Came Back.

A sturdy old Boer farmer living in the Orange Free States had a shrewd wife, but had long rendered his wife anything but a couch of roses.

One day not long ago she, in a fit of pique packed up her goods and left him, vowing never to come back. The news went around among the neighbors, and at night several of them came to condole with him. He sat on his front post puffing away at his pipe.

"Hans," remarked one of his neighbors, "I pity you."

"My poy," replied the honest Dutchman, as he disturbedly knocked the ashes out of his pipe, "you vos right. She has shust come back."—Spare Moments.

DEMOCRATIC CONFERENCE TODAY.

J. E. Martine Makes a Plea for the Bimetalist in the State.

The conference of the Democratic State Committee today at Asbury Park will be watched by Democrats through the State with great interest. It is said that harmony of factions is the object.

It will not do for the distinguished gentlemen comprising that committee to ignore or belittle the fact that there are thousands of honest aud sincere bi-metalists in this State, who believe that the Chicago platform of the last campaign was a true Democratic platform, and that they are ready to again battle for the supremacy of its teachings. It will not do to brand bimetalists as "idiots" or "cheap men," who want to pay their debts with 40 cent dollars, they are the great rank and file of the party, honest and sturdy fighters, who will not down or quail by epithets or vituperation.

They only ask that "gold men" and others shall stand by the choice of the Democratic convention as steadfastly and loyally as they will.

PREVENTED A WRECK.

Carefulness of Night Operator Benson Rewarded.

Night Operator Benson at the North Avenue station, by his alertness probably prevented a serious accident on the Central Railroad a few mornings ago. It was about 4 o'clock and a freight train had just passed on track No. 4. The cars were loaded with large pipe, one of which slipped from its fastenings and fell across track No. 1. Benson knew that a fast freight was due about that hour. Securing the services of Night Baggageman Henry Hanson the men hastened to the tracks and after considerable effort they succeeded in removing the pipe, which was done with difficulty, as it had become wedged between the rails and was no easy matter to do. The pipe was thrown to one side in the nick of time, as the fast freight shot by the station but a moment later. Mr. Benson immediately notified headquarters and was complimented for his watchfulness.

BANK'S BOOKS SENT TO NEWARK

Experts will Determine Whether Others Share Valentine's Guilt.

Perth Amboy, Aug. 7.—The books of the Middlesex County Bank were sent to Receiver E. S. Campbell, at Newark, by express Saturday night. There were ten large boxes. An expert will begin work on the books today, and his report is expected to determine whether or not anyone except the cashier, George M. Valentine, was guilty of falsifying accounts. Valentine's friends allege that some of the false footings are not in the ex-cashier's handwriting. The expert who will do his work in the receiver's office, at the Newark City Bank, will be assisted by John T. TenBroeck, who for four years has been chief clerk at the Middlesex Bank.

CAME JUST TOO LATE.

George Serrell Arrived on the Transport Burnside Saturday Morning.

George Serrell arrived at his home in this city Saturday morning on the transport Burnside, on which boat he is commissary clerk. He did not receive the cablegram sent to him at Santiago telling him of the death of his father last week. The reason for this was that he had left Santiago before the receipt of the cablegram and no word could be sent to him until he reached this port, Yesterday he went to Hillside cemetery and visited the grave of his father. On Wednesday next Mr. Serrell will sail on the Burnside for San Juan, and he does not know how long he will be away.

The Vacant Chair.

A touching act in memory of the late Lemuel Wright Serrell, was performed yesterday morning at the communion service at the First Baptist church when the vacant chair of the departed senior deacon was decorated with a wreath of choice flowers. Mr. Serrell occupied his customary seat for many years, and his absence yesterday was an occasion for the deepest feelings of sorrow on the part of everyone present.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

PERSONAL GOSSIP OF INTEREST TO CITY AND BOROUGH.

In Brief are Told the Daily Doings of Many Residents and Visitors Who Go and Come in a Social and Business Way

Miss MacCracken, of University Heights, is a guest at the home of B. J. Shreve, of Grove street.

Charles Ball, of Cumberland, Md., is spending his vacation with his mother, Mrs. S. M. Ball, of Front street.

Mrs. Crane and Mrs. Meeker and daughter Hazel, of Orange, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. Adams, of Netherwood.

Horace Martin, of Jackson avenue, who is detained at home by illness, is very weak and his sickness borders on typhoid fever.

J. P. Hutchison, manager of Leggett's pharmacy, has been granted a two weeks' vacation, which he will spend on his father's farm at Eastport, Maine.

The Shelter Island records give among recent visitors to the Golf Club, Mr. and Mrs. C. C Burnett, Miss Margarette Burnett and Miss Ida W. Force, of Plainfield.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gallagher, of this city, was baptized yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's church by Rev. Father Westman. The given name is Margaret Anne. Miss Maggie Casey was the godmother, and John Casey the godfather.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Maryland muskmelons and Jersey peaches at Neumann Bros.' grocery, Tuesday morning.

—Justice Abbott Saturday rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Alice Kane against Mrs. Carl Matheson, on a contract. W. G. DeMeza for plaintiff; Murphy & Blatz for defendant.

George J. Tobin's Daughter Baptized.

An interesting service was witnessed at St. Mary's church yesterday afternoon when the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Tobin, of Grant avenue, was baptized. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Roger McGinley, of Jersey City, who is a personal friend of the family. The given name is Marie E., and Mrs. Joseph H. Tobin, of New York, was the godmother, while Andrew MacCardell, of this city, was the godfather. The young daughter was the recipient of many presents. After the service a dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tobin, at which time there were present a few friends, including Rev. Roger McGinley.

Come Again.

That Manager E. W. Mills, of the U. S. Express Company, can fish as well as successfully manage the local business for his employers, was clearly demonstrated Saturday when the proprietor of The Daily Press was the recipient of a bountiful supply of the finny tribe fresh from the waters at Bernegat, where Mr. Mills and a party of New York frends have been spending several days. Mr. Mills returned this morning ready to again enter upon his duties with renewed energy.

Thrown From His Horse.

A young man named Armstrong, of Brooklyn, while riding a horse on East Sixth street late Saturday afternoon accidentally slipped from the animals back while endeavoring to lead another horse. One of the horses stepped upon Mr. Armstrong's foot, bruising it somewhat but fortunately did not break any bones. Young Mr. Armstrong had previously been horseback riding with a young lady, and was returning to the stable with the horses when the accident happened.

Brought One; Rest Are Coming.

Jim McAvoy, the well known butcher of Somerset street, accompanied by a party of friends, went crabbing last Saturday. The boys had a fine time and Jim brought home a specimen of his catch. The balance of the crabs have not yet reached Plainfield. Jim will not tell his friends the exact date of their arrival.

Had Been a Prominent Striker.

Jack, familiarly known as "Yellow Kid" Vardon, who was a prominent factor in the recent newsboys' strike, is no longer employed by Theodore Roeder, the Union News Company's agent at the North Avenue station.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

TRINITY CHURCH IMPROVEMENT.

Vacant Space in Front of Church is to Be Paved at Member's Expense.

Ever since the remodeling of Trinity Reformed church it has been the wish and desire of the congregation and people who worship there that the entire large space in front of the church could be paved with bluestone in place of the crushed stone that was spread in three different places, and which was always scattered about by the scuffling of the feet of children and passersby. And now the wish of that people is about to be gratified and the long wished for improvement consummated. A. Kane, the contractor, has agreed to furnish the stone and do the work at a slight advance over cost of material and labor, and a member of the church, who has the interests of the church at heart, has agreed to pay the entire cost. This will be a decided improvement to the church property, as well as a convenience to the public. Mr. Kane will commence to lay the stones tomorrow morning and push it to completion this week.

Home From Europe.

C. Maynard Evans arrived home this morning from a five weeks' trip to Europe, coming on the S. S. Menominee, of the Atlantic Transport Line from London, leaving there July 27th. Mr. Evans reports a glorious time and a particularly charming trip home.

Action for Wages Tried.

The action of Mary Love against Simeon A. Cruikshank, for wages alleged to be due for services, was before Justice Moffett this morning. Pope & Runyon for the plaintiff; William N. Runyon for defendant.

Mrs. Harry C. Runyon is visiting her grandmother at Centerville, Hunterdon county.

Meteorological Cussedness.

At Westtown, Chester County, Pa., the Friends' big school celebrated its one hundredth anniversary recently. They have at the school a kind of diary, or log, which has been kept up continuously for 100 years, and in which the state of the weather every day during all that time has been noted down. The log was consulted for an auspicious date in the matter of weather for the anniversary, and it showed that every June 10 has been clear since the beginning of the school's career. Then some said: "Since it hasn't rained for 100 years on June 10 we had better avoid that date, for it will be sure to rain then this year." But others said that reason and philosophy indicated June 10 to be a day devoted, from some unknown atmospheric causes, to sunshine and blue skies. The latter set of people carried the day, and the school celebrated its anniversary on June 10. But it rained so hard that the guests had to sit around in tents.

She Would Have Stopped It.

Some time ago the wife of an old inhabitant of a Durham, England, village died, leaving a grown-up family behind her. The father remained a widower about eighteen months; then he entered the matrimonial state again. The youngest daughter, aged about twenty, on the day of the wedding, went to the village butcher's.

After the usual courtesies, the butcher asked her: "Is it true yor fether got married agyen?"

"Aye, it's ower true!" said the girl.

"Didn't ye want him to get married agyen?"

"No; we wor sall agyen it, but aad fyul wad hev his aan way. But Aa back if ma muthor had been living sh'd had put a stop tiv't!"

She Might Relent.

HE.

You treat me now with cold disdain,
But some day you'll regret;
I shall not go away and pine,
But I'm going out to get
A job somewhere and I shall work
And be a magnate yet.

SHE.

Go, leave my presence, since you say
You don't intend to fret;
You'll never, never see the day
That you'll make me regret—
But still, I wish you'd let me know
What kind of job you get.

Practicing Medicine.

"Doctor," sighed the fat man, "I guess it's no use. I've tried everything you've prescribed and grown fleshier all the time. Your latest recommendation was to ride horseback. I've done so faithfully for a month, but I've taken on eighteen pounds and the horse has lost 160."

"Ah! there's a scientific suggestion," said the elated doctor. "Try letting the horse ride you for a while."—Detroit Free Press.

Getting Even.

"Oh, yes," said the stocky man with the square jaw, "my married life is quite a happy one."

"Glad to hear it," said the thin man with the thin hair. "Got any particular system?"

"Well, yes. Whenever my wife gets into a tantrum I go out and find the fellow who introduced us and give him another licking."—Indianapolis Journal.

In the Air.

"Where do you live?" asked the police magistrate.

"I live a block above Stanton street, your honor, corner of Essex."

"But the officer says you live at No. 999 Houston street."

"That's all right, your honor, I live in the top flat."

"Prisoner discharged on the ground that he's an angel."—Mail and Express.

"I can't decide, to save me, ma, which I like best; Harry is so timid, and Jack is so persistent."—Puck.

HORSES DO FAST WORK

Three Match Races at Gentlemen's Driving Park Track Saturday.

A large crowd was attracted to the Gentlemen's Driving Park track Saturday afternoon, when a good programme was offered. There were three match races, all very interesting. The first race was between horses owned by Harry Gwynett and Mr. Hayes, and the latter won the two heats in excellent time. The second race was between horses owned by N. B. Smalley, J. M. Smalley and Chas. Brower. Mr. Brower won two straight heats and the race. The time was very good. The last race was by horses owned by J. W. Johnson, Thomas Brantingham and C. L. Wright. Mr. Brantingham won the race by taking two heats. The best time was 2:26. After the match races there were several good exhibition races which were greatly enjoyed by the crowd. All the horses on the track are in training for the race meet to be held soon at New Brunswick, and they all showed up in remarkably good form. If predictions come true some of the Plainfield horses should capture some of the money at New Brunswick.

WOULDN'T MAKE COMPLAINT.

So Constable Walpole Could Do Nothing But Release His Prisoner.

Shortly after midnight Saturday night, when the crowd was waiting at the Scotch Plains terminus for the last trolley, the screams of a woman were heard. They came from the direction of the Episcopal church. The crowd rushed to see what was the matter. They found a young Plainfield woman who claimed that a young man had assaulted her. The crowd captured the man.

Somebody roused Constable Walpole who hurried to the scene of the trouble. He asked the young woman to make a complaint but she refused, not caring for the publicity. There was nothing for the constable to do but release the man who said he was from Elizabethport.

SUFFERED BUT LITTLE.

Mills of Carabelle Land and Lumber Company Only Slightly Damaged.

A despatch has been received from Carabelle, Fla., telling that the mill belonging to the Carabelle Land and Lumber Company was not badly damaged by the great storm that swept through Florida last Tuesday. Carabelle was cut off from the rest of the world for several days. Telegraphic communication has now been restored, and one of the first messages told that the mill in question escaped. It suffered slight damage that will amount to $700. A. D. Thompson and a number of other Plainfielders are largely interested in the Carabelle Land and Lumber Company.

Rev. J. P. Taylor preached at Holy Cross Episcopal church yesterday in the absence of Rev. Mr. Downey, who who is on his vacation.

MANY VISITORS GO TO CAMP WOOLFE.

Headquarters of Union Fresh-Air Mission Association.

LOCATED NEAR WESTFIELD.

A SUMMER HOME FOR NEW YORK WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

A Little Settlement Has Been Built There for the Accommodation of These Guests—Miss Sara Curry is the Matron—Housekeeping and Cooking, Taught—The Little Folks Are Not Forgotten.

Among the places of interest within reach of Plainfield by bicycle, there are few which attract more visitors than Camp Woolfe, the headquarters of the Union Fresh-Air Mission Association, of Union county. In a pretty grove, about three-quarters of a mile from the Westfield railway station, are a group of buildings erected especially for a summer home for tired, ill and and discouraged New York women of the lower classes, and their little children.

The principal building has a wooden floor and roof, but open sides, except when the canvass curtains with which it is provided are closed. This serves as dining room, general living room, and auditorium for the religious services which are held Sunday afternoons and every evening of the week except Saturday. Adjoining is the kitchen building, where the food for the camp is prepared, and where the guests are given very practical sort of cooking lessons, which they find a great help in their home life on their return to New York. Two dormitories stand at a little distance, and here not an inch of room is wasted. The bedrooms, which remind one of staterooms on a steamer, are just large enough to accommodate a large bed for the mother and a short one for the child. The room belonging to the matron, Miss Sara Curry, a successful New York city missionary, is in the larger of the dormitory buildings. The laundry and bathhouse are comparatively new additions. A most attractive little building is the nursery, where a number of very little folk, attendants at Miss Curry's New York Day Nursery, spend the entire summer, instead of only remaining at the camp for ten days, as do the older ones.

The Union Fresh-Air Mission Association was formed in 1896, and is made up of representatives of Christian Endeavor Societies, Epworth Leagues and Sunday-schools of Union county. The present officers are as follows: President, George E. Woolfe, of New York; first vice president, Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield; second vice-president, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, of Plainfield; secretary, Miss Jane R Morrow, of Westfield; treasurer, Lawrence A. Clark, of Westfield. The association is supported entirely by voluntary contributions, and appeals to all who are interested in work of this sort. Since its organization, though it has been at times very poor, it has never failed to meet an obligation. Every year the number of guests entertained has been larger than the year before, and this season promises to be a very large and successful one. The camp is supposed to accommodate about 125 mothers and children, and it is constantly filled to its utmost capacity. Last year the total number entertained was 370.

Not only is a rest and vacation provided for the mothers and children, but the former are instructed in household economy, the preparation of food and the care of children. They are also surrounded by distinctively religious influences. Morning prayers are conducted by Miss Curry, and the evening meetings are under the direction of a devotional committee of the union, and are conducted by the various societies represented in the union. The guests, especially the small folks, love to sing, and a great deal of bright music is an attractive feature of the meetings.

The free life in the open air, the peaceful Christian atmosphere, and plenty of rest and good plain food do wonders for the pale and weary New Yorkers. Delicate children go home rosy and healthy, and women coming out with selfish, depraved or even vicious natures, often return home with new aims, to take up a new life, and with a sincere trust in the Saviour, of whom they heard so much through the happy summer days.

Clothing, good literature, or goodies and playthings for the little ones are very acceptable at the camp, and there can scarcely be a pleasanter way of spending a small sum than by investing it in something that will

RANKIN IS FOR SQUIER.

WILL BACK HIM IN FIGHT FOR COUNTY CLERKSHIP.

Has Thrown Down Houston—Elizabeth Politicians Say Kirk is Plainfield's Candidate for the County Clerkship.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 8—Former Mayor John C. Rankin, of this city, started Saturday afternoon for the Hot Springs, where he will remain three weeks to recuperate his health and get himself in shape for the fall campaign, in which he expects to take an active part.

The ex-Mayor is going to throw his support, it is said, for Assemblyman George A. Squier for county clerk, and has dropped Assemblyman Houston, who was his candidate for sheriff three years ago, and who counted on his support in getting the delegates this year.

Ex-Mayor Rankin called on Governor Voorhees before starting on his journey and bade him good-bye. They did not, however, discuss any politics, as Mr. Rankin had only a few minutes to catch his train. That he intends to be a potent factor in the coming county convention is plainly evident from the talk of his followers.

The Elizabeth Republican leaders take no stock in the candidacy of B. Frank Coriell, of Plainfield, for sheriff, which they declare is only a move to help along County Clerk Howard in his fight for a renomination, as Mr. Coriell is Clerk Howard's chief assistant in the office. Sheriff Kirk, of Plainfield, the Elizabeth politicians say, is the man who is really working to secure Plainfield's delegates to help nominate him for county clerk.

ASHAMED OF CITY JAIL

Didn't Want to Show Visiting Officer What a Disgrace Plainfield Possesses.

Patrolman John Flynn, of West End Park, had as his guest last Sunday and Monday Detective Anderson Robinson, of Police Headquarters, New York. Mr. Robinson is "one of the finest" in the business, and stands very high in his profession which he has followed for many years. He was delighted with Plainfield and its natural beauty. While here he repeatedly inquired of his host as to where the City Jail is located, but every time Mr. Flynn would give an evasive answer and change the subject. This Mr. Robinson could not understand, and finally came to the conclusion that the city is without such an institution. There are many Plainfielders who share with Patrolman Flynn the general disgrace felt by the maintenance of such an institution that is called a City Jail.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR TRINITY.

Small Children Built Bonfire Under Back Stoop of Church.

Yesterday afternoon Geo. W. Cole and an officer of Trinity Reformed church were standing in Exchange alley talking, when Mr. Cole noticed three young children with armfuls of waste paper running in the rear yard of the church and he was sure they intended building a bonfire. In a few minutes smoke was noticed in the rear of the church and the children ran scampering out of the yard and down the street, saying as they ran that they were having some "fun." The two men ran into the yard and under the back stoop of the church quite a good sized fire was blazing up to the bottom boards of the stoop. It was quickly extinguished. Chief Grant and Chief Engineer Doane were notified and the parents of the children told of the narrow escape to firing the church, and the children were severely reprimanded.

Tornado Insurance.

The tornado policies, now issued by first-class companies, have made so large an increase in the work of the offices, that on a recent visit of W. A. Woodruff to the home offices of one of his companies in New York he found a large clerical force at work trying to meet this demand. Since his return he has lost no time in bringing the advantages of this insurance before his patrons and is well pleased at the result, as it commends itself both for the safety it affords and because of the nominal rate at which they may be thus secured against the ravages of the wind.

Arrested for Assault.

SILVER MEN IGNORED BY STATE COMMITTEE.

Meeting of Democratic State Committee at Asbury Park.

NOTED POLITICIANS THERE

CONGRESSMAN DALY AND SILVER WING NOT INVITED TO SESSION.

Robert Davis, of Hudson, Told How They Do It in His County—Election of County Committees Favored—Young Men Wanted on the Firing Line—Committee Met Behind Closed Doors.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, August 8—The Gold Democrats were in power in the Democratic State committee, and so the meeting of the committee held at the Coleman House yesterday afternoon was unanimous in its opinion. The Silver Democrats, who had come in force to advance Bryan and free silver as the hope for 1900, never had a chance to make themselves heard before the committee. It was expected that the meeting was to be open to all the Democratic leaders and invitations were sent all over the State. With the exception of "Bob" Davis and a few others, however, the guests patiently sat about the piazza of the Coleman House and waited for something to happen while the meeting went on inside behind closed doors.

Only seven out of the twenty-six members of the State committee were absent. Prominent Democrats from all over the State were present, including Congressman Daly and "Bob" Davis, of Hudson.

The State committee met at noon. The recent death of Dr. A. E. Conrow, of Moorestown, left a vacancy in the committee from Burlington county. There were two candidates for the place, William F. Morgan, of Palmyra, an out and-out silverite, and an ex-prosecutor of the pleas, and Eckard P. Budd, of Mount Holly. Budd is also a former member of the State committee. He trains with the gold wing of the party. Friends of Morgan asked to be heard, but the request was denied, and Budd was elected by a unanimous vote to fill the vacancy. Morgan was indorsed for the position by a majority of the central committee, of his county, and Budd was backed by a majority of the county committee, so more trouble will ensue between the now-warring factions in that county.

Chairman Gourley, in a long speech recalling recent defeats, pointed out the necessity for an immediate reorganization of the State in order to bring about victory next year. The party lacked uniform organization, he said, and until this was accomplished there was little hope for wresting the State from Republican control. Mr. Gourley suggested that a committee of five be appointed to prepare a plan for organizing every voting precinct in the State, this plan to be submitted to the various county conventions in the fall for adoption. The suggestion of the chairman was adopted, and the committee adjourned for luncheon.

At the afternoon session the chairmen of the county committees met with the State committee. Robert Davis and Commissioner Clark, of Hudson, were invited to participate in the comfab, although Congressman Daly and other silver leaders were ignored. It was brought out at the conference that in some counties the county committees were appointed and in others they were elected. The elective system was thought to be the better plan, and the special committee named, consisting of Chairman Gourley, and Committeemen Price, of Essex; Budd, of Burlington; Cornish, of Warren, and Lanning, of Mercer, will combine this feature in the organization plan which they will formulate and submit to the counties before September 1st.

Davis favored the elective system of choosing the members of the county committees. Speaking in favor of this scheme, he said: "I am also in favor of voting direct for candidates. We do this in Hudson and find it much cheaper than the old way, for you don't have freaky delegates to deal with."

Davis was asked to suggest a plan to bring the Democratic party to the front again in New Jersey. "You want to put the young men on the firing line," he replied. "Old men are good enough to go to for advice, but we want young men to work."

"Of course," Chairman Gourley said, "that is no reflection on the State committee."

"On some of them, yes," the little "Boss" retorted.

Commissioner Clark corroborated his leader. "County committees are

LASTED TEN MINUTES.

MONTHLY MEETING OF BOARD OF EDUCATION DIDN'T LAST LONG.

Paid Bills, Heard Report of The Collector and the Building Committee—Repairs at Whittier School to be Finished Soon.

The Board of Education held one of the shortest sessions in the history of the School Board last evening. President Probasco and Messrs. Lounsbury and Abbott were the only members present. In the absence of Mr. Clark, the clerk, Mr. Lounsbury acted in that capacity. The session lasted just ten minutes. During that time the Board audited and ordered paid bills to the amount of about $500. The report of the tax collector for July showed that school taxes to the amount of $826 37 had been collected and credited to the school funds.

Before the Board adjourned, subject to the call of the chair, Mr. Lounsbury stated that the repairs being made to the Whittier School building were progressing finely. The building is expected to be finished by the 20th of the month.

THE ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

Names of some of the Principal Brands Sold in this Vicinity.

The recent discussion in the papers of the effect upon the human system of food made with alum baking powders and the opinions that have been published from noted scientists to the effect that such powders render the food unwholesome, have caused numerous inquiries for the names of the various alum powders.

In this state, Massachusetts and many other states, of such importance do the food authorities deem the matter, that the names of alum powders are officially made public, and in two states at least the laws provide that there shall be printed upon the labels of all packages of this class of powders the statement that they contain alum.

Information as to the list here given has been obtained from the official report of the New Jersey Food Commission, from the Agricultural Department chemist at Washington, and from other equally reliable authority.

Baking Powders Containing Alum:

DAVIS O. K.....Contains Alum
R. B. Davis & Co., New York.
WASHINGTON.....Contains Alum
Washington Baking Powder Co.
GEM.....Contains Alum
A. J. Howell, New York.
I. C.....Contains Alum
Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.
JERSEY BELL.....Contains Alum
The Ford & Creveling Co., Jersey City.
GRAND UNION.....Contains Alum
Grand Union Tea Co., New York.

In addition to these, it is learned that many grocers are selling what they call their own private or special brands. These powders are put up for the grocer, and his name put upon the labels by manufacturers of alum powders in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere. The manufacturers, it is said, find their efforts to market their goods in this way greatly aided by the ambition of the grocer to sell a powder with his own name upon the label, especially as he can make an abnormal profit upon it. Many grocers, doubtless, do not know that the powders they are thus pushing contain alum and would be actually contraband in many sections if sold without disguise.

It is quite impossible to give the names of all the alum powders in the market. They are constantly appearing in all sorts of disguises, under all kinds of cognomens, and at all kinds of prices, even as low as five and ten cents a pound. They can be avoided, however, by the housekeeper who will bear in mind that all baking powders sold at twenty-five cents or less per pound are liable to contain Alum, as pure cream of tartar powders cannot be produced at anything like this price.

Testimony From a Successful Advertiser.

A successful advertiser recognizes a good medium and takes advantage of it. P. H. Brown, the chiropodist, owes much of his success to proper advertising. He has had experience in that line. During his stay in Plainfield, he has been a prominent advertiser in The Daily Press. He is now leaving Plainfield and writes to The Daily Press: "When I return to Plainfield I will resume advertising as usual as I consider The Press a splendid advertising medium." And Mr. Brown is a successful advertiser and knows whereof he speaks.

Will Not be a Candidate.

The story that the popular borough ite, Hon. Elston M. French, will be a candidate for Senatorial honors before the convention, is without foundation. While Mr. French appreciates the honor and is a Democrat, he will only be a candidate in the interests of harmony in his party ranks.

RUNAWAY GIRL WAS FOUND IN WESTFIELD.

Fled From Home to Escape Mother's Anger.

SHE LIVED AT SPRINGFIELD.

TOLD A DIFFERENT STORY TO THE WESTFIELD AUTHORITIES.

James Connolly Came to Westfield Yesterday Looking for His Lost Daughter—Identified Strange Girl Picked Up Saturday Evening as His Daughter—She Ran Away to Escape Punishment.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Aug. 8.—Kate Connolly, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Connolly, of Westfield avenue, Springfield, who disappeared from home Saturday, has been found in Westfield. Saturday night she was found at the depot here by Officer Todd and taken to the home of John Tobin on North avenue. The girl was well dressed and spoke like a girl who had attended school regularly.

To the overseer of the poor she told a wonderful story of wandering about the country. According to her story she lived at South Orange with her mother up to about nine months ago when the latter died and she was taken to Philadelphia and lived there with an aunt until recently when she was brought to New York and placed to live with another aunt, who last week sent her to Summit to work as a nurse girl. Saturday she was discharged, so her story goes, and she walked to Westfield.

James Connolly came to Westfield last night on his way to Fanwood, where a band of gypsies are encamped, thinking that she may have been taken by them, and heard while here of a girl having been found. Officer John M. C. Marsh went to the home of the Tobins and asked the girl if she wanted to see her father, and she said she had no father, but that she was willing to see the man who said he was her father. When Mr. Connolly arrived the girl said that she had run away from home because her mother had threatened to kill her.

It seems that the girl had borrowed her sister's bicycle, and gone to Summit, and getting caught in the shower Saturday had gotten the wheel wet, and this is when the mother is alleged to have said she would kill her. The girl's father promised the police here that the girl should not be punished. In reference to her mother having said that she would kill her he stated that she didn't mean it, but, he said "that's the Irish of it."

TANDEM AND CARRIAGE COLLIDED.

Came Together Accidentally on North Avenue Last Evening.

S. C. Crane, of East Second street, and J. Harry Green, of Verdon avenue, were riding a tandem wheel on North avenue yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock. In turning into Park avenue they accidentally collided with a carriage in charge of A. D. Thompson. The young men were thrown from their wheel and had a narrow escape from being run down and seriously injured. Their wheel was somewhat damaged, and Mr. Crane sustained a few injuries about the legs, and his trousers were torn at the knee. The accident was said to be unavoidable. Mr. Thompson's rig was not damaged to any extent.

Charles Perrine Discharged.

Charles Perrine appeared before City Judge Runyon this morning, charged by Miss Carrie Conger, of 305 East Fourth street, with assaulting her and scratching her neck There was a fight. Perrine pleaded not guilty and explained that the scratches were made by her son. Some rather strong statements were made by both sides. Isaac P. Runyon appeared for the prisoner. The Judge declared that Miss Conger failed to make any case and discharged the prisoner.

Saw Dewey Do It.

On board the ship, Bangalore, which has just reached New York, is a steward from Plainfield. His name is Horton and he formerly resided in the borough. He has a curious history to relate. He shipped on a German collier, bound for the Philippines. He saw Dewey destroy the Spanish fleet and afterwards bombard the city of Manila. The Germans on the ship were very strong in their feelings against the Americans.

Represented Somerset.

Hon. Elston M. French, of the borough, was present at the conference of the Democratic State committee held at Asbury Park yesterday. He represented the county of Somerset, he was the only member from Somerset present.

CHARGED WITH CRUELTY

GEORGE ARROWSMITH ACCUSED OF BEATING HIS HORSE.

He Will Be Tried at South Plainfield This Afternoon—Complaint Brought By an Agent of the S. P. C. A

(Special to The Daily Press.)

South Plainfield, August 8—Everybody in the town is interested in the outcome of the trial of George Arrowsmith, which is to be held this afternoon before a traveling justice of the peace. Arrowsmith is well known here, where he is employed as a night trackwalker for the Lehigh Valley Railroad. He owns a horse, which is the cause of the trouble.

One day last week he passed the home of Wm. B. Stewart, who was formerly a resident of Plainfield, and Mr. Stewart alleges that he was beating the horse in an outrageously cruel manner. Mr. Stewart was so indignant that he notified Wm. N. Pangborn, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and a complaint was brought against Arrowsmith.

As both parties are very well known here, there is more than the usual interest shown in the case. The trial will be held this afternoon at Laine's Hotel, and a great crowd is expected to attend.

CUSTODIAN OF CITY MAPS.

Was Promised by Committee but Council Wouldn't Agree to It.

Regarding the acceptance of the new city maps recently completed by Frank J. Hubbard, civil engineer, and the appointment of a custodian for the same, a word of explanation should be given. H. C. VanEmburgh and Frank J. Hubbard were bidders for the work of making the maps. Mr. Hubbard's bid was higher than the one offered by Mr. VanEmburgh, but he withdrew it and made his bid the same. It was agreed by the committee in charge that Mr. Hubbard should do the work and when completed Mr. VanEmburgh should be the custodian. This is the early history of the map question. Last evening when the matter came to a vote the majority of the Council did not favor adhering to any promises or agreements made by the committee and the street commissioner was appointed custodian, he being a city official, and in the eyes of a majority of the Councilmen, the right person to look after the maps.

INJURED BY WIRE FENCE.

V. D. Schomp Obtained $55 Damages to His Horse.

Justice Mosher has rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiff for $55 and costs in the action in tort brought by Victor D. Schomp against John Mair. The suit was tried last Tuesday and was brought by the plaintiff to recover $75 damages for injuries to a horse alleged to have occurred on the defendant's premises by reason of his having a barbed wire fence between his property and that of the plaintiff. W. S. Angleman represented the defendant.

Shorthand Rumor is False.

Rumor has it in Plainfield that the Gregg system of shorthand cannot be used in court work. We deny this and have letters from supreme and criminal court judges corroborating our statement that it is used in court work. The Gregg system is used by thousands in every class of work and in every country. We have proof of every statement we have ever made concerning the Gregg. Gregg College of Business and Shorthand, W. Cock Fight Trial Adjourned.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 8—John Smiler, Jr., Fred Smiler, Fred Ritter and John L. Titus, all of Linden, appeared before Justice Collins this morning for trial for cock fighting. Counselor Fred Marsh, who was to appear for the county, was ill and unable to be present. Former Judge Codington, of Plainfield, represented the defendants.

Failed to Prove Existence of Corporation.

In the action brought yesterday before Justice Moffett by W. H. Abbott, an insurance agent, against the First Church of Christ to recover the amount of an insurance premium, the Justice gave a nonsuit. S. S. Swackhamer, counsel for the church, secured the decision on the ground that the plaintiff had not proven the existence of any church corporation. Isaac P. Runyon appeared for the plaintiff.

Sold at Constable's Sale.

Constable Weaver yesterday sold at constable's sale a stump puller, chains and pulley, the property of Robt. McNabb, of Oakwood avenue. The property was bought by Chas. McNabb for $50. Judgment was secured by Joshua Loizeaux.

TROLLEY ROAD WANTS ANOTHER FRANCHISE.

Petitioned City Fathers for Arlington Avenue Extension.

PUBLIC HEARING SEPT. 5TH.

HOT DISCUSSION OVER WHO WAS TO BE CUSTODIAN OF CITY MAPS.

Some Wanted H. C. VanEmburgh, Others Wanted Frank J. Hubbard, and They Finally Decided to Make the Street Commissioner Custodian—One Full Paid and Call Man Added to the Fire Department.

It was a long and rather lively regular meeting that the City Fathers held last evening. All the members were present except Messrs. Liefke and Smith. There was a considerable amount of routine business transacted, and an unexpected discussion arose over the acceptance of the new official city maps which have just been completed, and were presented at the meeting through the proper committee.

Mr. Mellick, chairman of the committee on the collection and assessment of taxes, reported on the maps, and offered a combined set of resolutions which provided that they be accepted, that H. C. VanEmburgh be made custodian of the maps, and that the fees to be received be paid to him by persons desiring location of property, transfer of deeds, etc., and that at some future time an ordinance be introduced embodying all of the above resolutions.

A communication was received from Frank J. Hubbard, the maker of the maps, in which he offered to keep the same for one year and do the work of a custodian free of charge.

There was objection to this on the ground that a city official should have charge of the maps, and this precipitated a discussion, as did also the question as to whether the resolutions had to be adopted as a whole or whether they could be taken up separately. The members became slightly mixed on points of law and at one time it looked as though they would never get matters straightened out. Mr. Hetfield secured a recess of fifteen minutes while he went to his office and examined his law books on the subject. This investigation did not satisfy the other members. Mr. Buckle thought the maps should be accepted; that Mr. Hubbard's offer for one year should be accepted. He was opposed to creating any more offices. Mr. Barrows agreed with Mr. Buckle and thought the city should have as few offices as possible and good salaries should be paid to the office-holders. He did not believe any taxpayer would object to that, but certainly would if the Council created new offices.

Mr. Coriell maintained that the resolutions could be taken up separately and finally won his point. On the question of adopting the map, Messrs. Buckle and Hetfield voted no, but the other members carried the motion. Then appeared the question as to who should be custodian. Some wanted Mr. Hubbard, some wanted Mr. VanEmburgh, while others thought the street commissioner should be the custodian. It was finally voted that the street commissioner should keep the maps and do the work connected with the office. The other resolutions were adopted without opposition.

However, Mr. Coriell thought it was an insult to Mr. Hubbard to reject his offer, and he felt as though the Council had made a mistake, although he voted with the majority. Other members thought that Mr. Hubbard would not feel grieved if he did not have the work to do.

The fees for work connected with the office will be fixed by ordinance later when Corporation Counsel Marsh returns, but it appears that when the maps are accepted a custodian has to be appointed, hence the selection of a person last evening.

A petition was received from Phœbe Sprague and Stella Butler, executors of the estate of the late Isaac Stelle, of Piscataway township, objecting to an 1897 tax imposed on property located in this city, claiming that the amount was paid and they have receipts therefore. They asked the Council to cancel the amount and desist advertising the property for sale September 14th next. The matter was referred to the proper committee.

John Goff, former owner of a saloon on Park avenue, petitioned the Council to transfer his license to Charles Shanz, who has purchased the business. This matter was referred to the license committee and was granted. The Plainfield Real Estate Company petitioned for four electric lights on West Sixth street, and N. H. Ran-

TO INCREASE HER FORCES

Great Britain to Send More Troops to Victoria, B. C., at an Early Date.

WAR SHIPS COMING TOO

England and Canada May Try to Force Claims to Disputed Territory in Alaska.

The Garrison to be Greatly Increased at Once—Some of the Troops Already on Their Way to Victoria From England—New War Ship to Arrive in Two Weeks.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 8.—The Imperial Government and the Dominion authorities have decided to increase both the regular military and militia forces on this station, the Pacific coast depot of the army and navy.

Coming at a time when the relations between Canada and the United States are acknowledged by Premier Laurier to be strained over the Alaskan boundary question, it looks as if Britain and Canada were determined to assert their claim to those portions of Alaska demanded by Canada by force of arms if necessary.

Be this as it may, the garrison is to be at once greatly increased. The barracks on Macauly Point, where the big forts are situated, which, with their long-reaching disappearing guns, command the entrance to the Straits of San Juan de Fuca, will soon be the home of more than treble the number of engineers, marine artillery, sappers and other united service men than are now quartered there.

Some of the additional garrison has already left England and others will come out in big squads within the next few months via Halifax and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The first squad of troops to come will number 320 officers and men and the present accommodation being too small to house them, much larger barracks will be at once erected.

The cost of the new military post, half of which is to be borne by the Dominion Government and half by the British authorities, will be £25,000, or about $125,000.

The naval forces will be increased by the addition of a depot ship, the Temeraire, which will be sent out from Chatham in September.

The warship with the new Admiral is due from England two weeks hence.

President Watches Boat Races.

Plattsburg, Aug. 8.—The first race of the annual regatta of the Lake Champlain Yacht Club resulted in a victory for the Witchcraft, owned by W. B. Rogers, of Boston, and H. T. Kellogg, of Plattsburg. The Sandalphon, owned by Alvaro Adsit, of Burlington, Vt., was a close second, and the Gleam, owned by former Congressman Wallace T. Foote, Jr., of Port Henry, third. The Gleam ran around just before the starting gun was fired and lost several minutes. Dr. Seward Webb's yacht Elfrida arrived from Shelburne, and took on board President McKinley, Vice President and Mrs. Hobart, Miss Duncan, Dr. and Mrs. Rixey, Private Secretary Cortelyou and Mr. Rudolph Forster, the President's stenographer, who witnessed the race from the yacht.

Six Hurt in a Brief Race Riot.

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 8.—A race riot occurred at the Poe cotton mills near this place, in which one white man and five negroes were wounded. Several negroes fired into the home of Mr. Greenberg, a mill operator, while he and his family were at supper. No one was struck by the shots, but Greenberg and his friends followed the negroes, capturing the leader. He was taken to jail. Reports were circulated among the negroes that he had been lynched, and 300 of them appeared at the mills. Messengers summoned white men from Greenville and a pitched battle ensued. "Ben" Odom was the only white man wounded. The names of the five wounded negroes are unknown, as they were immediately taken off by members of their race to prevent their arrest. Excitement has subsided and all is quiet.

Santo Domingo on Watch.

Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, Aug. 8.—Senor Alvarez, the Minister of Finance, and Senor Cordero, with 100 men, went to Monte Cristi. They united there with 700 men, who had been assembled in behalf of the government for the restoration of order.

Armed steamers are watching the coast to prevent the landing of an insurrectionary expedition, should such a thing be attempted.

The Governor of Monte Cristi has 3,000 men under arms for the preservation of the peace. The situation, however, is considered grave.

Our Cruisers on the Spot.

Santo Domingo, Aug. 8.—The United States gunboat Mashias has left here for Punta Macoris. The United States cruiser New Orleans still remains here. News from the interior indicates that tranquility prevails. Business, however, continues depressed. The want of drafts is greatly felt here. The Government is endeavoring to ameliorate the financial condition.

Bryan at Iowa Chautauqua.

Clarinda, Iowa, Aug. 8.—Colonel W. J. Bryan addressed 5,000 persons at the Chautauqua here. He discussed the silver question, expansion, increase of the army and trusts.

Breaking Artery Causes Death.

Painesville, Ohio, Aug. 8.—While preparing dinner, Mrs. George Green, of West Painesville, broke an artery in her left leg and died before the arrival of a physician.

New Yellow Fever Case.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 8.—One new case of yellow fever has been reported at the Soldiers' Home at Hampton. No deaths were reported.

OUR MACHINERY ABROAD.

Extraordinary Demand in Europe for Electrical Apparatus.

St. Paul, Aug. 8.—William J. Johnston, for twenty-five years proprietor of one of New York's leading electrical papers, who is on his way around the world, passed through here on his way west. Mr. Johnston, who has just come from a trip to Europe, says the demand in Europe for American electrical and other machinery would surprise even our own manufacturers, who have not paid special attention to the subject. Several European factories he has visited are wholly or almost altogether equipped with American tools, lathes, etc., and he knows even of one prominent German firm establishing a branch manufacturing plant in London which has employed an American consulting engineer to prepare the plans and purchase and install American machinery throughout.

Recently, in being shown over the extensive Woolwich, England, works of certain well-known manufacturers of Atlantic cables and electrical machinery, he noticed that the work done in one department of the establishment was spoken of with particular enthusiasm and pride, and presently he was gratified to have his host say: "I need hardly add that all the machinery in this department is of American manufacture."

More Smallpox Cases.

Albany, Aug. 8.—Smallpox has broken out again in various parts of the State, and Dr. Smeltzer, secretary of the State Board of Health, says it is due in a great measure to the persistency of physicians in diagnosing cases of smallpox as chicken pox. "If these physicians," said Dr. Smeltzer, "would only rely on the experience of the officials connected with our board there would be fewer cases of smallpox in this State." The latest cases reported are at Cato, Cayuga County, and Seneca Falls, Seneca County.

Four Attendants Arrested.

New York, Aug. 8.—Four attendants of the Manhattan State Insane Asylum have been arrested and charged with killing James McGuire, a patient of the institution. The arrest was the outcome of an autopsy on McGuire's body by Coroner's Physician Hamilton S. Williams, who, when the work was ended, said the evidence showed "a most brutal and shocking murder." The intestines of the victim had been kicked to a pulp, his organs of digestion ruptured, and the wall of the abdominal region had been kicked to ribbons.

Burned Rat to Amuse Child.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8.—Charles T. Granato, a grocer, of No. 380 Ward street paid a fine of $25 and $5 costs in Justice of the Peace Rapp's court. Granato was accused by Colonel E. S. Edwards of the New Jersey Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals with soaking a rat in kerosene oil and then setting fire to it on July 29. Granato pleaded guilty, saying he did it to amuse his young daughter.

Kruger Hears of Trouble.

Pretoria, Aug. 8.—The dispatch of Joseph Chamberlain, besides proposing a joint commission of inquiry into the effect the Transvaal franchise reforms will have on the Outlanders, adds that when this matter is settled the High Commissioner will not be unwilling to confer with President Kruger on other questions, including arbitration, provided always that a foreigner is never permitted to act as arbitrator.

Railway Passenger Station Burned.

Barnegat, N. J., Aug. 8.—The passenger station of the Pennsylvania Railroad in North Beach Haven was destroyed by fire. It is thought a spark from a locomotive set the roof on fire. A small quantity of freight and express matter was destroyed. The fire burned out the ties under the tracks in front of the depot and traffic was delayed for two hours.

Gould Gets Ahead of Match Trust.

New York, Aug. 8.—Edwin Gould worked a clever game on the Diamond Match Company when he consented to go into the concern with his Continental Company. It is said that he sold a plant in Detroit that cost him little more than $35,000 for $700,000, and Detroit is in ecstacies over the shrewdness displayed.

His Clothes Saved Him.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 8.—The seven-year-old son of Thomas Sears was seriously gored by a mad bull. He was in a field and the animal caught the boy's shoulder with one of his horns and threw him 20 feet over his head. The boy's heavy clothing saved him from death.

Can't Stop Hiccoughing.

Greenville, Ohio, Aug. 8.—William T. Lightner, a resident of this city, who has suffered for years with rheumatism, began hiccoughing last Thursday at 1 a. m. and has not stopped yet. Physicins fear he will hiccough himself to death.

Bear Growls at Pekin.

Pekin, Aug. 8.—M. de Giers, the Russian minister, has addressed a note to the Chinese foreign office warning that body that the signing of a nalliance with Japan would give great offense to Russia, and that the consequences to China would be most serious.

WORTH KNOWING.

The first lifeboat was launched in 1700.

Australia is capable of supporting at least 10,000,000 inhabitants.

A physician declares that people who sleep with their mouths shut live longest.

A dealer in artificial limbs estimates that 30,000 Britons have lost one or both legs.

It is estimated that about 2,000,000,000 bicycles have been made in Europe and America.

Cork, if sunk 200 feet in the ocean, will not rise, on account of the pressure of the water.

In Vienna the municipal authorities are constructing a system of bicycle paths for cyclists only.

The greatest depth to which a ship has been anchored is 2,000 fathoms—considerably more than two miles.

WITH ONE VOICE.

Plainfield People Who Have Investigated Are a Unit On The Subject.

The voice of the people

Become nights of rest and days of joy.
It's the constant workings of
Doan's Kidney Pills.
Are these reports all true?
Ask a neighbor who knows.
Here's a Plainfield citizen, ask him.
Read what he says:

Mr. H. C. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says:—"After my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills I cannot do otherwise then speak in the highest terms of them. I was a victim of kidney complaint and dreadful backache, which was so bad in damp weather or when I caught cold that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the troubles. I was at my worst when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I got them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box. You are at liberty to refer anyone to me and I will gladly give my experience in detail."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Natives Seized Lighthouse on Balabac, Near Equator in Philippines.

BATTLE IN NEW QUARTER

Lighthouse Re-established and the American Flag Hoisted With Appropriate Honors.

Three Troops of Cavalry Start For Manila—Will Be Joined at Seattle by Five Other Troops—Transports Are Undergoing a Course of General and Extensive Repairs.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The Navy Department has received the following cable dispatch from Admiral Watson:

"Manila, Aug. 7.—Nazro (Commander Arthur P.), the commander of the Manita, on July 11, re-established lighthouse at Cape Melville, Balabac, Philippine Islands; hoisted flag with appropriate honors. July 13, at his return, thirteen Moros, under arms, were found to be in possession of the lighthouse.

"Landing party commanded by Ensign E. L. Bissett, encountered resistance. No casualty in our party. Loss in killed, one officer and one man to the enemy. Diego Manalo, chief of the Balabac Moros, was killed. Seven taken prisoners; two escaped.

"Chief of the party was very unpopular with the people of Balabac, Philippine Islands, owing to the fear of him. Light has been restored. Manila has landed force. Charleston is on her way to Balabac. Will render all assistance possible. WATSON."

Balabac is the extreme Southwestern island of the Philippine archipelago, south of Palawan, and commands the Strait of Balabac, which is a great commercial highway.

Cavalry for Manila.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Troops D and M, Third Cavalry have left Fort Meyer, Va., for Seattle, en route to Manila. Troops D and A left on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Troop M goes over the Baltimore and Ohio to Chicago, where it will be joined by the other commands.

Five other troops of the Third from Fort Ethan Allen will join the command at Seattle. The mounts for the cavalrymen accompany them in stock cars specially arranged for the purpose.

More Fever at Santiago.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The War Department has received the following from Gen. Brooke:

"Havana, Aug. 7.

"Death report, Havana Hospital No. 1: Robert Bird, civilian employe, quartermaster, died August 2, dysentery; Santiago, James A. Hayes, quartermaster's employe, died August 2, yellow fever; Havana, Duncan Marr, machinist, U. S. Navy, died August 5, yellow fever.

Refitting Manila Transports.

San Francisco, Aug. 8.—The transport Hancock is at the Union Iron Works undergoing extensive repairs. She is being entirely overhauled and is to be fitted up similar to the Grant and Sherman. The repairs will cost about $50,000.

The hospital ship Relief is also to be repaired at an expense of $30,000. When completed these vessels will be the finest of the transport fleet.

Big Philippine Army.

Washington, Aug. 8.—A statement prepared at the War Department shows that by the 22d of October there will be at Manila or on the way to the Philippines 46,000 men. They will all reach the islands before the beginning of the dry season.

Rat Bite Gives Baby Rabies.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 8.—Earnest Taridieu, two months old, is dying of hydrophobia, the effect of a rat bite. The child was in a hammock Saturday, when the rat leaped upon him and bit his face and hands. The child's father is a scenic artist in a New York theatre.

The Erin Towing the Shamrock.

Limerick, Aug. 8.—The steamer Whimbrel, which has arrived here, reports having spoken Sir Thomas Lipton's steam yacht Erin, towing the cup challenger Shamrock ten miles southwest of Tuscar. There was a light wind blowing. The Erin signalled "All well."

"Skeets" Martin Wins.

London, Aug. 8.—At the first day of the Birmingham August meeting "Skeets" Martin, the American jockey, won the maiden plate on Captain C. Trower's Red Queen II. Two horses ran the course, one mile and three furlongs. The betting was 6 to 4 on Red Queen II.

Steamers Collide at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—As a result of a collision, the steamer W. B. Morley, with a cargo of hard coal, lies sunk in the river two blocks above Woodward avenue, and the car-ferry steamer Lansdown is sunk in its slip at Windsor.

Rain in India at Last.

Bombay, Aug. 8.—There has been a slight fall of rain in various parts of western India during the last few days. The monsoon is current again, though not strongly. The situation is somewhat improved.

Wake Island Not Taken.

Berlin, Aug. 8.—A dispatch received here from Tokio says there is no truth in the report that the Japanese flag has been hoisted over Wake Island, northwest of the Marianne.

She Will Quit the Stage.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 8.—Jessie Bartlett Davis, the contralto of the Bostonians, will not again appear with that organization. It is said that she will retire from the stage.

THE MOTORMAN IS BLAMED.

Trolly in Which Twenty-nine Were Killed Was Runnig Recklessly.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 8.—There is a growing opinion here that the trolley car which fell from Peck's Pond Bridge killing twenty-nine passengers and injuring many others was being run at a reckless rate of speed. William W. Jones, superintendent of the Bridgeport Hospital intimates that the motorman, George Hamilton, was practically under arrest. Hamilton, who saved himself by jumping out, sustained contusions of the body in falling and was taken with the other injured to the hospital.

It is claimed that the motorman had disregarded orders and ran the car at a greater rate of speed while crossing the bridge than the rules of the road allow. The motorman says that he does not know whether he turned off the current or not when the car started down the grade.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 8.—George Hamilton, the motorman of the ill-fated car which with its human freight, plunged over the side of the big trestle on the Shelton Traction Company's road, was arraigned before Justice Peck in Stratford Court. The charge brought against Hamilton was that of manslaughter. He pleaded not guilty, and without having heard evidence of any kind Justice Peck continued the case for one week and fixed the prisoner's bail at $2,000. Hamilton was released soon afterward and went to his boarding place in Bridgeport. His surety was William B. Tuttle, a Stratford druggist. Hamilton would make no statement after the hearing.

Trolly Cars Collide.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 8.—While a Flatbush avenue car was rushing along Flatbush avenue at terrific speed, the motorman lying on the front seat smoking and an inexperienced oiler in charge of the machinery it ran into a Nostrand avenue car, which was ahead of it. Nearly a score of passengers were hurt, some of them so severely that they had to be taken to a hospital, and both cars were wrecked. Arnold Hogel, the motorman to whose negligence the accident is said to be due, ran away after the collision, but was afterward arrested by the police at his home at 995 Flatbush avenue.

No More Dead at Mount Desert.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 8.—An examination by divers in the vicinity of the Mount Desert ferry slip, the scene of the terrible accident, and investigation on shore by the officials of the Maine Central Railway and others seems to indicate that there were only twenty who perished as a result of the accident. It seems probable, however, that Mr. Southard, of Bangor, who was seriously injured, will not recover, but aside from two other persons who are suffering from pneumonia, those who were hurt are reported as being in a favorable condition.

Trying to Settle Smelter Strike.

Denver, Col., Aug. 8.—Another attempt to settle the smelter trouble in the interest of the managers is to be made at Pueblo. A representative of union men who are willing to return to work under the managers schedule of wages and conditions, has gone to Pueblo to see what can be done toward getting the men there at work. The men in favor of returning to work argue that after the mills resume an effort to get an increased scale of wages can be made with better chance of success. This idea, it is said, has been advanced by one of the smelter managers.

Mormon Elders Egged Out.

Chattanooga, Aug. 8.—A dispatch from Sweetwater, says that two Mormon elders were hooted and egged out of that town. The men were A. A. Adams and George S. Sears. It is said that the elders were preaching on the street and that they had been warned by the crowd to desist, but that they had declined to do so, whereupon they were set upon and driven out. The attacks on Mormons all over the South have caused great worry to the officers of the Southern Mormon Mission bands in despair.

Cleveland Boycott Ends.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 8.—For the first time in over two weeks the city is practically without military protection. All of the troops have been relieved from guard duty. More persons apparently use the Big Consolidated cars in order to reach the business portion of the city than on any day since the present strike began.

Big Iceberg Sighted.

Greenock, Scotland, Aug. 8.—The British steamer Samara, Capt. Walker, which has arrived here from St. Thomas, Canada, reports having passed through ice fields 130 miles east of Belle Isle, when icebergs 500 feet high were sighted. Her forepeak is supposed to be damaged, being full of water.

Nine-Year-Old Boy Found in Canal.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8.—William E. Rescups, nine years of age, of 375 New street, this city, was drowned in the Morris Canal at the foot of Norfolk street. Young Rescups, after being in the water for some time was taken with cramps and drowned before aid could reach him.

Wheel Ran Over His Neck.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 8.—William Imbkaman, a well-known resident of New Bethel, while here and starting homeward, attempted to climb to his seat, but a sudden start of the horse threw him to the ground. A wheel passed over his neck, killing him instantly.

Will Raise Hare Fur.

Wabash, Ind., Aug. 8.—The Wabash Belgian Hare Breeding and Importation Company has been organized here to import and breed hares for their fur. Accomodations have been provided for a million animals.

The man worked in an Ohio coal mine, and this is the story he told: "For some years past I have been employed under mother earth, from one and a half to two miles from the mouth of the mine, digging coal. The great distance under the hills makes it impossible for me to get pure air, which is forced to us by the aid of great fans. During breaks in machinery the air would become bad, causing first great pains in my head, dizziness and fainting. This continued until next was pains in stomach, indigestion and dyspepsia. Working hard in the mines I naturally was a hearty eater until at last I had dyspepsia so bad I suffered terrible. The doctor prescribed for me, but I only got worse. I took several kinds of medicine. I saw Ripans Tabules advertised and going to the drug store bought some. In three days I was a new man, my head is clear, stomach well, no dyspepsia. These Ripans Tabules did it."

DREYFUS SOBS IN COURT.

He Declares His Innocence in Tones Quivering With Emotion.

Rennes, France, Aug. 8.—Yesterday afternoon's session of the trial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus was productive of some dramatic incidents and affecting scenes.

"I am innocent!" he cried in tones that quivered with emotion when asked by Col. Jouaust if he had written the famous "bordereau" on which he was convicted.

A terrible scene occurred when Dreyfus was shown the document. The prisoner, in a voice scarcely human, declared his innocence in vehement terms.

Finally he broke into sobs and cried, "Five years; the galleys! My wife! My children! My God! I am innocent!"

The vile Esterhazy was not present in court and the judges decided they did not want him.

Dreyfus declared he did not know Du Paty de Clam; that he never visited Brussels; never talked with German officers in Alsace or asked indiscreet questions of high French officers.

Dreyfus also declared in most emphatic terms that he had never confessed to Du Paty de Clam.

When asked if he had confessed Dreyfus raised his white-gloved hand to heaven and shrieked:

"It is iniquitous to condemn an innocent man! I never confessed anything! Never! Never!"

Dreyfus's earnestness and his broken-hearted utterances in response to questions aroused the sympathy of every person in the room to the fullest degree, and the eyes of the prisoner were not by any means the only ones that were filled with tears.

Court opened promptly on time this morning and the trial proceeded from the point reached before adjournment last evening.

Cyclist's Neck Broken.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8.—Robert Williams, jr., while walking along Kingsland road, Passaic County, found the body of a bicycle rider lying alongside his wheel with his neck broken. The body was removed to Passaic and there it was identified as that of Samuel Pearn, of 126 Park avenue, East Orange, thirty-four years of age. It is believed that Pearn was coasting and that he took a header and struck his head on the curbing, thus breaking his neck. Pearn was married and leaves a widow and two children.

Convict Sues State.

Albany, Aug. 8.—John Culleton, of New York City, an ex-convict, has filed against the State a claim for $25,000. He was sentenced to Sing Sing prison April 17, 1895, and during his confinement was put at work cleaning and teasnig hair, from which occupation he contracted blood poisoning. He claims damages on the ground that the State authorities compelled him to perform service which has ruined his health for life. The claim is filed by virtue of a special statute passed by the last Legislature.

Get no More Arms from Chinese.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The United States has secured a ruling that will force the Chinese to quit arming the Filipinos. The American Consul-General, Goodnow, as referee in the case of the steamship Abbey, which was arrested for taking arms from Canton to Luzon, has declared her bond forfeited. This decision will be the precedent for future dealing with ships engaging in such trade, and the Chinese Governments is committed to its enforcement.

Neapolitan Paper Lauds Dewey.

Naples, Aug. 8.—All of the United States consuls in Southern Italy have arrived here to salute Admiral Dewey, and the consuls in the northern part of the country will await his arrival at Leghorn or Genoa. The newspaper Puncolo publishes articles eulogizing Admiral Dewey's deeds at Manila. Discussing the Admiral's appearance in Naples and his genial demeanor, the paper says that the amiability he has displyed recalls the style of the Grand Seigneurs.

Baby Boy Crosses Ocean Alone.

New York, Aug. 8.—Axel Wester, six years old, of Wasa, Finland, arrived here on the steamship Cymric and was at the Barge Office. He was tagged to "John Wester White, Polk County, Wis.," his uncle. He carried with him an open letter signed by his father and mother, asking all to be kind to their son and see to it that he arrived at his destination. The boy was kindly treated and taken to a train.

Steamer Winthrope a Wreck.

Corunna, Spain, Aug. 8.—The British steamer Winthrope, from Newport July 21, for Lisbon, from which, as reported, August 5, nineteen persons landed at Muros, Province of Corunna, struck on a rock. It is now learned, while on her way from Huelva, Spain, to Antwerp, and was totally wrecked. Her crew landed safely at Muros, in their own boats.

She Wants no More Cats.

Westchester, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The cat haven conducted for the last twenty years by Mrs. Hannah Clemson is no longer open to all comers. The old lady declares that she has been imposed upon and has bought a big cat-hating dog that silences all newcomers. She also runs an advertisement in a daily paper begging the public to send no more cats to her.

War is Threatened.

San Francisco, Aug. 8.—War between Mexico and Guatemala is now threatened. Mexico has demanded that Guatemala apologize for the kidnapping of General Rowen, an enemy of President Cabrera, who had fled to Mexico for safety. He was drugged, and, in an unconscious condition, made prisoner by men be supposed were friends.

Cuban Criminals Coming Here.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The Attorney-General will be asked to devise a plan for extraditing Cuban criminals who flee to the United States. The war ended all the treaties in existence affecting the island, and no new arrangement has been made. The result is that at present a criminal fugitive cannot be returned legally.

INDIANS ARE DESPERATE.

Mexico is Determined to Exterminate Them and End the War Quickly.

HARD FIGHT IN PROSPECT

An Army of 2,000 Mexican Troops Has Begun the Task of Vanquishing the Redmen.

The Present Situation Worse Than During the Ten Years' War—Indians Determined to Fight Until They Regain Territory Taken from Them—Active War Opened.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 8.—Information by private advices is to the effect that the Mexican army has opened up active and continued warfare on the Yaqui Indians.

For a week the Mexican soldiers already in the Yaqui territory have been engaging the Indians until the main body of troops could be mobilized. In doing this they have lost a number of their soldiers, while the Indians lost comparatively few.

It is stated, however, that 2,000 Mexican soldiers are in the field—enough to justify the troops being moved into the mountains, with instructions to push through and, if possible, to exterminate the Indians.

The situation is worse even than during the ten years' war. The Indians are determined to fight until they regain the territory taken from them by treaty three years ago, and the Mexican Government is bent on exterminating the Indians, so as to secure all the land from them and prevent further outbreaks.

The Indians have already killed about one hundred miners and as many soldiers. With both sides thoroughly aroused, the war, which has opened in earnest promises to be prolonged.

It is given out that, taking up the line of march, the Mexican troops will advance directly into the mountains and try to reach the fastnesses of the Indians, giving them no time to rest from one attack to another, in the hope that by this procedure they will be worn out in short order and either surrounded or killed.

Hold Santa Teresa Responsible.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 8.—Santa Teresa, the Mexican woman who has long been revered as a saint by the natives of Chihuahua and Sonora, and who is believed to possess the power of healing the sick by the laying on of hands, is believed to be more or less responsible for the present outbreak among the Yaqui Indians.

George Harold, an old Texas ranger, now a policeman of El Paso, says he is confident that Santa Teresa is responsible for the outbreak. Harold was one of the officers who rounded up the ringleaders that raided the Mexican customhouse at Palomas, Chihuahua, a few years ago.

"Santa Teresa," he says, "was implicated in that rebellion, which was crushed in its incipiency. Every rebel captured on this side of the line had a picture of the woman in his possession, and on the back of the picture was inscribed one of her prayers."

After the Palomas raid the Mexican Governor made an effort to apprehend her, as she was looked upon as a dangerous character. She escaped to El Paso, however, and remained here a year or more. While here she was visited by thousands.

About a year ago the woman disappeared, and it afterward turned out that she had gone to Sonora to the edge of the Yaqui villages, where she was safe from molestation by the Mexican Government.

It is believed she incited the Yaquis to revolt. The woman is described as frail and delicate looking. She undoubtedly possesses great magnetic powers.

Condemned to Death in Proto Rico.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Aug. 8.—The Provisional Court at Ponce has sentenced Henry James, an American, to death for murder. He fired into a crowd, killing a boy. The native newspapers protest against the execution of the sentence. Their contention is that the death penalty is against the traditions of the Porto Ricans. Only one execution of a death sentence has occurred in Porto Rico in ten years.

Robbed Contribution Box.

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 8.—E. M. Decker, whose son is the church organist, has been arraigned here, charged with stealing money from the contribution box of St. George Episcopal Church. Decker is coachman for the widow of Rev. S. M. Ackerley. He was caught in the act by a watch set to find why the receipts had shrunken so of late.

China Seeks Civilization.

San Francisco, Aug. 8.—Dr. John Freyer, professor of Oriental languages in the University of California, has just returned from China. He says that there is a great movement among the Chinese in the direction of modern civilization. He believes the influences now at work there will save the empire from the destruction that seemed certain several years ago.

Boy Kills His Father.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Capt. Watkins, a county official and well known in Tennessee, was stabbed to death by his eleven year-old son Clarence. Watkins was whipping the boy on account of a breach of family discipline, when the lad became enraged, pulled his knife and plunged the blade through his father's heart.

Grief Caused Her Death.

Medina, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Wilson, wife of L. B. Wilson, ex-Postmaster at River Styx, died at her home. Mrs. Wilson had a son who went to the front during the Spanish-American war and died of the fever. All efforts to locate his body failed. Mrs. Wilson allowed this matter to prey upon her mind until she died.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

Orange's Water Supply.

There have been many comparisons of the relative advantages offered by Plainfield and the other suburban towns to prospective residents. One of Plainfield's strong advantages is the pure and apparently inexhaustable water supply. There are few, indeed, of the other suburban places that can boast of one anywhere near the equal of ours. Orange, just at present, is suffering in that direction. The water has gotten low in the Orange reservoir and there is now a strong and rather unpleasant odor to it as it flows from the faucets in the Orange homes. The water company declares that it is chlorine gas and not dangerous, but some of the citizens are emphatic in their statement that the eels in the reservoir have been driven by the low water to seek better quarters in the system of pipes that furnishes the city with its water supply. Plainfield is fortunate in not having to receive its supply of water and fishes by the same pipes.

The Most Effective Agency.

A well known writer, referring to the illimitable progress of mankind, says: "Progress is the end for which man was destined. To this end, then, it is his duty to direct all his inquires, all the productions of his genius and taste—in short, all the modes of his activity." To no class of people are these truths more applicable than to business men. Progress is necessarily their watchword, and in order to go forward they must utilize all the available and proper means at their command. There are many agencies which make for the merchant's success, but long experience has shown that a regular use of the advertising columns of a sound and popular newspaper is the most effective of them all. —Philadelphia Record.

THE MARQUIS OF LONDONDERRY.

Lord Londonderry is the most influential of the big men of England who are pushing the scheme to drill a tunnel through the rock under the northern part of the Irish Sea. The tunnel will cost $50,000,000 and will be 35 miles in length. When completed the journey between London and Queenstown will be shortened by several hours.

Trolley Accidents.

The serious trolley accident which is told in yesterday's dispatches, demonstrate the necessity of better construction and better surveillance of these trainways. Trolley companies only seek a franchise and occupancy of public streets, with but little regard for public interests or personal safety of patrons. Trolley roads should be subject to inspection by a competent engineer, and companies held to a strict accountability.

Westfield is one of the very few Jersey towns that can show a reduction in their tax rate. This year Westfield's tax rate has been reduced two points despite the fact that the county and school tax are larger this year than heretofore. According to all reports, Westfield isn't suffering for the lack of anything, either.

Now comes the news that a hundred caddies on one of the principal golf links of the country have struck. How unfortunate it is for those beginners of that ancient game, "Farmer Orator" Martine and President of the Senate Reed.

The Mazet committee is taking another peep at the Police Department of Greater New York. Chief Devery isn't feeling well and has gone on a vacation.

With so many of Jersey's leading statesmen learning to play golf, it will soon be necessary to establish a State course at the State House.

Captain Dreyfus has secured more notoriety all over the world than any Frenchman since the time of Napolean.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The hotels of Asbury Park have never been more crowded with guests at the beginning of August than at present. The city is on the boom. On Saturday people from the cities and inland towns poured into Asbury Park by the thousands, and in some cases difficulty was experienced in providing bed room accommodations for all who came. All of our hotels and boarding houses are comfortably filled, and yet Asbury Park can entertain all who may come.—Asbury Park Press.

We never peruse the columns of the Summit Record but we are impressed what a paradise that little city would be if Editor Tom Lane were only its king.—Plainfield Courier-News.

Well! Well!! And no doubt you never peruse the list of payments made by the Plainfield Common Council but you are impressed what a much happier state of affairs would exist in that city if the amounts allowed to the city clerk were only paid to F. W. Runyon to aid in keeping the Courier-News afloat.—Summit Record.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A young man, living in the West End has two white mice of which he has become extremely fond. The little animals are extremely tame and became great favorites with the young man. A few evenings ago he took them with him in his pocket when he went out to call on a young lady. After they had talked a while, the young man remarked that he had brought her something that he wanted her to see. Reaching his hand in his pocket he produced the mouse. There was immediately great consternation among the femininity of the household, and it was only after considerable persuasion that he could get the young lady and her mother and sisters to look at his pets from any place except the top of a chair.

A funny incident occurred among the experiences of the party of young men of this city who were shipwrecked on Bedloes Island last Saturday afternoon. The lightning was playing about the catboat in which the young men were sailing. A slight shock was received by several of the party. Then they showed much haste in throwing overboard anything that might attract the lightning. Now it happened that they had brought along a tin box of sardines as part of their luncheon.

"Overboard with the sardines," shouted the admiral, and his orders were obeyed. He afterwards explained that he feared they might attract the lightning. It seemed very funny afterwards, although the humorous part of it didn't strike them while on the yacht.

Last week Wednesday evening during the severe storm that visited this city a carrier pigeon was blown down the chimney at the home of Rowland Smith, 1266 Park avenue. Saturday evening members of the family were sitting in the parlor reading, and they were amused to hear a strange noise, similar to that of a cooing dove. The continued noise led to an investigation, and the partition in the fireplace was removed, as it was from that locality that the sound came. There they discovered a beautiful carrier pigeon that had remained in that place for several days without anything to eat. There was a band about the neck and inscribed thereon was "G. 10593." Mr. Smith still has the bird and says that the owner can have it by calling and proving property.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 8.—Last evening a bunch of fast riders were out on North avenue between Westfield and Plainfield training for the big fifteen-mile road race which will take place over that course Labor Day. There are now thirty-four men entered, and the men in charge expect at least 100 men to start, among them being some fast riders. The officials of the race will be announced the last of this week. The prizes will be on exhibition in Condit's drug store window next week.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

THE COUNCIL MEETING

dolph and others asked for electric lights along the lower part of Park avenue. An invitation was received from the League of American Municipalities inviting the Council to be represented at the third annual convention to be held at Syracuse, N. Y., September 19th to 21st. The same was received and filed.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company petitioned the Council for a franchise to locate and operate a trolley through Arlington avenue. The same was received and according to a resolution offered by Mr. Barrows, Tuesday evening, September 5th, was fixed as the time when the application will be considered and a public hearing be granted.

Residents in the West End asked for a hydrant to be located at the corner of Spooner avenue and Essex street, and the same was granted, as was also a petition for one on Netherwood avenue, near East Front street.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Coriell, asking for another full-paid man and a call man for the fire department, Mayor Rockfellow appointed Edward Vail as a full paid man and A. I. Littell as a call man, and the appointments were confirmed. Mr. Coriell explained his request by saying that at present there are nine full paid men in the department, and it is necessary for efficiency that this number of men be on duty continually, which can only be done by having another regular man, as one man has a day off every week.

Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of eighteen building permits during July. Overseer of Poor Hanson reported that during the past month there were fifteen applicants for aid, six of which were granted. Five deaths were reported, and twenty-one as the total number of beneficiaries.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported that thirteen sewer permits were granted during July. City Physician Carman reported that he had furnished medicine to the city poor during the past month.

Mr. VanHerwerden at this time offered three resolutions. The first one provided for the negotiation of $2,000 on account of the fire fund and $2,000 on account of the general fund, to renew old notes. The next resolution provided that in anticipation of collection of taxes the sum of $3,000 be borrowed for the general fund and $2,000 for the fire fund. The last resolution provided for the transfer of $3,887.93 and $108.62 from the Martin Act fund to the general fund on account of money paid in 1898 and 1899 during the progress of the adoption of the act.

Mr. Barrows offered resolutions that the bids for macadamizing West Third and Fourth streets be rejected, and that Monday evening, Sept. 5th, be fixed as the time when other bids will be received. Mr. Barrows also offered a resolution awarding C. M. Meeker the contract for macadamizing Richmond street, and Patsy Christmas the contract for macadamizing East Second street, the work to be done by the Plainfield Street Railway Company.

Mr. Coriell called up the petition asking for fire hydrants in the West End and on his motion he had the matter referred with power, although the committee was not ready to report at that time.

Regarding the proposed visit of the assessors to various cities and towns in the county for the purpose of investigating the basis of assessments made, Chairman Hubbard of the Board of Assessors, reported that owing to illness he had been unable to visit any of the places, and other members of the Board did not feel disposed to do so without him. He understood, however, that other places had assessed on a basis of about 25 per cent. value.

On a motion offered by Mr. Mellick the resolution adopted at the meeting of July 20th, in regard to authorizing the correction of various errors found in matter of assessment for taxes was reconsidered. He then offered a resolution authorizing the collector to return the various amounts found to be in error.

Mr. Hetfield called up the communication from the New Jersey Naval Reserves in which they asked the Council to take such action which would convey to Governor Voorhees the wish that the Council does not want a portion of the Reserves disbanded. He then moved that his resolution to the effect that such action be taken be adopted.

When the vote was taken Messrs. Buckle, Coriell and Tolles voted in the negative, while Messrs. Barrows, Mellick, VanHerwerden, Homan, Hetfield and Andrews supported the resolution. The reason given by the opposition was that they did not fully understand the matter and they had faith in Governor Voorhees that he would do the right thing. This concluded the business of the evening and the Council adjourned.

all right," he said, "but in Hudson we look up to one man as our leader and take our orders from him. When he issues orders, there is no kicking. He sees to it that every member of the committees gets the vote out and that accounts for the big Democratic majorities in Hudson."

The members from the smaller counties thought the proposed plan of selecting the county committees a good one, and promised Chairman Gourley that their counties would adopt the suggestions of the special committee when they were submitted. No other business was transacted. The dinner promised by the Monmouth Democrats was not forthcoming and the committee adjourned at 6 o'clock.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Braunschweig. Anhalt.

Braunschweig. Der Export aus dem Konsulatsbezirk Braunschweig nach den Ver. Staaten betrug im 2. Quartal 1899 an Werth 1,263,220 Mark—gegen 2,208,850 Mark im 2. Quartal 1898. In dem Rechnungsjahre vom 1. Juli 1898 bis 1. Juli 1899 betrug die Ausfuhr rund 5,243,200 Mark—gegen 5,750,970 Mark 1897—98 und 22,032,875 Mark 1896—97.

Dessau. Hier hat der bekannte Dramaturge Hans von Basedow, der hier in der Kirchbachstraße Nr. 5 wohnte, Selbstmord begangen.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Der hervorragende Wiener Architekt Josef Olbrich, der Erbauer des Hauses der Wiener Sezession, wurde vom Großherzog mit mehrjährigem Vertrage nach hierher berufen, um zunächst die Bauten für die neue Künstlerkolonie zu leiten.

Bickenbach. Neulich Nachmittags wurde oberhalb der hiesigen Station bei einem Uebergang der etwa 60jährige Hilfsbahnwärter Alheim von hier, als er die Geleise überschreiten wollte, von der Maschine eines Personenzuges erfaßt und bei Seite geschleudert. Er erlitt einen schweren Schädelbruch und blieb auf der Stelle todt.

Bischofsheim. Die Eisenbahndirektion Mainz beabsichtigt, hier ein Elektrizitätswerk mit Kraftbetrieb zu errichten. Die Pläne sind bereits vollständig fertiggestellt und dem Kreisamt Groß-Gerau zur Genehmigung unterbreitet worden.

Mainz. Die Mainzer freiwillige Feuerwehr, gegründet von dem als Neuschöpfer des Feuerlöschwesens bekannten Kaminfegermeister Karl Weiser, feierte ihr 50jähriges Jubiläum.

Bayern.

München. Die Stadtgemeinde München hat von der Aktienziegelei dahier ein 27 Hektar großes Bauterrain in Bogenhausen um 335,147 Mark erworben, um darauf ein neues Schulhaus zu errichten.—Das Schöffengericht verurtheilte die sozialdemokratischen Redner, die in Versammlungen die Zuchthausvorlage ein Schandgesetz genannt hatten, wegen groben Unfugs zu je 20 Mark Strafe.—Die Verlagsanstalt von R. Oldenbourg hat aus Anlaß ihres 25. Jahresfestes den Angestellten, die 25 Jahre in dem Geschäfte thätig sind, eine Ehrenspende von je 500 Mark gegeben und außerdem der Hauskasse 30,000 Mark überwiesen.

Amberg. Im Dorfe Haag bei Muschenried sind 17 Wohngebäude und 29 Nebengebäude durch Feuer zerstört worden. Mehr als 20 Familien sind obdachlos.

Augsburg. Der Maurer Josef Schrupf wurde vom Schöffengericht zu acht Tagen Gefängniß verurtheilt, weil er den Maurer-Vorarbeiter Schmidt, der ursprünglich in den Maurerstrike mit eingetreten war, später aber die Arbeit wieder aufgenommen hatte, einen „wankelmüthigen Kerl" genannt hatte.

Bamberg. Der hiesige amerikanische Konsul läßt Nachforschungen nach einem gewissen Johann Raab aus Appendorf anstellen. Derselbe verließ im Monat Mai die Heimath, um über Antwerpen nach New York zurückzukehren. Auf der Reise ist der Mann nun spurlos verschwunden, denn das Gepäck des Mannes liegt in Antwerpen noch unreklamirt. Die Verwandten des Verschwundenen befürchten, daß demselben ein Unfall zugestoßen ist, da an einen Selbstmord gar nicht zu denken ist.

Bayreuth. Der Ausschuß der Versicherungsanstalt für Oberfranken hat beschlossen, den Vorstand zu ermächtigen, weitere 150,000 Mark gegen dreiprozentige Verzinsung und hypothekarische Sicherheit zum Bau billiger Arbeiterwohnungen auszuleihen. Der Darlehensempfänger darf die Wohnungen nur an Angehörige der Invaliditäts- und Altersversicherung und zu einem bestimmten Miethzins abgeben.

BREADTH OF LIGHTNING

How a Flash Makes a Case Its Exact Size.

"Did you ever see the diameter of a lightning flash measured?" asked a geologist. "Well, here is the case which once enclosed a flash of lightning, fitting it exactly, so that you can see just how big it was. This is called a 'fulgurite,' or 'lightning hole,' and the material it is made of is glass. I will tell you how it was manufactured, though it only took a fraction of a second to turn it out.

"When a bolt of lightning strikes a bed of sand it plunges downward into the sand for a distance less or greater, transforming simultaneously into a glass the silica in the material through which it passes. Thus, by its great heat, it forms a glass tube of precisely its own size. Now and then such a tube known as 'fulgurite' is found and dug up. Fulgurites have been followed into the sand by excavation for nearly thirty feet. They vary in interior diameter from the size of a quill to three inches or more, according to the 'bore' of the flash.

"But fulgurites are not alone produced in sand; they are found also in solid rock, though very naturally of slight depth, and frequently existing merely as a thin, glassy coating on the surface. Such fulgurites occur in astonishing abundance on the summit of Little Ararat, in Armenia. The rock is soft and so porous that blocks a foot long can be obtained and perforated in all directions by little tubes filled with bottle green glass formed from the fused rock. There is a small specimen in the national museum which has the appearance of having been bored by the teredo, and the holes made by the worm subsequently filled with glass.

"Some wonderful fulgurites were found by Humboldt on the high Nevada de Toluca, in Mexico. Masses of the rock were covered with a thin layer of green glass. Its peculiar shimmer in the sun led Humboldt to ascend the precipitous peak at the risk of his life."

Killing a Bear in the Klondike.

We heard the brushwood crackling before the passage of some heavy animal, and without a word we levelled our weapons and waited, says a writer in Blackwoods. We saw advancing toward us an enormous bear, whose great eyes gleamed savagely in the pale light as he came near. Now he was within twenty yardss of where we stood, and as his huge forelegs pawed the air clumsily in his endeavor to climb over a fallen tree, his white breast was fully exposed in the moonlight. "Let him have the buckshot, Stewart," I whispered, and the report of his gun reverberated through the wooded slopes. This was followed by a savage roar from the bear, and, stepping clear of the smoke, I could see Bruin, the blood streaming from his head and the great tongue lolling out, staggering wildly forward. "His head has been too tough, Stewart; I'll need to spoil him, after all," I said, regretfully, and I pulled the trigger of my rifle and sent a soft-point bullet right into the great yawning mouth, scarce a dozen yards away.

The sharp crack of my rifle was followed by no smoke, and I threw the lever open and was ready for another shot; but it was unnecessary, the great bear lay dead on the snow, fast staining its white surface with his blood. We went forward to examine him, and found that two of Stewart's pellets had penetrated his eyes, while the rest had had little effect on his sloping forehead. My bullet had entered his mouth, and a large hole in the back of the skull showed where that deadly "dumdum" had made its exit.

She Wanted Hairpins.

There is a story told at the expense of David B. Henderson that he cannot outlive. As everybody knows, free seed distribution has been his hobby for many years. He fairly swamped the farmers of his State with free seeds from the time he first went to Congress.

One morning Mr. Henderson received a postal in his mail written by an Iowa farmer's wife. It read:

"John's influence can't be got with fifteen cents' worth of free seeds, but if you will send me a box of hairpins I will look after him. HIS WIFE."

Another postal card called for free jackknives instead of free seeds. "In that case," said the writer, "radish seeds would not come up poor turnips, and the poor Congressman would be saved much ridicule."

Strength in a Mixture of Races.

The real American, not the average, but the typical American, is the complex and combined resultant of the many races that have come to this continent for the last four centuries. His "motherland" is the world. It is precisely this fact that has made possible the unexampled achievements of the past, and it enables us to look to the future with sober, but confident courage. The energy, independence and aspirations of the strongest in each of the nationalities that make up the American nationality belong to it by inheritance and development.—New York Times.

A Tardy Warning

"Look out!" he cried, for the advancing vehicle was almost upon his friend. "Look out! Here comes an auaut, an auter-auto, an automo-automobile—there! hang it, I've said it at last; but, of course, it's too late," and he picked the bleeding form of his companion from the street as he watched the machine bowl over a policeman and crash to pieces in front of a street car.

"Good thing for the doctors," he said, "unless you've got a dictionary with you."—Cleveland Leader.

Must Have a Good Head.

"And is your son going to be a good business man?"

"I guess so. They seem to think pretty well of him down at the office any way. They haven't said a word about discharging him, in spite of the fact that his handwriting is the same as it was when he came out of school."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Dawned Upon Her.

"Why does he make all those motions with his arm before he pitches the ball?"

"Those are signals to the catcher. The two men always work in concert."

"Dear me! Is that the 'concert pitch' I've heard about so often?"

THE SUMMER WARDROBE.

Transparent Materials and Fine Needlework In the Lead.

It is necessary to look back a long time, at least as far as 1840, to find a taste for thin, sheer fabrics and trimmings as pronounced as those which now prevail. One would naturally have thought, on observing the fashion of gowns to become more and more smooth and clinging, that substantial materials would be adopted perforce, but, on the contrary, never have organdies, cotton or silk muslins, linens, gauzes and lawns had a greater success.

For underwear, the finest and most transparent lawns and batistes are employed, the necessary fullness around the foot being obtained by superimposed flounces adorned with quantities of lace and embroidery. The lace chosen is of a kind to bear laundering, else it is of no value as a decoration for lingerie. Tucks and puffings are combined with needlework and lace to enrich the effects.

The cut shows a costume of pale violet barege. The skirt, which is in one piece, is trimmed with three rows of knotted silk fringe which descend in points in front, simulating a triple tunic. The bodice has a draped front which closes obliquely with large, soft revers, bordered with narrow fringe. A large chou of pansy velvet is placed at the left side, and the draped belt is of pansy velvet. The cravat and plastron are of white mousseline de soie and lace, the hat of pansy straw trimmed with violet gauze and purple poppies.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Hats, Veils and Collars For Summer Wear.

Very plain hats are used for morning wear and for bicycling, and a white veil is the rule. Various styles of veil are seen, plain tule or net, net dotted with black chenille, and white lace wash veils all being in favor.

Sailor hats have wide brims, and the crown is pressed down in front. They are trimmed with a ribbon band or a scarf of mousseline de soie and often have one long feather.

The high collars, which are still in vogue, are now made of the thinnest possible material, wired to preserve their flaring form. These collars are often adjustable and may be changed from gown to gown at will. When they are thus separate, the lower edge is usually finished with a rather deep fringe, and sometimes there is a cravat attachment in front.

SILK WAIST.

Belts are quite narrow, and the favorite buckles are of wrought gold, silver or cut steel. Strong buckles of gun metal are also liked.

The illustration given today shows a bodice of plaid surah. It is gathered at the waist and has a short, full basque and a wide collar, which is bordered with lace and tied in a fichu knot. The collar and small plastron are of lace. The shirt sleeves have three tucks at the top, and the cuffs are edged with lace. The belt is of white kid.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Shrewd Man.

Many and strange are the methods the westerners adopt in money making. In the early days of Seattle a man pre-empted a site on the water front of the town. The law required that he have a house. Near by on the beach was a weather beaten hull of a vessel. He drew the remnant to his lot and started a second "Rudder Grange." It was not long before sites on the shore were in demand, and the shrewd "squatter" sold his lot for $250,000.

A VIEW OF THE BABY

BABIES OF TWO MONTHS, ARE IN APPEARANCE, SUBJECT TO MOODS.

If the Baby Could Speak, Would it Be to the Effect, That Its Birth Was "A Sleep and a Forgetting."

Babies of two months are subject to moods in appearance, if not in fact; so it may be that when the Baby Expert described the newest baby of his acquaintance as a mentally developed creature, with dreams in its eyes, "trailing clouds of glory" and suggesting a mysterious wisdom above that of its parents and the world, he caught the baby in a mood.

It seems to another observer that could this baby speak it would not be to the effect that it regards its birth as "a sleep and a forgetting," or that it feels "heaven lying about it;" but that it would give out this lusty statement: "A worldling of the world am I." At two months the world and the flesh have clutched it. It is a carnal creature, with its audible breathing, its firm cheeks and double chin. This baby indulges in spiritual retrospect! Put a cap over its ear, an apron about its stomach, a market basket in its arm, a cur at its heels and you have a sturdy butcher's boy. To the other observer there is no inward look in this baby's eyes. It seems to have no time to dwell upon memories of its pre-natal existence; shapes and colors are constantly appearing and disappearing before it, and its eyes grow round and bulge with curious interest. It tastes the air of the world, finds it good, licks out its tongue and smacks its lips over it. Like all new-born creatures it is perfectly selfish in its regard for those about. It encourages its mother's attention; it recognizes that she has an excuse for existence. She feeds it. But if she disappoints it for a moment of the expected meal, it takes in to a pasion of screams, shaking its trembling fists, and stiffening its body to kick. The attention of other people are often convenient, but it maintains a perfectly independent stand in regard to these. No amount of patting, trotting, or talking baby talk will draw from it a responsive smile, but when its horizon is clear of intrusive sounds and faces, it may be caught laughing to itself; then its round face broadens with good humor, its half-closed eyes shine, it shows its bare gums and shakes its head. It is a real smile all over the face, and it means something. Not angels' whispering; this smile is in anticipation of the good things to come.

A New Toothbrush.

A novel invention is shown in the cut which accompnies this article. It consists of a toothbrush, which slips over the finger. In this manner, you are enabled to reach any part of the mouth, and there are no hard corners to bruise the gums.

Improving the Mirror.

Let not her to whom nature has been nigard of her charms despair. If she would see herself in the deceptive mirror as others see her with the eye, or as nearly as possible, let her hasten to a shop and buy a quantity of soft, pure white material—gauze, if possible, if not, Swiss or Indian muslin will answer very well.

Be sure and have it pure white, and after polishing the surface of the mirror, gather the material at the centre of the top, and bring it down softly at either side, framing the glass of folds of pure white.

When this is done to artistic satisfaction, peep in and see what a transformation.

The true tints of the complexion, the expression of the countenance and eyes, the correct color of the hair, will be very accurately reflected.

This is one of the milliner's oldest secrets. Many of the most artful of them drape the glasses in the softest drapery of pure white. It is done with the view of giving the fair patronesses the best view of themselves possible, administering in this way a little subtle flattery, thereby disposing easily of a greater amount of goods.—Toilettes.

Lawn Playhouses For Girls.

The latest novelties in the small toy shops are large playhouses to be set upon the lawn for the use of the little girls of the family. These come in very pretty designs, counterparts of the Queen Anne cottages in which the little mothers really live. They are large enough to accommodate three or four little girls and their dolly families.

The interior consists of one large room, which is furnished with small chairs, tables, couches, beds, bureaus, bookcases and so on, all of which articles of furniture come in very attractive forms and can be purchased at any of the large shops dealing in children's toys and games.

These houses will be welcomed gladly by the little misses, for they open out a vista of afternoon teas, parties and reception at which the hostess can play at being a real live mamma and social leader. Placed in a shaded corner of the lawn, or out in the orchard, the girls of the family will pass many a happy hour when the sun is too hot for out-door exercise.

When Warm and Weary.

Atonic bath, very grateful after a day's shopping in town, or a day's hunting for summer quarters in the country, is prepared by allowing several sliced lemons or limes to soak in the bath water for an hour, until all the juice is extracted. Then add a handful or two of bran and a delightful bath is in store for one. Bath bags of oatmeal and orris, or shaved soap and almond flour and other sweet and cleansing things are more suitable for the face than for the feet. The lemon bath has invigorating qualities which can only be appreciated by the weary one has tried its reviving properties. As "Dodo's" friend who loved a bottle of eau-de-cologne in her tub said: "It makes you feel like a goddess."

TO THE ONE WHO HATH HIS HEART.

Aurora, in her rosy cloak,
Came gently o'er the hill.
The slumber of the lark she broke,
The blackbird on the bough she woke,
Yet left the forest still.

She bathed her ankles in the mere
Below yon belt of fir;
Of prying eyes she knew no fear:
The stars had fled, the sky was clear,
The sun but scarce astir.

When lo! were all at once undrawn
The curtains of the day;
You stood upon this dewy lawn,
Your golden hair outdid the dawn,
And swept my grief away.
—The Athenaeum.

NO TRESPASSING.

It was a delightful hot afternoon, and under the trees Elysium itself. The path ran through a tunnel of foliage, between which glimpses of the river parallel were every now and then betrayed by natural vistas. If you happen to know the road to Lonore, before the path to Ashness Bridge forks off, in fact, the delightful stretch that lies at Rakes' Foot, you will have a scene as like to it as two peas are to one another, but for Derwentwater you must, of course, substitute the rapid, shallow, shingling Barrogh.

The road was inches deep in dust, and that of the whitest, and the boots and stockings of the knickered Norfolk-jacketed traveler could scarcely be distinguished from the dusty way itself, and he looked, had there been any to see, as though he floated in the air, bereft of feet and ankles.

Now, half-way down the road, the traveler, who was young and fairly good-looking, though, perhaps, not endowed with that facial strength of character which is the dear delight of authors who are feminine, happened upon a stile, somewhat like a pair of stepladders, with three rungs by which to ascend from the road, and two with which to descend into the wood on the other side of the wall. The traveler ascended, and perched upon the happily placed platform at the summit of the stepladder, and pondered some, and while he pondered he mopped his brow and gazed upon his boots besides, giving the lie to those who say "that one cannot do two things at once"—this for one who has refused to close the door at my behest, and I in a draught most thorough. Then he struck a match to light a cigarette—I know it ought to have been a pipe, but it was a cigarette—and drawing it along an adjacent post he saw for the first time a notice thereon. It said:

ANY PERSON FOUND TRESPASSING ON THE BARRY ESTATE
WILL BE PERSECUTED.
By Order,
Agent's Office, J. SMITH.

A very ordinary notice, but one which had been the subject of much merriment a while back, when "'Arry-you-Jiggins" had elimated the harmless O and interpolated the direful E for the amusement of his consoeurs and confreres.

The effect it had upon our traveler was not that which henceforward, for all I care, may be described as defaciensis tripperii. He had no desire to drop in "not" between the "will" and the "be," neither did he change "person" into "peer," but he did allow his feet, which had been resting on rung two of the roadside ladder, to change their position to rung one of that of the woodside.

After the first step the way was easy.

So appeared to be the grass path which meandered among the trees in curves most sinuous, a path that looked—as all forbidden paths look—seducive, and, moreover, by far the most delightful in the whole district.

Our traveler looked at his watch, at the up and down of the road, and not a soul was in sight to deter him. He slipped to the ground, and in a brief space was in the thicket.

On and on pressed he until the blacking was restored to the boot by the dust-banishing grass' agency. The cigarette smoked out, was replaced by a second, and then he came to a halt at the brink of a cunning little tree-mirrored, tree-surrounded lake, whose clear waters invited, nay, almost commanded, immersion, with the thermometer taxed to its utmost heat recording limits.

Birds were singing, the lakelet rippled, and with delicious splashing a waterfallet threw itself, in wanton abandonment, into the embrace of the all-absorbing tarn.

Delicious spot for bathing, but a spot wasted, impossible. On the further side was one who gazed at our traveler, the intruder, with eyes beautiful and provoked—one attired in kerchief of lawn, bodice and skirt of print, and in other dainty things.

"A pretty girl!" said he mentally.

"A wretched tourist!" she reflected.

The path was winding, like to a maze, but surely maze-like it led to an eventful goal. It would be no harm to ask. The traveler meandered on and found himself in a space but three or four feet from my lady of the lake.

His cap was off.

Said he: "Would you kindly tell me if this path comes out anywhere near Marleydale?"

"Eventually at the village itself," she replied.

He thanked her and with steps reluctant would have advanced, but she, reddening and paling alternately, denied him progress except over her lithesome self.

"Please stop!" she commanded. "Are you aware that this is private property?"

"I could hardly imagine it was public," said he.

She flushed angrily.

"You are trespassing," she continued, "and are liable to be prosecuted."

"And persecuted, if the notice board lies not," he added.

"The notice board does lie. Some tourist——" she began impetuously.

"Then I suppose I am not trespassing," he queried.

"You will see," said she fiercely.

"But surely a trespass without damage is as harmless as a threat that cannot be carried out?" he asked.

"The game——" she started to say.

"Is remarkable for its absence," he concluded.

"The—the——" she was at a loss.

"I picked this clump of mountain ash," he suggested kindly.

"Ah! injuring the trees; you can be arrested for that," she replied with satisfaction.

"Surely a fine——," he began.

"Our Bench is landed property," said she, "and we loathe—er—tourists."

"Oh," he murmured, disconcerted.

"Only the other day my father, who is chairman, was most severe on one who carved his name upon a tree, and you have broken a branch."

"A twig," he ventured to correct.

"The same thing," said she defiantly.

"Miss Smith——" he said in tones imploringly.

"Don't address me as 'Miss Smith,' sir," and she spoke in tones most haughty. "Such familiarity——"

"Well, Edith, if you command it," he murmured, abashed.

"How dare you!" she cried.

"I dared not—till you commanded," said he. "And your name-brooch supplied the information."

There was a moment's silence.

"You must give me your name and address," she commanded.

"For you to issue a warrant for my apprehension? No, 'the prisoner refused to give his name and address,'" he replied.

It was an awkward position for a girl who only did her father's duty.

"It's most ungenerous of you," she exclaimed. "Just because you're a man and happen to be stronger than I am, you will evade justice."

"Never," he answered firmly.

"You will run away, and I, impeded by skirts, am helpless to catch you," she continued.

"You could lift——"

"Why don't you make good your escape?" she interpolated with haste.

"Am I not your prisoner?" he asked.

"Do you mean to say that you will come quietly to the lodge and face my father?" she inquired.

"As quiet as any lamb," he asserted.

"Well, it's this way," said she.

"It is customary to grip the prisoner by the arm," he suggested.

She paid no attention, and in silence they strolled toward the lodge.

"If you will excuse me for a minute I will see if my father can attend to you now," she said, when, arriving at their destination, she had led him to the drawing-room. "Please sit down."

Surely prisoner had never been treated with so much consideration.

In a minute or two she returned, somewhat confused.

"My father will not return for an hour or so," she said.

"Then I must wait," he replied.

"Oh, don't you mind?" She seemed relieved.

"Not in the least," said he.

She rang a bell.

"Do you care for tea, or would you prefer——," she asked him.

"Tea, please," said the prisoner.

And tea was brought.

"I think I saw a picture of this house in this year's Academy," said the prisoner, tea and toast in hand.

"Did you really notice it?" she said, with pleased surprise. "I painted it, and Mr. Barry bought it. Mr. Barry owns all this property."

"Indeed! He must account himself most fortunate to have so zealous a guardian as yourself. Thank you—half a cup."

Then they talked of many things—of books, of paintings, of poets' songs, till the sun lost some of its youthful vigor, and they wandered into the garden, and there the conversation was of other things, perhaps more human than that of books and paintings, but none the less pleasant. And at last they happened on a mutual enthusiasm, and they enthused until the sun just dropped behind lofty Craigavar, and a sudden chill fell upon the jailer and she cried:

"My father will be back in a few minutes; hadn't you better—escape?"

"And we were getting on so well, too, said the prisoner with half a sigh.

"Yes—I mean I think you have been imprisoned long enough," she murmured.

"Oh, no," replied the prisoner, gallantly.

"You have, indeed ,you have. Please, please go; my father might adjourn, or something terrible, and you, with nobody to bail you out, would have to go to pris——. Oh, I am sure Mrs. Jones, the constable's wife, would never make you comfortable. Do go! do go!" she pleaded, with hands that were clasped with pity.

"But how about your duty to Mr. Barry?" he asked.

"Bother Mr. Barry!"

Then, with gravel flying and the sound of much crunching of small stones, came Major Smith, the agent of the Barry estate, and he, seeing them, pulled up his ponies with great suddenness, and, leaping to the ground, advanced, crying, "Ah, my dear fellow, here you are! I'm delighted to welcome you to your own house after so long an absence. I went to your station to meet you, and found your luggage only—if we don't count a message that you got out at Aberavar and were walking. We would have been back long ago if that confounded rascal Raven had not stopped me to ask for a reduction of rent—said his roof was falling in; so I went to see it, and found, as usual, it was all nonsense. Edith been amusing you, I hope?"

"I met Miss Smith in the wood, and——" explained the traveler.

"She knew you from your photograph," Major Smith suggested. Miss Smith blushed.

"The photograph is not the least bit like the original," she protested.

"Nobody ever recognized it as me," said the young man unblushingly; it is said to be a speaking likeness just the same."

She rewarded him with a grateful glance.

"People have said to me," he continued "'Who is that ugly devil on your wife's escritoire?' and I——"

"Your wife?"

"Haven't you heard? I'll tell you all about it—oh, it was quite a romance! It's a beast of a photograph—don't you think so, Miss Smith?"

Thick Skins Are Sensitive, Too.

An elephant's skin is exceedingly sensitive, notwithstanding its great thickness. Flies, gnats, mosquitoes, etc., cause it considerable annoyance, especially when it is confined to a house and cannot procure dust to sprinkle over its body as a protection against their attacks.

SHORT AND FUNNY.

In matrimonial engagements men have to face the powder.

A late supper embraces such things of which dreams are made.

Life is short, but it only takes two seconds to fight a duel.

It's better to marry and be boss than never to have bossed at all.

A business man always reads the postscript of a woman's letter first.

There's something crooked about the business of a corkscrew manufacturer.

A girl never acquires a reputation as a vocalist until she begins to render her songs.

Whenever a woman reads of a man going wrong she always wonders what the woman in the case was like.

A man's meaning is the same during courtship and after marriage, but it is expressed in different language.

The wise man always knows enough to cast his lot with a woman who has enough money to build a substantial house thereon.

CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS.

More than one hundred collisions occurred on Japanese railroads in 1897.

Railway wheels made of leather have been experimented with in France.

A South Sea Islander greets a friend by flinging a jar of water over his head.

American pulp-making machinery is gaining considerable headway in Scandinavia.

Farinelli could sing 300 notes without drawing breath, while fifty exhaust most singers.

In the Japanese temples there is a large drum used in worship. It is called kagura-taiko, and gives a tone much like a gong.

England holds the honor of having first formed societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals, and of having first legislated for its punishment.

A lion hunter who has made a study of that animal's peculiarities says "all lions are left-handed. When one strikes a forcible blow it always uses its left paw."

If the Prussian conscription were applied in India, England would have 2,500,000 regular soldiers actually in barracks, with 800,000 recruits coming up every year.

A SEA SERPENT STORY

An Instance of How Some Men Will Stretch the Truth.

A good instance of the manner in which "sea serpent myths originate is afforded by certain paragraphs which have recently appeared in the Australian papers. In its issue of February 23 the Melbourne "Argus" announced the discovery at Suwanaw Island by the officer of a local steamer of the remains of a sea monster that had been stranded there some two months previously. The creature was said to be in such a bad condition that collecting its remains was a most trying task; but "two heads, the two backbones and part of the ribs" were secured. It was stated that there was "but one body, which had a double spine, and two distinct heads"; while the approximate weight of the animal was estimated at not less than seventy tons, and its length fully sixty feet! In the issue of the following day the skulls were said to be about three feet long, and to carry a pair of tusks at the tip of the lower jaw. On March 2, the same paper published an announcement that E. Waite of the Australian Museum had identified the remains as those of a "zithold"—obviously a misprint for "ziphioid." It would thus appear that the alleged double-headed monster of seventy tons weight and sixty feet length was based on two carcasses of one of the species of beaked whales, which are of such comparatively common occurrence on the Australian coasts, and the largest of which is not known to exceed thirty feet in length!—Nature.

Vancouver's Prize Story.

Every newspaper office looks at every story from Vancouver if a trifle out of the ordinary with a certain degree of distrust. They have cultivated the art of the long bow in Vancouver, and have cultivated it well. Here is the latest, but you needn't believe it unless you want to:

Joseph Moody, once of New York, went into Alaska to hunt gold in 1891. He is now on his way home, having been recognized by a missionary at Dawson, under whose administrations he was converted years before.

Moody was carried off from his diggings by Swahner Indians eight years ago. They took him two hundred miles into the interior of Alaska. For two years he was a slave to the chief and then married the chief's daughter. On his royal father-in-law's death he became Chief. He combined four tribes under his leadership and converted them all.

His wife died a year ago, and now he is coming home laden down with gold.

This is rather above the usual flight of Vancouver imagination, but will serve as a specimen.

Appearance of Fish in Samoa.

One strange feature of this sea life of the tropics is the regular recurrence of migratory swarms of fish of very small size, that return in huge numbers year after year with such absolute regularity that the natives calculate on the event on a certain day in each year, and even within an hour or two of the day. One such swarm of fish forms the occasion of an annual holiday and feast at Samoa. The fish is not unlike the white-bait for which the English Thames has so long been celebrated, and each year it arrives at Samoa on the same day, in the month of October, remains for a day, or at the most two days, and then disappears entirely till the same day of the following year. Why it comes, or whence, no curious naturalist has yet discovered, nor has anybody traced its onward course when it leaves the Samoan group; but the fact is unquestionable that suddenly, without notice, the still waters of the lagoon which surround each island within the fringing reef become alive with millions of fishes, passing through them for a single day and night, and then disappearing for a year as though they had never come.

A visit to Samoa enabled me to see this strange phenomenon for myself, and to witness the native feast by which it is celebrated year by year.—Lippincott's.

Oregon Girl Kills a Bear.

A few years ago O. D. Garrison's six-year-old boy succeeded in killing a deer, and now comes the news that a 200-pound bear was killed a few days ago by his 13-year-old daughter, Mabel, says the St. Helens Mist. Mr. Garrison lives on Scappoose Creek. There are a good many bears there. Mr. Garrison and family, accompanied by Ed Gore and Paul Bonser, left for a little hunting excursion to Bald Mountain, and it was agreed that if a bear was sighted Mabel was to have the first chance at his life. As luck would have it, they had not proceeded far when one was seen 150 yards ahead, and a rifle was immediately handed the little girl by her father, and she was told to take good aim. At the first shot old Bruin fell over dead, with a bullet in his head.

How to Develop the Voice.

"I have often thought," pursued Hoskins, "of recommending Signor Santini to take his girls out on excursions on a locomotive and have 'em exercise their voices while the whistle was blowing. It's my belief that it would do more to develop their voices than all the exercises that he makes them sing at the piano. He makes a match between a girl and a piano, and requires the girl to come out ahead of the piano. Now if he'd match his girls against a steam whistle and the rattling of a locomotive at high speed, he'd find that they develop twice as much voice in the course of a month as they can develop according to his way of teaching."—His Daughter, by W. L. Alden.

Lizard Orchid Found Again.

The rare lizard orchid, which has been lost to the British flora for half a century, has just been discovered on Wye Downs, near Ashford, Kent, by the professors at the Southeastern Agricultural College, Wye. The discovery of this rare flower is a very important one, and steps will be taken to prevent the choice plant being again lost sight of.—Birmingham Post.

A VALUABLE RELIC.

A PRICELESS HAIR FROM THE GREAT MAHOMET'S BEARD.

"A Talisman That Has More Than Once Saved My Life, and Has Also Brought Me Good Fortune" Says The Owner, Mr. Tahar.

A hair from the great Mahomet's beard is now in New York.

It has been here for weeks and its occult presence may account for some of the funny things that have happened in that time.

The hair was brought to this country by Hadji Tahar, a Moorish merchant in New York. It is several inches long, a faded gray-brown in color, and, despite its great age of 1,300 years, it is in good preservation.

Mr. Tahar keeps it in an elaborate inlaid case, which is in turn inclosed in six other cases, each separately locked by a different key.

Nobody needs to be told that Mahometans swear "by the beard of the Prophet." It is in their eyes the most potent of charms, and Mr. Tahar firmly believes that this single hair of it has brought good luck in turn to one tribe after another of desert dwellers, working many miracles, until it came into his keeping. It has saved his life. He never goes on a journey without it.

"The relic was laid away in the sixth century," said Hadiji Tahar to a newspaper man, "in a shrine of the Kaaba at Mecca, the holiest spot on earth, where it was watched day and night by seven priests, each of whom kept one of the keys."

Holding the relic carefully, Mr. Tahar showed it to the reporter. The outer box is of wood, dark and polished. The last one of the series is of platinum, and looks like a solid piece of metal. A sacrilegious hand could not break it open by hammering, but when its owner touches the secret spring it flies open at once.

"There is but one other relic like it in the world," said Hadji Tahar. "It is sung in Moslem song and celebrated in history. I would part with my life rather than lose this little case. I have made six trips to Morocco; I have often been in deadly danger—shipwrecked twice and thrown among lepers and yellow-fever patients.

"Once when I was wrecked in the Mediterranean I was one of the few who survived. It was the talisman that saved me. I have been successful in trade with its help. I am never without it."

The Bishop Under Suspicion.

A Rochester woman vouches for the following story of an experience that Bishop Potter, of New York had in Connecticut:

Some time ago, the story goes, the Bishop went on a visit to friends in Connecticut. While there he was asked to preach in a small church near Stonington. The main support of the little parish was a wealthy widow, a devout churchwoman, and a friend of the Bishop. She invited the prelate to dinner, adding that she would consider it a privilege to offer him shelter over night. As the next train out of the hamlet left at 7 o'clock Monday morning, the Bishop accepted her invitation.

A couple of hours after the Bishop had left the house of Mrs. H., who was a woman of a somewhat impetuous nature, discovered that a hairbrush and comb were missing from the room occupied the previous night by Bishop Potter.

Hardly realizing what she was doing, the woman hurriedly dispatched the following note to the Bishop in New York:

"Dear Bishop: Is it possible hairbrush and comb were put in your grip by mistake?"

The following day Mrs. H. received this reply by telegram: "Poor, but honest. Look in the upper drawer."

High Art In Cookery.

Scalloped Oysters.—Select firm, plump oysters, and scallop them evenly and neatly with a pair of sharp scissors. Now, with a needle threaded with pink silk, if for a pink tea, or blue if you wish Blue Points, work a buttonhole stitch round the scallop. When finished, press carefully on the wrong side with a hot iron.

Shirred Eggs.—Carefully remove the shell from a fresh egg, and hold the white and yolk firmly in the left hand. Now, with a fine needle and thread, gather the material in straight rows about half an inch apart. Draw up to the required fulness and fasten neatly the ends of the thread.

Snow Pudding.—Take about four quarts, say four and a half, of fresh snow. Wash in several waters and put it to soak in hot water over night. In the morning knead it up and set by the fire to rise, add some melted glue, and set aside to cool.

Chicken Patty.—This dish is a lost art, as Patti is no chicken.

Egg Plant.—(See incubator.)—Puck.

GOLF.

One member of the Park Golf Club has been posted for non-payment of dues,

J. Vincent Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, who is now visiting relatives at Morris Plains, is a frequent player at the State Hospital course and also at the famous course of the Morris County Country Club.

There was only one change in the handicaps in the competition for the McCutchen Cup at the links of the Park Golf Club last week. The handicap of Meredith Dryden was reduced from 22 to 17. Dryden is now third in the race for the cup and has been playing steadily and showing a marked improvement. Even with the lower handicaps, he is likely to make a good showing in further competitions.

Good golf playing seems to run in the blood of the family of Samuel Townsend, of Washington Park. The father and two sons are all enthusiastic followers of the sport and can play very well. Samuel Townsend has made a good showing for the McCutchen Cup. They have all gone away for the summer now, however, and will not participate in the cup contest until the first of September. William A. Townsend has scored several points for the cup, but he is not likely to make many more as shortly after his return from Long Island coast, he will go away to Cornell University.

Mrs. W. T. Grant, of this city, has returned from Malden, Mass.

Mrs. Rachael Sperling, of East Sixth street, is visiting at Jamesburg for a time.

AUTOMOBILES IN JERSEY

TO ESTABLISH SERVICE IN ALL LARGE CITIES IN THE STATE.

Company Increased Its Capitalization to Over a Million—Will Plainfield be Included in This New Scheme?

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, August 8.—The New Jersey Electric Vehicle Transportation Company yesterday filed with the Secretary of State a certificate increasing its capitalization from $100,000 to $1,200,000. This is the New Jersey branch of the Whitney-Elkins Automobile Syndicate.

James E. Hayes, president of the New Jersey Company, said to your correspondent that an automobile service would at once be established in the larger cities and towns of the State and at the coast resorts.

"We will establish a connecting system between New York and Philadelphia," he said, "and expect to make the New Jersey Company our working model for the other States. We have now formed twenty companies under the New Jersey laws, and expect to make this the centre of our entire system. On our conveyances in this State will be put all the modern appliances.

"For the present our headquarters in the State will be Jersey City, although it is probable we will shortly establish a branch at Trenton to have supervision over the southern end of the State. Already we have 4,500 vehicles constructed, and we will begin the operation of our system at once."

When asked if the syndicate was likely to establish a manufactory in New Jersey, Mr. Hayes said:

"It is not likely, for the present, at least. We have the immense plant of the Pope Manufacturing Company at Hartford and several rubber concerns."

'TWAS DOUBLY EVENTFUL.

Charming Affair in Honor of Bergen Naylor's Sixth Birthday.

There was a pleasant affair yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Naylor, West Fourth street and Lee place. The occasion was doubly agreeable because it was the seventh anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Naylor's marriage and also the sixth birthday of Master Bergen Naylor, the only son. The event was duly celebrated by giving the little fellow a birthday party. About twenty of Bergen's friends were present to wish the young host many happy returns of the day. The lawn was handsomely decorated with flags and Japanese lanterns, and the children had a delightful time playing games, etc. During the afternoon refreshments were served on the lawn. A number of handsome presents were received. Among those present were: Mrs. J. R. Naylor, Mark Lee, Mrs. J. E. Naylor, Mr. and Mrs. John Mowrey, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Townley, Mrs. E. V. Lorton, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Naylor, G. A. Lee, Mrs. C. M. Meeker, Miss H. H. Kiely, Bergen Naylor, Roy, Helen and Vincent Lee, Bettie, Ruth and Ethel Naylor, Harry, Frank and Lilly Mowrey, Nettie and Evelyn Meeker.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

Joseph Blimm's Horse Ran Wildly Through City Streets—Wagon Wrecked.

A lively runaway occurred this forenoon at 11 o'clock, when Joseph Blimm's horse, attached to his grocery wagon, became frightened at a passing wagon loaded with long poles, and ran away. The horse was in charge of the grocery clerk, Harry Hook, who left the rig to deliver some groceries on East Second street. When he came out to get in the wagon he discovered that the rig had disappeared. The horse ran through Second street to Washington street and then to Front street. At the corner of Front and Washington streets the horse ran into a large tree which resulted in the wagon being completely wrecked. There was a lot of groceries in the wagon and they were nearly all damaged. A quantity of eggs was smashed. The horse was caught by someone in the vicinity. Harry Hook, the clerk, soon came along and took charge of the rig. The horse was not injured.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

ENDEAVORERS AT CAMP WOLFFE.

Young People of First Baptist Church Conducted Meeting There.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 8.—Last evening one of the largest religious meetings in the history of the Westfield Fresh-Air Camp was held under the auspices of the young people of the First Baptist church, of Plainfield. About twenty people went by train and about fifteen made the trip on wheels. Those who journeyed by wheel were a trifle late owing to the bad condition of roads part of the way.

L. H. Biglow, Jr., was in charge of the meeting and he gave an excellent talk. His subject was "Blessed are the Pure in Heart," and after Mr. Biglow concluded his excellent talk, A. A. Lake, of Dunellen, gave a highly instructive chalk talk illustrating the subject of the meeting. A large number of those from Plainfield took part in the meeting and the singing was one of the special features. Before the Plainfield friends left for home Mr. Biglow distributed among those at the camp small paper hearts tied with ribbon. Printed theron was the subject of the meeting. They made pretty and helpful souvenirs.

THREE RIVAL BILDERS.

Lehigh Valley and Central Railroads and a Driving Club After Jockey Club Tract.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 8.—The Newark Driving Club may get control of the old New Jersey Jockey Club grounds and track. The club has made a strong bid for it, but has two strong competitors in the race. The Lehigh Valley and the Central Railroad of New Jersey are both after it, and want it so badly that the Driving Club will have to raise its bid or it will be classified as "also ran."

The Central wants the site for its shops and freight warehouses, which are now in Jersey City, and if it gets the tract the present one near the Elizabethport depot will be utilized for a yard.

The Lehigh Valley wants the ground for the same purpose, as it is anxious to get out of Jersey City also, and it will locate somewhere in this vicinity at all events.

The Jockey Club has made final arrangements for going out of legal existence, which will take place in about six weeks

HE KNEW THE ROPES

A Lawyer That Was Not Hunting Litigation Over Land.

It's the canny old bird that cannot be caught with the bird lime of litigation.

You've probably heard of Lawyer Hackett of Somerset. A little while ago he purchased some land over which there had been a lawsuit for years, until the parties had spent half a dozen times what the land was worth. Hackett knew all about it. Some of the people wondered why he wanted to get hold of property with such an incubus of uncertainty on it. Others thought that perhaps he wanted some legal knitting work and would pitch in redhot to fight that line fence question on his own hook.

That's what the owner of the adjoining land thought, says the Baltimore Herald. So he braced himself for trouble when he saw Hackett coming across the fields one day.

Said Hackett: "Where's your claim here, anyway, as to this fence?"

"I insist," replied the neighbor, "that your fence is over my land two feet at one end and one foot at least at the other end."

"Well," replied Hackett, "you go ahead just as quick as you can and set your fence over. At the end where you say that I encroach on you two feet, set the fence onto my land four feet. At the other end push it onto my land two feet."

"But," persisted the neighbor, "that's twice what I claim."

"I don't care about that," said Hackett. "There's been fight enough over this land. I want you to take enough so you are perfectly satisfied you have got your rights, and then we can get along all pleasantly. Go ahead and help yourself."

The man paused, abashed. He had been ready to commence the old struggle tooth and nail. But this move of the new neighbor stunned him. Yet he wasn't to be outdone in generosity. He looked at Hackett.

"Squire," said he, "that fence ain't going to be moved an inch. I don't want the blamed old land. There warn't nothing to the fight but the principle of the thing."

Gladstone and Wine.

The subject of wine interested him; he was fond of trying different varieties, and had a great liking for port. Often expectant guests—especially the ladies—looking forward to a delightful conversaton at dinner, would be sadly disappointed by finding Mr. Gladstone launched upon the topic of wine, which even he could hardly raise to sublime heights. It has been whispered that his taste in wine was not above criticism, but upon this point it would be rash to express an opinion. He once told the present writer that, in his younger days, he at one time kept some peculiar Greek wine on his writing table to sip while at his work; but he very soon discovered that it was a most unwholesome habit, and left it off. Since that time he never drank wine between meals. He said that if he had ever given in to the temptation to use alcohol as a spur to the hard-worked brain he would have been lost.—Life of Gladstone by Sir Henry Lee.

TELEPHONE COMPANY INVADES CRANFORD.

Will Try to Establish Local Exchange There.

CANVASS IS MADE THERE.

COMPANY SECURED A FRANCHISE IN CRANFORD IN 1898.

But Made no Attempt to Take Advantage of it—Franchise Expired After a Year as Nothing Was Done—May Try Same Tactics as Were Used in Bound Brook if Committee Fails to Grant a New One.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, August 9—The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company seems to have opened an active campaign in all the suburban towns along the line of the Jersey Central. Cranford has now been set as an objective point.

A representative of the telephone company arrived here a few days ago and is now at work on a systematic canvass for subscribers to a telephone exchange, which is to be established here in the near future if the consent of the Township Committee can be obtained. The fact is, the consent will not actually be necessary, for the company can follow the same method they threaten to do in Bound Brook, of running their wires over private property.

The representative of the company could give no information as to what the company's plans were regarding Cranford, nor how soon they expected to put them into effect. All he wanted was subscribers.

It will be remembered that this same company made an attempt to establish an exchange here in the spring of 1898.

Finally, April 12th of that year, the legal permission to open an exchange was granted, subject to certain conditions. One of the conditions was that "in all streets where poles of The Suburban Electric Company or any other company are or may be erected, said The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company are hereby granted permission to place wires through said streets only upon said poles." Another was, "if within twelve months from the date of application said company shall not have established a local telephone exchange service to the people of Cranford, then this franchise shall be null and void." In addition to the contract contained in the franchise an agreement was made whereby the company pledged itself to make a cash payment of $100 to the township.

This payment was made, but as the twelve months' time limit has expired without the establishment of an exchange, it seems clear that all the rights and privileges obtained by the company have been forfeited, and that the company will have to begin all over again.

HAD ALWAYS BEEN HER FRIEND

Perrine Wanted His Side of the Trouble Told—Has Gone West Now.

Charles M. Perrine, who was arraigned before City Judge Runyon yesterday morning on a charge of assault preferred by Mrs. Carrie Conger, which was dismissed, called at The Daily Press office last evening and declared that he wished his side of the story heard. The charge, he stated, had not been proved. He had for nearly nine years befriended Mrs. Conger as far as lay in his power and had never injured her in any way. He declared that he left for the west last night and would be absent from Plainfield for a number of years.

Surprise to Miss Young.

Miss Nettie Young, of the borough, was tendered a surprise last evening by a number of her young friends. A pleasant time was passed in dancing and playing games, and refreshments were served at a late hour. Among those present were Miss Grace Emmons, Miss Evelyn Simonson, Miss Emma Line, Miss Emilie Dunham, Miss Winters, Miss Bessie Martin, Willard Martin, William Jeffreys, Walter Emmons, Edward Ross, Horace Martin, Jr, and Raymond Poole.

Pension Vouchers Must Be Kept Clean.

The various justices of the peace are still busy making out pension papers. It is quite necessary that pensioners should keep their vouchers as clean as possible. Some of the vouchers have been returned because they have been soiled so badly as to be refused by the Government officials.

Board of Managers Met.

The board of managers of the Board of Trade met last evening and audited a number of bills. Nothing else was done.

VALUABLE OLD CURIOS.

NOW IN POSSESSION OF MRS. PHOEBE A. CROWELL, OF CRAIG PLACE.

Century Old Set of China Imported From France in 1782 by Celebrated Huguenot Family—Also a Rare Old Platter

Curio seekers and others interested in ancient wares are still to be found in all cities, towns and boroughs throughout the land. Some years ago the craze for rare old things swept over the country and every man, woman and child was collecting old china, clocks, chairs and bric-a-brac of all descriptions. Of late the mania has subsided somewhat although relic hunters are still to be found. The writer came across a set of rare old china dishes the other day that have been in one family more than 70 years. They are the property of Mrs. Phoebe A. Crowell, of No. 10 Craig place. The china is believed to be more than 100 years old.

It was imported from France about 1782 or thereabouts, and is believed to have been in the family of a celebrated Huguenot. There are thirty-nine pieces in the set, which is in an excellent state of preservation. It was presented to Mrs. Anna B. Cole, mother of Mrs. Crowell, who then lived in Chester, Morris county, when the former was married, and it has been in the family ever since. When Mrs. Crowell was married, more than forty-five years ago, her mother gave her the set of dishes as a wedding present. Mrs. Crowell also has a platter which is believed to be nearly one hundred years old It is handsomely decorated and contains a scene on the Hudson river opposite Fort Miller This platter was originally owned by Sarah Hugg, the grandmother of Mrs. Crowell, but long since dead. Beside the dishes Mrs. Crowell possesses a grandfather's clock, nearly one hundred and twenty-five years old, which was brought to this country from England by a member of the family. The clock keeps excellent time and is a handsome piece of furniture.

BELIEVE BANK IS SAFE.

Investigation Into Affairs of Merchantile Co-operative Bank Association.

A committee, consisting of Mayor Rockfellow, Councilman R. I. Tolles and J. B. Coward, all members of the Merchantile Co-operative Bank Association, went to Red Bank yesterday and made a thorough examination into the affairs of the bank, whose headquarters for this State are at that place. It was learned that the New Jersey bank has nothing to do with the one in New York. The committee from this city were thoroughly satisfied with their investigation and they will report to the local stockholders that, to the best of their knowledge and belief, the bank is safe. The members were satisfied beyond doubt as to the safeness of the bank.

LIFE-SIZE PHOTOGRAPH.

Presented by L. M. Dunavan to A. L. Force, of The Daily Press.

Louis M. Dunavan, of fire headquarters, this morning presented to A. L. Force, of The Daily Press, a life-size photograph of himself and his brother, the late W. L Force, which was taken in 1871 and presented to Engine Co., No. 1, of which W. L. Force was at that time the foreman and A. L. Force the engineer. The picture, which is neatly framed, shows both men in the uniform of the engine company—red shirt and eight-cone fire hats. The picture is to be given a prominent place in The Press editorial office.

Built Hotel at Washington Rock.

James M. Frazee, of Trenton, brother of S. D. Frazee, of Plainfield, was in town several days last week calling on old friends and acquaintances, and noting the great changes that have taken place in Plainfield since he was a resident here. Mr. Frazee was the builder of the Washington Rock Hotel many years ago, and was also owner of a large tract of land on West Front street, east of H. C. Compton's farm. Mr. Frazee is now quite aged and rather feeble.

His Business.

Justice Moffett found this notice pinned to his office door this morning: "If a man's in love, that his business. If a girl's in love, that's her business. If they contemplate matrimony, that's my business. E. D. Moffett, Justice of Peace."

Started New Suit.

W. H. Abbott has begun a new suit in Justice Moffett's court against the First Church of Christ to recover the amount of an insurance premium alleged to have been issued to the society. The papers are returnable the 16th.

J. P. Emmons, of Prospect place, who is summering at Asbury Park, is spending a few days in the city on business.

OVERHEAD WIRES ARE NOW GOING RAPIDLY.

Telephone Company Has a Big Gang of Linemen at Work.

CABLES ARE GOING, TOO.

POLES ARE TO BE REMOVED IN A SHORT TIME.

Park, Watchung and North Avenues Are Nearly Freed From Telephone Wires—Linemen are Now Taking Down the Heavy Cables—Other Streets Will Follow—Removal a Great Improvement.

Most of the single wires on Park, Watchung and North avenues and on Fourth and Front streets have been taken down and now the great cables are being removed from the poles in those thoroughfares. A gang of linemen of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, numbering fifteen in all, have been at work here for a week and greatly changed the appearance of things overhead.

The linemen have taken down the single iron and copper wires and removed most of the cross trees on the posts. Those that remain only wait the removal of the cables which is going on as fast as possible. It is rather slow work for the cables are heavy and then have to be coiled up on huge spools for transportation.

The linemen will continue in Plainfield for the rest of the week at least. As soon as the last of the cables are down on the streets mentioned, the cross-trees will be all removed and then the poles taken up. Most of the poles are in good condition and can be used elsewhere.

After the removal of the wires from the main thoroughfares, the wires on the other streets where the underground conduit system goes will follow. Even now the greatly improved appearance of the streets, now the wires are gone, is very evident.

TROLLEY BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Union County Standard Says That One Will Be Organized.

Good idea! Trolley it along. We don't know just where the idea sprung from; but we suspect "Charlie" Denman. He is much given to thinking things. Never mind whence came the idea; it is, all the same, good. And here it is: A Trolley Base Ball League. By that meaning a league within the trolley circuit comprehending Elizabeth, Cranford, Westfield, Springfield, Rahway, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville, New Brunswick, etc. It is not necessary to have high priced playing talent. There is plenty of good amateur ability. And we believe that the public, within this district, would, if properly assured as to the straightforward character of the movement, give it countenance and all the financial support required.

What do you say, Elizabeth, Cranford, Westfield, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville, Springfield, Hurrahway, New Brunswick, etc., etc?

For Westfield, yes!

Just think of what a lively time we'd have on hand now if a course of league games was in progress within this territory this summer, and all the places connected up with trolley routes as they probably will be next summer!

Should the idea materialize we beg to offer to the league directors, free of charge, quarters in the Standard building, located within one minute of the Jersey Central station at Westfield and on line with the prospective trolley route, now under construction. —Union County Standard.

NO FIRES LATELY.

Plainfield Fire Department Has Not Been Called Out For a Month.

It has been nearly a month now since the city fire department was called out to do active duty. At one time late in the winter hardly a day passed that the department did not have to turn out for a blaze. Chief Doane accounts for so many of the fires at that time by the heavy rains washing down the soot in the chimneys to a point so near the fire that in many cases a fire in the chimney resulted. The Chief says that all householders will do well in the fall, as the time comes for the furnace fires to be started again, to have the chimneys swept and the great accumulation of soot removed before there is a fire.

EUCHRE AT HUNTERSTON

BIG BENEFIT WILL BE HELD TOMORROW NIGHT.

Elaborate Arrangements Being Made for Decorations for That Occasion—Captain Snyder to be in Charge.

The subscription euchre to be given at the Hotel Hunterston tomorrow evening is now an assured success. Captain Snyder, who is chairman of the committee on decorations, has been busy for the past two days with designers and workmen from New York who are doing their utmost to make the affair as gorgeous as it deserves to be. The broad piazzas will also be arranged for parties who don't care to play cards but who may enjoy the music and watch the animated scene within the great ball room where the affair is to be held.

The Hunterston is now quite full of guests but many have engaged rooms in the neighborhood and, as the car service will be special that evening, people will have no trouble in attending. The prizes are many and very beautiful and will be on exhibiiton that evening at the hotel.

CROPS ARE THRIVING.

WEEKLY CROP AND CLIMATE REPORT IS VERY ENCOURAGING.

Week Characterized by Local Thunder Storms Destructive in a Small Area – Rainfall Unevenly Divided.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 8.—The weekly crop and climate report of Director E. W. McGann at the State Central office of the United States Weather Bureau here, is as follows:

"The week ending Monday, August 7th, was characterized by severe local thunderstorms, that on the 2d being unusually destructive in a small area of Union, Burlington and Salem counties—in the former by high wind, and in the two latter by heavy hail. In the vicinity of Lower Penns Neck, Salem county, nearly the entire tomato crop was utterly destroyed in the vicinity of Beverly, where the hailstones measured 2¼ by 2¾ inches, the greenhouses on three farms suffered damage to the extent of $4,000.

"The growing and maturing crops are reported to be in a most thriving condition. Fall plowing has commenced, the rains of the week having put the ground in fine condition. The reports received from the cranberry growers indicate that the berries have obtained a fair set in some bogs, while in others it is not as good.

"The temperature and sunshine during the week have been above the normal in all sections. The rainfall was unevenly distributed, a small portion of each section receiving amounts slightly above, and others considerably below the normal, but sufficient in all sections for present needs."

Nearby correspondents report as to local conditions:

"Piscatawaytown—Very fine growing weather; potato blight very bad; corn very fine; cabbage worms numerous. Wm. T. Woerner."

"South Bound Brook—Two heavy showers on the 2d; no damage done, except blowing some fruit from the trees; melons ripening and rotting badly; corn and late cabbage growing rapidly. A F. Randolph."

"Somerville — Showers on the 2d were very beneficial; ground in fine condition for plowing; corn, buckwheat and all vegetables are very promising; rainfall, 1.97 inches. "H. V. N. Garretson."

HENRY T. SMITH IS DEAD

Passed Away Yesterday After Long Illness in the Adirondacks.

Mrs. Henry T. Smith, of Westervelt avenue, received a telegram last evening telling of the death of her husband at a little village in the Adirondacks yesterday. He has been very ill for some time. The telegram gave no details of the death but stated that the body had been shipped to his former home at Glen Cove, L. I. Mr. Smith leaves a widow and two daughters.

Thomas U. Smith, the eldest son, went to Glen Cove this morning to learn more of the details if possible and lookout for the care of the remains.

Has Appealed Case.

Attorney Angleman has given notice of appeal in the case of Victor D Schomp against John Mair, which Justice Mosher yesterday decided in favor of the plaintiff.

Takes Striker's Place.

It is reported that Mr. Kellar, of Plainfield avenue, a printer by trade, has secured a position in The New York Sun office, made possible by the recent strike.

B. A. Hegeman, Sr., of Sycamore avenue, returned home last evening after a pleasant week at Cottage City, Mass.

ARROWSMITH SAID THAT HE WAS GUILTY.

Justice Storms Fined Him $10 For Cruelty to Horse.

EXPECTED TRIAL NOT HELD.

CASE WAS PUSHED BY AGENT PANGBORN OF S. P. C. A.

Arrowsmith Was Charged With Cruelly Beating His Horse When Animal Was Almost Exhausted—Complaint Preferred by William B. Stewart, Prominent Citizen of South Plainfield—Pleaded Guilty.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, August 9—Many of the good folks of South Plainfield journeyed here yesterday afternoon to attend the cruelty to animals trial of George Arrowsmith which was to come before Justice Storms. They were disappointed, however, for there wasn't any trial, Arrowsmith making up his mind at the last moment to enter a plea of guilty.

Arrowsmith, it will be remembered, was arrested on complaint of William B. Stewart, a prominent citizen of South Plainfield. It was alleged by the complainant that Arrowsmith had been beating his horse one day most cruelly when the horse was so exhausted as to be hardly able to drag the wagon.

The case was pressed by William N. Pangborn, local agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It came for trial before Justice Storms. Arrowsmith changed his plea to guilty and it was accepted.

Justice Storms sentenced him to pay a fine of $10, and also gave him a severe reprimand. If he ever was convicted on a similar charge, the Justice said, he would show no hesitancy in punishing him to the full extent of the law, which is a fine of $100.

The South Plainfielders who came over to hear the trial were rather disgusted at the lack of excitement, but were well pleased with the sentence. The case aroused universal indignation.

COPY NEVER GOT THERE.

Why the Westfield Republican Failed to Make its Appearance Last Week.

Editor Morse, of the Westfield Republican, has been the maddest man in the county for three days. Saturday night he stroked his moustache in vexation; Sunday he forgot to curl it, and Monday he pulled it viciously.

The Republican is printed out of town, and Thursday after sending in his copy, the editor took a vacation. On returning home Saturday he found that his customary package of papers was not in evidence, and then his madness began to develope. The only trouble was that he did not know who to get mad at for he wasn't sure whether some one had swiped his edition or his copy. Monday, however, he found that the copy had never reached the printer, and the consequence is that The Republican is an issue short, and Morse is now looking for a press of his own.

BEAT BROTHER WITH UMBRELLA.

Warm Time at Westfield Station Sunday Evening.

A colored man from Plainfield went to Westfield to see one of the dusky belles Sunday evening and, while promenading with her, met his sister, who took him to task for being out with another woman while his wife was at home. The couple wrangled for awhile and the Westfield lady left. Then when the other two had reached the Westfield depot the man called his sister some "pet name" and there was a fight. She took an umbrella which she was carrying and broke it in a dozen places over the brother's head, and the arrival of the Plainfielder's train was all that saved him from being seriously hurt, for he could do nothing against the terrific rushes of the angry woman.

Fishing for Salmon.

Charles S. Lee, general passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, accompanied by Mrs. Lee and her two daughters, and Mr. and Mrs. F.O. Herring, have just returned from a delightful two weeks' trip to St. John's Lake, Canada, about 190 miles north of Quebec. One of the pleasures of the trip was the fishing for the gamey little leaping salmon, called quananiche by the Indians.

Working for The Sun Now.

Arthur Heath, of this city, who for sometime past has been the foreman in the composing department at the News, has secured a lucrative position in the composing department at The New York Sun office. Mr. Heath's position is that of a make-up. His many friends in this city will be pleased to learn of his success.

SPIDER AT MEETING.

CAUSED EXCITEMENT AT SERVICE IN CAMP WOOLFE.

Christian Endeavorers of Park Avenue Baptist Church Conducted Services at the Westfield Fresh-Air Camp.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church conducted the evening gospel service at Camp Woolfe, the headquarters of the Union Fresh-Air Association, at Westfield, last night. A large number of the Endeavorers and their friends went by stage, and several by wheel. The meeting was led by Miss Annie Wyckoff, of Putnam avenue. Her subject was "Christ Our Friend," and the leader treated it in a very practical and helpful manner.

A number of the Plainfielders and also of the guests at the camp took part by prayer or testimony. A quartette from the Endeavor Society, composed of Miss Adelaide Runyon, soprano; Miss Adella Runyon, contralto; Wheaton S. Lowry, tenor, and Thomas Adams Cuming, bass, led the singing, and sang two selections. Miss M. G. Morse, of the Congregational Endeavor Society, sang two solos, with autoharp accompaniment.

The drive down and back was enlivened by the singing of hymns and college songs. The evening was a somewhat cold one for a service held practically in the open air, but the bright meeting and the visit to the well-conducted camp and its happy inhabitants was enjoyed by all.

Mosquitoes, usually very much in evidence, did not disturb the visitors, but the solemnity of the meeting was suddenly marred for a few moments by the appearance of a huge spider, which wandered about between leader, choir and congregation, chased by a kitten, until Thos. A. Cuming bravely made away with his spidership, and a small child in the front row captured the kitten, holding it fast for the remainder of the evening. During this excitement singing was going on, and afterward quiet fell over the auditorium and the service of sentence prayers proceeded.

MRS. CHASE SEEKS DIVORCE.

Papers Were Served on Frederick F. Chase Today—Co-respondent Named.

Mrs. Hattie T. B. Chase, of Fanwood, has begun proceedings in the Court of Chancery for a divorce from her husband, Frederick F. Chase, formerly of this city. Papers were served today. The divorce is asked for on statutory grounds. Miss Hattie Castleton, of New York, is named in the bill as co-respondent.

There will probably be no answer to the charges by Chase. Mrs. Chase is at present staying at Asbury Park. She is the daughter of Theodore B. TenBroeck, of Rutherford, and was one of the leading belles of that place when she met Chase.

CELESTIAL FIREWORKS TONIGHT.

Annual Display of Meteors Takes Place Tonight and Tomorrow Night.

Plainfielders who happen to be out of doors this and tomorrow evenings can witness a fine exhibition of celestial fireworks unless the sky is covered with clouds which does not now seem likely. Tonight and tomorrow night will occur the annual display of the meteors or "shooting stars" known as the "Perseides," so called because in whatever part of the sky they are first seen their tracks traced backward all lead to a point in the constellation Perseus.

PICNIC AT BOYNTON BEACH.

Sunday-school of New Market Baptist Church Enjoying Annual Outing.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Aug. 9—Four large stages, besides a number of private vehicles, carried the members of the Sunday-school of the Baptist church of New Market and a number of their friends to the annual picnic to Boynton Beach this morning. The prospect of such delightful weather tempted a large number to go and the picnic was consequently a great success. A delightful time is anticipated.

BECKER FINED $50.

Convicted of Cruelty to Animals Before Justice Storms.

George Becker, who was charged with cruelty to animals some weeks ago by William N. Pangborn, local agent for the S P. C. A, was yesterday fined $50 by Justice Storms, of New Market.

Patrolman Nicholas Myers and family, of this city, left today for Boston, Mass, to visit relatives.

Patrolman McCarthy was obliged to go off duty at 1:30 o'clock this morning on account of illness.

Patrolman James Totten is gradually recovering from his recent illness.

Patrolman Morris Higgins will return to duty this week after enjoying his annual vacation.

CARRIE WAS SCOLDED SO SHE RAN AWAY.

All Union Village Turned Out to Find Her.

FOUL PLAY WAS FEARED.

SHE FELL ASLEEP IN HIGH GRASS IN PASTURE.

Farmer Gulick Stumbled Over Little Nine-Year-Old Carrie Burnett After Hunting Until Midnight—Is Daughter of Henry Burnett and Lives With Her Grandmother—Ran Away Because She Was Scolded.

Half the population of Union Village and the countryside thereabouts turned out last evening in quest of little Carrie Burnett, the nine-year-old daughter of Henry Burnett, who had disappeared mysteriously shortly after noon. Burnett is a widower and he and his child have been living with his mother on a farm close to Union Village.

Little Carrie was naughty yesterday morning and teased her grandmother. At last the old lady could bear it no longer and lectured the child long and well. Dire punishment was threatened if the offence was repeated. Then Carrie walked away from the house sobbing. She did not appear during the afternoon and the supper hour failed to find her in her accustomed place. Her father became alarmed, fearing that she had run away.

At 8 o'clock there was no sign of the little girl, and Mr. Burnett hurried to his neighbors for aid in finding the child. The farmers turned out afoot and in wagons. Some journeyed to neighboring towns, while others searched the woods and fields, calling aloud the name of the missing one. Torches were procured. It was feared that the child had met with foul play for several tramps had been noticed in the vicinity.

Abram Gulick, whose farm is near by, was one of the most energetic in the hunt. At midnight he was searching the pasture near the house, when he stumbled upon something half hidden in a hassock of long grass.

"Bless me, what's this?" he exclaimed.

"I'm sleepy," a tiny voice replied out of the grass.

It proved to be the missing child, who had fallen asleep there. She was speedily taken home and the searchers called in.

FEELING GROWING STRONG.

The Much Mooted Industrial School Question—A Rare Political Opportunity.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, August 9.—There seems to be good prospects at this time for a a new investigation of the State Industrial School for Girls. The criticisms against the institution seem to have increased rather than diminished since the end of the three-day inquiry by the Governor and one or two of the trustees. The State today is aroused over the institution as never before.

It seems generally agreed among all the parties that the discipline has been too strict. In the Governor's inquiry the witnesses were not sworn to tell the truth, and thereby the record of that investigation is not considered as weighty as it might have been. The demand for a legislative investigation grows in all parts of the State.

It came to light today that the House of Assembly and State Senate committee on the school is the proper tribunal to look after the charges that have been made and that are constantly being made.

The joint legislative committee last year visited the school in a formal way, following the usual custom. Senator Evans, of Atlantic, is the chairman of the committee, and the other members are Senators Pitney, of Morris, and Packer, of Burlington, and Assemblyman Murray, of Union; Marshall, of Cape May; Strycker, of Passaic; Welsh, of Morris, and Martens, of Hunterdon.

LOWER RATE FOR HOBOKEN.

Tax Rate This Year Will Show Reduction of Five Points.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Hoboken, August 9—The tax rate in Hoboken for the year 1899-1900 was struck by the commissioners of assessment of taxes yesterday afternoon, and shows a reduction of five cents on $100 of ratables from the rate of last year.

Hoboken has two rates, one for the old city and the rate for the annexed or Weehawken district. The former is $2.43 on $100, and the latter is $2.22. The total increase in the assessed valuations this year amounts to $607,650, which accounts for the decrease in the rate.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS.

Dreyfus Court-Martial Examines the Secret Dossier at Rennes.

THE PRISONER ANXIOUS.

The Court Barred to Guard Against the Secrets of Foreign Nations—Counsel Satisfied

Big Crowd Turns Out to See the Unfortunate Prisoner Leave the Lycee—General Mercier Bases His Hope of Convicting Dreyfus on Unpublished Letters.

Rennes, Aug. 9.—The Dreyfus court martial met behind closed doors for the purpose of examining the secret dossier. This is a collection of documents which fills a large clothes basket and weighs 500 pounds. Two men brought the load into court. The session lasted five hours. A crowd of about 400 people waited to see Dreyfus as he came out of the Lycee.

Troops cleared these away, and there were no loud protests or demonstration, the crowd seeming to be animated merely by a quiet curiosity.

The prisoner appeared still worried and harrassed, as if uncertain of acquittal.

Four guards escorted him to and from the Lycee. An officer and an armed guard keep watch over him at night.

The court was constituted the same as at first. There were no soldiers present and the public and correspondents were necessarily absent. Dreyfus was present with both his lawyers, MM. Labori and Demange.

Captain Dreyfus was questioned about the dossier piece by piece, and protested his innocence when incriminating documents were brought up.

After the adjournment M. Demange, counsel for Dreyfus, said:

"The President has clearly stated the charges against Captain Dreyfus. It is for us to destroy them if we have the talent."

M. Demange acquitted Col. Jouaust, President of the Court, of all blame for the authoritive tone which he assumed in his first examination of Dreyfus, for which some persons have denounced him.

M. Demange accounted for the President's demeanor by saying that it was only natural for a colonel accustomed to command to speak in a voice of command.

The reason for the Court's secrecy in examining the dossier is that parts of it involve Germany and other foreign powers. The prosecution relies largely upon the dossier.

Ex-Minister of War Chanoine, who brought some further documents in a leather bag, was the only witness present.

It is stated that General Mercier bases his conviction of the guilt of Dreyfus on an unpublished letter from a foreign diplomat, which contains the full name of Dreyfus.

Captain Dreyfus spends all his time between the sessions of the court martial in long rests to husband his strength, and in working on his case, writing up the points on which he believes he will be questioned.

M. Demange is delighted with the course of the proceedings thus far. He ascribes Dreyfus's fits of trembling to fever.

"Dreyfus's trembling was most pronounced in lower jaw and in his legs," he said. "His weakness is due to the fact that he has had only milk diet recently."

"He keeps up his magnificent will power only by moral courage, inspired by love for his wife and children." M. Labori explained. "He would have liked to have his wife attend the trial, but she was unable to face the ordeal. Captain Dreyfus is most anxious to know the impression made upon the public by the reports of the proceedings."

The anti-revisionist press of the nation is unanimous in expressing the belief that the proceedings Tuesday augur ill for Dreyfus. The writers maintain that the prisoner's curt denials of accusations were unaccountable and not accompanied by conclusive explanations.

M. Demange related some interesting facts respecting Dreyfus's detention as a prisoner on Devil's Island. Dreyfus, he said, was patient in his suffering and completely won the hearts of his immediate jailers, who secretly did their best to relieve his misery when it was possible to do so behind the backs of the sergeants and the superior officers.

Thus, when Dreyfus was in irons, the jailers would silently creep into his cell for the purpose of padding his manacles with a handkerchief or a scarf in order to prevent the friction of the gyves against his sore flesh, the prisoner looking gratefully in their faces to express the thanks which he was afraid to utter in words. At daybreak the jailers would return and remove the evidences of their charity.

Ships Sunk by Great Cyclone.

St. Pierre, Martinique, Aug. 9.—The cyclone scheduled for these islands struck Pointa Pitre, Island of Guadaloupe, and wrought extensive damage. The storm was also felt severely in the interior of the island. Streets were flooded, houses demolished and a score or more of vessels in the harbor sunk or blown ashore.

President's Stay Prolonged.

Plattsburg, N. Y. Aug. 9.—President and Mrs. McKinley have decided to remain at the Hotel Champlain two weeks longer and probably until September 1. Mrs. McKinley continues to improve rapidly and it has been thought best to remain here until the hot weather of August has gone by.

Russia Warns China.

Pekin, Aug. 9.—M. de Giers, the Russian minister to China, has addressed a note to the Tsung-li-Yamen conveying a warning that an alliance between China and Japan would greatly offend Russia, and that the consequences of such an agreemnt would be most serious to China.

MR. CHOATE ON LAURIER.

The Ambassador Attaches Small Importance to Premier's Speech.

London, Aug. 9.—Mr. Joseph H. Choate, United States Ambassador, was interviewed by a newspaper representative in regard to the recent "War or Arbitration" speech delivered by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier. He said:

"There will be no war. It is safe to say that no amount of politics or politicians in either country would occasion war in this connection."

The Ambassador, continuing, said that the Canadian Parliament was on the eve of dissolution, and the leaders of both parties had to speak. Mr. Choate seemed to think that the latter circumstance explained Sir Wilfrid Laurier's position, and he was inclined to attach small importance to the Premier's remarks.

Mr. Choate added that the Alaska boundary negotiations were progressing, "but," he explained, "they are always slow, and I can say nothing at present as to their status."

Negro Lynched Near the Cepital.

Alexandria, Va., Aug. 9.—Daniel W. Thompson, colored, twenty years of age, was lynched here for attempting an assault upon Lillian Clarke, the eight-year-old daughter of Edward Clarke, residing on Patrick street. The police made a determined effort to prevent the mob, which gathered around the jail from obtaining possession of the prisoner, but were unsuccessful. The door was broken in, and during the scuffle which ensued Chief of Police Webster was hurt. The prisoner was found in the cellar of the building and brought out, but the report became current that he was not the man and he was released. He had gone but a short distance, however, when the mob concluded that Thompson was the man they were looking for and after a short chase he was captured and strung up to an electric light pole.

Robbed, Perhaps Murdered.

Passaic, N. J., Aug. 9.—John Mackie, a milkman living in Hasbrouck Heights, was assaulted and robbed in Lodi by a stranger whose acquaintance he formed in a saloon. He has small chances of recovery. Mackie visited Lodi and in a saloon formed the acquaintance of a man whose identity is not known. They had a number of drinks together, and in paying for them Mackie displayed some money. The two men left together and walked toward the woods. An hour afterward Mackie was found by the roadside in a semi-conscious condition. He recovered long enough to say that the stranger struck him with a hatchet and robbed him of $53 in money and what other valuables he had.

Whitney Did Not See Dewey.

New York, Aug. 9.—William C. Whitney, who went to Europe rather unexpectedly a month ago, arrived here aboard the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. Mr. Whitney said that there was no foundation for the story that he had gone abroad to talk to Admiral Dewey about accepting a nomination for the Presidency from the Democratic party. He had not seen Admiral Dewey, he declared, and went for no other purpose than to get rest and quiet. The former Secretary of the Navy stated that he saw Richard Croker for a few moments at Newmarket, but they did not talk politics.

Will Demand Heavy Indemnity.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—An unusually heavy indemnity will be demanded by the Italian Government for the lynching in Tallula Parish, Louisiana. This will undoubtedly be a consequence of the report of the affair which has been made by Marquis Romano, secretary to the Embassy, to his present chief, Count Vivini, the Charge d'Affaires. This report is of the very greatest importance, as it affords the government at Rome an opportunity to make of this case another of the character of that of the Mafia lynching in New Orleans.

Ex-Governor W. Y. Atkinson Dead.

Newman, Ga., Aug. 9.—Ex-Governor W. Y. Atkinson died here after an illness of about ten days, from typhoid fever. Last Saturday morning the physicians gave up hope of his recovery. Atkinson served two terms as Governor of Georgia, immediately preceding the present incumbent.

Negro to Hang For Robbery.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 9.—Public sentiment in Pulaski was so strong against Noah Finley, a negro highway robber, that he was sentenced to die on September 15. The specific offense with which he was charged was the robbing of Major James Darst, an ex-member of the Legislature, on Aug. 2.

Used Wireless Telegraphy.

Torquay, Eng., Aug. 9.—The British battleship Sans Pareil, while returning from the manoeuvres, sank a full rigged ship off the Lizard. One man was drowned. The warship communicated the news to the other ships of the fleet by wireless telegrapy.

Ex-Speaker Reed Sails For Home.

London, Aug. 9.—The Hon. Thomas B. Reed, ex-Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, sailed for New York on board the American line steamship St. Paul to-day.

Birds and Bills.

"There is something wrong with this bill," said the young married man to the milliner who has imported Parisian prices as well as styles.

"It is correct in every item," after looking it over.

"Eight dollars for that bird, no bigger than my fist?"

"Yes, sir, and cheap at that."

"All right, madam, I'll settle, but it's robbery. We had our first anniversary yesterday and I bought a ten pound turkey for $1.25."—Detroit Free Press.

Well Qualified.

"Mr. Blankson," said the lawyer, turning to the man who had been drawn as a juror, this is a case in which—by the way, Mr. Blankson, have you ever been a witness before an investigating committee?"

"Yes, sir."

"We'll take him, Your Honor. He doesn't know anything about this case—or anything else."—Chicago Tribune.

To the Sick.

Indisputable Facts.

Disease, fermentation and decay are caused by microbes and germ life; when these organic pests are destroyed there can be no sickness.

Antiseptics are so called because they destroy microbes; surgeons always use antiseptics in performing dangerous operations.

Carbolic acid is a common antiseptic, but is poisonous if taken into the system strong enough to destroy the germs of disease.

Radam's Microbe Killer, composed of GASES, is an antiseptic, perfectly harmless to the human body, but doubly powerful in destroying disease if faithfully applied. Physicians frequently use Microbe Killer in treating Cancers, and recommend it for Catarrh, Tuberculosis, etc.; others know it to be invaluable in Bright's Disease and Bladder Troubles.

Fermentation of food in the stomach causes Dyspepsia, Sourness, etc.; Radam's Microbe Killer destroys the CAUSE and sweetens the stomach.

Impoverished blood is the nome of germ life; when pure it is the fountain of life, the source of all health and vigor.

Radam's Microbe Killer is the only rational remedy for all diseases; its antiseptic power eradicates every disease from the human body.

These facts are incontrovertible, and we invite the fullest investigation by all interested people, professional or otherwise.

We would like to mail you, absolutely free, a book containing testimonials and advice.

APPEALS TO THE POWERS

Aguinaldo Asks That "Filipino Independence be Recognized.

HIS APPEAL TO CONSULS.

The Extraordinary Document is Received by all the Foreign Representatives at Manila.

Filipinos Use the Old Argument of Conquered Sovereignty of Islands From Spain—Consuls Are Asked to Forward Documents to Their Home Governments.

Manila, Aug. 9.—Aguinaldo has appealed to the Powers for recognition of "Filipino independence," in a document dated from Tarlac, and signed by Buencamino.

It has been received by all the foreign Consuls in Manila, with the request that they forward it to their respective governments.

The Filipnos use their old argument, that they had conquered the sovereignty of these islands from Spain before the signing of the treaty of Paris and, therefore, that Spain was in no position to cede them to the United States. They argue that the possession of 7,000 Spanish prisoners, captured, with their arms, fighting against the Filipinos, "is eloquent proof of the nullity of Spanish sovereignty, as when they surrendered Spain's hold was irrevocably lost."

The document then says:

"Replying to the Spanish Commission's requests to release the prisoners because Spain no longer has political interests in the islands, we asked for a treaty of peace and friendship between Spain and the Filipinos, whereby the prisoners would be released.

"But the Commissioners refused, because it would mean recognition of our independence. This is equivalent to saying that the prisoners must stay in our hands indefinitely, because their possession is our most efficacious method to adjust our account with Spain and obtain from her recognition of our independence."

The Filipinos claim that they conquered all the country except Manila, and that they co-operated in securing the latter's capitulation surrounding it at the cost of thousands of lives.

They also claim they conquered the country unassisted, except for sixty guns that Admiral Dewey gave Aguinaldo, and that Admiral Dewey and the British and Belgian Consuls recognized the Filipinos' sovereignty by asking for passes to visit the country.

They repeat the claim that they have letters from American Consuls and Generals recognizing their sovereignty and promising that the Americans would recognize their independence, "which was at the disposition of the powers."

The Filipinos attempt to make capital of the statement that Admiral Dewey had such confidence that Aguinaldo would observe and fulfill the rules of war that he gave him a hundred Spanish prisoners which the American Navy had captured.

Finally, the Filipinos appeal to the powers to influence Washington to bring to a termination "the unjust war, which is devastating the country."

The authorities at Madrid have ordered the Spanish Commissioners not to return to Tarlac and it is reported that two special Commissioners, Senores Capriles and Cuerbo, are on their way here from Spain to conduct Spanish prisoners.

the negotiations for the release of

A Mistaken Attack.

Manila, Aug. 9.—The United States gunboat Napidan shelled Paete, on the lake, near Santa Cruz.

The town was full of people who had been encouraged to return after Gen. Lawton's expedition, having been assured that they would not be molested if they peaceably attended to their business.

Lieut. Copp, who was in command of the Napidan, heard that the natives had re-occupied the town and, steaming close in, opened fire with his six-pounders without warning.

The people, seeing the boat approaching, fled to the hills in a terrified condition, and with barely time to escape. One child was killed and many buildings were damaged.

The authorities express great regret on account of the incident.

After the taking of Calamba by the Americans, Gen. Lawton ordered that Capt. Otis, of the Washington Regiment, be relieved of his command and placed under arrest, on account of the slowness and seeming reluctance of the companies under his command in obeying the order to disembark from the cascoes and wade through the marshes under fire.

The men say that a majority of them have been sick and unfit for duty and had been given to understand that they would not be asked to do any more fighting.

Report From Gen. Otis.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The following cable has been received from Gen. Otis:

"Manila, Aug. 8.

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Three days' typhoon, rendering work on bay impossible, passed 6th instant. Transport Pennsylvania left Iloilo, Cebu, Jolo; Sheridan with Minnesotas, South Dakotas and discharged men for San Francisco 11th instant. Valencia, Zealandia, when coaled, requiring ten days good weather, leave with Montanas and discharged men.

"Suggest portion transports coal at Nagasaki, both coming and returning, expedite business here, where facilities for loading and unloading vessels primitive. "OTIS."

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The new asphalt paving combination has secured complete control of the Western Paving and Supply Company, of which Volney W. Foster was the financial head. Mr. Foster retires from business and the new asphalt company finds itself strongly intrenched in Chicago. The main backer of the enterprise is the Barber Asphalt Paving Company, of Chicago and New York.

The capital of the new trust is placed at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, and it is the belief of Chicago asphalt firms not yet taken into the organization that the basis on which it is being formed is the same as the one upon which the Standard Oil Company rests.

This plan is to have one great central company control all of the asphalt paving in the country, with branches in every city of importance, which will control the local work, but act only under the direction of the head.

The Investigator Returns.

New Orleans, Aug. 9.—Marquis Camillo de Romano has left for Washington. He was sent as envoy extraordinary from the Italian embassy there to investigate the lynching of the five Italians at Tallulah. Marquis Romano goes back with many papers and statements. He took considerable evidence in Vicksburg as to the citizenship of the five men, and according to his evidence they were all Italian subjects. When he visited Gov. Foster, however, and found in the executive mansion the court documents from Madison parish showing when and where the three Di Fatta brothers were naturalized and had taken oath of allegiance to the United States, the Marquis was not so sure about his evidence gathered in Vicksburg. The report of the special envoy and that of Gov. Foster clash at nearly every point.

Coming to Commercial Congress.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The State Department is informed that the delegates appointed by the Governments of the colonies of Victoria, Queensland, New Zealand and South Australia, to represent them at the International Commerical Congress at Philadelphia in October are: Sir Andrew Clark (Victoria), Miss Clark, his daughter; Miss Reeve, his niece; Mr. Berry, his secretary; Sir Horace Tozer (Queensland), Lady Tozer; Hon. W. P. Reeves (New Zealand), Mrs. Reeves; Hon. J. A. Cockburn (South Australia).

The Sun Strike Still On.

New York, Aug. 9.—Typographical Union No. 6 has issued a bulletin that the strike of the printers, pressmen and stereotypers who quit work on the "Sun" three days ago is still on. At the "Sun" office it was declared that a number of stereotypers had returned to work. This statement was not denied by the officers of "Big Six." They intimated that the men resumed work for the purpose of inducing the workers in the composing rooms to join the ranks of the strikers.

Edward D. Heidler Hanged.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 9.—Edwin D. Heidler was hanged here for the murder of his brother-in-law, Levi Kreidler. Heidler and Kreidler lived on neighboring farms near Erie. They quarreled over the settlement of an estate, and Heidler shot Kreidler down in a field. He was arrested, but broke jail. Eight months later he was recaptured in Anderson, Ind.

Is Laughing Himself to Death.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Julius Mattas is laughing to death in the County Hospital. Mattas began to laugh violently at his home, No. 513 West Eighteenth street, Monday night. He laughed so long and so violently that his friends had him taken to the hospital. He is apparently unconscious, but still laughing. Physicians are unable to control the fit.

Gold Found in Digging a Well.

Webster, Mass., Aug. 9.—Charles E. Darling, a farmer of Dudley, has struck gold in digging a well on his farm. The auriferous earth taken out assayed $146 to the ton. A multitude of prospectors are exploring farms adjacent to Darling's. The lucky farmer will form a corporation to develop his mine.

Bishop Denounces a Fair.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 9.—Bishop Maes has denounced the street fair that is being organized in Covington for charity. He objects to the public marriages that have been arranged and declares that the Sisters of Charity shall not accept any of the money made on such an affair.

Mount Vernon Boy Missing.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Aug. 9.—David M. Cooper, 17 years of age who lived with his parents at 123 Monroe street, has been missing since Saturday night. Cooper was employed in the office of the Martens Estate. He left his place of employmnet about four o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Mayor Jones at Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 9.—All of the troops on strike duty here have marched away, leaving the police in control. Mayor Jones of Toledo spoke on "Municipal Owhership the Final Remedy for Strikes" at the Union street cabmen's picnic this afternoon.

Tevis Estate Goes to Mrs. Tevis.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 9.—The will of Lloyd Tevis, who died July 26, has been filed for probate by Susan G. Tevis, widow of the deceased. The entire estate, believed to be worth more than $15,000,000, is bequeathed to Mrs. Tevis.

Big Increase of Capital.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 9.—The New Jersey Electric Vehicle Transportation Company has filed a certificate with the Secretary of State of an increase of capital, from $100,000 to $1,250,000.

Our Men See Plymouth Yards.

Plymouth, Eng., Aug. 9.—The officers and men of the United States training ship Alliance, from New London, Conn., July 3, which has arrived here, made a tour of inspection of the dockyard.

SOME SPONGE ON THE DOCTOR.

Doctors nowadays give away medicine much more generally than in former years, and the manufacturing chemists who supply compressed tablets report of late numerous orders and applications from physicians for a tablet that shall be "equivalent to a Ripans Tabule." There is really little reason why a physician should buy an imitation when the genuine Ripans Tabules can be had on just about as good terms, and there is nothing about them to enable a patient to recognize them. The Ripans Tabules look just like any other tablet of the same size and color, and the genuine are only to be recognized with certainty by the universally good results that follow their use. The Ripans Chemical Co. supply their product to the profession on specially favorable terms, because it is for their advantage that every doctor shall become so familiar with the merits of Ripans Tabules that he will be quite as willing a patient shall supply his needs at the drug store as to sponge on his physician, and thus get them for nothing.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York, or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of grocers, general storekeepers, news agents, and at liquor stores and barber shops

MORE KLONDIKE GOLD

The Steamer Rosalie Brought About $3,000,000.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 9.—The steamer Rosalie, with 150 passengers, brings about $3,000,000 in gold.

According to the estimate of Canadian Gold Commissioner Ogilvie, the output of the Klondike mines this year will be $40,000,000.

Perils of the Klondike.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 9.—According to arrivals by the steamer Rosalie, John F. Robertson and a party of eleven prospectors, who set out from Dawson City a year ago to prospect along the Porcupine River, returned to the Klondike in an emaciated condition on July 22.

The Robertson party started for the scene of reported findings, but their guide was drowned and they failed to find a trace of the dead man's Eldorado. They were finally taken on board a whaler, where they spent the winter.

The Scott-Mason party, of Chicago, had been found on the Arctic shores by the whalers a short time before the Robertson party were picked up, and after being housed and fed for a month they had left, intending to make a short prospecting tour and return. They had not returned, however, and it was feared they have perished.

No Kipling in Their Library.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 9.—Rudyrad Kipling has been boycotted by the Sunday School of the First Methodist Church of Crawfordsville. Some time ago the Sunday School purchased a number of new books for its library from Methodist publishers of Cincinnati, and as these books came from what was regarded as the fountainhead of pure literature, little attention was paid to several volumes that were thrown in for good measure. Among these was Kipling's "The Dreams of the Fore and Aft," which finally came in to the family of a man who declared that it was "fairly reeking with profanity and the most outrageous slang." Fortifying himself with numerous quotations he went before the Sunday School authorities and as a result Kiplings' books were thrown out of the library.

Officer Accidentally Killed in Court

Newark, N. J., Aug. 9.—Policeman Daniel Learey, aged 34 years, of No. 291 Warren street, accidently shot and killed himself in the clerk's room of the First Criminal Court. Learey was seated in a chair on a raised platform. The hind legs of the chair slid off the platform, throwing Learey backward and causing the discharge of his revolver, which he carried in his right hip pocket. The bullet entered his body above the hip on the right side and passed through the intestines. He leaves a widow and three children. He had been on the Newark police force for nine years and had a good record.

Aid For the Enemy?

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—The City of Peking, which has sailed for Hong Kong by way of Honolulu and Yokohama, took among her cargo 321,440 pounds of shot, the first shipment of the kind ever made to Japan. In addition there was 107,650 pounds of pig lead and 54,750 pounds of sheet lead. Just to what use this rather unusual shipment is to be put is not known, but suggestions have been made that it may be intended to smuggle it into Manila for the use of Aguinaldo and his army.

Baker Family Brought North.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 9.—Lillian Clayton Jewett and the Baker family has arrived in Providence from New York. There was no demonstration at the station. Later there was a well-attended massmeeting, where speeches were made and $72 collected. Four watches and one pocketbook were stolen. At the end of the meeting Lillian Clayton Jewett Anti-lynching Association No. 2 was formed.

Councilman Saved Her Life.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 9.—Councilman James A. Nolan, of Philadelphia, has saved the life of a Philadelphia beauty, Miss Annabelle E. Ryan. A breaker carried her to sea and her brother William became exhausted trying to bring her to shore. Nolan swam out and got her to the shore just as she was losing consciousness.

Invitations to Admiral Dewey.

Boston, Aug. 9.—N. L. Shelden, President of the Norwich University Alumni Association of Boston, has received from Admiral Dewey a conditional acceptance of his invitation to be the guest of the Association. He says he hopes he will be able to break bread with his fellow alumni in October in Boston.

Can't Go to Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Ex-Senator Foley President of the village of Saratoga, has just received from Admiral Dewey a message in which he states that he will be unable to visit Saratoga this year, owing to his arrival in the United States after the close of the Saratoga season.

John R. McLean's Success.

Toledo, Aug. 9.—The result of the Democratic primaries indicate that John R. McLean has secured the Lucas County delegation to the State convention. In contested precincts Mr. McLean secured all delegates.

Quarantine Will Be Lifted Soon.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 9.—One more new case of yellow fever was found at the Soldiers' Home, but the worst is over, and it will not be necessary to maintain the quarantine many days longer.

Samoan Commissioners Coming.

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—The American and German members of the Samoan Commission, Bartlet Tripp and Baron von Sternberg, who arrived here Sunday, left for Washington last night.

The American Jockey Wins.

London, Aug. 9.—Martin, the American jockey, won the Sufeal Plate handicap, on Miss Primrose, at Birmingham. Escurial was second and Winsome Lad was third in a field of seven.

WILL SEE AMERICAN FLAG

The Stars and Stripes Will Be Shown at All the Haytian Ports.

LONGNECKER WILL ACT

The Machias to Make the Circuit of the Island, Including Both of the Republics.

The Appearance of the Flag Expected to Act as a Significant Warning to Revolutionists—Gen. Miles is Deprived of Jurisdiction Over Inspector General's Office.

Washington, Aug. 9.—In conversation with a newspaper representative, a gentleman closely identified with the War Department said that complications that had lately arisen in which General Miles is personally interested, would call for the settlement of a serious controversy when Secretary Root returns to Washington.

By a change made by Secretary Alger before his retirement, the Inspector-General's Department was to be placed exclusively in the control of the Secretary of War, General Miles being relieved of all jurisdiction over it. In response to protests by General Miles, Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn determined to insert in the order a phrase giving General Miles equal authority with the Secretary over the department.

Acting Secretary Meiklejohn said that this change was under consideration. Yesterday, however, Acting-Secretary Meiklejohn gave out the latest proof of the proposed regulations. It failed to confer any authority on General Miles, but specifically placed the Inspector-General's department exclusively under the Secretary of War. The order in this form is now being printed for distribution.

General Miles will protest to Secretary Root when he returns to Washington. It is pointed out by army officers that as the Major-General commanding is directly responsible for the discipline of the army he should have control jointly with the Secretary of War over inspections that affect the discipline. The explanation of the War Department is that it would be incongruous to give him the authority he asks and retain the opening paragraph of the regulations which says that the Inspector-General's department is under the Secretary of War and the Inspector General's office is a bureau of the War Department.

American Flag to be Shown.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The appearance of the Machias at San Pedro de Macoris, at the eastern end of Santo Domingo, is the first move on the programme laid down by Captain Longnecker, of the New Orleans, who, as senior officer, is in command of the squadron.

His intention has not been officially reported to the Navy Department, but it is understood there that the Machias is to proceed from port to port until she has passed entirely around the island, including both Santo Domingo and Hayti. An American warship has not been seen in some of these ports in years, and the appearance of the flag is expected to act as a significant warning to revolutionists.

Captain Longnecker has been notified by the department of the approach of a hurricane, and he is expected to put to sea to weather it. There is no harbor at Santo Domingo in which a cruiser so large as the New Orleans can enter, and under the most favorable conditions that ship is compelled to lay off the coast.

Will Push War, Says Mr. Root.

Plattsburg, Aug. 9.—The war in the Philippines is to be prosecuted with a vigor that ought to result in a speedy cessation of hostilities there. Secretary of War Root spoke for the first time on his plans for putting down the rebellion. It was just after he had said goodby to the President and was preparing to take the train for Washington.

"Will the war in the Philippines be prosecuted vigorously from now on?" was asked.

Mr. Root turned on his heel and replied quick as a flash: "Yes, sir; the war in the Philippines from now on will be prosecuted with all possible energy. All the men, all the arms and all the supplies necessary to end the trouble in the islands will be furnished at the earliest possible moment."

"How large a force will be at the disposal of the commanding general there?" was asked.

"There will be 50,000 men there ready for active service at the close of the rainy season, about the last of October," replied the Secretary; "and more will be sent there if necessary."

Tenth Pennsylvania's Field Return.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Gen. Shafter has telegraphed the following field return of the 10th Pennsylvania regiment:

"General field return, Tenth Pennsylvania: Total commisioned, 31; promoted from the ranks, 5 resigned, 6; died of disease, 1; remaining to be mustered out, 33. Total enlisted, 876; discharged, 106; killed and died of wounds, 15; died of disease, 6; transferred, 16; remaining to be mustered out, 733.

Some Naval Promotions.

Washington, Aug. Aug. 9.—The following naval officers have been promoted to the grades following their names:

T. A. Barryhill, surgeon; J. R. Waggoner, and T. H. Streets, medical inspectors; E. P. Stone, A. E. Culver, C. A. Gove, D. W. Coffman, D. P. Perkins, H. T. Mayo, W. I. Chambers, W. McLean, and J. T. Newton, lieutenant-commanders, and J. S. Ogden, G. P. Howe and G. Cowie, commanders.

Attorney-General Griggs to Go.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Attorney-General Griggs and his family expect to join the President and Mrs. McKinley at Lake Champlain about August 15.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

Summer Postal Service.

Every summer brings complaints from subscribers of newspapers in the vicinity of New York. The subscribers go away on their summer vacations and want their home papers to follow them. When there is delay and irregularity in the arrival of these papers the mailing departments of the papers are generally blamed by the unthinking ones. The Daily Press has passed through the same experience although complaints, this summer, have been very infrequent.

The trouble is not in the office of The Daily Press or any of the other suburban dailies but in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred in the postoffice at New York.

Past experience has taught the circulation department of The Daily Press to make every effort to further the rapid forwarding of the papers. They leave the Press office every afternoon with great regularity. Every paper is plainly addressed. They are despatched from the Plainfield postoffice in excellent time. Mail that does not have to go through New York postoffice reaches its destination in remarkably quick time. As far away as Lake Hopatcong the Daily Press arrives the night of publication.

Papers addressed to postoffices in the northern and eastern parts of the country go to New York first, and are there sorted and forwarded. It is there that most of the delay and trouble arises. The New York office has not enough hands to keep up with the work, especially in the summer resort season. As letters receive the first attention, it often happens that the papers are piled up for several days before being forwarded. These delays are exasperating, but cannot be overcome.

The Daily Press is happy to say, however, that there have been but very few complaints of that nature this season, in which it is fortunate above many of its contemporaries.

THE TENNESSEE FIDDLERS' TOURNAMENT.

It is said that Tennessee loves a fiddler. Bob Taylor made the violin a factor in one of his campaigns for governor. He was elected. In the western end of the state a fiddlers' tournament is held once a year. This year the tournament was held at Dyersburg. The winners are pictured in this illustration, made from a photograph.

An Unfair Burden.

The last Legislature of the State of New Jersey passed a law relieving all banks in the State from taxation on their real estate holdings. It is estimated that this will take from the list of assessed valuation in this State from $300,000 to $500,000.

This certainly is not in the interest of the whole people—and prompts the inquiry who lobbied it through? It is manifestly unfair and unjust to all other holders of real estate upon whom it must result in an unfair burden.

The City Fathers apparently forgot about the disgraceful condition of the city jail when they met Monday evening. If they were called to visit it every day as City Judge Runyon is, perhaps they might appreciate the immediate necessity of a change.

The issue of the Westfield Republican that should have appeared last Saturday is one of those things that might have been. The same advice holds good to Editor Morse as is applicable to a lover that hereafter he do his own pressing.

The Arlington avenue extension of the lines of the Plainfield Street Railway Company will be granted on the same terms as was the Scotch Plains extension. They are good, but might have been better had the Common Council insisted.

The question of how Jersey stands in her choice for the next Democratic nominee for President is just as unsettled as it was before the Democratic State committee met at Asbury Park.

An asphalt trust is rapidly gaining ground. It may be that Plainfield will feel the effects when the time comes to make contracts for the permanent pavements here.

Assemblyman Robert Houston's chances of being the Republican nominee for sheriff in Union county grows fainter every day. Now ex Mayor Rankin has deserted him.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Automobiles will be a good thing when they come into general use—that is, if they come into general use. But there will have to be one radical improvement made in them before they can take the place of a horse with some kinds of drivers. They will have to be arranged with some kind of cruel looking bit that can be pulled and jerked and see-sawed from side to side. Something will also have to be arranged to receive the cuts and slashes of rawhide and whalebone whips; something that will seem to start at every lash, and that will seem to bleed under the cruel throngs. The real, live, sensitive horse does not need such treatment, but he gets it from a certain class of handlers and drivers, and no automobile will ever become popular with this class of men unless it has on it an articial jaw that can be yanked off with bit and lines, or an artificial rump that can be slashed with the whip all the time. The automobile will not need these attachments, but the human brutes who abuse horses will doubtless insist upon them. Presumably it will be just as easy to swear at an automobile as at a horse, so that no special contrivance will be needed to meet this practice of brutal drivers.—Elizabeth Journal.

The scarlet coats of golf players are a new trial to railroad engineers, if we are to believe an editorial in the Jersey City Journal. It is said that the red-coated golf players have misled so many railroad engineers and caused them to slow down, under the impression that the red coat was a danger flag, that the Jersey Central officials have sent out a general request for golf players to keep away from the tracks. One of the Royal Blue trains on that road came to a stop when an engineer saw a red coat in the distance. Every morning during the summer some of these red-coated players ride to the stations along the road and the company has had to give them orders to keep away. It does not appear as yet that the motormen on the Bound Brook line of the Brunswick Traction Company have been subjected to the same unfortunate experience as the engineers in New Jersey Central; and the Pennsylvania Railroad authorities are yet to be heard from as to the golf links at Colonia and Metuchen.—New Brunswick Times.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A citizen of Rahway writes to the Press calling attention to the glaring error made by the News in its introduction to a story stolen from the Elizabeth Journal about Rahway in the Revolution. The story tells of the recent celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Spanktown, when in truth, it was observed in no way, whatever and passed without notice except for the article in the Journal which was subsequently stolen by the News and "corrected" in its usual blundering fashion.

* * * * *

A rather peculiar state of affairs has come to pass. It is a fact that golf trousers are now worn but very little to play golf in. They appeared in America first with the taking up of golf but now the experts and players who are particularly anxious to be attired "just right" have discarded them. Instead the long trousers of light colored flannel are largely worn. White ducks are also utilized. The wheelmen seem to have pretty generally appropriated the golf trousers. At the summer resorts, for sailing or tramping, the golf trousers prevail.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Reniek Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

AMERICAN STEAM LAUNDRY,

122 East Front Street.

By our new process of ironing we are enabled to give you a perfect domestic finish, and to launder turn down collars without breaking them. Call and see how we do it; you are welcome to inspect our plant at all times; no mystery about our work.

Hand work on all shirt waists, cost a little more, but perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

STORE NEWS AT Woodhull & Martin's.

This is the so called "Dull Season" and news of startling character are just a little scarce. We have been telling you from day to day of the low prices we are making on all Summer Goods, and you may be tired of the subject, nevertheless the closing out sales are of paramount interest to those who find it neccessary to make a dollar go as far as possible. Shirt Waists, for instance, may be had for about ½ half the price of a month ago. Styles the best, and goods in perfect condition. Many are buying wash goods at the sadly cut prices, with the view of using them next season. Wise people they are too. Pique Skirts, Crash Skirts, Lawn Dressing Sacks, etc., are being lamentably sacrificed, but our policy is no goods to be carried over, and we take our medicine without campaint.

ABOUT RIBBONS.

We seldom mention our Ribbons because our sales in this department are constantly growing, still in justice to the public in general we should like to say that we sell only good Ribbons, and carry regular lines so that shades may be matched perfectly from time to time, a wonderful convenience as may of our customers can testify. Narrow Velvet Ribbons in both Satin Back and Linen Back.

Our Gent's Furnishing Department is a store in itself, and an important adjunct to an establishment like ours. It is an established fact that Department Stores can and do undersell Specialty Stores, and it does seem especially true of Gent's Furnishings.

.... DOWN STAIRS ....

Our Basement is a panorama of Furniture, Bedding and Housefurnishing goods of every kind Not a day pasess but new goods are placed on Sale and others are closed out. The constant change in goods and arrangement give the place peculiar interest and charm and many who visit it from curiosity become permanent customers.

No Cut Prices on Trunks.

Nor will there be. We are selling good trunks cheaper than other people, and they are cheap enough.

A good trunk is something to be proud of, and a source of great comfort to those who have occasion to travel by land or sea.

Brass trimmed, Leather bound, Protected corners, Linen lined with all the modern conveniences, we believe them to be superior in durability, finish and appearance. Some cute little Steamer Trunks that are literally "as handy as a pocket in a shirt."

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 9—At Monday evening's meeting of the Council a remonstrance was presented to the board from the citizens' committee with reference to the Watchung Water Company, which it was understood was about to supply the borough with water from Green brook. W. J. Winges, chairman of the citizens' committee, was the instigator of the remonstrance. In view of the fact that the Watchung Water Company has not offered to turn over to the borough the water supply contracted for by the citizens, some of the members expressed the opinion that the action of the citizens' committee was rather premature. The remonstrance was received and referred to the proper committee. As the borough has not yet been offered any water by the Watchung Water Company and the borough has not therefore accepted the water there is no financial obligation incurred and the borough is in no sense liable for the acts of the water company in respect to the water question.

At Monday evening's meeting of the Common Council a petition was received for flagging the east side of Washington avenue and the old New Market road, from the east side to the borough line. H. C. Gaskill was appointed to attend the annual tax sale August 18th. Sidewalk ordinances with reference to Washington avenue and the old New Market road were advanced to the third reading. A communication was received from Councilman Wilcox with reference to the claim that the Brunswick Traction Company was violating the provisions of section 22 of the borough ordinance, in that the company was charging full fare for children under five years of age. The matter was referred to the proper committee for investigation. The street committee recommended that a new culvert be constructed in front of the residence of Mrs. Kuldoshes on Front street.

Mrs. Harry Swackhamer and daughter Helen have been spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. John Fenner, of Pluckamin.

The Merrill families and those of the Daytons will have a family reunion at Chimney Rock next Saturday.

Mayor and Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer have been entertaining Mrs. John Wherley, of Somerville.

Mrs. A. F. Sampson and Mrs. Bogardus have been visiting friends in New York city.

The next meeting of the Common Council will be held next Monday evening.

Master Sutton, a son of S.C. Sutton, is visiting friends in Riverton for a week.

Mrs. Paxton VanArsdale is visiting in Asbury Park for two weeks.

PLAINS AND FA

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 9—W. S. Emery has received the silver cup he has offered as first prize for the 15 mile road race that he is arranging for the 19th inst. over the Mountain avenue course. Mr. Emery intends to have the cup on exhibition in Plainfield in a few days.

John Thys has an interesting relic in the shape of a 22 cannon ball which he recently found in the mountains. It is said to be a relic of the Revolutionary War as Washington and his army is said to have passed through the valley while on their way from Morristown to Trenton. Mr. Thys prizes the relic very highly on account of the historic part.

Rev. J. S. Braker has returned from a visit with Philadelphia friends. Mr. Braker occupied the pulpit Sunday morning and evening of the Temple Baptist church, a former charge.

Mrs. Charles Kramer, who was seriously kicked by a stray horse last week, is recovering very nicely from her injuries. But it will be sometime before she is entirely well.

The young son of Mrs. George Rockwell, of Washington Valley, is recovering from a serious illness.

The old familiar sound of Seeley's whistle is heard again after a silence of several months.

Master Gene Paff has returned from a two weeks' visit with his grandparents in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Albert Darby was the guest of her mother, Mrs. John R. Marsh, yesterday.

The Board of Education held a special meeting in the school parlor last evening.

Mrs. Henry Meyers has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 9—John Platt, who has been in Europe for several months, has returned to his home in Westfield. Mr. Platt spent a great deal of time at the shipyards of John I. Thorneycraft & Company at Chiswick, where the Shamrock was built, and was also present at the launching of that craft. Mr. Platt says that the Shamrock is the best boat that has been made in England, and will be manned by the pick of British seamen, and will without a doubt give a good account of herself in the American waters, but still Mr. Platt says that the American boat will win.

Fourth of July Charles Embleton, of this town, won a fifteen-mile road race which was run under the auspices of the Fourth of July celebration committee. Recently Embleton was offered two bicycles, worth about $12 a piece, when two $75 racing wheels were advertised as the prizes. Embleton winning the time prize and the first prize. Unless he receives the wheels advertised in a short time Embleton will sue the committee for them.

Monday afternoon a wheelman going at a fast clip ran into a dog near the home of Mayor Cory, of Mountain side, and was thrown from his bicycle. Althoug pretty badly hurt he got up and walked off, trundling his badly-broken wheel after him. He said, that his name was Clark, but would not say where he lived.

Public bulletin boards have been placed in various parts of the town by the Womans' Club, and it is requested that all bills be posted on the same in preference to the trees, as heretofore.

The Central Railroad Company has sent to Westfield large sprinkling pots, and will have the plank crossings at Central avenue and Broad street sprinkled with oil to lay the dust.

Mrs. Caleb Dickenson, of Newark, is visiting Plainfield relatives and friends.

Rev. Father Murphy, of Cranford, was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Mr. and Mrs. Elias Allen, of Somerset street, expect to leave this week for Delevan, Ill., to visit relatives.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Zufolge des dieser Tage erschienenen 28. Jahresberichtes der hiesigen höheren Handelsschule wurde die Anstalt im laufenden Semester von 99 Schülern besucht, die im letzten Herbst neu eingerichtete Oberklasse von 22 Schülern.

Giengen. Als dieser Tage in der Nähe von hier ein Gesellschaftswagen mit Mitgliedern des Gesangvereins Liedertafel eine Bahnkreuzung passirte, kam ein Zug, den der Kutscher des Wagens nicht bemerkt hatte, herangebraust und fuhr mitten in den Wagen hinein. Die Wirkung war eine furchtbare. Sämmtliche Insassen des Wagens wälzten sich stöhnend in ihrem Blute am Boden. Der Wagen war vollständig zertrümmert und eine weite Strecke fortgeschleudert worden. Auf der Stelle getödtet wurden der Schreiner Rupp, der Schuhmacher Josenhaus, der Kupferschmied Bandel und die Kutscher Georg Ritter und Theodor Haering. Die Schuld an dem Unfall trägt der an der Kreuzung stationirte Bahnwärter, welcher, von der herrschenden Hitze übermannt, eingeschlafen war und die Schutzbarrieren offenstehen ließ, trotzdem der herannahende Zug wie üblich signalisirt wurde.

Heilbronn. Im benachbarten Besigheim ertränkten sich in der Enz zwei brave und fleißige Mädchen im Alter von 17 Jahren. Sie waren in der dortigen Trikotfabrik beschäftigt. Die Furcht vor Strafe, weil sie in einem Garten ihres Geburtsortes Walheim Johannisbeeren entwendet hatten, trieb die Beiden in den Tod.

Schwäbisch-Hall. Unter überaus großer Betheiligung von Nah und Fern, von Hoch und Nieder nahm die Brenzfeier hier, wo der Reformator 26 Jahre lang gewirkt und die Stadt der neuen Lehre zugeführt hat, einen prächtigen Verlauf. Stadtpfarrer Gerok hielt die Festrede. Nachher zog man in großem Zuge zum Bauplatz, um den Grundstein zum neuen Brenzhaus zu legen. Ein Festmahl beschloß den schönen Tag.

Tübingen. Dem Musikdirektor an der Universität, Dr. Kaufmann, den vor mehreren Jahren schon die philosophische Fakultät zum Ehrendoktor ernannt hatte, wurde der Titel und Rang eines außerordentlichen Universitätsprofessors verliehen. Die Vorlesungen Kaufmanns über Musikgeschichte erfreuen sich eines regen Besuches.

Ulm. Ein Soldat des Infanterie-Regiments Nr. 127, der Nachts als Wachtposten von der Ronde auf Fort Kuhberg schlafend angetroffen wurde, erschoß sich aus Furcht vor Strafe Angesichts der Ronde mit seinem Dienstgewehr.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Unter großer Betheiligung wurde dieser Tage ein Mann zu Grabe getragen, der vor 52 Jahren durch seine Energie und Entschlossenheit bei dem Hoftheaterbrande 36 Menschen das Leben gerettet hatte. Es war dies Moritz Reutlinger, der im Alter von 81 Jahren nach kurzer Krankheit gestorben ist. Er gehörte zu den Gründern der Feuerwehr, die kurz nach der furchtbaren Feuerkatastrophe in's Leben gerufen wurde. Der alte Herr war hier eine der bekanntesten Erscheinungen.

Heidelberg. In seltener Rüstigkeit und geistiger Frische beging der Geschichtsschreiber der neueren Philosophie, Professor Kuno Fischer, seinen 75. Geburtstag.

Konstanz. Im Laden des Goldarbeiters J. N. Müller wurde ein fremder, gut gekleideter Radfahrer erwischt, als er Schmuckgegenstände stahl. Er gibt an, Miri zu heißen und Gemeindesekretär in Brugg (Schweiz) zu sein. Gefunden wurden drei Damenuhren bei ihm, über deren Erwerb er sich nicht ausweisen kann.

Mannheim. Da die Bäckerinnung trotz Aufhebung des Oktrois auf Mehl und Brod die früheren Brodpreise aufrecht erhielt, wurde hier eine Brodfabrik gegründet, die kürzlich ihren Betrieb eröffnete. Die Wirkung dieser Konkurrenz war wunderbar. Noch am gleichen Tag ging die Innung mit den Brodpreisen herunter. Sie verkauft nun erste Sorte Brod zu 54 Pfennige per zwei Kilogramm und zweite Sorte Brod zu 48 Pfennige per zwei Kilogramm.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Der hier in der Kettengasse wohnende Handlungsreisende Thomas und seine Frau haben sich vergiftet. Thomas blieb sofort todt, seine Frau liegt lebensgefährlich erkrankt darnieder. Das Motiv der That soll Verzweiflung über die Nothlage sein, in welcher sich das Ehepaar befand.

Albersschweiler. Im hiesigen Gemeindewald wurde der 82jährige Chevrier aus dem Gebirgsdorfe Walscheid von einem Förster beim Wildern ertappt. Der Alte wollte sich aber nicht freiwillig ergeben, schlug das Gewehr an und drohte zu schießen. Ein gerade aus der Fabrik heimkehrender Glasarbeiter kam glücklicher Weise dem Förster zu Hilfe und der Wilderer konnte entwaffnet werden.

Selz. Hier wird die Gemahlin Kaisers Otto des Ersten, Adelheid, nächstens ein Denkmal erhalten. Das Verdienst der Kaiserin Adelheid um Selz besteht darin, daß sie sich hier am 16. Dezember 999 n. Chr. Geburt begraben ließ.

JANE ADDAMS' SUMMER SCHOOL.

Affords City Working Girls an Outing and Combines Recreation and Study.

By Annette Crawford.

One of the many activities of Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, in behalf of womankind and humanity in general is a summer school for girls at Rockford, Ills. Through the courtesy of the trustees of Rockford college the chapel and dormitories of that institution are used free of charge, and here are gathered something more than 100 happy girls—mostly Chicago girls—who work in one way or another and are all the more appreciative of the advantages of the school during the outing season.

Not for one minute is it to be imagined this school, like the thousand and one summer schools over the country, is not for intellectual labor. It is unique, on the other hand, in that it combines a small amount of mental exercise, mostly along the lines of informal nature study, with a maximum of outdoor recreation.

At the same time the two requisites of a really ideal outing—pleasure and profit—are so interwoven that it is delightfully difficult to discover where the play ends and the study begins. It is a happy medium, what is more, between the intense intellectuality of the summer student and the "unalloyed laziness" of the summer resorter.

Not only does it combine pleasure and improvement, but adds the comforting fact that the cost of the outing is merely nominal, that the free instruction on a little of everything under the shining summer sun is by as clever a lot of college girls as could be found the country over.

The social part of Miss Addams' summer school also flourishes. About every other day some special scheme is successfully carried out. One day it is a "white ball" in the gymnasium, when every one on the floor is required to dress in a white costume, and another day it is a picnic up the river, where the coffee is made over a campfire. Once in awhile the small steamer is chartered for a trip up the river or a trolley car is secured for a trip through the town. These summer pleasures are interspersed with hay rides, bicycle spins and whatever entereth into the head of the summer girl.

Not the least interesting of this summer scheme is the partly co-operative housekeeping. As the summer school is in no sense charitable, each one pays either $3 or $3.50 a week for board and a room in the dormitory. The ones who only pay $3 are required to do housework for one hour each day. This one hour may be spent in drying dishes, setting the table, shining the silver or the like.

The cooking is done by a set of servants, but each member of the summer school is expected to attend to her own room. The ones who pay the additional 50 cents are exempt only from the one hour's work. There is one part of the work, however, each girl is required to do. That is to wait on the table three days. As eight sit at each table, two wait on each table.

This housekeeping scheme seems all the more attractive when it is understood that not only are all the bills—including food, gas, laundry and servants—paid out of these small weekly sums, but usually has a surplus. Last season, for instance, there was $245 left in the exchequer, which was used to buy a new set of library furniture for the college.

Miss Addams' idea in starting the school was to have a pleasant place where the Hull House winter classes could pursue their studies.

The sojourners at the summer school, therefore, are for the most part people who take advantage of social settlement courses of study. Though many are breadwinners, including shop girls and school teachers, a considerable part are social settlement residents or persons who are particularly interested in its aims.

As Rockford college is the first institution thus to open its doors it deserves great credit, particularly as it is not heavily endowed and might consistently guard its buildings from unnecessary use. Some other colleges conduct summer schools, but it is either for pecuniary profit or to further the interests of their particular set of students. So it may be said that Rockford college stands unique in having taken the initiative in making possible such a pleasant and instructive vacation for those not connected with it.

Rockford's initiative furnishes a good example to hundreds of other women's colleges, located conveniently near large cities, which, by adopting this "open door" policy, could aid thousands of girls in having pleasant and inexpensive vacations, while giving them opportunities for study and self improvement.

RICE AT WEDDINGS.

UNIVERSAL CUSTOM WAS BORROWED FROM PEOPLE OF CHINA.

They Tell a Story of How Peach-Blossom Used it to Great Effect at Her Wedding to the Famous Sorcerer Chao.

There are very few people who know that the custom of throwing rice at weddings is one borrowed from the Chinese, and fewer still who are cognizant of the superstitious legend that makes the throwing of rice considered lucky by the Celestials. This is the story as told by a Chinaman:

"Long ago, in the days of Shang dynasty, some fifteen hundred years before the birth of Christ, there lived in the province of Shansi, in China, a most famous sorcerer called Chao. It happened one day that a Mr. P'ang came to consult the oracle, and Chao, having divined by means of the tortoise diagram, informed the trembling P'ang that he had but six days to live.

"But P'ang was not satisfied, and, in order that there should be no mistake, to the fair Peachblossom he went, a young lady who had acquired some reputation as a sorceress, and to the tender feminine heart unfolded the story of his woe. Her divinations yielded the same result as Chao's—in six days P'ang would die—unless by the exercise of her magical powers she could avert the catastrophe.

"Her efforts were successful, and on the seventh day great was Chao's astonishment, and still greater his mortification and rage, when he met P'ang taking his evening stroll and learned that there lived a greater magician than he. The story would soon get about, and unless he could put an end to his fair rival's existence his reputation would be ruined.

"And this is how Chao plotted against the life of Peachblossom. He sent a go-between to Peachblossom's parents to inquire if their daughter was still unmarried, and, receiving a reply in the affirmative he befooled the simple parents into believing that he had a son who was seeking a wife, and ultimately he induced them to engage Peachblossom to him in marriage. The marriage cards were duly interchanged, but the crafty Chao had chosen the most unlucky day he could select for the wedding—the day when the 'Golden Peasant' was in the ascendant. Surely, as the bride entered the red chair, the spirit bird would destroy her with powerful beak!

"But the wise Peachblossom knew all these things and feared not. 'I will go,' she said; 'I will fight and defeat him.' When the wedding morning she gave directions to have rice thrown out at the door, which the spirit bird, seeing, made haste to devour, and while his attention was thus occupied, Peachblossom stepped into the bridal chair and passed on her way unharmed."

And now the ingenuous reader knows why he throws rice after the bride; at least, that is how the Chinese explain the custom.

sailor collars and revers of Renaissance lace, in addition to half a dozen painted china buttons. The sleeves are of Renaissance lace.

Poor Children of the Rich.

Childhood at Newport is in a bad way, to judge from the accounts of the boys' and girls' idea of amusement. "Their main diversion," says an observer, "consists of entertaining each other at dinner and luncheon, an absurd custom introduced within a few years. When the truth is told that both luncheons and dinners are served on the same extravagant scale as that of their elders, ceremonious to a degree, with a parade of dress involved; and that by reason of after-dinner entertainments late hours follow, and my little Miss and Master lie late o' mornings, one thinks its high time to set the fashion of farming out this little gentry. In other words, society fathers and mothers need to set up in their neighborhood a farm estate, where their children shall pass their summers in a natural, healthful way, guided and taught by tutors and governesses under a competent chatelaine's watchful eye and kind management. Gentlewomen would find a congenial occupation in this new field, and the little 400 their future salvation.

Some Women and Others.

A woman gains a dozen points when she acknowledges one fault.

Fat women always like to have their pictures taken in miniatures.

The tip-tilted hat is the standby of the woman whose hair does not curl naturally.

A woman can be frightened into a duty she would not otherwise thing of performing.

A RECORD BREAKER.

AROUND THE WORLD IN THIRTY-THREE DAYS.

The Present Around the World Time is Just Double That, Being 66 Days—But Faster Communications Will Soon Lower This.

A new world record will soon be broken. Prince Hilkoff, Russian Minister of Communications, stated that when the new Siberian railway is completed it will be possible to travel around the world in thirty-three days.

Prince Hilkoff arranges his thirty-three-day itinerary as follows:

Bremen, by rail to St. Petersburg, one and one half days; St. Petersburg to Vladivostock, ten days; Vladivostock to San Francisco, ten days; San Francisco to New York, four and one half days; New York to Bremen, seven days; making a total of thirty-three days for the trip.

In calculating this run Prince Hilkoff estimates speed on the Siberian railway at the very modest rate of but forty-eight kilometers, or thirty miles, per hour. Faster communication both by sea and land will doubtless soon reduce the minimum time to thirty days.

MAP SHOWING ROUTE.

The present round-the-world timetable is as follows:

New York to Southampton, six days; Southampton to Brindisi, three and one half days; Brindisi to Yokohama by Suez Canal, forty-two days; Yokohama to San Francisco, ten days; San Francisco to New York, four and one half days; making a total of sixty-six days.

It might fairly be said, however, that one sees much more of the world in going about it by the present route.

An Effective Narration.

According to the Waterville (Me.) Mail, this letter to the Pension Deparment brought a pension to Henry Johnson of Winslow, Me.:

The following communication
Is written in relation
To my delayed application
For an augmentation
Of my pension appropriation
Some sort of explanation
Of so much hesitation
And continued prochastination.
A year after applictaion
Before an order for examination
Reached its destination.
I went before the board without perturbation.
They correctly reported my situation—
It was a total prostration
Of my physical organization.
I also received from them this information,
In utter consternation,
That cataracts were causing a cessation
And soon a termination
To my visual observation.
In my crippled situation
I have labored in desperation
To protect from want and starvation
My ten children, my appropriation
To the strength of the Nation
And to increase its population.
My age is 77, near the termination
Of my earthly probation,
Twenty years a widower, more than half a generation.
Charity furnishes me a habitation
And a portion of my daily ration.
Blindness denies me the gratification of reading and newsy mention
For general information
And but for my daughter's kind ministration
I should be driven to desperation.
She prepares a frugal ration,
Reads to me some new publication,
Attending to my daily wants is her vocation.
If I could obtain an increased renumeration
To keep me from want and privation
It would give me great consolation
Until my life's termination,
I would not indulge in solicitation
For its further continuation.
If you reject this application,
The poorhouse is my destination.

The Imperial Body Guard.

The Cent Gardes foundered with the Second Empire in 1870, says London Truth. The corps dated from the time of the Crimean War, when a visit from Queen Victoria was expected. The tallest and finest looking men and officers were selected for the cavalry. There were 137 of the former and 11 of the latter, but the number of men was increased to 208. Their function was purely decorative, and they chiefly served within the palace. What swells the officers were in their sky-blue uniform bedight with gold lace! The corps had regulations of their own. They were on no account, when on duty, to stir unless to salute the Emperor or the Empress.

One day Marshal Castellane, a vain, old, peppery personage, had occasion to see the Emperor soon after the creation of the Cent Gardes. Two of them kept guard beside the door opening from the anteroom on the presence chamber. They remained in the regulation attitude—that is to say, with the right arm horizontally stretched out, and holding a musket by the bayonet. The butt end rested on the ground. The Marshal was in uniform. Furious at not being saluted, he asked the one nearest to him what he meant. The Cent Garde seemed neither to see nor hear. Castellane lost self-restraint and abused him. Still the soldier remained impassive. The irate Marshal sent for Col. Verly to complain. The Colonel failed to make him understand that approval and not chastisement was due. Thus the matter was brought before the Emperor, who gave the complainant a sharp rap on the knuckles by expressing his pleasure at the Spartan attitude of a household guard who was bound to ignore every rank but the imperial.

ONE SHIP WITHIN ANOTHER

The Queer Trip of one Steamship Around the Horn.

Now for the Captain's story.

It was in the year 1849 or '50 that the small side-wheel steamboat S. B. Wheeler was built at Eastport, Me. She was a good example of the steamboats of that period; well fitted and furnished, and of about 250 tons burden.

The Wheeler made one season, with indifferent success, upon the St. Croix River (which is the eastern international boundary line between the United States and the British possessions in America), and then, the California boom being at its height, she was sent as a Yankee venture, to San Francisco, says the Lwiston Journal.

She proved the first steamboat to ply the inland waters of California, and ran, for a long time, upon the Sacramento River, until outclassed by other steamers, when she crossed the Pacific to Honolulu.

The Wheeler was a pioneer in more than this, however. Her departure marked the first attempt of its kind in transportation annals. It was an event on the St. Croix to witness which the whole population of the river towns gathered. I am told by the Captain's wife, to whom he turns for verification and dates as he tells me the story, that at that gathering she first met the Captain. Perhaps it is this fact which has caused the gallant sailor to retain so much interest in the now out-of-date craft.

Up the river, upon the English side of the St. Croix, was built the bark Fanny. She was built for a purpose; designed and measured to receive the S. B. Wheeler in her capacious hold.

The very day that she was launched she was also sunk but by design. Indeed, the bark had no stern; the tidal river flowed in and out of the empty shell.

Alongside was brought the steamer. Her funnel and walking-beam had been removed but otherwise she was not dismantled. As the tide served just for the purpose, the Wheeler was floated, head on, to a berth within the submerged hull. It was a pretty good fit.

After fastening the steamer well within, they towed the bark around, with head up stream: the receding tide flowed out, and the Fanny and the S. B. Wheeler rested upon the river bottom, the one inside the other.

Next they fixed the stern in place with screw bolts, following the design of the builders, and with the next tide which ascended the St. Croix the bark floated—in fact, they both floated.

Next they stepped the masts and put on the rigging. Of the bark's three masts, two, the main and mizzen, passed directly through the steamer to reach the keel.

The space between the shells of the two vessels was packed with coal; provisions were taken as a cargo, and, with a passenger list of 200 goldseekers, many of whom had grand quarters in the Wheeler's cabin, the two crafts in one were towed out of the river, amid the shouts of the populace, to square away in Passamaquoddy for the long voyage around the Horn to the Golden Gate.

That she arrived at her destination, we have ample proof: moreover the bark Fanny came back to Boston.

An Artificial Jaw.

Probably the hardest task that a dentist ever had to do was to make an artificial jaw. But that is what a Detroit dental surgeon has succeeded in doing.

John Die, a young farmer of Royal Oak, Mich., was shot in the face with a shotgun by an angry brother-in-law.

John Die's condition was terrible and he was gradually starving to death, because he could not eat. He was taken to Detroit, to surgeons and hospitals, where his case was pronounced hopeless. No one would attempt to help him till he found Dr. Osius, a dentist.

The doctor experimented till he had found that by means of fine wires he could fasten an artificial jaw to the two back teeth.

THE ARTIFICIAL JAW.

The experiment took five weeks to complete. When finished the jaw was not a pretty object, but it was planned to do work.

Japrnese Backsliders.

Christianity is going backward in Japan instead of forward, according to Japanese newspapers. Several prominent men have turned their backs on the Christian faith after they had advanced greatly in its teachings. The most notable change is that of the Rev. Paul Kanamori. He was pastor of a Congregational Church at Tokio and President of the Doshisha University. He wrote several religious books that are still being distributed by missionaires. He has gone into business and given up the Christian pursuit entirely. He is now a director in the Tokio Stock Exchange.

The Rev. Dr. Ichihara, who four years ago was at the head of the school of laws and politics in the Doshisha University, is now noted only for his business ability. He is an officer in the Nippon Bank and has made a large amount of money since he left the church. Prof. Yujero Motora, a prominent officer in the Tokio Imperial University, has severed all connection with the Christian church. He studied in America under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church and held a position in the Methodist College. He now denies both God and Christ, and is a leader in a strong faith known as the Nippon Shugi, or Japanese principles.

He Was and He Wasn't.

"Such an insult!" she exclaimed.

"What?" he asked.

"Why, you know what long hair Brown, who married Miss Smith today, always has had?"

"Of course."

"Well, just before he became a benedict he had it cut short. Just think of the natural inference."—Chicago Post.

THE YUKON INDIANS.

IN MANY WAYS THEY REMIND ONE OF THE SOUTHERN NEGRO.

They Are Good-Natured and Patient in Their Environment—Not Particular as to the Condition of Their Food and Take Starving as a Matter of Fact.

The Indians on the Yukon are good-natured and harmless. In many ways they remind one of the southern negro. They sing "My Girl's a High Born Lady" and all the latest airs. It is said that the British drumbeat sounds around the world, but nowadays popular songs do the same thing, and in a much more thorough way. At Guam, our new possession in the Ladrones, the newspapers tell me the natives sing "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-aye," and this air is often heard along the Yukon. No doubt it has penetrated to Timbuctoo and the sacred city of Thibet. Judging from the Yukon, native music seems to be dying out. The catchy airs of the music hall are supplying a world music.

The Indians have keen ears, though their voices can hardly be called melodious. Some of them will catch an air after hearing it once, and reproduce it correctly by humming or on the mouth organ. I never heard an Indian whistle or sing at the full extent of his lungs, though likely they do both.

Give an Indian a mouth organ, "juice harp," as Huckleberry Finn's negro had it, or an accordion, and you will insure his happiness, no matter if he is cold or starving. The Indian is as yet ignorant of the banjo, but when he is once introduced to it I think it will be his favorite instrument, as it is with his sable brother. It must be borne in mind that I am speaking of the interior Indians. The coast Indians are a different breed. They are fighters and quarrelsome, robbing the white man by exorbitant packing charges now that they have learned it isn't wise to do the thing by force of arms.

It was these Indians who, by right of their possession of the passes, made the interior an unknown country for so long to the white man. Up to a recent date they effectually monopolized the trade of the Yukon. They even checkmated the Hudson Bay Company when it attempted to gain an entrance into the country from the east, capturing and burning the post established at Fort Selkirk in 1852. These Indians are powerfully built, and a twelve-year-old girl will trudge along with as heavy a pack as the average white man can carry, while their skookum packers carry as much as a horse.

Indians are not particular about the condition of their food, and will dispose of some pretty rank messes, but one thing they will not eat is wolf. More surprising still, it true, is the reported fact that Indian dogs will not eat wolf. These dogs rob white men's caches, tearing open sacks and gorging on raw flour and oatmeal, and nothing from soap to sulphur matches is safe from their depredations. Wanting to dispose of the carcasses of the wolves we killed below Selkirk, I asked the Indians if they could use them. They said no. I suggested feeding them to the dogs, and they shook their heads again. "Dog no muck muck wolf," they said. "Todder way, wolf muck muck dog."

When the time comes for starving, the Indian takes it as a matter of fact, and contentedly. Only once in a while is there a weak-livered one who cries and says: "Muck muck all gone. 'Fraid poor Indian will die." They peel the bark from pine and even popple trees and eat the softer inner portion. The pine bark is full of rosin and nasty stuff, and there is certainly no nutriment in it. It serves, however, to fill the stomach and lessen the gnawing at the inwards. One can travel for miles along the Yukon and never be out of sight of peeled trees, marked with the characteristic arrow-shapped blaze. The fact signifies the frequency of periods of starvation, for there are only a few hundred Indians in all on the whole length of the upper river.

A Valuable Sword

Perhaps the most precious sword in existence is that of the gaekwar of Baroda. Its hilt and belt are incrusted with diamonds, rubies and emeralds, and it is valued at $1,100,000. The shah of Persia possesses a sword valued at $50,000. His father wore it on his first visit to Europe. There are some costly swords in India, while both the czar and the sultan possess jeweled sabers of great price. The most valuable sword in England is the one presented by the Egyptians to Lord Wolseley. The hilt is set with brilliants and is valued at $10,000.

The Last Cent.

The treasury of the United States is in the habit of collecting the very last cent that is due, regardless of what it may cost. A Deputy Collector of Harrodsburg, Ky., received orders to go out to the western part of Anderson county and collect a balance of two cents. He waited a few days until other business required his attention in that locality and then received and receipted for the coveted two cents.

An Eccentric Hermit.

A Swiss paper relates that near the Beatushohle, on the lake of Thun, an eccentric hermit has built a cottage, in which he dwells, shut off from the world, his food being brought to him by a servant. He is a millionaire of Basle, afflicted with the mania that some one intends to poison him.

Literary Rates in North Carolina.

A North Carolina editor makes this original proposition:

"We will publish a ten-verse poem for a load of wood, a three-column story for a load of groceries, and we will cheerfully give space to obituaries of former subscribers at the rate of six laying hens a column."

STORIES OF ANIMALS.

Illustrating the Sense of the Elephant and the Horse.

From the huge elephant to the tiny ant, the entire animal kingdom offers stories and facts which should enlist the sympathies and engage the interests of the human being who has, in quaint, old-fashioned speech, "dominion over them."

In the whole animal creation there is not to be found a creature more intelligent, more easily managed or more likely to become the friend of man than the elephant. The natives of India, recognizing this, treat him with veneration and respect; but, on the other hand, the ferocious brutishness of the African negroes, incited by the criminal cupidity of Arab and European ivory merchants, transforms into a savage beast an animal best suited by nature to be man's associate.

A Hindoo hunter was once known to have become so fond of an elephant which he had caught and tamed that rather than have his tusks sawed off for the sake of the ivory he allowed himself to live in penury.

A famous general once said: "The most piteous thing after a battle is the sight of wounded horses. The men are cared for, but the poor horses are left to die in agony."

The horse enters into the spirit of a battle like a human being. He shows no fear of death and no sign of panic in all the wild tumult of the battle's din. A horse in one of the batteries in the Murfreesboro' fight had his skull split by a piece of shell so that one side was completely loosened. The driver turned him loose, but he walked up to the side of the gun and watched the firing, following the shots with his gaze as if to note their effect on the enemy. When he saw the team he had worked with being driven back for ammunition he ran to his old place and galloped back with the rest, and when an officer pushed him aside to have another horse put in he gazed at the newcomer with a most sorrowful expression in his eyes. Then, seeming to realize that the glory of battle was no more for him, he walked slowly away, lay down and died. The officer who owned him declared that it was not the wound, but a broken heart, that killed him.

Handiness in Machine Tools.

One of the features of the machine tools of American make which almost invariably elicits favorable comment in other countries is handiness. It is not that the American workman is essentially a creature of comfort which has inspired constant seeking after conveniences, but the striving for economy in methods, if not in processes, and for saving time, that is characteristic of American ways of doing things and has ultimately left its impress on the work of designers of machinery. Precedent counts less with him probably than with most designers of other nationalities; it is the new, the untried, but possibly useful, which appeals to him for experiment, and the outcome of his enterprise has materialized in many little labor-saving details, which have helped to make an enviable reputation for the output of the American tool builder.

British builders, and those of the continent as well, for that matter, are rather apt to disregard conveniences, and handiness in machine tools frequently receives too little consideration from them. In one instance cited recently an establishment was visited where some large drilling machines, made by a well-known firm, were in use, and in which the various handles and levers were particularly well arranged. Remark concerning them brought out the statement that it was only after insisting on that arrangement and absolutely refusing to accept the machines until they were put right that the desirable points were gained by the purchasers. Little doubt was expressed, however, that the makers did not profit by the hint, but still continue to make the machine for others in the old style, although the improvement demanded could not fail to be evident to all users. Conservatism of this kind does not lead to a useful purpose.

Diamond Saws

The use of the diamond saw for cutting stone is facilitating the erection of buildings. The diamonds which form the cutting teeth of the saw are common crystals, fixed in a steel disc over six feet in diameter, which is mounted on a spindle, and revolved by steam power, like an ordinary circular saw. For sawing hard stones there are 200 diamonds in the cutting edge, and the speed is 300 turns a minute. It advances into the stone about a foot in that time. For soft stones the teeth are of steel, with diamonds at intervals of every five teeth, and at a speed of 12 turns a minute the saw advances about a yard in that time.

An Apology.

Two well known temperance men of Kirkaldy, Scotland, were upset one night when returning from a temperance meeting. In its account of the mishap the local paper remarked: "Fortunately both gentlemen were sober at the time." This remark made them indignant, and they wrote a letter to the editor, saying so. Whereupon the editor kept up his end by printing this apology in the next issue of the paper: "Messrs.—— and —— demand an apology for our having stated that at the time of their accident they were both sober. We have pleasure in withdrawing our observation."

About Toothpicks

Ninety-five per cent. of all the toothpicks made in the United States are formed from white birch timber in Franklin county, Me., and yet scarcely more than 100 per cent. are employed in the industry in that state.

ORCHID HUNTING.

PERILS AND PRIZES OF THE SEARCH IN TROPICAL ISLANDS.

A Growing Business That Employs Many Millions of Capital—The High Prices Certain Varieties Bring—Some of the Dangers in Collecting the Flower.

East or west the tropic islands are among the happiest hunting grounds for that flower of the air, the orchid. Yearly many men go in search of them at inconceivable risk of life and limb. Some few are scientific enthusiasts, or the agent of scientific institutes. The most part, however, go for revenue only. Not every man can hunt orchids successfully—in this calling, as in most others, ability commands a high market price.

Statistics are uninteresting—still, it is worth while to be told that the business of orchid growing and orchid collecting, though begun as late as 1830, now employs a good many millions of capital. Both here and abroad there are collections whose value runs well up into the hundred thousands, and collectors with nerve enough to pay $5,000 for a single specimen—provided it be sufficiently unique. Further, there was at least one grower long-headed enough to refuse more than $5,000 for an absolutely unique plant. It was seedless and could be multiplied only by the tedious process of rooting leaf cuttings—hence, he saw his profit in such multiplication, and preferred to sell a hundred plants at a thousand each, even though he had to wait some years to do it.

Such men stand back of the orchid hunters proper. Usually three or four Europeans go together to a tropic port, engage from fifty to a hundred natives, buy all manner of supplies, and strike straight into the wildest interior. Often the men carry everything; sometimes there is a bullock train, or even a train of bullock carts. But that is impracticable in the true virgin tropics, wherein the hunters find their choicest treasures.

It is like a fairy tale to talk with one of the returned explorers. You hear of trees 300 feet high, literally covered with orchids, or maybe a half dozen species, each growing in its own distinct zone or altitude. Some flourish only upon the uppermost airy boughs, others riot over the big crotches where the branches come together, still others ring with blossom the mossy boll, running up maybe 100 feet to the lowest limb. Sometimes a tree is the fetich of the wild men round about. In that case woe to the sacrilegious outlanders who lay hand or foot upon it. More than one expedition has been massacred for such cause. The destruction of such a tree scattered and dispersed one of the savagest native tribes.

Their titular tree stood in a sort of glade—it had been seen by several hunting parties, but none of them dared touch it. When they went home their accounts of it so wrought upon the fancy of an English collector that he offered an almost fabulous sum for a section of the flower-wreathed trunk. Next year the orchid hunters found the native tribe at war, and taking advantage of the diversion, cut down the tree and sent a segment down to the coast, where, after many trials and tribulations, it was got safe aboard ship and in the end was the season's wonder of a London conservatory. The native worshipers coming back to find what havoc had been wrought, at once decided that their god had deserted them in anger, hastened to make peace, and ended by going in a mass to live at the other side of their island.

Other than human enemies attack the orchid hunters. One flower, especially beautiful and of the most exquisite fragrance, grows only in the tree tops, and so high that it is found by scent, not sight. Wherever it grows, it is overrun with ant swarms, red ants, not very large, but warlike, and with poisonous stings. The minute a tree trunk trembles beneath axe-strokes these ants swarm down and attack the cutters most viciously, often forcing them to suspend work. A more curious thing is that the flowers will not live and bloom away from the ants. Boughs overrun with their roots have been submerged until the ant-colonies were all drowned, then packed and shipped with the rest. But though given everything that the most finicky orchid could ask in the way of light, heat and moisture, they have merely drooped and pined through one year to die the next of simple inanition.

Then there are serpents, poison insects and vines and herbs as poisonous, to say nothing of panthers, pumas, hurricanes, and tropic thunderbolts. Over against them set the pleasures of absolute lordship, the wonderful sights and sounds of the strangely beautiful tropic world, and beyond all that, the hope, ever-present, ever luring, of stumbling on a new flower worth many times its weight in gold.

These are the prizes in the lottery of orchids—hence the necessity of hunting them in their season of bloom. The roots come snugly packed in wooden boxes. Curiously, they will not bear the least touch of metal. The boxes are commonly dove-tailed, and often beautiful specimens of native joiner work. Each box is carefully labeled, dated, and marked with the temperature and altitude at which the plants it holds were found. Then, with more boxes of its own sort, it is slung one side of a sleek bullock, and balanced with still other boxes while the beast ambles and stumbles his way to the sea.

The Footman's Wig.

The queen's footmen wear wigs which have eight rows of curls, whereas those of the prince of Wales are allowed seven rows, and those of the lord mayor of London are given six rows.

Some persons say they are never influenced by an advertisement.

It is not expected that any one will buy Ivory Soap solely because it is suggested by an advertisement, but if you have never used Ivory Soap, you may be induced to ask some friend about it; should you find—as you probably will—that she is enthusiastic in its praise, then you may try it.

Millions of people use Ivory Soap; they use it because they like it. You too will like it. There is a difference in soaps.

PERSONAL GOSSIP OF INTEREST TO CITY AND BOROUGH.

In Brief are Told the Daily Doings of Many Residents and Visitors Who Go and Come in a Social and Business Way

Miss May Squier, of Astor place, has resumed her position at Weida's ice cream parlors.

The Misses Winckler, of Park place, are spending their vacation at Far Hills, this State.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Suffern and Edward Suffern, of Sycamore avenue, are at Mt. Pocono.

A young daughter has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. T. Smith, of West Fourth street.

Mrs. Derby, of Grove street, is seriously ill at her home with typhoid fever. Dr. Adams is in attendance.

John Quass, formerly of this city, but now of Newark, is visiting former acquaintances and friends in Plainfield.

Former Chief Marshal Wilson, of the borough, has resigned his position as a detective for the Central Railroad Company.

Lena, daughter of Richard E. Bohan, of 429 Orchard place, a bright little girl of eleven years, is very ill with typhoid fever.

Patrick Muldoon, of West Third street, took a party of his friends to Boynton Beach Monday in a stage. The day was pleasantly passed by all.

Charles Stillman, formerly of this city, but now of Sabine Pass, Texas, has just been elected secretary of a new fire company organized at that place.

Former Assemblyman W. R. Codington, of Sandford avenue, is enjoying his summer outing at Lake Hopatcong in company with a party of legal lights who are camping out.

CRAMPS NOT BUILDING HERE.

Shooters Island in the Kills Being Improved, But Not By Them.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Aug. 9—A report that the Cramps, shipbuilders, of Philadelphia, had purchased Shooters Island, opposite the Singer Sewing Machine factory, and near Stapleton, Staten Island, is refuted by the Seaboard Lumber Company, the owners of the Island, and the idea of converting this small patch of land into a ship yard or any other extensive manufacturing place is considered absurd. Some improvements are being made on the island by the Seaboard Lumber Company, which stores lumber there and does some box making.

Still Alarm for Chimney Fire.

A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters this afternoon for a chimney fire at the residence of Mr. Carney, 624 New street. No. 2 hose wagon responded and only an extinguisher was needed to put out the burning soot.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

McLAUGHLIN BROTHERS.

The Rise, Career and End of Two "Bad Men" of the Frontier.

"One of the leading papers of New York printed a story a few days ago," remarked an old reporter, "telling how the typical 'bad man of the frontier' has gradually become extinct. It was very interesting, and mentioned a number of noted desperadoes, among others 'the famous McLaughlin brothers, killed in Arizona in 1889.' I happened to know a good deal about these brothers, and they were really very remarkable people. They differed in one important particular from all other Western celebrities—they didn't exist. No, I'm not joking. They were unveiled in about 1878 for the edification of the numerous 'tenderfeet' who were thronging into the Colorado silver district. In those days stories of frontier adventure were in great demand, and the noted desperadoes of the region were used as central figures in hundreds of purely imaginative yarns spun by enthusiastic reporters. The only trouble about it was that the desperadoes themselves would occasionally kick, so it occurred to a well-known scribbler, named Billy Taylor, to manufacture a couple of real bad men about whom he could romance with safety. Accordingly he created the McLaughlin brothers, and, just as he expected, they were taken up by the papers far and wide, and their exploits soon became the talk of the West. Taylor presently acquired a wide reputation for nerve by the fearless manner in which he 'roasted' these dangerous men, particularly the younger brother, Silas McLaughlin, who butchered nine cowboys at Santa Fe because one of them stepped on his foot. 'Red-handed miscreant,' 'dastardly assassin' and 'rope-ripe ruffian' were some of the pet names he applied to him, in spite of the warnings of admiring friends. Eventually the brothers became so firmly established in the public mind that any doubt as to their actuality would have been scouted, and to this day you can find scores of men all over the frontier who will swear that they have met and conversed with them. I don't know how the story of their death originated, but I dare say some old-timer concluded that the joke had gone about far enough, and killed them on the same principle that Cervantes finished off Don Quixote."

Wanderings of a Diamond.

An interesting story is going the rounds of the jewelry trade relative to the wanderings of a $100 diamond. It seems that the jewel was placed in a small box, marked "Value $100," and given to a boy to take to an express office, after first mailing some letters in the mail box in the lower hall of the building. The boy was given a cent with which to pay the revenue tax, and when the boy returned with the penny and was asked about the diamond he decided that he must have dropped the box with the letters in the mail box, and then the trouble began. One man was sent to watch the collection of the mail in the lower hall and another man was sent to the postoffice to explain the situation and to obtain the help of the postoffice officials in the recovery of the missing box. No trace of the little package could be found, either in the mail box or at the postoffice, and it is said that many of the postal clerks went home that night feeling blue, to say the least. The box was addressed to a business firm in Providence, and the next morning a letter carrier appeared before this man and said:

"This is a funny thing. Here's something marked 'Value $100,' and there's no stamp on it except one for postage due."

The citizen, as he opened the package, said:

"Well, that's pretty good. There must be a lot of honest men in the postal service. I'm much obliged to 'em. They've saved me a lot of money in the way of express charges."

It is not on record that he said anything more to the point.

Napoleon Slept in Peter's Bed.

Peter the Great hated Moscow, and, above all, that stronghold of Oriental intrigue and moral darkness, the Kremlin. If I remember right, says a writer, he never inhabited the palace within its walls after he was a child. The old palace is a network of incredibly small, low, ill-ventilated rooms, some little bigger than closets, painted in greens, blues and reds, after the Swedish fashion; rooms which seem, even to-day, to reek of plots, intrigue and murder.

Napoleon, always a trifle theatrical, insisted on sleeping in the bed of Peter the Great when he occupied the Kremlin in 1812. The bed of the boy Peter fitted the hero of Austerlitz to a nicety. It is a very abbreviated couch. In the very heart of this Oriental palace, with no window which gives on the outer day and the open air, is the terem, or women's quarters.

The ladies, even the Tsaritza and the sisters of the Tsar, were only permitted to look down into the hall of coronation through a carved wooden lattice, just as ladies do in the East. When they went out it was in a curtained litter. When Peter mounted the throne of the Tsars, the women of Russia were Orientals, imprisoned more rigorously than the ladies of Constantinople to-day.

Wales' Clothes

In the art of changing clothes the prince of Wales is probably without a peer. Among other things his royal highness is two princes, two dukes, two field marshals, an earl, a baron, eight knights, a great steward, a grand master, a colonel of guards, of horse, of foot and of artillery, an admiral, a highlander, a Trinity brother, a barrister, a bencher and an English gentleman. And he wears the costume and the orders of them all.

ABOUT THE OYSTER.

BECOMES GREEN ON PLANT FOOD AND FATTENS ON FRESH WATER.

The Operation of "Floating" the Bivalve—The Green Ones Popular in Europe—Freshening Reduces Their Life One Half Their Value as Food.

Persons who eat oysters frequently have doubtless observed that now and then the oysters set before them are more or less green in color. There is a common prejudice against a green oyster. Some persons attribute the coloring to disease and others to parasites or to the presence of copper. Scientific investigation has demonstrated that this "greening" of oysters is in reality due to the fact that the oysters have fed on green plants of simple structure, which are sometimes found in abundance in brackish or salt water.

C. F. Langworthy, of the office of experiment stations of the United States department of agriculture, says that, in the opinion of those who have investigated the matter carefully, the green color in oysters is harmless. In Europe green oysters are more highly prized than others. The green color may be removed by placing the oysters for a time in water where the green plants are not abundant.

It is a common practice of oyster dealers instead of selling the oysters in the condition in which they are taken from the beds in salt water to place them for a period of about forty-eight hours in fresh water in order to fatten them. The oystermen call this operation "floating" or "laying out." The process gives the oyster plumpness and rotundity, its bulk and weight being so increased as to materially enhance its selling value. The belief is common among oystermen that this "fattening" is due to actual gain of flesh and fat, and that the nutritive value of the oyster increased by the process.

Oysters lose much of their salty flavor in "floating," however, and it is an established fact that if the "fattened" oysters are left too long on the floats they become lean again. Careful experiments have shown that oysters taken out of their natural beds in salt water and placed in fresh water actually gain in weight. This is due largely to the fact that they lose weight and gain a considerable amount of water. But there is an accompanying loss of nutriments. When in their natural condition oysters contain from one-eighth to one-fifth more nutritive material than when fattened.

It is interesting to note that the government's experiments, conducted at the New Jersey stations, thus far have shown that oysters freshened by "floating" will not remain alive as long as those taken directly from salt water. Freshening really reduces the life period of an oyster one-half. In the opinion of many consumers the improvment in appearance and flavor of an oyster due to the dilution of the salts more than compensates for the loss in nutritive value. Prof. Langworthy remarks: "Often flavor has a value which cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

Oysters come nearer to milk than almost any other common food material, as regards both the amount and the relative proportions of nutrients. Generally speaking, a quart of oysters contains on an average about the same quantity of actual nutritive substances as a quart of milk, or three-fourths of a pound of beef, two pounds of fresh codfish, or one pound of bread. The nutritive substance of an oyster contains considerable protein, the substance whose principal function is to make or repair blood, muscle, tendon, bone, brain and other nitrogenous matter. Apparently as the oyster grows older, at least up to a certain time, not only do the proportions of flesh and liquids increase more rapidly than the shells, but the proportion of nutrients in the edible part increases also. For illustration, 100 pounds of young oysters in the shell appear to contain less of flesh and of liquids than 100 pounds of older ones, and when both have been shucked a pound of meat from the shells of the older oysters would contain more nutriment than a pound from the younger.

Investigation has shown that, considering the edible portion of the oyster after it has been removed from the shell, the differences in different specimens are much greater than is commonly supposed. This is clearly apparent when a comparison is made of either the flesh or liquor of different specimens, or the whole edible portion of the meats and liquor together. The percentage of water in the edible portion of different specimens of oysters which were analyzed for the United States fish commission varied from 83 to 91 percent., and average 87 per cent. In other words, the nutritive material in a quart of "solid" oysters varied from two and three-quarters to five and one-third ounces. The man who buys oysters in the shell pays for an enormous percentage of waste material. The average of thirty-four specimens of oysters in the shell, for instance, showed only 2 3-10 per cent. of actual nutrients. Clams and mussels yield a somewhat higher percentage.

Gales on Lakes.

The tide-like effect of gales on lakes having no ordinary tides is very considerable. In the Caspian a gale will raise the water on one side six feet, causing a total difference of level on 12 feet, and in lake Erie heavy gales occasionally cause a difference of level of more than 15 feet.

Growth of a Shrub.

It is perfectly amazing to notice carefully how much an ordinary shrub will grow in a single summer. A silver fir 2½ feet high was lately carefully measured. It had put forth 585 new shoots, varying from one-half inch to six inches each.

AS HE SAILS SMITH TALKS ABOUT POLITICS

Former United States Senator Advises the Democracy.

WANTS DEMOCRATS TO WIN.

DECLARES THAT HE IS NOT YET OUT OF POLITICS.

Confident That the Party is Gaining Daily in New Jersey and the Nation—Strong Men, in Whom Taxpayers Have Confidence, Should Be Nominated—He is Against Philippine War.

Ex United States Senator James Smith and Bernard M. Shanley, of the North Jersey Traction Company, sailed for Europe yesterday on the American liner St. Louis. They are going to Carlsbad.

Many friends were at the dock to see them off. Among them were Gov. Voorhees, Gen. Wanser, Col. S. D. Dickinson, Uzal McCarter, Dudley Farrand, E. F. C. Young, Judge Krueger, A. B. Carlton, James A. Rowe, Peter Hauck, Jr., Dr. Daniel Elliott and P. Sandford Ross.

Referring to the announcement that Former Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney had retired from politics, Mr. Smith, said: "Well, I am not out of politics. As a Democrat I intend to contribute to the success of the party to the best of my ability and in every way that appears to me to be logical. I have no doubt in the ultimate success of the Democracy, both in the Nation, the State of New Jersey and in my own county and city.

"I do not desire that my remarks shall be construed as being indicative of my being a candidate for additional honors at the hands of the Democratic party, but rather as a declaration that I am still working for what I regard as my party's best interests.

"My impression is that by nominating strong men, those in whom the taxpayers have confidence, the party will have a good chance for victory in New Jersey this fall.

"I have no doubt but all I have heard from men who should know the sentiment of the people, that the prospects of Democratic victory in the nation next year are constantly growing brighter.

"A large majority in every state is opposed to the expansion policy of the Administration, and to the conduct of the war against the Filipinos, which, to my mind, is the most unjust and unnecessary war ever waged against a people seeking freedom, as the founders of our Grand Republic sought their freedom from Great Britain."

A GREAT COMBINE.

Shanley' Plan to Control Trolley, Electric Light and Gas in Northern New Jersey.

Vice-President Garret A. Hobart, who for years has been president of the Paterson Railway Company, the largest trolley system in that city, has resigned the presidency and sold all his stock to the Shanley syndicate.

This syndicate may soon control all the trolley, electric light and gas interests in Northern New Jersey, including those in Plainfield.

David Young, president of the White Line Traction Company, has succeeded Mr. Hobart as president of the Paterson company. The White Line was recently purchased by the Shanley syndicate.

The proposed consolidation of the trolley lines is stirring employes to activity in organizing. The men employed on the Paterson roads will meet Friday to form a branch of the Street Railway Employes Union.

Improvements in W. U. Office.

Manager Charles Schermerhorn, of the Western Union Telegraph office at the North Avenue station, has just succeeded in making some great improvements in his office. The unsightly looking iron fence has been removed, which gives more room. A commodious booth has been erected and the telephone will be placed therein, so as to secure privacy and overcome the noise of the telegraph instruments. Mr Schermerhorn deserves credit for his efforts in trying to maintain a first-class office.

The Cranford Carnival.

On Saturday, 19th instant, the annual carnival of the Cranford Boating Association will take place on the Rahway river at that place, and from present indication there will be a large number of spectators in attendance than at any carnival which has taken place in that town.

The citizens of Cranford are raising quite a large sum of money to be awarded as prizes for the purchase of lanterns, for music, etc.

M'GILL MAY RETIRE.

REPORTED THAT HE MAY STEP OUT OWING TO POOR HEALTH.

Gossip Says That Governor Voorhees Would Probably Appoint Chief Justice Magie to Succeed Him.

Chancellor McGill, whose health is none of the best, it was reported yesterday, had intimated his unwillingness to continue as Chancellor after January 1st.

If the Chancellor should resign Gov. Voorhees is said to contemplate naming Chief Justice Magie, of the Supreme Court, to the chancellorship.

If this programme is followed it will involve, gossips says, the advancement of Justice Collins to the chief justiceship.

The vacancy thus created would have to be filled by Gov. Voorhees.

As Senator Cross, of Union, has long sought a judical appointment, this would give him his chance. Should the emergency not arise Mr. Cross may again be a candidate for State Senator from Union, the seat formerly held by Mr. Voorhees, and which proved a stepping-stone to the governorship.

There are other candidates for Senator. Martin Roll, of Springfield, said yesterday that his own candidacy depends a good deal on the way the cat jumps in the judgeship matter.

PLANS FOR BABY PARADE

ASBURY PARK BUSY PREPARING FOR THE ANNUAL SHOW.

Substantial Prizes for Novelties in the Line of Parade—Children's Night at the Auditorium This Evening.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, August 10.—Great plans are being laid for the baby parade at Asbury Park. Entries for this annual event will be made from today. The parade will be held next week.

The course will extend from the Auditorium to Asbury avenue and return. Committees to judge the babies and award the prizes will be appointed as soon as men brave enough to face the task can be found.

As an incentive to novel decorations and large entries there will be many classes. The greatest "novelty" either in babies or in perambulators will receive substantial recognition. Decorative art will be encouraged by prizes for carriages dressed in wild and cultivated flowers and the National colors.

After weeks of preparation, "children's night" in Ocean Grove will be observed in the Auditorium this evening. The boys, two hundred in all, will be dressed as Rough Riders. Their camp scene, with lights turned low, is expected to be one of the prettiest effects of the entertainment. Eight hundred girls will be dressed as Red Cross nurses. The thousand young people will sing "Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground" and other songs.

"Carnival night" will be held next Tuesday evening. The Venetian fete will take place on Wesley Lake. The shore will blaze with light, and fireworks will be set off from each of the bridges. The Stars and Stripes are to wave over the lake from a tall staff and a powerful searchlight turned upon the flag. Small craft will be hung with Chinese lanterns and will be rowed in line from end to end of the lake.

FRIENDS AT COURT.

Charged That the Traction Company Owns a Health Board Member.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August. 10.—The Board of Health wants the North Jersey Traction Company to sprinkle the street through which its trolley cars run.

Dr. O'Reiley, of the State Board of Health and also of the Elizabeth Board, charged in the Board meeting that the traction company had a representative in the Board of Health to protect its interests, and that was the reason steps had not been taken to make the company comply with health regulation.

Dr. O'Reiley was asked to be more explicit, but he declined.

Ban on Poster Advertising.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 10.—An ordinance has been passed by the Township Committee prohibiting the posting of any advertising bills on the fences, trees or bridges through the township without the permission of the committee. The penalty for breaking the ordinance is $5.

Mounted on a Bike.

Borough Marshal Winn has been mounted on a wheel and will do patrol duty in Washington Park. This, the officials think, will partly make up for the absence of one man from the force.

TO RECOMMEND FOR THE PORTO RICANS.

Dr. Carroll's Report is Being Rapidly Finished.

FOR THE PRESIDENT'S USE.

NO DOUBT ABOUT THE ABILITY OF THE ISLANDERS.

Commissioner Says That He Found Every Person Approached Ready and Willing to Aid in Securing Material for the Report—To Report a Territorial Government for the Islanders.

At his headquarters in the Hand building on Watchung avenue, Dr. H. K. Carroll, United States Commissioner to Porto Rico, together with his staff, is busily preparing his report to be submitted to President McKinley before Congress meets.

The report will be a voluminous one. The Commissioner made extensive researches into every department, examining bankers, farmers, merchants, artisans and officials, and secured valuable information. He also made a complete and accurate census of the island and of the different races that inhabit it. This he has compiled in a systematic and convenient form, something that has not been done before in Porto Rico.

The Commissioner found every person he approached exceedingly willing to assist him in his efforts to secure material for his report. He made an exhaustive inquiry into the municipal governments, and examined the budgets in the various districts. In every case he found that the Mayors and Councils desired municipal autonomy. His report states that under the Spanish system the people are unable to do anything without prospects to the insular government at San Juan, which itself exerts a powerful initiative, and proposes or orders enterprises, which sometimes do not meet with the popular approval. Few cities have any debt, except small deficiencies in current accounts. The municipalities include not only cities and towns proper, but rural districts approaching in extent the counties of the United States.

The Commissioner states that he found planters at one time complaining of the lack of money in the island and of the difficulty in borrowing. The natives insist that merchants take unfair advantage of them, lending money at high rates and taking crops in payment, and allowing such prices as they see fit. The lowest rate of interest found by the Commissioner was 8 per cent., and very little money is lent at that. Ordinarily it is 12 to 18 per cent., and sometimes 20 to 24 per cent., that is demanded. The farmers believe that the only way out of this difficulty is to be able to borrow money, on long terms of twenty or thirty years, at not exceeding 7 or 8 per cent. They confidently expect American capital to come to their relief. If this resource fails them, the outlook will be gloomy.

An interesting feature of the report is that devoted to visits among the laboring classes. The Commissioner visited their huts in the poor quarters and in the cities. He saw them in the fields and received deputations of artisans. Though they are in wretched circumstances, they are cheerful and much less concerned than merchants, bankers, and planters about the future. Their clothing is of the most meagre description, the young children going naked. It is estimated by the shoe-dealers on the island that only 200,000 pairs of shoes are required for the whole population of 900,000 persons, per annum. The report cites that the people are industrious and that travelers see few loungers. The people work hard and continuously, and it is wonderful how much they can endure, especially when it is considered how small an amount of food they are able to obtain.

Of the island Trades Unions visited by the Commissioner, nine of the eleven are composed of colored men, who maintain the unions for self-improvement. They learn to read and write and are anxious to increase the knowledge already obtained. Under the Spanish Government they were not allowed to hold meetings, and any attempt at a strike was severely punished.

There seems to be no doubt that Commissioner Carroll will recommend a territorial form of government for the island. He is impressed with the ability of the natives, and feels confident that if properly started they will be able to manage themselves and their own affairs with justice and profit. The report will probably be completed before December.

WOULD SERVE SOMERSET

PLENTY OF SENATORIAL TIMBER TO SELECT FROM.

Canvass is Not Confined to Messrs. Bergen and Dungan, as Somerville Democrat Correspondent Says it Is.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The article in the Somerville Democrat signed "H," which was evidently written to boom the Hon. J. J. Bergen for the Senatorial nomination, seems to shut out of the field every other Democrat in the county excepting Prosecutor Dungan, and it repeats several times the assertion that these two gentlemen are the only possible candidates.

Mr. Bergen evidently believes that the press is the moulder of public opinion and wants to use it to further his own candidacy.

There is no particular objection to this, but why are other possible candidates so carefully shut out?

Among the possibilities are Judge John D. Bartine whose term as Judge expires in 1900, and who has a host of friends throughout the county; Former Assemblyman Jacob Klotz has a record in the Lower House which entitles him to some consideration; then Samuel S. Childs, of Bernards, who was defeated for the Assembly last year, largely through a misunderstanding, should be considered for the nomination for either Assembleyman or Senator, as he is a clean candidate and made a splendid run in his own township.

Assessor Elston M. French, of North Plainfield, would also make a good run, judging from the majority of nearly 200 which he received when elected in that strong Republican township.

While in his thirty-second year, his age is not against him for he has the ability to fill the position, and then a younger candidate is more inclined to hustle for his own election, as well as for other candidates on the ticket.

It is understood that Mr. French does not seek this nomination and will only accept it in the interest of party harmony.

North Plainfield has not had a Democratic candidate for a great many years, and if the Republican majority, which is on the increase, is to be held down, the Democrats in the borough should be encouraged.

In a farming community like Somerset there is a strong feeling against a lawyer candidate, and this should be considered when making selections.

LEFT $1,400 IN CHURCH

BUT SECURED IT THROUGH THE HONESTY OF THE SEXTON.

The Loss Discovered After John VanMiddlesworth Had Gone Home—Valuables Were Found by the Sexton.

That John VanMiddlesworth, father of Henry VanMiddlesworth, of Elmwood place, who is summering with the latter, did not lose $1,400 last Sunday evening is due to the honesty and alertness of Edward Maynard, sexton of the First Baptist church.

Mr. VanMiddlesworth attended service at this church Sunday evening and in his pocket he carried about $1,400 in notes, papers, etc. In some manner the valuable papers were dropped from his pocket while he was in the church, and he failed to miss them until he reached home and was about to retire. He made known his loss to other members of the family, and it was suggested that possibly he might have dropped them in the church or between the house and church. Mr. VanMiddleworth decided at once to return in the hope of finding his treasuries. On his way to the church he met Sexton Maynard. He inquired of him concerning his lost valuables and soon learned that they had been found by Sexton Maynard. The Sexton told Mr. VanMiddlesworth that he had locked them up safely in the church, and if he would call at the church the next morning he would give them to him.

The owner of the papers felt greatly relieved when he learned that they were safe and was able to go home and sleep in peace. The next morning he went to church and secured his papers. Some of the papers are of such a nature that if they had not been returned Mr. VanMiddlesworth would have lost the money entirely.

Trolley Company Buys Land.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 10.—Frederick Scheelen, of Jerusalem road, has sold eight acres of his farm land to the Elizabeth and Westfield Traction Company. This looks as though the company had abandoned their plan of trying to get into Westfield by way of North avenue.

BOLD HIGHWAYMAN WAS A POLICE OFFICER

Exciting Experience of Lawyer DeMeza and Chas. Hummer.

ELIZABETH'S DARK STREETS

OFFICER KIRKMAN TAKEN FOR A FOOTPAD AND KNOCKED DOWN.

Young Men Thought an Attempt Was Being Made to Waylay and Rob Them—Lashed Their Horse and Escaped—Policeman Slightly Injured—Explanations Followed at Police Headquarters.

Lawyer William G. DeMeza, of this city, and Charles Hummer, of North Plainfield, had an exciting experience at Elizabeth Monday night. The young men had been to Newark, where Mr. DeMeza had business. It was quite late in the evening when they left Newark for home. The night was pitch dark and it was with difficulty that they were able to keep the highway. When the young men reached Elizabeth it was about 11 o'clock. By a mistake Mr. DeMeza took the wrong road. He drove up one street and then another, and finally getting his bearings started on what he thought to be the right road.

They had driven but a short distance when Mr. Hummer saw the form of a large man jump toward them into the middle of the street. The fellow, without a word of warning, clutched at the horse's bridle, but missing that succeeded in getting a hold on the saddle of the harness.

Visions of highwaymen flitted through the excited brains of the young men. They were terribly frightened. DeMeza grasped the whip and hit the horse several sharp blows, at the same time crying out:

"Let go of that horse!" The man attempted to hang on, but the horse, under repeated lashings, had begun to leap and jump and finally dashed up the street, throwing the man to one side of the road.

When the young men succeeded in checking the speed of the horse they realized how frightened they were. They thought surely that they had been waylaid by a footpad, who sought to rob them. Then the young men continued on their journey, reaching home some hours later.

The man whom DeMeza and his companion took for a highwayman was none other than Patrolman Kirkman, of the Elizabeth police force, who thought there was something suspicious about the young men driving about the streets at that hour of the night, when they were seeking to find their way, and he had attempted to apprehend them. DeMeza told a Daily Press reporter that they did not know at the time who the man was. He did not say anything and they naturally supposed that they were being waylaid.

It was not until Tuesday afternoon that DeMeza learned his mistake. He received a call from Sergeant Kiely, who had been requested by Chief Decker, of the Elizabeth police, to ascertain who the young men were that knocked down the officer.

At Sergeant Kiely's request DeMeza visited Elizabeth Wednesday and went to police headquarters.

He had a conversation with Justice Hetfield and Lieutenant Peters.

Mr. DeMeza and his companion declared they did not know it was an officer that seized the bridle of their horse, but imagined they were being held up by a highwayman, and struck at him with a whip, at the same time lashing the horse to escape. They deeply regretted the unfortunate mistake, and expressed their willingness to pay the doctor's bill and to compensate Officer Kirkman for the time he is compelled to remain off duty by his injuries. Justice Hetfield said if the injured policeman was willing to compromise the matter, then no warrant would be issued for their arrest. They left headquarters greatly relieved at learning this. Mr. DeMeza regrets that the accident occurred and the publicity it has been given. Had the officer called to them to stop and told them who he was Mr. DeMeza says they certainly would have pulled up their horse and told the officer who they were and that they were trying to find the right road.

Cars for Kean's Trolley Line.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August. 10—The new trolley cars for Senator John Kean's new Elizabeth line arrived yesterday and are handsome and commodious. Contractor Quinn is pushing the work rapidly, and by the end of August expects to have the road completed from Elizabethport to Elizabeth.

—The borough marshals will not take their vacations all at once, but will take a few days at a time.

TROLLEY WORK AT NIGHT

HUSTLING TO BUILD THE LINE THROUGH WESTFIELD.

A Gang of 200 Men at Work Last Night—Tomorrow Evening a Hearing on Application for the Franchise.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 10—A gang of over 200 men was at work all last night and until 5 o'clock this morning on the trolley line being built by the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company through this town. The line is within a few yards of where the road will turn for the connection with Scotch Plains. In going under the Central Railroad at Westfield avenue the roadbed was too high and had to be cut down several feet, which necessitated the cutting of the grade and the laying of a drain sewer to carry off the surface water.

Tomorrow evening the Township Committee will hold a public hearing on the application of the company for a franchise on Prospect street or for the one on Elm street and Dudley avenue, but it is expected that the route asked for will be the one on Elm street and thence on private property through to Prospect street, as the Dudley avenue proposition is blocked, the owners of property on that street being unwilling to have the line pass their homes.

TRINITY DID NOT GO.

EXCURSION IS POSTPONED ON ACCOUNT OF THE RAIN.

The Train and Several Hundred of the Excursionists Showed Up, But Committee Decided to Postpone It.

Several hundred wet and bedraggled would-be excursionists wended their way homward this morning. They braved the failing rain and the promise of more and appeared at the North Avenue station at the appointed hour of 8 o'clock when the Trinity Reformed church excursion was to have started for Asbury Park. But the excursion didn't start. As one of the excursionists remarked, they couldn't be expected to swim all the way there and after they arrived as well. Nevertheless, there was quite a number who ventured out with the intention of going if the train did.

The railroad officials did their part and the train was there twenty minutes before the hour. It lay on the siding until the excursion committee held a hurried conference and decided that it was no day for an excursion to the seashore. The decision was reached shortly before 8 o'clock, and the railroad officials and crowd were informed that the excursion was postponed indefinitely.

Everybody knew it was no kind of a day for such an outing but there was a chorus of disappointed "ahs" at the news. A heavy downfall of rain put an end to such remarks, however, and the would-be excursionists in their white gowns and best clothes took shelter under convenient roofs until the worst of the rain was over and they could wade homeward without being swept away by the torrents that at times roared through the main thoroughfares.

Rain Didn't Hinder Them.

The excursion of the Reformed church of Somerville to Asbury Park started this morning despite the threatening conditions overhead. Fourteen cars were well filled. They are likely to have a wet day of it even if they don't take advantage of a dip in the surf.

CAUGHT A YOUNG CRANE.

Marshal Reagan Makes a Capture of a Rare Bird.

Marshal Patrick Reagan, who resides at 224 Grove street, near Greenbrook road, heard the screech of a hawk or other large bird from the meadow land back of his house yesterday morning, and taking his bulldog with him he started for the spot where the bird was. It proved to be a young crane, and with the aid of his dog Mr. Reagan captured the bird. He measure twenty inches across the wings. Last evening Mr. Reagan's yard was filled with neighbors, attracted there by the screeching of the bird. He will try to rear him.

ELECTRICITY LOOSE; KNOCKS DOWN HORSES.

William Henderson, Clerk, Received a Severe Shock.

HE STEPPED IN THE MUD.

CURRENT ESCAPED FROM WIRES OF ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

Insulation Rubbed Off Against Wet Tree—Current Ran Over Guy Wire to Iron Pole and Thence to the Ground—MacDonald's Horses Felt it First—Truckman Summers' Horses Knocked Down.

The electricity ran away at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street this morning and managed to upset both men and horses. All escaped serious injury. It was rather exciting, however, until the cause of the strange happenings was found out.

Four wires of the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company pass along the southern side of Front street, just west of Watchung avenue. They carry the alternating current of 1,000 volts which that company furnishes for power and interior lighting. In one of the trees near the corner one of these wires has rubbed on a limb so long that the insulation has been entirely rubbed off. A little further down the tree one of the wire guys, that supports the iron electric light pole near by, has cut deeply into the bark. It is supposed that the current passed down the tree, which was very wet by reason of the heavy shower, and then along the wire guy and down the pole to the earth. The street was wet and muddy and probably carried the escaping current to the trolley rail and thus back to the power house.

The first to make the discovery of the runaway electric current was a horse to one of the grocery wagons of J. F. MacDonald. As the horse came around the corner it stumbled and nearly fell, and apparently went lame.

When a second horse belonging to Grocer MacDonald did the same thing, and went through even wilder movements, Wilbur Henderson, one of the clerks in MacDonald's store, wondered. About 10 o'clock the two-horse truck belonging to A. B. Summers, driven by Summers, himself, came along. They turned the corner and crossed the fated spot. Both horses were thrown.

Henderson decided to investigate. When he stepped in the mud near by he received a severe shock that nearly knocked him off his feet and caused him to make a spring in the air. After he recovered from the immediate effects, he piled barrels around the place to prevent further accidents.

As the tree and pole dried the force of the current became perceptably weaker. The street railway company was notified and sent linemen to the scene. Meantime it was discovered that the stray current belonged to the electric light company. The leak was stopped this afternoon.

ELUDED ARREST.

William Ross Made Good His Escape From Officer Winzenried.

Wm. Ross, whose family lives on South Second street, is wanted by the police. Yesterday Mrs. Ross went before City Judge Runyon and procured a warrant for Ross's arrest, charging him with creating a breach of peace at his home and using profane and indecent language toward her and the children. The warrant was given to Officer Flanagan to serve, but he could not find Ross. He then turned the warrant over to Patrolman Winzenreid, who went after his man about 10:30 o'clock last night. Ross has a reputation among the police of being a slippery individual. He has often given the officers trouble, and has even succeeded in eluding arrest.

Ross again outwitted the police last night. Officer Winzenried found him at his home, where he was trying to patch up his troubles with his wife. The officer placed Ross under arrest and started for the station house with his man. But Ross did not propose to be locked up and he succeeded in jerking away from him captor. Dashing up the railroad embankment Ross jumped on a coal train and made good his escape.

Officer Winzenreid still has the warrant.

Farm Brought $100 an Acre.

Mrs. Elizabeth Overland, of Dog Watch Hollow, Somerset county, has sold her farm to a New York party. The deal was made by John M. Schorb, Sr., of East Front street. Mrs. Overland received about $100 an acre.

Patrolman Weizenreid returned yesterday from his annual vacation, and Patrolman Saunders commenced today to enjoy his outing.

DREYFUS AS TRANSLATOR

The Prisoner Deciphers Odd Words in German For His Army Judges.

A LONG SECRET SESSION

General Chanoine Has Nearly Completed His Explanation of the Secret Dossier.

A Public Session of the Famous Court Martial to Take Place Saturday—Precautionary Police Measures Becoming More Strict—The Crowds Pressed Back.

Rennes, France, Aug. 10.—The second secret session of the Dreyfus court-martial lasted nearly five hours. M. Gen. Chanoine nearly completed his part of the explanation of the secret dossier.

He will be heard again for a couple of hours and then M. Paleologue, of the Foreign Office, will take up the task, which, it is understood, will be completed by Friday night.

A public session will take place Saturday morning. The dossier consists of about 400 documents, of which fifty have been disposed of.

Several of the documents are written in German. During the proceedings a German dictionary was sent for, and when certain words and expressions could not be exactly understood even with the aid of the dictionary. Dreyfus, who is a perfect German scholar, volunteered a translation and was allowed to give explanations, which were of valuable assistance to the members of the court.

The precautionary police measures are much more stringent than at first. Strong detachments of infantry, instead of gendarmes, cordoned the streets leading to the Lycee.

Gendarmes alone perform this duty and the crowds becoming much less numerous, are pressed still further back.

Persons standing inside the entrance hall of a house within view of the door of the Lycee are even compelled by gendarmes to retire into the interior of the house and the front door is closed.

Absolutely nobody but police and soldiers are thus within 100 yards of Dreyfus when he crosses the Avenue de la Gare.

The police authorities explain the rigor of these measures on the ground that Tuesday a few cries against the prisoner were raised while he was crossing the avenue. Not a discordant note has been heard anywhere since.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The Ministry of Interior has issued a note saying the story that Prince von Munster-Ledenburg, the German Ambassador here, has visited General the Marquis de Gallifet, the Minister of War, and insisted upon a guarantee against indiscreet disclosures prejudicial to Germany at the Rennes court-martial is absolutely false.

Killed in a Duel in Cuba.

Fort Scott, Kan., Aug. 10.—News is received here that J. L. Green, a well known young college student of this city, who for the last two years has been in Cuba, first as a major in the Cuban army and later as a member of the Rough Riders, was killed in a duel at Sancti Spiritus, Cuba, by an officer in the Cuban army. The trouble originated in Havana last March. The Cuban was the aggressor and challenged Green to a duel. Green accepted the challenge, but the Cuban refused to fight. Last week the men met and the quarrel was renewed. Another meeting was arranged, and Green received a bullet wound from which he died almost instantly.

Relics of the Cliff Dwellers.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 10.—Laden with relics of the cliff dwellers, Rev. Dr. George L. Cole, has returned from the ruined cities of southeastern Colorado and New Mexico. Valuable results were secured by excavations in an ancient communal dwelling on cliffs of the Santa Fe River, fourteen miles from Espanola, N. M. There were not less than sixteen hundred rooms in the larger building in its prime. It was 240 by 300 feet. Dr. Cole estimates that from 4,800 to 6,000 people lived in the pueblo. Among the bones taken from the burial mound were a woman's femur, nineteen inches long, showing a giantess seven and one-half feet tall. The cliff on which the ruin stands rises a thousand feet above the surrounding country.

Electricity From Niagara.

Niagara Falls, Aug. 10.—Prof. George Forbes, F. R. S., of London, England, electrical expert; Clemens Henschell, of New York and Germany, hydraulic engineer; Dr. Coleman Sellers, of Philadelphia, expert engineer and ex-president of the Niagara Falls Power Company, are here in consultation with William B. Raukine, secretary and treasurer of the Niagara Falls Power Company, and of the Canadian Niagara Power Company, in regard to the development of electrical power on the Canadian side of the river. The present plans call for a development of 100,000 electrical horse power.

New Yorker Arrested for Forgery.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 10.—J. M. Bates, alias J. C. Cooper, of New York, was arrested here on the arrival of the New York steamship. He is accused of obtaining bonds of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway from Murphy & Co., brokers, of lower Broadway, by forgery. Bates, or Cooper, who will be sent back to New York, declines to talk about the case.

The Columbia Wins From Defender

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—In the race from Gardiner's Bay to Castle Rock, Newport, the Columbia defeated the Defender by 22m. 18s. Owing to fluky winds the fleet of the New York Yacht Club was late in arriving. The two big boats, after starting fifteen minutes behind the other boats, finished in the lead. The distance covered was about forty-two miles.

2,000 YAQUIS SURROUNDED

Big Battle Between Torres and Indians Pending.

Guaymas, Mexico, Aug. 10.—General Torres has surrounded Bicam, a Yaqui stronghold, where 2,000 savages are massed. On the arrival of artillery and machine guns the Mexican General will begin the biggest battle ever fought between the Government and Yaquis.

The reports from General Torres say that Remley and Miller were found hanging from a tree with hands and feet cut off.

The uprising reaches down the Yaqui River to the sea. It is not expected to extend farther north than the Sahuaripa dsitrict.

The Government now has nearly 5,000 men in the field. Two hundred volunteers left Guaymas for Medano yesterday on the steamer Jalisco. A fight is expected on entering the Yaqui with a large band of savages that last week attacked and burned three sloops, Eares, a well-known Mexican, of Hormosillo, losing his life in the encounter.

Business in Guaymas and other points in Southern Sonora is practically at a standstill in consequence of the rebellion.

Kills Husband, Child and Herself.

Canton, Ohio, Aug. 10.—A terrible triple tragedy occurred three miles east of this city, resulting in the death of Edward Eckinger, his wife and their three-year-old daughter. Neighbors discovered the bodies of the three upon the bed in the Eckinger home. Mrs. Eckinger evidently first shot her husband and daughter with a shotgun and then tried to committ suicide by gashing the veins in her wrist with a knife. The latter apparently proved too slow or else painful, for the woman put a third charge in the gun and sent it through her heart. Ecklinger was twenty-five years old, and a farm laborer. Lately he had been drinking quite heavily and grequently quarrelled with his wife. The couple had agreed to separate. Mrs. Ecklinger was twenty-three years of age.

Four Firemen Shocked to Death.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 10.—By an accident the most peculiar in the history of the city Fire Department four firemen were killed at a blaze on the upper floor of the Mercer Chemical Company's building. The fire had been put out and the four men were attending to the lowering of an extension truck, when the ladder made a connection with a live wire and they were electrocuted. Two of them died as quickly as they would have in the death chair, and the other two recovered consciousness and then died, presumably from the terrible action of the electric fluid upon the heart. The dead are: Joseph Adams, lieutenant; Otto Geiseke, tillerman; George Benson, pipeman; Charles Hopper, relief driver.

Overdue Steamer Spoken.

London, Aug. 10.—The British bark Tacora, arriving at Mauritius, reports that on July 31, in latitude 39 south, longitude 39 east, she spoke the overdue British steamer Waikato, which sailed from this port on May 4 for Lyttleton, New Zealand, and which is for the first time reported since. The Waikato's shaft was broken. The British steamer Vortigern, Capt. Fairweather, which arrived at Aden July 24, from Hong Kong for New York, with machinery damaged, has repaired and proceeded.

Lives Lost in Storm.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The hurricane which has been raging in a portion of the West Indies, according to reports received by the Weather Bureau, has left that group of islands and shifted out into the open sea to the north of Porto Rico. The expectation is that the storm will wear itself out without doing further damage. Many lives have been lost and many ships wrecked by the fierce gale.

Evidence Favors Motorman.

Stratford, Conn., Aug. 10.—The evidence given in the inquest into the trolley car catastrophe in which thirty persons were killed, is in favor of the motorman, instead of against him. Witnesses testify that the motorman applied the brakes and did all in his power to avert the accident and that the car was not running at an unusual rate of speed when it reached the trestle.

His Whole Army Deserted.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Aug. 10.—General Francisco Liriano, sent from Monte Christi by the Dominican Government to attack General Ramon Pacheco at Dajabon, the headquarters of the revolutionists, was deserted when he arrived in front of the enemy, by his troops, who, without firing a shot, entered the camp of General Pacheco.

Looks Like Case of Murder.

Rome, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The man found dead in a box car in North Tonawanda with several bullet holes in his head, undoubtedly is Thomas R. Davis of Rome, who left here on last Saturday for the West in company with Ed. Plunkett. Davis had $60 in money when he left.

Made a New Swimming Record.

London, Aug. 10.—J. A. Jarvis broke the amateur swimming record for a mile, covering the distance in 25 minutes 13 2-5 seconds.

His Bible Verse a Hint.

Hugh Montgomery, whose father owns a large ranch in the fertile San Joaquin Valley, California, went to San Francisco and paid a brief visit at the house of a clerical uncle.

This divine, who is one of the best and most hospitable of men, follows the custom of having prayers before breakfast. In connection with this service each member of the family circle is expected to recite a verse of Scripture. Hugh, who has habitually a very healthy appetite, became decidedly sharp set before the amen was said. When his turn came to recite a verse he significantly repeated the familiar words:

"How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, while I perish of hunger?"

The reverend uncle listened with twinkling eyes and there was a speedy adjournment to a well-spread table.

WITH ONE VOICE.

Plainfield People Who Have Investigated Are a Unit On The Subject.

The voice of the people
Is heard all o'er the land.
Trumpet notes of truth.
Sounded from East to West.
Plainfield has joined the throng.
Many a citizen lifts his voice in praise.
Enthusiastic people everywhere.
Backs relieved of heavy burdens.
Nights of suffering, days of misery
Become nights of rest and days of joy.
It's the constant workings of
Doan's Kidney Pills.
Are these reports all true?
Ask a neighbor who knows.
Here's a Plainfield citizen, ask him.
Read what he says:

Mr. H. C. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says:—"After my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills I cannot do otherwise then speak in the highest terms of them. I was a victim of kidney complaint and dreadful backache, which was so bad in damp weather or when I caught cold that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the troubles. I was at my worst when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I got them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box. You are at liberty to refer anyone to me and I will gladly give my experience in detail."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

ARMING TO MEET BOERS.

British Government Preparing For Contingencies in South Africa.

TROOPS RECEIVE ORDERS

Several Regiments Are About to Be Sent in Response to Request of Natal Government.

Mr. Chamberlain Tells Parliament That Existing Affairs Cannot Be Tolerated—Trouble the Result of Transvaal Refusing to Redress Claimed Grievances.

London, Aug. 10.—Replying to questions in the House of Commons, Joseph Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, said no official confirmation had been received of the report that the Transvaal had declined to agree to a joint inquiry into the effect which the franchise reforms will have on the Outlanders.

Several regiments, he said, were about to be despatched to South Africa for the defense of Natal, in response to the request of the Natal Government, and preparation was being made for all contingencies.

Later, replying to Mr. T. P. O'Connor, Irish Nationalist member for the Scotland Division of Liverpool, Mr. Chamberlain deprecated a resumption of the debate on the Transvaal situation, which, he pointed out, while serious, still remains doubtful.

The Colonial Secretary added that he sincerely hoped that the report saying the inquiry proposal had been rejected was untrue.

While he regretted the necessity of answering Mr. O'Connor, it would be a fatal mistake to allow the latter's views that a war was entirely needless and that the Government ought to express willingness to wait, maybe twenty-five years, for a redressal of the grievances of which they complained, to be considered.

"The representative opinions," he added, "of even the small minority in the House of Commons or anything but the most insignificant minority in the United Kingdom, on the Government's policy, have been clearly expressed. We recognize the grievances of the Outlanders and have said that these grievances are not merely themselves a serious cause for interposition, but are a source of danger to the whole of South Africa.

"We say our predominance is menaced by the action of the Transvaal in refusing to redress the grievances or give consideration to requests hitherto put in the most moderate language of a suzerain power.

"We say that this state of things cannot be tolerated. We have put our hands to the plough and won't draw back. With this statement I propose to rest content."

The additional troops ordered to be in readiness for transportation to South Africa include a battalion of the Grenadier Guards and three batteries of artillery.

Another Monster Fossil.

Laramie, Wyo., Aug. 10.—Dr. W. J. Holland, of the Carnegie Museum, Pittsburg, who has a large force of scientists working in the great fossil quarry near Laramie, Wyo., announces that Dr. J. L. Worlman and Dr. Coggshall, formerly of the American Museum of Natural History, have discovered and exhumed another monster fossil dinosaur in a nearly perfect state of preservation. The whole length of the animal was sixty feet and it stood twenty feet at the hips, the thigh bone, or femur, being six feet long and fifteen inches in diameter. It had a head like a frog.

"We found the animal near the surface," said Dr. Holland, "and we already have the vertebral column, the centrum of the largest vertebra being twelve inches in diameter; eighteen ribs, each about six feet long; the entire pelvic girdle, most of the bones of the legs and feet, and I believe we will get them all. We also have nearly all the cervical vertebra and are following them into the bluff and hope to get the bones of the head."

Lieut. Peary's Dead Baby.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 10.—The body of the seven months old child of explorer Lieut. Peary, who died at Chelsea of cholera infantum, was taken to Washington, D. C., for burial by Mrs. Peary and her brother. Lieut. Peary has never seen baby Francine, as she was born after he left on his last trip for the Arctic. Marie Ahaligito, the other child, 6 years old, was born in Greenland.

The Winnipeg Bank Robbery.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Interest in the mysterious robbery of the Molsons Bank, Winnipeg branch, of $62,000 nearly a year ago was revived by the arrest of John W. Anderson, formerly a junior clerk in the bank, now bookkeeper for a wholesale house, charged with the theft. It is stated that $60,000 of the sum has been recovered. The money, it is reported, was dug up in the outskirts of the city.

Cameo that Cost $10,000.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 10.—The famous Marlborough cameos, purchased in London for the Museum of Fine Arts of this city, have arrived. The rarest is the work of an engraver before the time of Alexander the Great, and for this one gem, measuring 6 by 5½ inches, the sum of $10,000 was paid. Connoisseurs say it is the finest cameo in the world.

Honors For Marchand.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The "Evenement" says it understands that to Major Marchand has been offered the post of governor of the French settlement on the Samali coast and envoy extraordinary to King Menelik of Abyssinia.

Azores Raise Quarantine.

Ponta Delgada, Azores Islands, Aug. 10.—The quarantine against United States vessels has been withdrawn, except in the case of ships coming from Virginia ports.

SEVEN KILLED IN WRECK.

Montreal Express Jumps the Track at St. Polycarpe.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—The Montreal East Express, from Montreal to Ottawa, which left here over the Canadian Atlantic, jumped the track near St. Polycarpe. Seven persons lost their lives. The dead are: Joseph L. Rocheleau and daughter, of Montreal; Wilson O'Connor, of Ottawa; Ned W. Stairs, of Ottawa; W. H. Wiman, Montreal; Henry Harding, St. Catherines, Ont.; George McCuaig, fireman, of Ottawa.

The fatally injured are Nellie Ryan, Bridget Ryan and Ella McDougall, of Maniwako, Que., and Mrs. Joseph Rochleau, of Montreal.

Inspectors were sent to the scene of the wreck to determine if possible the cause of the accident, and as a result of this investigation it is said that the spreading of the rails at a curve is what caused the derailing of the train. The locomotive, baggage car, express and two passenger coaches are complete wrecks. Traffic over the road was delayed for about nine hours.

Another Car Wrecked.

Cleveland, Aug 10.—A Big Consolidated street car was wrecked on the Wade Parke avenue line, near Cactus Drive, a lonely spot adjoining Wade Park. The car was east-bound, and the first intimation of danger was its sudden rising from the track and a deafening report. Residents for a mile and a half around were awakened by the roar. The bottom and forward part of the car were blown out by the explosion, the forward trucks being smashed to atoms. Every pane of glass in the windows and door were shattered. The car was blown from the track and wrecked. The frightened motorman was hurled from the vestibule and the conductor from the platform, but they and the one passenger aboard were not injured. The explosive used evidently was nitro-glycerine. There is no clue as to the identity of the persons who committed the outrage.

Perth Amboy's New Bank.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Aug. 10.—Business men here are pleased with the prospect of the speedy starting of the new First National Bank of Perth Amboy, which, it is announced, will open its doors when the building at No. 110 Smith street, which has been leased for a term of three years, can be put in condition, which will take about two weeks. Since the failure of the Middlesex County Bank, firms who deposited in it and did their exchange business there have been at a disadvantage. While business has not been at a standstill, it is pointed out by leading merchants that a decided impulse has been given to all branches of trade by the establishment of the new bank.

Senator Beveridge Back.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—A despatch to the Tribune from Victoria, B. C., says: "Senator Beveridge of Indiana has returned by the Empress of China from Manila, which point he left on July 10. He is accompanied by two Americans, Dr. J. Donelan and R. D. Wood, each of whom has made Manila his home for more than a quarter of a century. " 'You may say,' Senator Beveridge replied to a question, 'that I absolutely decline to express any opinion at the present time as to Gen. Otis, the future of the Philippines, or anything else."

Thomas B. Reed's Plans.

Portland, Me., Aug. 10.—The rumor that ex-Speaker Reed has changed his mind about withdrawing from congress and that he will not go into the practice of law in New York is again being circulated in the first congressional district. The recent death of Mr. Moore, one of the partners in the law firm, is said to have changed Mr. Reed's plans. Several of Reed's intimate friends place no belief in the report.

Americans Won at Cricket.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 10.—The international cricket match between the United States and Canada has been finished here, the visitors winning by 133 runs. There was lively interest shown by the spectators, and the closeness of the game caused much excitement in the first innings. H. B. McGiverin, of the Canada team, and J. H. Mason, of the visitors, carried off the batting honors.

American Jockey First Again.

London, Aug. 10.—At the second day of the Kempton Park August Meeting, "Skeets" Martin, the American jockey, finished first on Sir R. Waldie Griffith's Landrail in the race for the Sunbury Handicap Plate. This event is of 300 sovereigns, the second to receive 20 sovereigns out of the plate; for three-year-olds and upwards; entrance, 3 sovereigns, and 5 sovereigns extra for starters.

Roca Wants a Combine.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 10.—In spite of denials on the subject, it is said that President Roca, of the Argentine Republic, who is now here as the guest of Brazil, is desirous of negotiating an alliance between Argentine, Brazil and Chili against the United States. The Presidents of these three republics will meet at Buenos Ayres next month.

Yale Memorial Arch Begun.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 10.—Work has been begun on the Yale Memorial Arch which is to be erected in memory of the Yale men who lost their lives in the Spanish war. The arch will span the passage between Battell Chapel and Durfee Hall. The fund has been raised entirely by subscription.

Naturalization Papers Received.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The state department has received from Governor Foster certified copies of the naturalization papers taken out by Frank, Joe and Charles Difata, three of the men lynched in Talullah, and who, it is said by the Italian authorities, were Italian citizens.

Dewey Overrun With Callers.

Naples, Aug. 10.—Admiral Dewey is kept busy returning the visits which have been made to him on board his flagship, the Olympia. Americans are arriving here daily for the purpose of paying their respects to the Admiral.

A Brooklyn woman, whose husband is connected with one of the Trust Companies of that city, was a sufferer from dyspepsia, and induced to try Ripans Tabules. She says that the effect on her was immediate. They helped her right away, and she was surprised to note what an appetite she had, and became curious to learn what the Tabules could be made of to produce such a result, and so quickly. She laughingly said that her husband threatened to bring suit for damages—because since she began taking the Tabules his grocery bill had increased three dollars a week.

TEETH.

If you have any to be extracted remember you will not be hurt in the slightest. My local anæsthetic is the best that can be obtained and is not known to the other dentists in this city. Gas strictly fresh administered by an expert if you want that. If you need artificial teeth you may rest assured that the greatest care will be exercised in selecting shape and color to harmonize with the face, also to restore the features to their natural expression and fullness. This is most important.

THE FILIPINOS FELL BACK.

General MacArthur's Forces Put 6,000 of the Native Troops to Flight.

MAIN BODY ATTACKED.

Advance of American Troops Steady But Difficult, Owing to Mud and Extreme Heat.

Enemy's Loss Reported to be Very Heavy While Our Casualties Only Number Forty—An Attempt Will be Made to Capture Angeles—Had a Running Fight.

Manila, Aug. 10.—Gen. MacArthur's entire force of 5,000 men, with the exception of 600 retained as a guard, left San Fernando and proceeded against the main Filipino army concentrated on the north.

The advance of the American troops was steady, but extremely difficult, owing to the mud and water and the intense heat. There was fighting along the whole front, but the enemy's resistance was not strong at any one point.

The natives gradually fell back to Calulut and our troops continued advancing toward Angeles on the north, and to the west toward Parlac.

The regiments engaged were the 9th, 12th, 16th, 17th and 36th Regular Infantry, and the 51st Iowa.

Gen. MacArthur's lines are established three miles from Augeles, which place he will attack in full force. The town far surpasses San Fernando in value as a base of operations, and contains the Filipinos' supplies.

The advance of the Americans was five miles in the first five hours. They started west, taking San Antonio and flanking the enemy's right, and then the force split, part crossing to the right of the railroad track and capturing Calulut. The other part moved toward Porlack, bivouacking within a mile of that place.

The natives are in the neighborhood of Mexico, where it is supposed they fled fearing an attack in the rear. There were only two sharp engagements. Our casualties probably number forty.

The 36th Infantry, commanded by Col. Bell, marched to Bacolor, and after a short fight captured the place. An armed car propelled by hand led the advance.

Brig.-Gen. Liscomb's command, the 12th and 9th Infantry, with four guns of the 3d Artillery, moved to the west, and Gen. Wheaton, with the 32d Infantry, the 51st Iowa and the 17th Infantry, with two guns, moved to the east. Two guns were first dragged over the road ties by horses, and then all of the guns shelled the enemy for half an hour, drawing only a light reply, but the infantry advance drew a heavy fire from the Filipinos.

The Iowans and the 17th Infantry encountered the first trenches at long range and charged a third of a mile over cornfields under the cover of the Gatling guns on the railroad, simultaneously with the 9th and 12th Infantry.

The enemy was routed. The American troops then separated into two columns, V shaped, northeast and northwest. A mile and a half out the line straightened, the 36th and 12th regiments going to the northwest. Three of the guns following were mired in the quicksand, and a fourth was disabled.

There was a running fight along the numerous trenches and over the usual country and fields and through three feet of muddy water. The right advanced slowly, Lieut. England's guns of the Third Artillery being the pivot.

The 17th Infantry engaged a large force of the enemy coming toward Mexico and also the main body moving northeast. A company of the 16th Infantry was despatched to the aid of Col. Bell and two guns bombarded Mexico.

From the 36th and 12th Infantry there are no reports, but the casualties of the other commands were 9 killed and 29 wounded, including three officers. The losses of the enemy were much heavier.

Two miles north of San Fernado the railroad is completely gone and the roadbed ploughed up. The capture of Angeles will break the communication of the natives with the hills.

Gen. Otis' Report.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The War Department received the following message:

Manila, Aug. 9.

"Adjutant-General, Washington.

"MacArthur with 4,000 men attacked Filipino army 6,000 strong concentrated around San Fernando 5.15 this morning. At 10 o'clock A. M. had driven it five miles in direction of Angeles. Casualties few. Attack ordered for seventh instant; rain did not permit movement. Railway from Angeles north badly washed by unprecedented floods of last six weeks. Beyond ability of Filipinos to repair. OTIS."

War Department officers point to the above report of General Otis showing that the active operations of our army in the Philippines have not been entirely suspended in the rainy season, and that the campaign against the natives can still be prosecuted with success under favorable circumstances. Before many weeks the unprecedented floods to which General Otis refers in this latest despatch to the War Department, will be over, for it is not to be expected that such heavy rains will continue for a very long period.

Coal Schooner Sunk.

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The coal schooner Industry of Albany sunk at the Pennsylvania Coal Company's works here. During the night Capt. John Coons awoke to find that the vessel had listed and was sinking. He had just time to arouse his wife and child, the only persons on board, and get them ashore when the schooner went down.

Venezuelan Blue Books Issued.

London, Aug. 10.—Three Venezuela Blue Books have been issued, giving respectively, the case, countercase and the British argument before the tribunal at Washington.

NAVAL MILITIA CRITICISED.

Several Officers of Brooklyn Division Are Reported "Poor."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—Acting Secretary Allen has received from Commander M. R. S. Mackenzie the report of the Board of Officers of the naval militia training ship Prairie relative to the conduct of the Brooklyn division of the New York naval militia during its recent cruise. The report is signed by Surgeon S. H. Griffith, Lieutenant William Truxton and Lieutenant F. K. Hill.

The report states that the target practice was of a high class. The professional ability of the enlisted force is good; the general physique is very good; the discipline poor in New York division. The efficiency of the officers generally is not good.

In this connection the report rates Lieutenant E. N. Walbridge as "poor," Lieutenant W. J. Henderson as "good" and Lieutenants E. N. Robinson and R. Rayner and Ensigns W. E. Carver and D. W. B. Sturges as "fair."

The manner of performing duty was good, except in the cases of Lieutenants Robinson and Walbridge, who are rated "fair."

According to the report, the engineer force did efficient work and its discipline was good. The command made a good record with signals, is rated "good" in infantry tactics, "very good" in great gun practuce and "good" in navigation.

The West Indian Cyclone.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The following dispatch has been received at the State Department:

"Pointe a Pitrie, Guadeloupe Island, Aug. 9.

"Secretary of State:

"Serious hurricane commenced at 10 yesterday morning. Blew severely until night. Roof Consulate blown off. Everything, wraps, personal property, total loss. Great many small boats lost. The damage in this city great. No details from the country. Wires down. Ayme, Consul."

The Navy Department has received no news of the hurricane. The Department was notified that the New Orleans, which was at Santo Domingo City, had put to sea.

Register Your Letters at Home.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The Third Assistant Postmaster General has decided upon a plan for the registration of valuable mail matter by letter carriers at the very door of persons in the residental sections of large cities having the free delivery system. This arrangement marks a new era in the postal service and practically brings the post office to the door of the citizen. The same idea is to be extended to the rural free delivery service as soon as the plans are perfected.

Legacy For His Politeness.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Theodore H. Swan, head clerk in the new Osborn House, this city, is richer by $500 because of his politeness. "I have travelled all over the world and I never have been so well taken care of anywhere else as I have right here by you. I will remember you in my will," was the remark made to him several years ago by Charles A. T. Loomis, a wealthy resident of Canandaigua. Mr. Swan received a notice from James McCaull, executor of the will of Charles A. T. Loomis, citing Mr. Swan to appear in Canandaigua September 7 and receive a legacy of $500 bequeathed to him by Mr. Loomis.

Mob Law Rules Again.

Amite City, La., Aug. 10.—Adolphus, alias Echo Brown, colored, was shot and killed and Edgar and Edward A. Barr severely flogged by a gang of armed men. Ten of the mob, armed with shotguns and pistols, entered a house, found their three victims, and, throwing sacks over their heads, dragged them out. As soon as they got out in the road Echo made a futile break for liberty, but had gone but a little way when he as fatally shot. The colored men were charged with numerous crimes.

Chicago Platform Democrats Meet.

Syracuse, Aug. 10.—The meeting of the Chicago platform Democrats called for this city by Secretary Thomas W. Cantwell, of Albany, was called to order with fifty in attendance. A long discussion took place between the anti-trust and anti-imperialism factions, led by Samuel Odell, of Auburn, and Austin Wheeler, of Geneva, and the ultra-silver men, led by Thomas W. Cantwell, of Albany, and Jay W. Forest, of Niagara Falls. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Odell declare for making trusts and imperialism the paramount issues in the campaign of 1900.

White Man Found Dead With Negro

Belvidere, N. J., Aug. 10.—County Prosecutor Angle has started for Columbia, Warren County, where were found in a loney spot near the line of the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad, the bodies of two men. One of the men was white, the other a negro. The former has been identified as a man named Francis. The negro has not yet been identified. Francis, it is thought, was killed by a train. It is believed the negro suffered foul play.

Marshal Shot Man and Wife.

Marion, Va., Aug. 10.—Luther Scheren, city marshal of this place, shot Joseph Rult, killing him instantly, and fatally wounded his wife, for resisting arrest. Scheren attempted to take Mrs. Ruit into custody on a serious charge, when her husband interfered. The marshal shot the woman in the head and shoulder. He then killed her husband.

For Expulsion of Religious Orders.

San Sebastian, Aug. 10.—The republican and Socialist parties have agreed to organize a campaign, demanding the expulsion from Spain of all the religious orders. Senor Salmeron a Iglesias and other Socialists are prominent in the movement.

Quaker's New First Baseman.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 10.—William J. Goekel, first baseman of the Wilkesbarre club, has signed with Philadelphia for the balance of the season. He was the star first baseman at the University of Pennsylvania before he came here.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

COMING EVENTS.

August 13—Rev. M. H. Pogson, D. D., will address the men's rally at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:14 p. m. Good music.

Buying Postage Stamps.

Westfield attributes the refusal of the Postoffice Department to establish the free delivery system in that town to the fact that many residents of Westfield buy their postage stamps in New York instead of purchasing them at the local office. The result is a reduction in the annual revenues in the Westfield postoffice and a corresponding decrease in the standing of the office in the department at Washington—this time the missing link to free delivery.

The idea of urging townsmen to purchase postage stamps at home may seem to the disinterested to be carrying the "home-trade" argument to the ridiculous, but in a place largely populated with New York business men, spending annually immense sums for postal service, the fact is that if many of the commuters would follow the admonition to buy postage stamps at home it would aid material in giving these same men, together with their neighbors, a superior postal delivery service in their home community. Inasmuch as nearly all the towns in the suburban section hear a great deal of complaint from the commuter element with reference to the poor postal facilities which they are compelled to submit to in their places of residence, the argument for buying postage stamps at the home office in preference to buying them in New York is not without its force and aptness.

Considered from the standpoint of Uncle Sam the idea is somewhat of a "robbing Peter to pay Paul" plan, because an increase of revenue in any of the small towns by the extra sale of stamps to New York business men means an equal loss in the receipts of the New York postoffice. But in this day and age of progress and improvement it is the manifest duty of every community, if it is to be up-to-date, to look out for its own interests first, and the advice to buy postage stamps at home seems to hold good along this line.

WHERE THE PRESIDENT RESTED.

President McKinley selected a picturesque spot for his vacation this summer. The Hotel Champlain is beautifully situated on Lake Champlain, near Plattsburg, N. Y. The scenery in the vicinity is unsurpassed, the air is invigorating and the opportunities for recreation are numerous. It is an excellent place for the tired man of affairs to recuperate. While at Lake Champlain the president's aim was to be as free as possible from the worries of state, so that his vacation might be in fact a holiday. With slight exceptions this idea has been carried out.

A noisy pot-house politician of the borough, who sometimes devotes his crude talent to writing alleged North Plainfield news for the papers in Bound Brook and Somerville, bobbed up serenely in the State Centre last week with a screed directed at The Daily Press, in which it was stated that this paper had printed a fake report of a suit for damages started against a prominent North Plainfielder. This boot-licking individual had better be called off by his superior. Perhaps the pot-house politician may think that he is doing his benefactor a fine favor by misrepresenting the true state of affairs in respect to the legal affair in which the latter is involved, but to a sensible public he is regarded only as a mendacious meddler who seems not worthy of even the small confidence bestowed on him.

The Trenton assessors have made a discovery that real estate owned by banks is not subject to taxation. The law passed last winter provided that in taxing bank property only bank stocks shall be assessed. Heretofore the real estate has been assessed against the bank and allowance made for the same in determining the assessed valuation of the bank stocks. Objection to the new law comes from the fact that a large portion of the tax heretofore paid on real estate will now be paid indirectly into other municipal treasuries. An effort will be made next winter to restore the old method.

Wm. Devereaux, secretary of the Democratic State committee, who is now editing the Asbury Park Journal, takes this view of the political situation in his party through the columns of the seaside paper: "The Democratic leaders who were here Monday discovered that they have a hard job before them. The bosses may be opposed to the Nebraska Colonel, but the rank and file of the Democratic party are for the old ticket and the old platform, and the rank and file will come out on top when it comes to a test of strength."

The cost of maintaining the Hudson County Almshouse during July was $5,690.03, and average per capita of $8.62. It had 633 inmates and 27 employes, a total of 630 persons. These figues are instructive to Union county in view of the agitation for a county insane asylum in this bailiwick.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Gas in London has been reduced in price for consumers from fifty-four cents to fifty-two cents by the South Metropolitan Gas Company, and at this low rate the dividends of the company are as large as the law will permit. London has no advantage over any large American city having tide water transportation in the matter of coal supplies and there is no reason gas prices should be cheaper in one than in the other.—Newark News.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Joseph D. Coolbaugh, of Rahway, who has been visiting friends in the vicinity of Dunellen, is responsible for this cat story: One of the fast trains on the Central road was flying through the borough some days ago when a large black and white cat attempted to cross the track. The pilot of the locomotive struck Mr. Thomas' cat 'mid ships, and threw it beneath the wheels, cutting the animal directly in two, close to the hind legs. Mr. Coolbaugh says he was astonished to see that cat, crushed and bleeding, deliberately crawl to the spot where its hind quarters had been hurled by the momentum of the train. With a sad expression on its dying face the cat gazed at the crushed remains. Then with one disparing cry laid down and gave up the ghost.

Already there are a number of Plainfield people who are planning to attend the river carnival at Cranford Saturday evening, August 19th. These carnivals are always popular with the young people of this city, and every year there are numerous parties that attend from here. This year will be no exception. Many go there on their bicycles, but find them somewhat of a hinderance when there for there is no place to put them. One party of Plainfielders, two years ago, tried a new scheme. They stopped at a large residence and presented themselves to the people sitting on the piazza whom they had never met before. They explained the situation, and asked if they might leave their wheels in the shelter of the piazza. The permission was readily granted, and the Plainfielders were free to enjoy the carnival without being compelled to drag their wheels round after them.

THEATRICAL.

For nearly three years New Brunswick has been without a theatre. If Col. W. M. Morton, the theatrical manager, is successful in carrying out his plans, the city will not be long without a playhouse. Col. Morton is trying to interest capitalists of New Brunswick in a project to erect a theatre.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Reniek Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

STORE NEWS AT Woodhull & Martin's.

This is the so called "Dull Season" and news of startling character are just a little scarce. We have been telling you from day to day of the low prices we are making on all Summer Goods, and you may be tired of the subject, nevertheless the closing out sales are of paramount interest to those who find it neccessary to make a dollar go as far as possible. Shirt Waists, for instance, may be had for about ½ half the price of a month ago. Styles the best, and goods in perfect condition. Many are buying wash goods at the sadly cut prices, with the view of using them next season. Wise people they are too. Pique Skirts, Crash Skirts, Lawn Dressing Sacks, etc., are being lamentably sacrificed, but our policy is no goods to be carried over, and we take our medicine without campaint.

ABOUT RIBBONS.

We seldom mention our Ribbons because our sales in this department are constantly growing, still in justice to the public in general we should like to say that we sell only good Ribbons, and carry regular lines so that shades may be matched perfectly from time to time, a wonderful convenience as may of our customers can testify. Narrow Velvet Ribbons in both Satin Back and Linen Back.

Our Gent's Furnishing Department is a store in itself, and an important adjunct to an estabishment like ours. It is an established fact that Department Stores can and do undersell Specialty Stores, and it does seem especially true of Gent's Furnishings.

.... DOWN STAIRS ....

Our Basement is a panorama of Furniture, Bedding and Housefurnishing goods of every kind. Not a day pasess but new goods are placed on Sale and others are closed out. The constant change in goods and arrangement give the place peculiar interest and charm and many who visit it from curiosity become permanent customers.

No Cut Prices on Trunks.

Nor will there be. We are selling good trunks cheaper than other people, and they are cheap enough.

A good trunk is something to be proud of, and a source of great comfort to those who have occasion to travel by land or sea.

Brass trimmed, Leather bound, Protected corners, Linen lined with all the modern conveniences, we believe them to be superior in durability, finish and appearance. Some cute little Steamer Trunks that are literally "as handy as a pocket in a shirt."

Miscellaneous Novelties.

Evening Fans, Novelty Belts, Side Combs, Back Combs, Pompadour Combs, Ladies' Collars, Waist Sets, Belt Buckles, Sun Umbrellas, Lace Ties, Silk Ties, and a thousand and one dainty varieties that lie so close to the feminine heart.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Aug. 10—The position assumed by the citizens' committee with reference to the Watchung Water Company has caused not a little amusement. It is the opinion of many people that it will be some months before the water company is ready to present the borough with the promised pure supply of water. Whether the driven wells will be found sufficient to give the needed supply is said to be not yet fully ascertained. The water company may seek other sources from which water will be obtained.

The horse exhibition to have been given yesterday in the town hall had to be abandoned because it was found impossible to induce the horses to climb the irregular stairs leading up into the hall.

The Baptist church society went to Boynton Beach yesterday and enjoyed their annual picnic. The excursionists went by stages.

Mrs. George Weeks, of Englewood and Mrs. William Dowe, of Metuchen, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Terry.

Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Martine are visiting relatives on Long Island. They will be absent about two weeks.

David Randolph and Miss Sally Mundy have been visiting the latter's son Daniel, at New Durham.

Mrs. G. R. Grandell has returned from a visit with his parents at Little Geneses, N. Y.

Mrs. Walter Apgar, of Plainfield, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. F. A. Bowlsby.

"Lud" Frazee has finished painting the Whittier and Lincoln school buildings.

Eugene Runyon has been visiting friends at Boynton Beach.

Mrs. W. H. Cole is confined to the house by illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 9—Rev. Mr. Shott will lead the praise meeting at the Fresh Air Camp in Westfield this evening. The large church stage has been secured and will convey those who would like to go this way. A number will go down on their wheels and a very pleasant meeting is looked forward to by the young people. Those going by the stage must be at the church at 7 o'clock.

The children in town have formed the habit of playing at the trolley terminus. This is rather a dangerous spot, especially for the smaller ones and it is feared someone will be injured some day.

Rev. Mr. Lewis, who has been occupying the Methodist pulpit during Mr. Woodruff's vacation, has gone to Whitehouse for a visit of two weeks before returning to his home in Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ford have been entertaining Mrs. Ford's mother, Mrs. Meyers, of Long Island, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Schenck, of Mountain avenue, are entertaining friends from New York for a short while.

Several of the wheelmen in town are practicing hard for the two-mile road race to held shortly.

Mrs. H. Thatcher and Mrs. J. Stevens, of Plainfield, visited friends in town yesterday.

Mrs. James Harold, of Plainfield, spent Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. T. M. Paff, Sr.

Harry Hall has been making some improvements about his home in Fanwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pangborn have taken up their residence in Roselle.

Miss Susie Parse has returned from a visit with Newark friends.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Aug. 10—The Board of Education has leased the Baptist church parsonage on Elm street and a house on First street owned by John Darsh, for use as kindergarten schools, the present school buildings not being large enough to accommodate the children that will attend school the coming term. The Board has been asked months ago to call a special meeting for the purpose of providing an appropriation with which to build a new school and a committee was appointed to confer with the members of the board on the question.

Matthew Sinclair, F. A. Butler and W. L. Perkins, of Westfield, have incorporated themselves into what will be known as the Westfield Orchestrelle Company and will build a factory at Garwood for the purpose of making musical instruments. The company is captalized at $300,000.

—Some improvements are being made at Crosby & Hill's store which will add to the efficiency of the business.

—This evening a progressive euchre party will be given at the Hotel Hunterston to purchase literature for the soldiers at Manila.

THE KENTUCKY GIRL.

She was bred in Old Kentucky,
Where the meadow grass is blue:
But she wandered from the homestead,
And to Asbury she flew.
Here her breeding cut no caper,
Here her blue blood cut no dash,
For you'll find her on the Bowery,
In a "quick lunch," slinging hash.
—Asbury Park Journal.

She was bred in Old Kentucky,
But she didn't want to stay,
So she drifted up to Long Boanch
One gladsome summer day;
And now she's wearing diamonds,
With silks and laces prim—
At Asbury she'd be slinging hash,
But here she's in the swim.
—Long Brauch Record.

She was bred in Old Kentucky,
She's a maiden fair to view—
But she sighed for a home in Jersey,
Where the grass is never blue.
Asbury Park and Long Branch—
No charms for her had they,
So she came to Atlantic Highlands,
And here she says she'll stay.
—Atlantic Highlands Journal.

She was bred in Old Kentucky,
Where they take their whiskey straight,
But she thought she could do better
So she left the Bourbon State.
She's now at Atlantic Highlands,
And with her Long Branch "boodle"
Is cutting quite a shine.
—Monmouth Press.

She was bred in Old Kentucky,
But she wandered far away,
Until she got to Freehold,
In a rather puzzling way—
She swiped her mistress' petticoat
On a sizzling summer day,
So now she's in the "cooler,"
And we think she's there to stay.
—Freehold Transcript.

She was bred in Old Kentucky,
Her hair was all her own,
But she was very lucky
When she struck Bayonne,
'Twas then her roses reddened
For love was in the van,
For she was wooed and wedded
By a Standard Oil young man.
—Bayonne Herald

She wes bred in Old Kentucky,
With its blue grass so tall;
And for her 'twas very lucky
That she left there at all.
Of the love borne by another
Her heart it wouldn't yield
And her affections she had to smother
When she finally struck Plainfield.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Die österreichische Fortschrittspartei dahier hat ein äußerst scharf gefaßtes Manifest erlassen, in dem sie den auf dem Verordnungswege erlassenen Ausgleich mit Ungarn als verfassungswidrig erklärt. — Plötzlich verduftet ist von hier der allgemein bekannte Stärkehändler Georg Schoen. Bisher unternommene Untersuchungen haben ergeben, daß der Flüchtling eine riesige Schuldenlast, die bis auf 150,000 Gulden veranschlagt worden, hinterlassen hat.—Die Verlegung der technischen Militärakademie von hier nach Mödling wird im Jahre 1902 erfolgen; erst bis zu diesem Zeitraume können die großartigen Bauten für die Anstalt auf dem von der Gemeinde gewidmeten Grunde vollendet sein.

Bozen. Der Rädermacher Franz Bodenmüller versetzte seiner 54jährigen Frau, mit der er in stetem Unfrieden lebte, anläßlich eines Streites im angetrunkenen Zustande mit einem Beil einen Schlag in's Genick. Von dieser unseligen That zur Verzweiflung gebracht, stieß er sich dann selbst ein Stemmeisen in die Brust.

Budapest. Der hiesige Generalkonsul, Prinz Hohenlohe-Oehringen, kaufte in Oberungarn eine Herrschaft zum Preise von 400,000 Gulden.

Görz. Zwei junge Seminaristen Namens Plesnitzer und Vodopivez wurden, als sie während eines Gewitters auf der Landstraße nach Castagnavizza spazieren gingen, vom Blitz getroffen, welcher Plesnitzer erschlug. Vodopivez wurde besinnungslos in's Seminar gebracht.

Graz. Der bekannte ethnologische Schriftsteller Rudolf Bergner, der gleichzeitig Präsident des Bundes der Vogelfreunde ist, ist das Opfer niedriger Verleumdungen geworden. Er hat sich dieselben derartig zu Herzen genommen, daß er sich mit einem Stockdegen elf Stiche beibrachte. Die Verletzungen sind lebensgefährlich.

Innsbruck. In Vernuer, einem Dorfe des Bezirks Meran, lebt ein Mann, Namens Jakob Pichler, im Volksmunde Vernuer Jaggele genannt, der dieser Tage 100 Jahre alt wurde. Er befindet sich in recht ärmlichen Verhältnissen.

Meran. Auf der nach der Höhe des Schneeberges führenden Drahtseilbahn hat sich ein schwerer Unfall ereignet. Durch das Zerreißen des Seiles stürzte ein mit Passagieren gefüllter Wagen in die Tiefe, dem Untergang entgegen. Unten wurde der Wagen fast gänzlich zertrümmert, und die vor Schreck halbtodten Insassen wurden unter den Trümmern hervorgezogen. Der Violinvirtuose August Herbert aus Frankfurt a. M. war eine Leiche und fünf andere Passagiere, darunter der bekannte Romanschriftsteller Freiherr von Ompteda, trugen Verletzungen davon.

Pola. Einer der Kessel des Torpedobootes „Adler" explodirte, als das Schiff sich auf der Höhe der dalmatischen Insel Torcola befand. Ein Marine-Lieutenant und fünf Personen von der Mannschaft wurden getödtet.

Triest. Neulich wurde in der Höhe von Miramare ein vier Meter langer und viereinhalb Metercentner wiegender Haifisch gefangen.

Villach. Der Gerichtsadjunkt Hallada wurde Nachts auf der Strecke der Staatsbahn Ossiach-Sattendorf sterbend aufgefunden. Hallada wurde im Zuge von einem rothbärtigen Manne, dessen Persönlichkeit nicht festgestellt werden konnte, durch Stiche verwundet, sodann beraubt und aus dem Koupe geworfen.

Schweiz.

Bern. Zum dritten Male seit dem Bestehen des eidgenössischen Sängervereins (1842) fand dieser Tage in der Bundesstadt das eidgenössische Sängerfest statt, an dem sich 98 Vereine, auch solche wälscher Zunge, mit 5997 Aktivmitgliedern betheiligten. Für die gemeinsamen Aufführungen, die großen Festkonzerte, die Empfänge u. s. w. und für das gesellige Leben wurde eine gewaltige Festhalle mit 10,000 Sitzplätzen errichtet, deren Baukosten, etwa 100,000 Frcs., die festgebenden Berner Gesangvereine tragen.

Zürich. Der bekannte Geologe Professor Heim feierte das 25jährige Jubiläum seiner Wirksamkeit als Professor am eidgenössischen Polytechnikum. Gleichzeitig feierte Heims Gemahlin das 25jährige Jubiläum ihrer ärztlichen Thätigkeit, indem sie im Juli 1874 als erste Frau die Bewilligung erhielt, in der Schweiz den ärztlichen Beruf auszuüben. Züricher Damen gründeten ihr zu Ehren eine Heim-Stiftung, nämlich ein kleines Krankenhaus für Kinder und zur Ausbildung von Krankenpflegerinnen.

Uri. Beim Bau an der Klausenstraße auf Urnerboden stürzte eine Felsmasse, die losgelöst werden mußte, so unglücklich auf mehrere Arbeiter, daß einer sofort todt blieb und zwei schwer verletzt wurden.

Solothurn. In Olten ist der Erbauer der Zahnradbahn auf den Rigi, Riggenbach, gestorben.

The fat undertaker,
Who plants by the acre,
Poor victims of cough and cold,
Is sighing and crying,
For we've all stopped dying

GARDENING IN JAPAN

WONDERFUL EXHIBITION OF HORTICULTURAL SKILL.

The Chabo-Hiba Most Interesting on Account of History and Great Age —Authentic Accounts Go Back to the Middle of the 12th Century.

American interest in the Japanese gardener's wonderful art has been has been quickened by the recent remarkable exhibit in New York of elf trees from the Mikado's empire, grown in every quaint shape. This magnificent display includes contributions of the masters of Japanese horticultural art and of landscape gardening. Count Okuma and Mr. Otori, of Tokio, aided in bringing the collection up to its high standard. The Koraku-en Garden, at Okayama, formerly the property of the Daimio of Bizen, but now under the care of the Prefect of the Province, is considered the leading botanical garden of the empire, and many of the plants exhibited were reproductions of its famous specimens.

Perhaps the finest specimen in the whole collection was an Enkyanthus Japarieus, over 100 years old. It is two feet high and was trained for two years by Shichirobei of Tokio, an expert tree trainer. Unlike most specimens, which were reproductions of some plants existing, this plant was trained to represent in every detail a painting by perhaps the most famous Japanese artist that ever lived, Korin. It was obtained from the private collection of Count Okuma of Tokio, who valued it highly, but yielded to the solicitations of Mr. Kushibiki, and allowed it to come to this country. In the spring it produced white, bell-shaped, small flowers, with a fragrant odor, and in late fall the leaves turned a beautiful red.

Two Chabo Hiba plants of the Negard style, about a foot and a half high and 270 years old, were especially interesting. Although most of the roots were exposed. The branches of the one faling to one side, the second plant springs from the centre of the pyramid formed by the roots of the first, its branches falling the other way, thus making a graceful, picturesque and balanced whole. Such skill and training demonstrated in this place can scarcely be surpassed. These plants had the benefit of training by the gardener Heisaku, of Tokio.

Another Chabo Hiba was by long odds the most interesting of all those exhibited—at least from the viewpoint of history and great age. The authentic history of this famous Chabo Hiba dates from the middle of the twelfth century, the beginning of the Kamakura period, when the art of gardening received a great impulse at the hands of the Buddhist priests. In one of the Kamakura temples it was guarded with all the care that could possibly be given to it.

Through the Shogun Regency and all the history-making times of Japan this plant was preserved as carefully as any heirloom could possibly be. A long time before the downfall of the Shogun one family of Tagaki of Tokio were appointed by the Shogun as gardeners in charge of the garden of the temple. At the downfall of the Shogun, about thirty-three years ago, it passed into Mr. Tagaki's possession. The height of this marvelous tree is a little over six feet, the diameter of the trunk is about one foot—a graceful conical shape.

A marvellous specimen was a crepe myrtle, 216 years old, and apparently the upright trunk was dead. In direct contradiction of this, however, are the various branches that shoot out in all directions, and which are covered with leaves and will blossom and bloom beautifully in the summer. It is so sensitive that if human fingers touch the trunk the whole tree quivers. Count Okuma, after much persuasion, was induced to part with this beautiful specimen.

In the cultivation of their limited specialties the Japanese florists are said to distance those of any other country. Dwarfting, enlargement, variegation of leaf and petal, the encouragement of freaks by careful artificial selection—these are the specialties of the natives of Nippin, which have been perfected by the hereditary patience, tact and labor of a thousand years.

The ilex plant, or Japanese larch, is peculiarly pliable, strong of root and easy to bend and train into any shape desired. In Japan it is customary to see the work of the Japanese gardener set out in gardens, the effect being unique, often forming a menagerie of painfully grotesque animals and birds, which to the Japanese is a representation of high art and a means of congratulation when gardener succeeds in bringing out some curious designs as yet unthought of by his competitors. Many of the public gardens of Japan are decorated with ilex, and in some towns prizes are offered to the gardener who designs the most remarkable figures and train the plant to bring out all its finest lines.

ABORIGINAL MUSIC

Construction of Musical Instruments One of the Earliest Inventions.

It has been said that vocal music is as old as language, and that the construction of musical insruments was among the earliest inventions suggested by human ingenuity. There is no acurate information bearing out this assertion in its literal sense. It is certain, however, that man in the earliest ages cultivated rhythmic sounds by mechanical devices, which may be considered the beginning of music as understood to-day, which is nothing but the result of the application of the principles of melody, dynamics and harmony in the civilizaton of those earliest rhythmic sounds. There is no way to prove the existence of vocal music in prehistoric times, for the preservation of sound was not then a known art. It is, therefore, only to the remains of musical instruments that we can look for the verification of the existence of anything like music in those times, and for the evidence of its gradual development.

Musical instruments of percussion, like the drum, and rattle, are the most simple, and likely the first to have been invented. The next in complexity are the wind instruments, and third the string instruments. This accepted order of invention seems to be borne out by the fact that savages often have the drum or rattle alone, but never the wind instrument alone or the string instrument alone. If they have the wind instrument they have the drum, and if they have the stringed instrument they have the other two. This is true of the earliest musical instruments of both Europe and America, and there are indications that up to a certain stage the progress was along similar lines and mainly in the same degree. Whether this was the result of some acquaintance of the prehistoric inhabitants of the two continents and of communication between them it is impossible to say. It is apparent, however, that if such communion ever existed it must have been broken off at an early day, for we find that the so-called Old World far outstripped the so-called New, and that only the most primitive of musical instruments existed here at the time of the discovery of America.

The United States National Museum, in New York, possesses several primitive, if not entirely prehistoric, musical instruments from different parts of the country, some of them found buried in the ruins of the civilization that antedated the Indians; others collected from among the most primitive of these aboriginal tribes. The collection offers an interesting field for the study of the beginning and progress of musical development in the Western World now embraced in the United States.

What Posterity Is To Miss.

"Have you noticed," said the pale mathematician, "how much easier it is going to be, after this year, to write the number of the year in Roman numerals?"

"What do I want to write the year in Roman numerals for?" said the ruddy business man.

"Maybe you don't," the pale mathematician answered, "but notice the difference. In arabic figures it has taken just four figures to write the number of the year ever since the year 1,000, and it will take no more till the year 9,999. But in Roman numerals the year 1,000 was written with a single letter 'M.' We shall never get back to one letter again. Now for this year it takes nine letters, 'MDCCCXIX.' And think of 1888, which we can easily remember. Then it took thirteen letters, 'MDCCCLXXXVIII.' That was the hardest year to write of the whole Christian era thus far.

"But next year, 1900, it will drop right down to three figures, 'MCM.' And how long do you think it will be before another year comes as hard to write as 1888?"

"I don't know," said the ruddy business man, absently. He was wondering whether he could turn the crank of the messenger call to the word "Police" without being noticed.

"Not to the year 2388," said the pale mathematician. "That will be written in Romans 'MMCCCLXXXVIII'—thirteen letters again."

The ruddy business man was getting more and more uneasy. "And what—what of it?" he said.

"Why, only think," said the pale mathematician, "how many generations of our descendants will never see a year so short to write as 1900, and how many and many more will never see a year so long to write as 1888."

"And what of—what of that?" said the ruddy business man.

"Nothing, I suppose," said the pale mathematician, "only those things always impress me."

"Bertha, I don't like to see you waste time on that young man. He doesn't do anything."

"Doesn't do anything? Why, he plays golf or tennis from morning till night."—Chicago Record.

UNIQUE DECORATIONS.

Floral Effects on China Produced With Postage Stamps.

An ingenious young girl of Chicago has produced an exquisitely decorated plate in floral effects by the clever use of postage stamps.

The chief decorations are four clever leaves made of green stamps. The heads are cut out around the first notched edge, allowing the figure two on one stamp to cover the spot where the three heads are joined. The stem is made by clipping the outer edge, which forms the desired curve.

Around the edge of the plate and between the clover leaves are hung rosebuds, found by carefully cutting the figure "two" from the red stamps and attaching them to the gracefully curved green stem. Forgetmenots are made with blue 1 cent stamps, and the result is indescribably pretty.

The plate is then covered with Demar varnish, which preserves the colors and makes it available for use. By scraping the superfluous paper from the back of the stamps it gives the finished effect of hand painted work.

THE ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN.

Miss Amelie Kussner is an American girl who has achieved a high reputation in Europe, as well as in America, as a miniature painter. Not long ago she went to St. Petersburg to paint a miniature of the Grand Duchess Vladimir and had been there only a few days when she was summoned to the imperial palace to paint a likeness of the czarina. Before she had finished this the czar ordered a miniature of himself.

Miss Eugenie Uhlrichs is an expert microscopist who is employed in New York by the government to inspect meat for the export trade.

Although it isn't long ago that the telephone was introdnced into the orient, the taciturn Celestials have already become quite as dependent upon it as the busiest American, and the most noteworthy feature of the whole institution is the employment of women not only at the switchboards, but in almost every other capacity connected with the service.

The Countess of Warwick has established in England an agricultural school for girls, which she personally superintends. It is known as the Lady Warwick Hostel. The girls are taught gardening, fruit growing, dairying, beekeeping, general farming and the supervision of estates. Having learned the theory of plant growing and cultivation, the girls of this novel college don overalls, take pitchfork, hoe or spade and, by toil that is considered man's particular field of exertion, acquire practical knowledge of the science of agriculture.

Unusual honors have come upon Miss Leonora Jackson, a Chicago girl, whose superb violin playing has attracted great attention in Paris, Berlin and London. She recently played before Queen Victoria at Windsor castle, being accompanied by the court orchestra.

Mlle. Mathilde Serao, the distinguished Italian novelist, is just now the literary lioness of Paris. She may be ranked with George Sand and George Eliot, as she possesses precisely those qualities as a writer which distinguished her two great predecessors of the same sex.

Miss Glenrose Bell, a fair haired and blue eyed girl, with artistic ideas and imagination, designs table linens for a big Chicago manufactory.

The woman's international congress, recently held in London, may indirectly have an effect on the ministry of Japan. Diplomatists are expecting to hear of the resignation of Viscount Aoki, the minister of foreign affairs, whose tenure has been made impossible by the progressive women of Japan. Viscount Aoki incurred their hostility by frowning on the attempted organization of a woman's league in Tokyo, which was to have been represented in the London congress.

Mme. Patti (Baroness Cederstrom) now earns about $50,000 a year, but has made as much as $350,000. Melba's income when fully engaged is $150,000, and Sarah Bernhardt has for years averaged $70,000. Rosa Bonheur sold one year's work for $190,000.

Straw hats which have lost their pristine freshness may easily be restored to favor at home without the necessity of a trip to the bleacher. Dissolve 5 cents' worth of oxalic acid in a pint of cold water. Lay the hat upon a flat surface and scrub briskly with an old tooth or nail brush. Rinse well with cold water to remove every bit of the acid, which would otherwise eat the straw, and lay it out in the bright sunlight to dry, taking care to still keep it in a flat position.

Household Talks

A Pretty Needle Case.

A unique and very pretty needle case is made of two pieces of cardboard covered with flowered silk on the outside and plain blue silk underneath.

The two pieces are fastened together with narrow ribbons, only the extreme ends of the ribbons must be sewed to cover, as the needle case must open from either side in the real "Chinese puzzle" fashion. When the white wool flap for the needles is loosely laid between the covers the needle-case has only to be closed and reopened from the opposite side, when behold! the little wool flap has slipped beneath the ribbon!

A PRETTY NEEDLE CASE.

In the Sick Room.

Give the room which has the best means of ventilation and the most sunshine to the invalid. Have dark green shades at the windows. Green tempers the glare of the sun in a way very soothing to tired eyes.

In making the bed, be sure that the under sheet is stretched as tight as a drumhead. Wrinkles are a scource of irritation, of which even the patient is not always aware.

Banish creaking chairs from the sick-room, and never allow yourself to sit in the room and read and rattle a newspaper. Do not rock back and forth in a rocking chair. A trained nurse tells me that she has frequently known a patient's temperature to rise and a frightfully nervous condition to follow the visit of devoted but thoughtless husband or sons who have indulged in these seemingly harmless little practices.

Even a nurse is not always as careful about hitting the bed when she approaches it as she should be. The slightest jar often has a bad effect upon a delicate invalid. Whatever you do, never whisper outside the door. This is intensely aggravating, and conversations with the doctor may just as well take place elsewhere.

Keep the medicine bottles, glasses and spoons out of sight of the patient. Every sick room should be provided with a small bottle cabinet, where medicines may be kept. If this is out of the question, a couple of swinging shelves curtained in silk may be used.

Never ask the patient what he wants to eat. Ask the doctor what he should eat, prepare it daintily and in small quantities, and serve it to him arrayed as tempting as possible.

Cover the tray with a spotless linen cloth, use the prettiest china and the brightest silver and glass, and adorn the tray with a flower or two. Daintiness is the best appetizer.

Wooden Jardinieres.

Ferneries, jardinieres and wine coolers can be bought in wood now as well as in silver or porcelain. Just what advantage a wooden wine cooler confers is not obvious, but ferneries and flower holders of wood to match the furniture of the room are a decided improvement on the tawdry silvered and lavishly decorated china boxes and pots. They have an air of solidity that gives dignity to the window seat or the nook where they may be placed, and, as they are lined with glass, and, in some instances, supplied with handles, they are practical as well as inexpensive and attractive.

Another pretty fancy in wood is a tea tray of mahogany with curling edges and brass handles with which to carry it. The tray is covered with a sheet of glass, which is, of course, transparent and invisible, the raised border of the tray hiding the edges. Hot teacups and scratchy plates or silver need have no terrors for the owner of a glass-covered tray.

Useless Long Chains.

One of the most useless things ever put on the market to tempt fair women's purses is the long dangling chain. It is neither for a watch nor a chatelaine, and why it is in vogue is more than any man and many women can determine.

These long chains of amethysts, olivines, imitation sapphires or turquoise and garnets alternating with imitation pearls are worn with theatre waists and light gowns. From the chain dangles a single ornament, a big heart of the predominating color in the chain.

Amiability Recommended.

The grumpy, sour woman will grow old—perceptibly. Only she who lives in an amiable frame of mind constantly can avoid those little tell tale marks that indicate the creeping on of age. Of course care and work assist very much, but if these are borne and performed to the accompaniment of cheerful songs and pleasant words, the results will show that the temper has the greater influence on the expression of the face.

To grind old scissors at home, saw the blade on the neck of a glass bottle, as if you were trying to saw that part off. In a short time the scissors will be quite sharp.

OUR RULES OF FAITH.

WHAT THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH BELIEVES AND TEACHES.

The Guideposts on the Road to Salvation and the Truths Which We Find Inscribed Thereon—A Short and Interesting Lesson.

The Rev. P. A. Baart of Michigan, distinguished among Roman Catholics as an authority on canon law, has published a short exposition of Roman Catholic doctrine, of which we give below the essential features:

"All Catholics believe that there is one God in three divine persons, Father, Son and Holy Ghost; that God by his word only and out of nothing created heaven and earth and all things; that angels and men are the chief creatures of God; that some of the angels sinned and were punished. That Adam and Eve, the first man and woman, disobeyed the command of God and were punished by the loss of justice and innocence and by sickness and death; that this deprivation of justice is original sin and all men are born with this defect or sin; that through the merits of her Divine Son and because she was to be his mother the Blessed Virgin Mary was preserved free from this original sin, which privilege is called her immaculate conception.

"That God the Son, by the power of the Holy Ghost, assumed human nature of the Blessed Virgin Mary and is called the God-Man, Jesus Christ; that for this reason the Blessed Virgin Mary, although a creature, is called the Mother of God and is deserving of a very special but not divine honor—divine honor is paid to God alone.

"That Jesus Christ, by his suffering and death, redeemed men and obtained for them grace or supernatural help whereby they may be saved; that the chief channels of grace are the seven sacraments, all of which were instituted by Christ.

"That Jesus Christ instituted a church or society and that to certain ones—i. e., the priesthood in this church—he intrusted the administration of the sacraments and the teaching of his doctrine; that the divinely appointed visible head of the church, the pope of Rome (the invisible head is Jesus Christ) is, by the aid of the Holy Ghost, and must be infallible—i. e., he cannot err when officially teaching the whole church a doctrine regarding faith or morals. This does not imply that the pope cannot sin or make a mistake in other matters.

"That all are bound to belong to the church, and he who knows the church to be the true church and willfully remains out of it cannot be saved. While believing this in regard to the church, they are not to be the judges of their fellow men in regard to salvation, which finally depends on their interior disposition known only by God and by themselves.

"That as Jesus Christ is God, he can do all things, and particularly that he can forgive sins and that he can change the substance of bread and wine into the substance of his body and blood; that he has given this power to certain men—viz, to the priesthood of the church.

"That all the doctrines of the church are contained in the revelation of God; that this revelation is found in the unwritten and the written word of God or in tradition and Scripture; that tradition finds its infallible expression in the teaching church; that both are of equal value in as far as they transmit the divine revelation—Scripture, because it contains and is the word of God inspired by the Holy Ghost to the sacred authors; tradition, because it is preserved from error by the assistance of the Holy Ghost. While, therefore, the members of the Catholic church revere and use the Bible, still they believe that the Scriptures alone do not contain all the revelation of God.

"That the marriage of Christians is a sacrament and cannot be dissolved by any court, but only by the death of either husband or wife.

"They believe in heaven, a state in which the good are rewarded eternally; they believe in hell, a state in which the wicked are condemned eternally; they believe in purgatory, a state in which those suffer for a time who die guilty of venial sins or without having satisfied the temporal punishment due to their sins; they believe in a general resurrection of the dead, followed by a general judgment, after which purgatory will cease and the souls of the just reunited to their bodies will be rewarded forever and the souls of the wicked also reunited to their bodies will be punished forever."

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The Roman Catholics have the best equipped college in Ceylon.

A Roman Catholic reading room for sailors has been opened in New York city.

A Roman Catholic chapel has been built on the spot where Maximilian, Miramon and Mejia were executed at Queretaro.

The Montreal True Witness suggests that the Roman Catholics of that city should start a bank of their own and also an insurance company.

It has been decided that the beatification of the venerable De la Salle, founder of the Brothers of the Christian Schools, will take place during the holy year.

The Roman Catholics of Waterville, Me., have purchased one-half of the Kennebec Agricultural society's property, known as the Nelson Trotting park, and will convert the same into a cemetery.

The Trinity ordination class at St. Paul's seminary, St. Paul, was the largest ever ordained in the northwest. Bishop Trobee of St. Cloud officiated. Twenty young men were raised to the priesthood.

THE CATHOLIC PAPER.

It Is an Insurance Policy on the Faith of the Household.

We are in the age of the apostolate of the press. It can penetrate where no Catholic can enter. It can do its work as surely for God as for the devil. It is an instrument in our hands. All should take part in this apostolate. Here at least there is work for every one. For ten who can write, ten thousand can subscribe and a hundred thousand can scatter the seed. Say not that to scatter books, pamphlets, tracts and leaflets is waste and loss, if you have but a grain of faith in the gospel parable of the sower. God himself, with bountiful hand, is always sowing his grace over the world of men, and what is the history of his sowing? Is greater praise to spring up under the hand of the Master? But for every effort we make there is an eternal reward. We need writers, a multitude of subscribers and a numberless body of men and women sowing and scattering the truth wherever English is read and spoken.

Some one has said, "The Catholic paper is an insurance policy on the faith of every member of the household." A Jesuit father calls it "the catechism of the nineteenth century," and Leo XIII has said "it is a paternal mission in every parish." From another writer, "The Catholic paper is the priest's assistant." Bishop Von Ketteler intimates that if St. Paul should come to life he would publish a Catholic journal as a means of doing the most good.

These are indeed the days of "an apostolate of the press." In an age of indifferentism "the Catholic spirit"—by which is meant "an interest in things Catholic"—can only be preserved by reading a Catholic paper. Both the second and third plenary councils of Baltimore advised Catholic families to "read regularly a good church paper." In a country like ours the son of the man who says "I don't read a Catholic paper" will say "I don't go to church." There is a meaning, therefore, in the expression "the providential mission of the press." "No Catholic family," says Archbishop Ireland, "should be without a Catholic paper."—Father Mathew Herald.

Leo XIII and His Cardinals.

Including the creations at the recent consistory, Leo XIII has already during his long pontificate created 128 cardinals, of whom 69, or more than half, have died. And, strangely enough, the total number of deaths in the sacred college during the pontificate has been 127, of whom 54 were of the creation of Pius IX and four went back to Gregory XVI.

Indeed only four of the cardinals created by Pius IX survive, and should they precede the aged pontiff into the tomb Leo XIII will be able to say to his cardinals, as Urban VIII did, "Non vos elegistis me, sed ego elegi vos" (It is not you who chose me, but I who chose you).

At the present moment the sacred college contains 37 Italians and 27 non-Italians—viz, 7 French, 6 belonging to Austria-Hungary, 5 to Spain, 2 to the German empire and 1 each to England, Ireland, Australia, the United States, Belgium, Poland and Portugal.

Cardinal Vaughan's Coadjutor.

Mgr. Brindle, who has been consecrated at Rome as a coadjutor bishop to Cardinal Vaughan in the diocese of Westminster, is 62 years old, studied for the priesthood in the English college in Liebon, and during the early days of his career was assistant priest at Plymouth cathedral. In 1874 he was appointed chaplain to the forces. In 1885 he became a first class chaplain, with the rank of colonel. He has seen much active service and has been mentioned four times in official dispatches and posesses a greater number of medals than any other military chaplain, Protestant or Roman Catholic. He especially distinguished himself at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir and has received the "distinguished service order." During the last Sudan war he walked on one occasion a distance of 20 miles to administer religious consolation to a dying soldier.

New Cathedral For New York!

There is a widespread belief in the cathedral parish, New York, that within a short time a new cathedral will be built far up on the west side, near the James Gordon Bennett estate, and that the existing cathedral will be used as a parish church, like old St. Patrick's in Mott street. The cathedral is crowded at every service on Sundays and holidays. Many families have been waiting for years to secure pews. The cathedral attracts large numbers of non-Catholics, who like the services, preaching and music.

Striving For God.

Have you taken notice of swallows when they are shut up in a room? They keep flying against the windows and the ceiling in order to regain their liberty. But they fly in vain until some kind hearted person opens the door for them. Thus it is with the souls in purgatory. They are continually taking their flight toward God, who created them and to whom they belong by grace, but they are held back by the ceiling of his justice until they are perfectly purified from their stains.—Cure d'Ars.

Earnest Catholics.

A Catholic bishop lately stated that religion was languishing in New England for the reason that Protestant clergymen no longer seriously believe in religion. It is a fact that while Protestants are becoming careless and indifferent in religious matters Catholics are as much in earnest as ever.—Atchison Globe.

The Lost Soul.

A beast of burden falls to the ground. We raise it immediately. A soul perishes, and no one comes to its rescue.—St. Bernard.

THE GILA MONSTER.

DISCOVERY OF POISON RESERVOIR THAT HAS PUZZLED SCIENCE.

It Is Now Known Positively That the Creature Is Dangerous and That Its Bite May Kill—Curious Habits and Mysterious Ways of the Reptile.

A mystery long inexplicable to science has at last been solved.

It relates to the Gila monster, so long suspected, though not proven, to be poisonous. The name bestowed upon it, helodrama suspectum, is an expression of this doubt. Now, for the first time, it is known positively that the creature is dangerous and that its bite may kill.

"We have discovered the poison gland, which hitherto has been declared not to exist," said Dr. Leonhard Stejneger, the famous reptilian expert of the Smithsonian Institution. "It is located in the lower jaw—just where we would have least expected to find it, inasmuch as the poison glands of venomous snakes are in the upper jaw.

"Furthermore, I think that we are now able to account for the contradictions of opinions among naturalists respecting the danger to be apprehended from an attack by this creature.

"As to whether or not suffering or death may follow its bite, it appears to depend upon the manner in which the injury is inflicted.

"When a snake bites a man the venom, located in the glands at the base of the fangs in the upper jaw, is instantly conveyed into the wound through grooves in the teeth provided for the purpose. The teeth of the Gila monster have grooves, which have been imagined to be designed to a similar end, but we have reason now to believe that this form of structure has reference merely to strength. At all events, the venom of the Gila monster cannot be conveyed to the wound made by its bite with much quickness.

"When the animal strikes the poison flows out of the gland through a series of little holes between the teeth and the lower lip. It is in no sense squirted into the wound, and it will not enter the latter unless the creature succeeds in getting a good grip with its teeth and in holding on for quite a little time.

"You must remember also that liquids do not flow upward as readily as downward. This accounts for the fact that some persons who have been bitten have not suffered in consequence, while others have experienced very painful results. There seems to be authentic evidence to the effect that deaths have followed assaults by the reptile. But what I have said will suffice in a large measure to explain the contradictions of testimony on the subject.

"Some years ago Dr. Weir Mitchell, of Philadelphia, who is an authority on reptile poisons, made an elaborate series of experiments concerning the Gila monster, but was unable to fully establish whether it was poisonous or not.

"This reptile lives under the ground, or under vegetable debris, and is torpid except before daybreak and in the evenings, when it goes abroad and preys upon slow-moving insects. It also eats the eggs and perhaps the nestlings of ground-nesting birds.

"Nobody knows whether or not the Gila monster lays eggs. Eggs have been found in the bodies of female specimens, but they may be hatched in the body of the mother reptile. They are about three-quarters of an inch long and covered with smooth, white skin. The Indians of Mexico, by the way, claim to have a cure for the poison of the Gila monster, which is efficacious if administered promptly."

The Smithsonian Institution has now in its possession the skeleton of a monstrous water snake, which was dug up recently in Alabama. It was fully twenty-five feet long when alive, with a body circumference of about two feet. Probably 1,000,000 years have elapsed since it died.

Killed the Black Sheep.

Forty sheep belonging to William Arndt gathered under a maple tree in Van Wert county, O., and among them were 18 black ones. A blinding flash of lightning seemed to penetrate the earth in the midst of the flock and killed all the black sheep, leaving the white ones unhurt. Each dead sheep had a round hole in the back of its neck, as if from a pistol ball, and around it the wool was burned away.

Two Bores.

Two of the deputies in the legislative chamber of the Duchy of Luxembourg are such bores that they try to speak at interminable length on all questions. They have become such nuisances that when either of them begins to speak the other members rush hurriedly out of the chamber, leaving him alone with the presiding officer.

CHESTNUTS AS FOOD.

Used Through France as a Popular Article of Diet.

The absence of Indian corn as an article of diet among the poorer classes in France is, writes Commercial Agent Griffin at Limoges, to a certain extent replaced by the popular chestnut. Throughout the center of this country, from the Bay of Biscay to Switzerland, there are large plantations, and almost forests, of chestnut trees. These nuts differ very much from the ordinary species indigenous to the United States; they are broad, large, and resemble the American horse-chestnut or buckeye, and are extensively eaten by human beings and animals. Great care is taken in harvesting this nut before the severe frosts touch it, as freezing hastens fermentation.

The poor people, during the fall and winter, often make two meals daily from chestnuts. The ordinary way of cooking them is to remove the outside shell, blanch them, then a wet cloth is placed in an earthen pot, which is almost filled with raw chestnuts; they are covered with a second wet cloth, and put on the fire to steam; they are eaten with salt or milk. Hot steamed chestnuts are carried around the city streets in baskets or pails; the majority of the working people, who usually have no fire early in the morning, eat them for their first breakfast, with or without milk. Physicians say that as an article of food, chestnuts are wholesome, hearty, nutritious and fattening. These nuts are often used as a vegetable and are exceedingly popular, being found on the table of the well-to-do and wealthy. They are served not only boiled, but roasted, steamed, pureed, and as dressings for poultry and meats.

Chestnuts are made into bread by the mountain peasantry. After the nuts have been blanched, they are dried and ground. From this flour a sweet, heavy, flat cake is made. It resembles the oaten cakes so popular among Scotch peasants. They are extensively employed for fattening animals, especially hogs. The nuts are boiled without shelling; only small, inferior fruit is thus used.

In good seasons, chestnuts sell as low as 1 cent a pound retail, and wholesale at $1.50 per two hundred-weights.

The Origin of Confetti

"Confetti" was invented by accident. A big printing house in Paris used to turn out millions of almanacs yearly, each with a small hole punched in the corner to receive a metallic eyelet. An enormous quantity of the tiny paper circles accumulated. These were sent to the paper makers, and would be so disposed of still had not chance and the smart proprietor turned them to profit. According to the "Family Doctor," it happens that two of the workmen were having a little dispute. Suddenly one of them caught up a handful of the paper circles and threw them in the other's face.

The other workmen joined in, and in the midst of the engagement the proprietor appeared. Far from getting angry, he told one of the men to fill a paper bag with the circles and take them to his house. That night he engaged a seat in the gallery at the opera, and during the dances showered the paper down on the heads of the people below. The idea caught on immensely, and he invented special machines for manufacturing the confetti. One has only to walk through Paris or Brussels during carnival to get an idea of the quantity of these little circles used. In Paris alone during the three days' carnival of the Boeuf Gras there were 200 tons of the confetti used.

Making Brass Instruments

The bell of a brass band insirument, which is the big end, extending back to the bow or first bend, is made of a single piece of metal which was originally flat. The pattern by which the metal is cut is of the shape that a bell would have if it were slit straight down the side from end to end and then flattened out. When the flat piece of metal from which a bell is formed has been cut out by such a pattern, it is bent by hand over a rod until the edges meet. The seam is brazed, and the piece of metal now has its trumpet-shaped form, but with many little more or less uneven places in the thin metal.

The bell is then placed upon a wooden mandrel, a form which fills the interior of the bell from end to end and is of the size and shape to which the bell is to be conformed. The inequalities in the surface of the metal are then worked out of it by hand with wooden hammers, the bell being repeatedly driven down upon the mandrel. When the bell has at last been brought in this manner substantially to its true form it is finished and brought to its perfect smoothness of surface in a spinning machine.

English Tramps

While some vagabounds remain in the country during the winter, there is none the less a general exodus from the road in the autumn. In the South the professional wayfarer's last chance of obtaining work in the fields is at "hopping"; in the North, at "tater scratching." Thousands of vagrants rely on one or the other industry to get a winter's stock or keep, or, at least, something with which to tide them over the beginning of the town season. Comparatively seldom, however, do they reach their winter quarters with much money.

Incredible as it may seem, it is yet a fact that every autumn a number of London's wastrels tramp into Kent for no other purpose than that of "going through"—of robbing—poor "hoppers"; and vagrants, notwithstanding that they are versed in the ways of the sneak thief, and hide their money more regularly than they wash themselves, are victimized as readily as are toiling East Enders. Other tramps squander their money before they reach town.—Good Words.

Three miles from the village of Krisuvik, in the great volcanic district of Iceland, there is a whole mountain composed of eruptive clays and pure white sulphur. A beautiful grotto penetrates the western slope to an unknown depth.

FAMOUS SOUVENIRS.

RELICS OF CELEBRITIES WHICH ARE NOW WIDELY DISTRIBUTED.

The Cradle and Sleigh of Napoleon—Prince Charlie's Walking Stick—Empress Josephine's Piano and the Wedding Dress of Marie Antoinette.

An interesting relic is the cradle in which the Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte slumbered in his infancy. It is put to a pleasing use by its present owner, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger. Standing in a corner of her drawing-room, it is heaped full of flowers at most times of the year. Mrs. Cruger picked up the cradle in Paris at an auction. It is of dark wood and without any particular ornamentation.

America possesses another relic of Napoleon Bonaparte—the sleigh in which he escaped from Russia in 1812. It belongs to a Chicago woman, and has been in her husband's family for fifty years or more. A parchment—certificate, dated April 7, 1816, and signed by a Bonaparte of Silesia—testifies that this is the sleigh in which the Emperor of the French made his escape from Russia. The harness is a wonderful piece of workmanship.

Queen Victoria treasures among her relics Prince Charlie's walking stick, the one which was mislaid by him on the morning of Culloden and afterward found in his bedroom. The handle of the stick has carved upon it two heads, one representing Wisdom, the other Folly. The Queen got it at auction for £160.

The Empress Josephine's piano is in a London showroom. It was made in 1808 by order of Napoleon and presented to the Empress. It was stolen during the sacking of the Tuileries and afterwards sold at public auction. The case is of the finest rosewood, ornamented with ormolin, while the keys are made of mother-of-pearl and tortoise shell. Napoleon's taste is shown by the fact that one of the five pedals works a drum and triangle attachment.

The wedding dress of the unfortunate Queen Marie Antoinette has been discovered in the ancient church of Kenuweg, near Vienna. It has for many generations been the custom for Austrian brides to present their wedding dresses to a church for the adornment of an image of the Holy Virgin, or to be made into vestments.

The mirror before which Gen. Washington made his daily toilet has for the last thirty-five years been hanging in a house in Warrenton, Va. It was purchased at the sale of the personal effects of Lawrence Washington, a great-nephew of the first President. The glass is framed in gilt, and at the top, in a background of white and black enamel, is Washington's coat of arms engraved in gold, with his motto, Exitus acta probat.

Another Washington relic is a sage palm belonging to the White House. The present head gardener has looked up his history, and verifies the fact that it was presented to Gen. Washington by a Baltimore merchant, who got it in Cuba when it had already obtained a respectable age. The plant was for a long time at Mount Vernon, but one day Washington presented it to a fair visitor who admired it. The plant was an heirloom until about fifty years ago, when with other things it was sold at auction and secured by the head gardener of the White House. It is thought to be 200 years old—older than the Government.

The Mole's Eyes.

The mole has been supposed to be almost destitute of eyes, either through disuse or because it has little need of such things in its underground habitation. The new idea is that it burrows in the ground to get out of the light. Its eyes are so constructed as to receive only the impression of light, and that impression is painful or annoying to the animal, which dives underground to get rid of the disagreeable sensation.

Ice From Glaciers.

Glaciers are now "exploited" to furnish ice for the market. Perhaps the first was that of Du Casset, on Mount Pelvoux, from which the ice is brought down by an aerial line and sent to Paris. At Grindelwald, above Interlaken, the glacier from which the river Lutschine issues, has now been turned to account in this way.

Genius Rewarded.

To the son of a Yorkshire carpenter is due one of the most useful inventions of the last century, and for the first accurate chronometer—his fourth attempt—he received the reward of $100,000 offered by the Board of Longitude.

A Giant Lily.

The victoria lily of Guiana has a circular leaf from six feet to 12 feet in diameter. It is turned up at the edge like a tray, and can support, according to its size, from 100 pounds to 300 pounds.

Frozen Milk.

Frozen milk is no longer a novelty in Europe. Milk is taken when fresh and frozen in bricks of different sizes and sold by size. The milk is said to be more hygienic than liquid milk.

New Saddle Post.

The horizontal part of a new bicycle saddle post is hinged on the upright portion, and a spring extends from the end to the top bar of the frame to support the weight of the rider.

Danger to Trees.

It has been stated that the danger to trees from lightning depends not only on their height, but also on their conductibility, resulting from more or less richness of sap.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Next Saturday afternoon on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association there will be a programme of unusual interest, and it is expected that a very large crowd of sporting people will be present. At this time a great effort will be made to lower the track record and a man from Woodbridge, the owner of "Rattler," will make the effort. There will also be some match racing and exhibition races. A feature will be a race for teams, and it is expected that the record will be broken. There will be horses from all parts of Union and Middlesex county, and some horses are also expected from Somerset county. The horses are now in the best of condition, and if the track is the same some great racing may be looked for. No admission fee is charged and the public is cordially invited.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—Randolph's Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is a good tonic for those who need bracing up.

—The Plainfield Street Railway Company has completed repairs to its tracks and the roadbed in the West End.

—Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will initiate several candidates at the meeting tomorrow evening.

—A very important meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be held this evening, and every member is urgently requested to be present.

—The two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Teeodore Roder, of Fourth street, is rapidly recovering from a fractured shoulder bone, the result of a fall about two weeks ago.

—The Jersey peaches are improving in quality and are becoming more moderate in price. There is an excellent selection to be found at Neuman Brothers' grocery.

—The West End Hose Company has appointed a committee to confer with the committee from Warren Engine Company in making arrangements for the firemen's parade to be held October 12th.

—The remains of Jacob Snyder, of New York, were brought to Plainfield Tuesday afternoon and interred in the Plainfield avenue cemetery. He was a brother of Mrs. Charles Geise, of this city.

—The valuable bay horse that has been owned by Former Postmaster Wallace Vail, and which was a great pet with him, died last exening from old age. Mr. Vail misses his faithful friend very much.

—The Star Crockery, 23 Somerset street, will open Saturday, August 12th, with a full line of crockery, glassware, tinware, and woodenware which they will sell at the very lowest cash prices. Give them a call.

WHEN YOU RIDE YOUR WHEEL

Always shake into your shoes Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It keeps your feet cool, prevents sweating feet, and makes your endurance ten-fold greater. Over one million wheel people are using Allen's Foot-Ease. They all praise it. It gives rest and comfort to smarting, hot, swollen, aching feet and is a certain cure for ingrowing nails. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Sample FREE by mail. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

SUIT NEED CLEANING?

Dusty weather soon brings that shabby look to the new suit and shows just where the grease spots are. If you want that suit cleaned so the same grease spots won't come back, send it to us, or we'll call for it. "Cleaning that is cleaning," is our motto.

A DOWNPOUR OF RAIN.

1.41 INCHES OF WATER FELL DURING THIS MORNING.

Numerous Streets Were Flooded in the City and Borough, But Park Avenue Storm Sewer Worked to Good Advantage

A series of sharp showers with a very heavy rainfall visited Plainfield this morning. They did no damage aside from temporarily flooding parts of city and borough so that they were nearly impassable. The rain began to fall at a very early hour and continued at intervals until late in the morning. At 4 and at 8:30 o'clock, the rain fall was remarkably heavy.

Weather Observer Neagle reports that the total rain fall during the morning amounted to 1.41 inches, which is nearly an inch and a half of rain. With such an unusual fall in a brief time, it was a wonder that there were not floods. Had it continued, much damage would have undoubtedly done by the high water.

The Park avenue storm sewer again showed its efficiency and kept that thoroughfare nearly free from water. Other streets were not so fortunate. Watchung avenue and East Fifth street, where they intersect, were flooded from curb to curb. So were most of the streets under the railroad bridges. South avenue, just west of the Netherwood hill, was converted into a great pond that reached from fence to fence.

In the borough Somerset street looked like a canal at times. Particularly was this so between Jackson and Manning avenues. The trolley cars could not stand on the switch near Jackson avenue for fear of burning out their motors. Watchung avenue, between the same streets, was also largely under water during the heavy rain.

ANXIOUS FOR FREE DELIVERY.

Westfield Up in Arms Over its Failure to Secure the Service.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 10—The following merchants and representative gentlemen of Westfield have signed a petition asking the citizens of the town to a meeting at the town rooms Saturday evening, for the purpose of considering the free delivery system for Westfield and to take such steps as is necessary to get the same.

If Cranford, with half the population and with none of the requirements, such as good sidewalk, good roadbeds and numbered houses, can get it Westfield should, and the Postmaster-General at Washington should have his attention called to the work that has been done by the department. The gentlemen are J. A. Dennis, Martin Welles, W. S. Welch, H. E. Knight, Freeman Bloodgood, E. J. Whitehead, A. E. Pearsall, C. G. Endicott, C. C. Dilts, H. L. Fink, J. T. Pierson, J. R. Connoly, J. B. Harrison, C. D. Reese and C. W. Harden.

DIED AT THE REVERE HOUSE.

Brooklyn Woman Succumbed to Paralysis Last Evening.

The death of Mrs. E. Whiteford, aged 75 years, of 70 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, occurred last evening at the Revere House of paralysis. Mrs. Whiteford was a native of Brooklyn, but was spending the summer in this city with her daughters, Mrs. Henry L. Stothoff and Mrs. Caroline Somerville, both of Brooklyn. Last Friday Mrs. Whiteford had a paralytic stroke and did not have sufficient strength to rally from the stroke. A short funeral service will be held this afternoon at the Revere House, after which the remains will be taken to Brooklyn, where services will be held at the residence of Mrs. Somerville.

One Hundred and Fifty Years Old.

With reference to the curios published in yesterday's Daily Press, it was stated that the grandfather's clock, owned by Mrs. Phœbe Crowell, of 10 Craig place, was "nearly one hundred and twenty-five years old." It should have read more than one hundred and fifty years old. This fact can be established, as Mrs. Crowell has a complete data when the clock was made and when it came into possession of her family.

Cap't Wehrly's Appointment.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, August. 10 John E. Wehrly, who was captain of Co. H during the time it was in camp last year, has been commissioned as Battalion Adjutant of the new Second Regiment, with the rank of First Lieutenant. Lt. Wehrly will no longer be connected with Co. H (now Co. M.)

Great Day For Colored Folks.

Next Wednesday will be "colored folk's day" at Boynton Beach, and it is expected that it will be one of the largest affairs of the kind ever held. A stage load of white people will go from Plainfield to see the fun.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

PERSONAL GOSSIP OF INTEREST TO CITY AND BOROUGH.

In Brief are Told the Daily Doings of Many Residents and Visitors Who Go and Come in a Social and Business Way

Miss Carrie Drake, of Duer street, is the guest of relatives in Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Joseph A. Powlison, of the borough, is spending a short time at Millington.

Mrs. Manning, of Franklin place, has gone to Madison, N. Y., to spend several weeks.

Mr. MacPherson, of Crosby & Hill's store, returns this week from a two weeks' vacation.

Freeholder Andrew Lutkins, of the borough, is in Annandale, Hunterdon county, on business.

Mr. Keeney and daughter Marie, of Jersey City, are visiting Mrs. Clay, of Netherwood avenue.

Mrs. W. R. Codington and family, of Sandford avenue, are summering at Millington, their country seat.

Mrs. George Fountain and family, of Jackson avenue, are enjoying life in the mountains of Pennsylvania.

The Misses Anna and Martha Bejoisted, of Elizabeth, are visiting friends on Duer street, this week. Next week they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Stratton, of East Third street.

HAD SCARLET FEVER.

William Addis Was Quartered at the Fire Department Headquarters.

William Addis, foreman of Truck Company, No. 1, of the Plainfield Fire Department, returned last Friday after spending several weeks in northern New York State. He was not feeling well when he went away. The physician there told him first that he was suffering from tonsilitis and afterwards that it was malaria. He told him to leave that part of the country. Addis returned to Plainfield and took up his quarters again at fire department headquarters. He consulted a physician who told him that he had scarlet fever. He was immediately quarantined in another house.

The Board of Health inspector has now disinfected all the bedding and rooms at the department headquarters and says there is no fear of contagion now. The dangerous flaking of the skin has only taken place on his feet.

Money for Westfield Fresh Air Camp.

A children's fair was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of F. H. Martin, West Front street, for the benefit of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp. The affair was arranged by Cornelia Lounsbury and Edna Martin, and was in every way a success. Lots of pretty things were offered for sale, and the young people had no trouble in disposing of them to the many people in attendance. The proceeds amounted to $7.40, which is about all profit.

Death of Mrs. Sexton.

Mrs. Sexton, widow of the late Bezaleel Sexton, and mother of Mrs. W. Montgomery Downey, wife of the rector of Holy Cross parish, died at the home of her son, George H. Sexton at Hempstead, L. I., yesterday morning in her 87th year, after a short illness of pneumonia. Funeral services from her son's home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment at Warehouse Point, Conn.

Papers Were Served.

Irving Brady, counsel for Wesley Brokaw, called at The Daily Press office last night and stated that the report circulated by an irresponsible borough correspondent that no papers had been served on former Mayor Saunders in action for $10,000 damages brought by Mr. Brokaw, was untrue. Mr. Brady stated that the papers had been served, as stated in this paper at the time.

—The Miantowona Tribe of the Castra Society will meet at the S. I. tent grounds Friday evening.

—Star of Plainfield Lodge, Shepherds of Bethelehem, installed three members last evening and received three propositions for membership.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

MAY NAME BERGEN AS M'GILL'S SUCCESSOR

If the Present Chancellor Has to Resign.

COULD HAVE IT BY ASKING.

LITTLE ELIZABETH LAWYER HAS THE NECESSARY QUALIFICATIONS.

He and Governor Voorhees Have Long Been Intimate—Frank Bergen Has Also Been Very Useful to Senator Kean—Chancellorship is a Seven Year Berth With $10,000 a Year—Some Other Facts.

If Chancellor McGill is compelled by reason of ill health to resign his place and Governor Voorhees is called upon to appoint his successor, it may not be Chief Justice Magie who will receive the appointment. There is another man in this State who can have the place for the asking and who, a quiet but defined rumor has it, is seriously considering the move should Chancellor McGill resign. That man is Frank Bergen, the well-known Elizabeth lawyer.

The Governor and Mr. Bergen have always been the closest of friends and allies. As the Governor often tells, they started together in a boarding house. Bergen, Voorhees says, did not go into politics while he did. The result, the Governor points out, is that he still lives in the boarding house while Bergen owns his own residence in the city and a country home as well. Mr. Bergen has never figured prominently in politics, but, in his own quiet way, he has been one of Senator John Kean's most able lieutenants. He would, therefore, undoubtedly have the latter's support for the Chancellorship, should he decide to ask for it.

With this strong backing and his intimacy with the Governor and the assistance he has rendered the latter, there isn't any doubt but that the little Elizabeth lawyer could have the appointment the moment he asked for it. Regarding his ability, there is no question of it. He is one of the smartest lawyers in the State and could fill the duties of chancellor very satisfactorily.

The only question is whether Mr. Bergen would wish to give up his lucrative practice. He has more than he can do at present. As Chancellor, he would have to give up all his private law business. The Chancellorship appointment is for seven years and carries with it a salary of $10,000 a year. The salary of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is the same while the other Justices of that court receive $9,000 a year.

PASS $300 MARK.

Fund for the Babies' Camp Still Continues to Grow.

When The Daily Press inaugurated the fund for the Babies' Camp it had no idea that the subscriptions would reach $300, but a few days ago when the last check was sent to Mrs. H. M. Myers, treasurer for the City Union of King's Daughters, the total amount rendered was $299.15. And now today three more subscriptions of a dollar each are recorded, bring the fund pass the $300 mark.

The fund stands as follows today:

Previously acknowledged and check sent to Mrs. H. M. Myers, treasurer	$299 15
Helen Joy	1 00
Alice Joy	1 00

For the Farmers

The regular quarterly meeting of the Somerset County Board of Agriculture will be held in the Court House Somerville, tomorrow, at 1:30 p. m. An extensive and interesting programme has been arranged, and doubtless the session will prove the most profitable one in some time. Clarence B. Lane, who is assistant in dairy husbandry in the State Agricultural Experiment State, will deliver an address on "Some Practical Points in Modern Dairying." Franklin Dye, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, is expected to be present and make an address.

A Yachting Party.

Miss Zaidee Van Boskerck, of West Eight street, and the Misses Holly, of Park avenue, gave a yaching party, Wednesday to a party of young people from this city. They went awheel to South Plainfield and there took the Lehigh Valley to Perth Amboy. At Perth Amboy, they boarded a sloop and spent the day on the water sailing and fishing.

Chaddler W. Riker Says His Company Will Spend $100,000 in Improving Property They Have Bought.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield August 11.—The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company has decided to go up Elm street to Dudley avenue where they will cross a piece of private property recently purchased of Mr. Bloodgood by A. A. Gaddis, and thence to the French farm, across this to Prospect street and to Brightwood avenue, where they will go through to the Osborn farm, which has just been purchased by the company.

Chandler W. Riker, president of the company, stated in an interview that he expected to start a settlement on this proporty, and would during the next year spend as much as $100,000 in improving it so that he could put building lots on the market.

The work is progressing rapidly here and by the first of next week the men will be tearing up the street in the main part of the town. An official of the company stated that the cost of building the road has so far averaged $4 a foot.

STATE COUNCILOR CAME UNAWARES.

Pleasant Surprise for the Members of Franklin Council Last Night.

The members of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., enjoyed a treat last evening by receiving a visit from State Councilor Luther L. Hansell, of Jersey City. Only a few of the members knew that he was coming, but the usual large attendance was present, not only surprising the chief officer, but the members themselves were agreeably surprised. Councilor Hansell gave the boys a good talk, that was both interesting and instructive. Later the members were given a chance of saying a few words, and everyone had a little to say of the good of the order.

The business of the evening was transacted in a thorough business-like manner, and the members were highly complimented by their State officer.

FALSE REPORT ABOUT JUNIORS.

They Will Not Attempt to Have Stores Close the Day of Their Excursion.

The Junions of this city are making every possible effort to have their coming excursion to Asbury Park on Thursday of next week a great success. The rumor that they intended to start a movement to have all the local stores closed on that day, as they did two years ago, is without foundation. The Daily Press is enabled to state authoritatively that the committee which is in charge of the affair, will attempt no such thing. Some of the stores may close but there will be no attempt on the part of the committee to secure united action and they have not empowered anyone to act for them in the matter.

Branchburg Township Divided

The Township Committee of Branchburg, at its last meeting, divided the township into two election districts. One polling place is established at North Branch and the other at Neshanic Station. Heretofore the voters from the lower end of the township were obliged to travel a long distance to vote. The division line is the Readington road, those living on the south side of that road going to Neshanic Station and those on the north to North Branch.

Caught Big Mess of Fish.

The record for catching fish for this season, thus far, must be given to "Buck" VanName and Chas. Maltby, of this city. Wednesday they went to Amboy and they caught without the slightest trouble seventeen bluefish, averaging four and a half pounds each, three weakfish, one sea bass and a flounder. At the time a large school of fish put in an appearance and it was "just like finding them," they were so plentiful.

McGill Has Not Resigned Yet.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 11.—Regarding the rumor that Chancellor McGill contemplates resigning, Governor Voorhees said yesterday: "It is news to me. His health is poor and he is in Europe, with the hope of recuperation. He has been overworked. I should be sorry to be forced to accept his resignation."

To Pay a Fraternal Visit by Bicycle.

Next Monday evening the bicycle squad from Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will go to Rahway and pay a fraternal visit to the Council at that place. This evening the home Council will visit Somerset Council, and a good time is expected.

YOUNG GIRL DRIVEN CRAZY BY CRUELTIES.

Terrible Story Told by Former Industrial School Attendant.

CHARGES ARE SWORN TO.

INMATES CHOKED, BEATEN AND KEPT IN DUNGEONS.

According to the Story Told by Miss Day Mrs. Eyler, the Principal of the School, Must be a Veritable Monster—Horrible Punishments Practiced on a Helpless Young Girl.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, August 11—Miss Frances Day, who was formerly clerk at the State Industrial School for Girls, came to Trenton yesterday and made a sworn affidavit before Attorney John Backes, in which she charged Mrs. Myrtle B. Eyler, the principal of the school, with the most extreme cruelty in her treatment of the inmates of that institution. Miss Day swore that she was committed to the institution when she was 13 years old, and at the age of 18 years was appointed clerk and made one of the nurses. She resigned because of the manner in Mrs. Eyler treated the children under her charge.

Miss Day declared that Mrs. Eyler compelled her to put straight-jackets and anklets on the girls when they were to be punished. "I make it as a general statement," said Miss Day, "that at no time while I was at the institution under Mrs. Eyler was a girl punished by being placed in a dungeon unless at the same time Mrs. Eyler beat the child with her hand and a strap. Immediately after Mrs. Eyler came to the school she procured a number of straps, and placed them in the hands of some of the teachers for use. Miss Hammill threw her strap away. Mrs. Eyler frequently used her strap in punishing the girls, and her favorite expression while striking the girls was: "You got the devil in you, and I'm going to get it out of you."

"Mrs. Eyler's method of treatment was to grab a girl by the neckband of the dress, and she frequently stated that this would 'shut their wind' and they would be the more easily subdued."

Referring to the case of Sadie Weisman, who was sent to the lunatic asylum, Miss Day said that the girl was 16 years old when Mrs. Eyler took charge of her and was rosy cheeked and healthy in mind and body. "When she left," said Miss Day, "she was broken down physically, emaciated, bloodless. Mrs. Eyler from the start showed an aversion to Sadie. She was constantly nagging the girl and punishing her severely for the most trivial offenses. The girl could never do anything that pleased Mrs. Eyler.

"One Sunday afternoon in April 1897, Mrs. Eyler sent for me to get a straitjacket and anklets. The girl was on the flat of her back in the upper hall of the school, with Mrs. Sickel, who weighs nearly 200 pounds, sitting on her abdomen. The girl's arms were pinioned to the floor. When I returned Timothy Conniff was also there."

"Mrs. Eyler said to Conniff: 'Drag her right up stairs to the dungeon.' Conniff obeyed. When he got her up stairs I was ordered to put the strait jacket and anklets on her and Sadie was in a great rage and was screaming at Mrs. Eyler and threating to report her to the board of managers. Mrs. Eyler was also in a great rage. She had lost control of herself. She ordered Conniff to choke Sadie while the girl was talking, and Conniff put both hands around the girl's throat and choked her until she was black and blue in the face and until she could not talk; she simply gurgled.

"Conniff released his hold on Sadie's throat twice and was ordered by Mrs. Eyler to repeat the dose. The breath was almost choked out of the girl, the strait jacket and anklets being on her during the operation. While the choking was going on Mrs. Eyler was whipping Sadie with a leather strap. She struck her at least a hundred times about the body and twice in the face. The blows across the face raised welts, and the girl was black and blue from the beating. After the beating she was dragged into a cell and was in confinement ever after until she was taken to the lunatic asylum.

"While Sadie was in the dungeon Mrs. Eyler ordered me to give her one slice of bread a day and one cup of water at 8 o'clock in the morning and at 5 o'clock in the evening, and no more. When the strait jacket is in use the paisoner's arms are drawn taut across the breast and fastened with heavy straps of ticking. When I

WHO WILL SOMERSET DEMOCRAT'S NAME?

That is What's What About the State Senatorship.

PLENTY ARE IN THE FIELD.

A BREEZY REVIEW OF THE SITUATION BY A CORRESPONDENT.

A Rather Humorous Observation on the Situation in the Democratic Ranks, in Which All the Candidates are Given Due Notice, and a Little Moralizing About the Use of Money at Election Time.

Political gossip in Somerset county seems centered in the Democratic camp. The preliminary canvass leading up to the county convention seems to be waxing hot, and numerous candidates are manipulating their various wires with all the cleverness at their command. In last week's Somerville Democrat there appeared a long communication anent the canvass for the Senatorial nomination, and in yesterday's Press a reply to this article was made. This week's Somerville Unionist-Gazette also opens its columns to a correspondent who signs himself "Independent Democrat," and writes as follows:

I was somewhat interested in the amusing article, bearing the caption of "Political Forecasting," published in the last issue of The Democrat. It would seem that the "Old Campaigner," in writing for Mr. Bergen and Mr. Dungan for Senator, was trying to carry water on both shoulders. But North Plainfield materially aids the Democratic leaders in their profanity at a fall election. Cannot the minds of these so-called leaders be appeased? Where is Mr. French? Has his candidacy been dropped? His record as chairman of the Board of Assessors, is emblazoned with deeds of imperishable valor and immortal prowess. Isn't that fact a sufficient qualification for Senatorial aspirations? And where is David J. Carney, the great harmonizer of the Democratic factions in North Plainfield? He is the only man that has special qualifications to abolish profanity among the leaders of his party. He visited Somerville last week with his literary umbrella and the proverbial newspaper tucked under his arm. Who knows but what he has been looking after the "fences." They certainly need repairing. Or, perhaps, he is looking for the Assembly nomination. North Plainfield, perhaps, would roll up a handsome majority for him.

And where is "Farmer" Klotz? Has he been forgotten, or is he afraid of the "deluge" on election day? Does the "Old Campaigner" suppose he knows all about the problematical future?

As to the Assembly much is said of the "unwarranted treatment" used against Mr. Childs' last fall. Why? Does a deposed leader of his party believe for one moment that he can place candidates in nomination for office and that they can be elected? The "rule or ruin policy" may be adopted in a faction of a party, but there are voters who act independently when the time arrives for them to deposit their suffrages. I endorse whatever was said of Mr. Childs' qualifications for office. An important factor in his candidacy last fall was "blood"—oozing from his pocketbook—and perhaps if he could be persuaded to become a candidate again there would be no cessation in a blood-letting campaign.

Billy DeMond is also mentioned as a candidate for the Assembly. All that the "Old Campaigner" says of him is true. He could have added, with propriety, that he had just embarked into business for himself. My advice to him is to "stick to business" and let politics alone. "Promises are quickly made and soon forgotten." He should remember the fate of Frank Ross and Billy Killiger, who were not only treated shamefully but perfidiously.

Politics get impure when money is used in the purchase of delegates, and if either party in Somerset county adopts this method in making nominations for office, water in a "deluge" is worse than "blood" in politics.

PROGRESSIVE EUCHRE WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Big Social Affair at the Hotel Hunterston.

HAD TWENTY-FOUR TABLES.

VALUABLE PRIZES WERE AWARDED TO THE WINNERS.

Was a Benefit to Raise Funds to Purchase Reading Matter for Soldier Boys in Philippines—Balance Will Net About $200—List of Efficient Committees Who Had Charge of the Affair Last Night.

There was a jolly party at the Hotel Hunterston last evening for the progressive euchre party, given to raise funds to purchase reading matter for the soldier boys in the Philippines. It was for a worthy cause and proved a most delightful affair. Besides the guests at the hotel there was a representative attendance of Plainfield society folk. The threatening weather undoubtedly kept some away but the euchre party was pronounced by all to be a great success, socially and financially. It will be several days before all the returns are received but it is estimated that the affair will net some $200.

The great ballroom of the hotel was arrayed in the national colors, which were draped at every convenient point. American flags were on every hand. Play began shortly after 8:30 o'clock. There were twenty-four tables and it took all the energies of the committee to keep play going smoothly. All was very satisfactory, however, and the plan adopted of keeping score proved all right. Besides those who took part in the game, there were a number of guests who congregated on the broad piazzas and watched the animated scene within.

Music proved an attractive feature of the evening's enjoyment. The game was over after two hours of play and the floor was cleared for a dance. From that time until long after midnight there was no cessation in the endless succession of waltz and two step.

The affair was arranged by a joint committee composed of ladies and gentlemen now stopping at the hotel. The burden of preparing the arrangements fell on the committee of gentlemen. Samuel Garr was president of the committee, and proved a very able head. Joseph Naylor Jones was vice-president, Frederic L. Kane, Jr., secretary, and Captain Jas. A. Snyder, treasurer. S. B. Carson and F. D. Condit also lent efficient aid as members of the committee.

Mrs. Coleman was chairman of the ladies' committee, which proved a very satisfactory auxiliary to the other. She was well assisted by Miss Kane, Miss Garr, Mrs. F. D. Condit, Miss F. K. Misch and Mrs. Daniel Speyer. The decoration consisted of Captain James A. Snyder, chairman; Miss Snyder, Mrs. E. B. Cudlit, Mrs. F. D. Condit, Miss De Lareintrie and Mrs. S. B. Carson.

The prizes, which were unusually valuable, were displayed at the hotel previous to the game, and were distributed among the prize winners at the close of the contest.

The winners of ladies' prizes were: First, Miss Furze, purse and card case; second, Mrs. Horsley Barker, lamp; third, Mrs. Jones, box of handkerchiefs; fourth, Miss Chevalier, bon bon dish; fifth, Miss Brown, Bohemia vase; sixth, Mrs. Baird, box of handkerchiefs; seventh, Miss Snyder, cut-glass bottle of perfume; eighth, Miss Porteous, Wedgewood plate; ninth, Mrs. Condit, mouchoir case; tenth, Miss Lux, handkerchief box; eleventh, Mrs. Chevalier, workbasket; twelfth, Mrs. Kane, silver candlestick; thirteenth, Miss Overton, bottle of perfume; fourteenth, Mrs. Misch, pair of slippers. The winners of gentlemen's prizes were: First, J. G. Drayton; second, Clarence L. Murphy; third, W. J. R. Thiers; fourth, A. H. Croft; fifth, J. VanHerwerden; sixth, Raymond Carroll; seventh, P. S. Suffren; eighth, John W. Kirkner; ninth, L. M. Reeves; tenth, Mr. Misch; eleventh, Edgar Serrell; twelfth, Dr. Emerson; thirteenth, F. D. Condit; fourteenth, A. L. C. Marsh.

BRYAN MEN TO CONFER.

NEBRASKA MAN'S FRIENDS WILL MEET IN PHILADELPHIA.

Conference Being Arranged by Clarence Atkinson, and None But Pronounced Bryan Supporters Being Invited.

Notwithstanding the attempts to stifle the sentiment among the free silver element of the Democratic party for the renomination of Col. Bryan for the Presidency quiet but persistent steps are being made to push Bryan's name in New Jersey.

Pronounced friends of the Nebraska man in this section of the State are receiving invitations from Clarence Atkinson, of Camden, to attend a conference of the Bryan supporters in the Ridgeway House, Market street and Delaware avenue, Philadelphia, at 1 p. m., September 2d.

At this conference steps will be taken to formulate a plan which will bring out the strength of Bryan in the Democratic party in New Jersey. Another conference is scheduled to be held in Trenton at a later date when plans for the entertainment of Col. Bryan on the occasion of his visit to New Jersey in December will be made.

CONGRATULATIONS IN ORDER.

Engagement of Miss Luella T. Mills and Frank Fulton, of This City.

The engagement is announced of Miss Luella Taylor Mills, the accomplished and eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Mills, of 301 East Fifth street, and Frank Fulton, a popular young man of this city, at present in the service of "Uncle Sam" and attached to the Government transport Independence now stationed at San Francisco. Mr. Fulton is a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York. For several years he was a clerk in the drug store of Howard Loggett in this city. Many friends of the young couple will unite in extending hearty congratulations. At present Miss Mills is enjoying a well-earned vacation with friends at Port Jefferson, L. I.

DIVORCE PETITION AS FAREWELL GIFT.

Mayor Brokaw, of Bound Brook, Brings Suit Against Wife.

SHE SAILED FOR EUROPE.

THE PROCEEDINGS A GREAT SURPRISE IN BOUND BROOK.

There is no Definite Charges Made by Mr. Brokaw Against His Wife, But Cites the Fact That She Has Been Away From Home for Sometime—He is Mayor and a Prominent Man of the Town.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, August 11.—Richard H. Brokaw, of Bound Brook, yesterday filed in Chancery a petition for divorce from his wife, who was Estelle P. Shurtz, on the ground of desertion.

The couple were married at Bound Brook in November, 1880, and lived together at that place for fourteen years. In the fall of 1894, Brokaw avers, his wife left him and went to Denver, Col. Later, he says, she went to New Orleans and from there she went to Munich, Germany.

The petition states that Mrs. Brokaw has recently returned to Somerset county. The husband avers that he has been informed that she is soon to return to Munich, and he asks that before she goes he be given a divorce from her.

This is all the petition contains. Brokaw is the present Mayor of Bound Brook, president of the Bound Brook Building Association, and was formerly an official in the Somerset County Bank. He was recently recommended for a position under the new building loan law.

Bound Brook, August 11—There is much surprise here at the receipt of the news that Mayor Brokaw has begun divorce proceedings. Mrs. Brokaw sailed for Europe yesterday morning on the Kaiser Friederich der Grosse. She and her husband left town on the same train yesterday and it was supposed here that he went to the pier with her to bid her farewell. Three years ago Mrs. Brokaw went to Europe, where she remained for two years. A year ago she returned to her husband's home here and it has generally been supposed here that they have since been living together.

Mr. Brokaw is a member of the china importing firm of Stemmler & Brokaw, which has offices and warerooms at 30 Park place, New York.

TO REDISTRICT THE CITY.

Changes to be Made in the Carrier Force of Local Postoffice.

Commencing with September 1st, the local letter-carriers will have different routes. The work of redistricting the city has not yet been completed, but will be in a week or two. The change as proposed will be one of great advantage to everyone in the city and borough and should meet with the approval of all. Postmaster Bird will do his best to give general satisfaction, and if he fails to please all he should not be blamed by the public.

Who Is This Dunellen "Her?"

Michael Graney is in the county jail charged with "using vile, obsence, profane and threatening language toward her and other members of her family." The commitment was issued by Justice Alfred L. Storms, of Dunellen. The name of the "her" is not given on the document and no one so far has been able to determine what "her" the Justice intended saying Graney had so ill-treated. The mystery was still unsolved this afternoon.—New Brunswick Times.

Somerset Election Board.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, August 11.—The County Board of Elections, composed of C. H. Bateman, J. H. Mattison, Jacob Shurts and C. A. Houston, met at the Court House yesterday and was duly organized. The two members first named hold over, and the new members are appointed for two years. The officers of the board are the same as last year.

WRECKED AND FLOODED.

Later Reports of the Hurricane's Fearful Work in the West Indies.

FULLY 500 ARE KILLED.

Plantations Are Wrecked, Homes Destroyed and Valuable Property Swept Away.

First Accounts Underestimated the Loss of Life and Great Damage to Estates—Sad Havoc Wrought in Porto Rico—Suffering Among the Homeless People.

Ponce, Porto Rico, Aug. 11.—Later and more complete details of the frightful havoc wrought by the hurricane which swept the West Indies, give evidence of the fact that the first accounts received of the calamity greatly underestimated the loss of life and also the property losses resulting from the storm in which the wind reached a velocity of ninety-eight miles an hour. The loss of property is practically out of the question to estimate, but enough is known at this time to justify the statement that fully $2,000,000 worth of damage was done. Reports from the interior continue to come in and each one adds to the chapter of widespread destruction and devastation. Villages have been destroyed, plantations wrecked, and everything moveable swept away.

It is now known that fully 500 people lost their lives as a direct result of the tornado. The storm lasted a little more than seven hours.

At Aibonito little remains standing except the cathedral and the barracks. Four natives perished and three United States soldiers were injured badly. As the town is without food, Government relief has been sent.

El Cayey was leveled to the ground, 200 houses being demolished. Two United States soldiers were injured there and many cavalry horses killed.

At Catano the entire plant of the Standard Oil Company was ruined. The loss on the property is $200,000.

At Bayamon a majority of the houses were destroyed and the others were flooded. Two hundred cattle were killed and the railway was seriously damaged.

The village of Carolina was razed. At Caguas four persons were killed.

A courier who had just arrived from Humacao, capital of the province of that name, on the eastern coast of the island, reports awful destruction there. The courier brought an official report from Captain Eben Swift of the Fifth United States cavalry, who says:

"Humacao was totally destroyed by the hurricane. Forty-six bodies have been recovered, and there are many more in the ruins. Eight privates of Troop C were injured, two fatally. Sergeant King of the Eleventh infantry was injured. North, a discharged private, is missing. At the port of Humacao eighteen bodies have been recovered. Eight hundred people are starving here."

Three persons were killed at Las Piedras and five at Juncor.

Couriers from other districts are anxiously expected at the palace. The steamer Slocum, Captain Thomas, on the way from Mayaguez to San Juan, was caught in the storm; but her passengers and crew were saved through the heroism of Mr. Single, the first officer.

An Appeal for Assistance.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The weather bureau issues the following bulletin:

Hurricne central north of eastern extremity of Cuba moving northwest and probably recurving northward. South Atlantic and Cuban shipping advised to remain in port. Williams,

"Acting Chief, Weather Bureau."

The Secretary of War received the following report from Gen. Davis, commanding in Porto Rico.

"San Juan, Porto Rico, Aug. 10.

"Hurricane of extreme violence passed over Porto Rico. The principal military loss at San Juan, one temporary company barrack wholly destroyed, some quartermaster property damaged. No personal injuries yet reported, but all wires are down. No injury to shipping here save two small local schooners sunk, two sailors drowned. San Juan lights temporarily disabled. Cable reports from Ponce say all shipping is ashore. Custom house sheds badly damaged and goods stored therein. Messengers from two interior posts tell of barracks unroofed and personal and public property damaged. The loss by the inhabitants is very great, and extreme suffering must result. The last hurricane severe as this was in 1876, when owing to loss of houses fruit and provisions there was famine. I would publish notice in the United States to the effect that contributions of food, clothing and money for the destitute would be received with the greatest gratitude and will be applied to the destitute. Have appointed a board to supervise distribution. There are many thousands of families who are entirely homeless, and very great distress must follow."

"Davis, Commanding."

Many Estates Destroyed.

Paris, Aug. 11.—Advices from La Pointe a Pitre, island of Guadeloupe, say the cyclone did enormous damage in the interior of that island, a number of coffee and cocoa estates being devastated. Le Mourle, a surburb, was half destroyed. There were a number of fatalities. San Juan advices say the cyclone caused great destruction in Porto Rico, whence it passed northward to Dominica, and thence to Cape Haytien and the eastern end of Cuba.

Montserrat Devastated.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., Aug. 11.—The Island of Montserrat (British West Indies) was devasted by the hurricane. All the churches, estates and villages were destroyed and many persons were killed. In addition many were injured and rendered homeless and terrible distress exists among the sufferers.

DREYFUS COURT-MARTIAL

Officers Continue to Keep a Close Watch on the Prisoner.

Rennes, Aug. 11.—The strictest precautions were again taken in the transfer of Dreyfus from the prison to the Lycee, the streets being cleared by the gendarmes.

The Prefect of the Department of Ille-et-Vilaine announced that the public sitting of the court martial would be resumed on Saturday.

Nothing is known respecting the examination of the secret dossier except that M. Chamoin has finished with the military dossier and M. Palelogue began on his display of the political dossier. According to rumor everything thus far has been favorable to Dreyfus.

The only revisionist newspaper in Rennes has been ordered by the Department Commander to stop sending copies to the Military Club.

Saturday's public session of the Dreyfus trial will be a veritable field day, probably the most important and exciting day of the whole trial, as General Mercier and M. Casimir-Perier have been cited to give their testimony then.

The first witness will be Lieutenant Colonel De la Roche Vernet, French Military Attache in erlin at the time of the arrest of Dreyfus. His evidence, it is expected, will ze disposed of quickly, and then General Mercier will be called.

A dramatic scene is anticipated by the anti-Dreyfusards, who rely upon him to throw a bombshell and confound the accused once for all. His words, "I have complete proofs of the guilt of Dreyfus," are remembered, and both sides are waiting for him to prove his statement.

Want to Settle Very Cheaply.

New Haven, Aug. 11.—The Derby & Shelton Traction Company, on whose road 30 persons were killed in the trolley accdent at Stratford, will endeavor to settle for twenty-three dead bodies at the rate of $100 per body.

Allan Wreck Paige, attorney for the road, has admitted that the company would probably default the many damage suits already filed by heirs of victims.

Under Connecticut law only nominal damages can be collected in case of death, unless suffering is proved.

In the Shelton trolley accident, when the car fell from a bridge fifty-seven feet high, the railroad company alleges that twenty-three people were killed instantaneously.

Judge Wheeler, in the New Haven Supreme Court, ruled only last week that there is no suffering where death is instantaneous. If the company defaults, judgment to the limit of the law, only $100 can be entered.

It remains to be seen whether a Connecticut judge can be found who will rule that falling in a trolley car fifty-seven feet of space to the ground constitutes mental or physical suffering.

The payment of $112,700 depends upon this ruling, for if this decision is made, then damages for $5,000 may be obtained in each case.

One of the first damage suits to be brought was instituted by Seymour Loomis, a lawyer, in behalf of the widow of William Baldwin, one of the victims. Mr. Loomis stated that he would fight the plea that in the Shelton horror there was no suffering before death.

"I am willing to rest my case," he said, "on the statement that no one can fall fifty-seven feet under any circumstances, while conscious, and not suffer. Falling in a trolley car increases the suffering."

The Coroner's jury has visited the Bridgeport Hospital, where the persons injured are being cared for, and questioned several of them.

At the inquest Eugene B. Underwood, an electrical engineer, reported that he had made an examination of the electrical equipment of the wrecked car and found that the controller box had been opened and part of the mechanism pried off.

George E. Hawes, who was present the morning after the accident, exhibited photographs showing a gang of men at work at the approach of the trestle tampering the earth about the ties.

Smelters Not to Compromise.

Denver, Col., Aug. 11.—The Denver Smeltermen's Union has voted almost unanimously to continue its strike until the American Smelting and Refining Company agrees to pay the wages awarded by the state board of arbitration. The two large smelting mills in Pueblo, as well as two in Denver, are closed.

Killed Himself in a Hotel.

New York, Aug. 11.—A man, who registered at the Delaware Hotel, 200 East Thirty-fourth street, as "A. E. Morgan," committed suicide by shooting himself twice in the head with a revolver. The only things found in his possession were a razor, three keys and three pennies.

Fatally Hurt in Boiler Explosion.

Shamokin, Pa., Aug. 11.—A boiler exploded at the New Greenough shaft at Marion Heights. Fireman John Reybuck was fatally injured. A number of men had narrow escapes from flying debris. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

It is computed that when marching soldiers take 75 steps per minute, in quick marching 108, and in charging 160 steps.

"Fusil" was the old name for the flint lock, to distinguish it from the match lock, and fusileers were those who carried fusils.

LITTLE ENCYCLOPEDIA.

New Zealand contains at present 42,000 natives (Maoris) and 626,000 whites.

It estimated that there are 350,000 sheep within a radius of 100 miles of Belle Fourche, S. D., yielding annually 2,000,000 pounds of wool.

Admiral Schley was an officer on the frigate Niagara when, in 1859, it bore back to Japan the embassy sent here to return the visit of Commodore Perry.

The electric trams of Cannes, the well-known French resort, have been suppressed by a government decree in consequence of a number of accidents.

Union County Orphans' Court.

IN MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF Jacob Blimm Administrator OF William Blimm, DECEASED, FOR SALE OF LAND TO PAY DEBTS. } Order to Show Cause.

Jacob Blimm, Administrator of William Blimm, deceased, having exhibited to this Court under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said deceased is insufficient to pay his debts, and requested the aid of the Court in the premises: It is, on this nineteenth day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, and real estate of said William Blimm, deceased, appear before the Court, at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, on the twentieth day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why so much of the said lands, tenements, hereditaments, and real estate of the said William Blimm, deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay his debts, or the residue thereof, as the case may require. And it is further ordered that this order be set up and published in one of the newspapers of this State as by the Statute directed by the Court.

RESORT TO MUTILATION.

Filipinos Charged With Cutting Off the Ears of Soldiers Killed in Battle

A BOUNTY IS OFFERED.

Aguinaldo Accused of Lending Encouragement to This Style of Savage Warfare.

Corporal Slessinger and Others of the Eighteenth Infantry, Make the Charge—Gunboats Nearly Destroy Town of San Fernando—MacArthur's Troops Resting.

Manila, Aug. 11.—Gen. McArthur's troops are resting at Calucat, while Gen. Wheaton is reconnoitering. The weather is scorching, but there is no rain.

The gunboats Yorktown, Concord, Callao and Pampanga shelled the town of San Fernando de la Union and half destroyed it. The natives replied to the fire with musketry and two cannon, but were finally driven to the hills.

General Otis has closed all of the Filipino ports and declared a blockade. Aguinaldo on July 24 closed all Filipino ports to Americans and ordered that the vessels of all other nationalities must submit to a military examination of their crews and cargoes.

An extensive reconnoisance was made by Major O'Brien, of the Seventeenth Infantry, who penetrated to a point close to Angeles. He estimates that there are 250 natives there. The Twelfth Infantry reports that there are scattered bodies of Filipinos near Porac.

The transport Sheridan sailed for San Francisco with the Thirteenth Minnesota and First South Dakota Volunteers and 205 discharged men on board.

The American Losses.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The records of the War Department show a total of 6,603 deaths from all causes since war with Spain was declared. This carries the general percentage a little higher than that in the Philippines, but it is less than 3 per cent. of the 275,000 men called suddenly to arms from all the walks of civil life and put into the field. The deaths in the Philippines, as stated, were 725. The deaths in Cuba have been 1,240; in Port Rico, 267; in Hawaii, 46; on Cuban transports, 220; and in the United States, from those in the camps of mobilization and from those returning debilitated by wounds and disease, 4,105. In other words, the deaths in the home country, where there has been no tropical climate and no bullets of the enemy, are nearly twice the number of those who have gone to foreign countries to do battle and withstand all the hardships of warfare.

Mutilate American Soldiers.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 11.—The Filipinos have placed a bounty on the right ears of Americans and mutilation is practised by them after every skirmish.

This statement is made by Corporal D. Slessinger and other men of the Eighteenth Infantry arriving on the steamer Empress of Japan.

The soldiers assert that the hospitals are full, and that Otis has ordered the regiments to keep all their sick and wounded except those requiring amputation.

Transport Leaves Iloilo.

Washington, Aug. 11.—This dispatch has been received at the War Department:

"Manila, Aug. 10.

"Adj. Gen., Washington:

"Transport Pennsylvania left Iloilo this morning. Sheridan should leave Manila this evening. OTIS."

The Floods in Manila.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 11.—Manila advices received by the Empress of Japan say that typhoons and rains have turned the city, wet enough at the best, into an immense pond. Sampalos district was so completely flooded that the people were forced into the upper stories of the houses.

British Cycle Champion.

Montreal, Aug. 11.—The one-mile amateur world cycle racing championship, contested at the I. C. A. meet here, was won in the slow time of 5m. and 43 2-5s. by Tom Summers Gill, of England. Earl Peabody, the Yankee, was second, and John Caldon, of Scotland, was third. The race was an unpaced loaf all the way, excepting on the home stretch.

President Reviews Soldiers.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The weather was cold and rainy here yesterday, and the President and Mrs. McKinley and the rest of the Presidential party remained in their apartments all day. The President reviewed the Twenty-sixth Regiment at Plattsburg Barracks to-day.

Germany to Take Final Possession.

Madrid, Aug. 11.—A despatch from Manila says that a German despatch boat has sailed from that port for the purpose of taking formal possession of the Caroline Islands, which were recently purchased from Spain by Germany.

England Hiring Ships.

London, Aug. 11.—The Government has made requisition for the third-class quarters of the Union liner Goth Castle and the liner Arundel Castle, in order to hurry troops to South Africa.

Fire on Jacob Lorillard's Farm.

Mount Holly, N. J., Aug. 11.—A barn on the farm of Jacob Lorillard, nephew of Pierre Lorillard, was destroyed by fire. The loss was about $5,000.

Bark Tenasserim Ashore.

London, Aug. 11.—The Liverpool bark Tenasserim is ashore near Callao. An attempt at floating was unsuccessful.

MRS. PEROT APPEARS.

The Abduction Case Remanded Until Tuesday in London.

London, Aug. 11.—Mrs. William Y. Perot, of Baltimore, Md., charged with abductnig her daughter Gladys, has been remanded at Bow Street Police Court until Tuesday, bail being allowed as previously.

At the conclusion of the hearing she was served with a habeas corpus to produce Gladys, granted on the application of Mr. William H. Perot, her father-in-law, and returnable in the High Court Saturday.

The court was well filled with a fashionably dressed audience before the beginning of proceedings, including the Misses Blood, Mr. N. Blood, Solicitor-General Richards, Mr. W. H. Perot Sr., Messrs. Hodson and Sumner, of the United States Embassy; Detective Gault, and the lawyers interested in the case.

Counsel for Mrs. Perot said he had received the extradition papers only an hour previously and had not had time to examine them. Therefore he asked for a short adjournment.

Mr. Newton Crane, counsel for Mr. W. H. Perot, said he did not object, provided it was understood that there would be no further postponement. This was agreed to.

Mrs. Perot left the dock, smiling at Gladys, and saying: "Come along, darling."

After she left the court room the habeas corpus was served.

Makes Affidavit to Charges.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 11.—If what Miss Frances Day says in regard to the cruel treatment practiced in the New Jersey Industrial School for Girls, is true, there is just cause for the investigation of that institution that is now going on. Miss Day charges, and makes affidavit to her statements that the strap and rubber hose are used in corporal punishment cases to such an extent that at least one inmate has been driven to the insane asylum and others have been punished unmercifully for slight offenses. She says the punishment was so severe that she could not bear to see it inflicted upon those in her charge and resigned her position as clerk in consequence.

Kronman Will Prove an Alibi.

New York, Aug. 11.—It is stated here that Nathan Kronman, who is in the Tombs prison charged with the murder of his wife will be able to establish a complete alabi at the Coroner's inquest. It is said that the police have fully made up their minds that Kronman is innocent of the charge against him and that new evidence has been secured that fastens the crime upon a mysterious man for whom the officers are looking. Kronman was allowed to attend the funeral of his wife which took place from the family residence.

Burglars Shoot Two Watchmen.

Bourne, Mass., Aug. 11.—Deputy Sheriff Edward H. Burgess, of Monument Beach, was shot by burglars here and his wound is considered dangerous. Stillman Smalley, a watchman at Buzzards Bay, who came to Bourne on his wheel to assist the Deputy Sheriff, also was shot, but was only slightly hurt. It is believed that the two burglars who did the shooting were also wounded, as blood spots were found on the road in the vicinity.

In Favor of the Copyright.

London, Aug. 11.—The Hon. Sir Ford North, judge of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, has rendered an important judgment. He granted the London Times an injunction restraining a publisher named Lane from reprinting speeches of Lord Rosebery admittedly taken from the Times. The judge held that the reporter had a copyright in his report, and that this copyright had been acquired by the Times.

Miss Barton in New Haven.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 11.—Miss Clara Barton, who is visiting ex-Judge Joseph Sheldon, is much fatigued, but not ill. She says the chief work of the Red Cross in Havana at present is the caring for 5,000 orphans of reconcentradoes. Friends of Miss Barton deny the rumors that she will soon give up her management of the Red Cross Society.

Wilkes-Barre Fears Yellow Fever.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 11.—A contractor here has imported sixty colored men from Danville, Va., to work on sewers and the citizens of the town are very indignant. It is feared some of the new arrivals may be afflicted with yellow fever germs, as they came from a yellow fever district. The city authorities will probably proceed against the contractor.

Miners Have Grievances.

Wilkesbarre, Penn., Aug. 11.—The miners of the Stevens Colliery, at Pittston, are dissatisfied. They sent a committee to the officials to present their grievances. They complain of excessive dockage and ask for an increase in the price for mining coal from 90 cents to $1.20. Many of the striking miners at Nanticoke are going there for work.

Chinaman Enters the Army.

Santa Ana, Cal., Aug. 11.—James C. Craig Tow, a native of California, born of Chinese parents, has enlisted in the service of the United States in the Philippines with the thirty-fifth regiment, U. S. V. Tow has lived all his life in California and was educated in the public schools of the state. Before entering the service he parted with his queue.

Good Times For the B. & O.

Baltimore, Md. Aug. 11.—It is known from authoritive sources here that the approximate gross earnings of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for July, 1899, were $2,628,849, an increase of $322,858 over July, 1898. These are the largest gross earnings in the history of the company for one month.

Another Prison Demon Gives In.

Columbus, O., Aug. 11.—One more of the "prison demons" yielded to the inevitable and went to work. O'Neil was taken to the cellar and after he had been severely paddled by Deputy Wells said he would go back and work. He kept his promise and is now getting along all right.

Some time ago I had my attention called to Ripans Tabules for heart trouble caused by indigestion, by one of my friends who had been using them for some time. I never found any relief till I began using the Ripans, but I have found great relief from them, and can say that I am cured. At times I feel slight symptoms of it when I eat a little too much, but that is my own fault. I always keep the Tabules on hand and take one whenever I feel indisposed the least bit. I never will hesitate to recommend them to any one in this bad state of health.

WANTED:—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send 50 cts. to Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials. R·I·P·A·N·S, 5 cents, or 12 packets for 48 cents, may be had of all druggists who are willing to sell a standard medicine at a moderate profit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the packet. Accept no substitute.

HORACE J. MARTIN,
Expert Horse Shoer,
No. 28 Somerset Street.

Don't trust your shoeing to any one who as not made a study of the horse's foot, it is too delicate in its construction to be handled by a carpenter or butcher. We are having great success in leveling and balancing horses that have been ungaited by being shod by inexperienced men and boys. Our reference is NOT to people who are out of the State, but to OUR CUSTOMERS, who can be found right here in the city and vicinity. Horses called for and delivered.

YAQUI INDIANS DEFEATED.

Retire From Bacum—Supposed to be in Force Near Vicam.

Durango, Mex., Aug. 11.—The state troops have had another encounter with the Yaquis near Medano, defeating them with a loss of several killed. The state troops did not lose a man, but Lieut. Francisco Calles died from sunstroke during the forced march.

Further details have been received of the attack on the sloops Alondra and Duisa, near Medano, when young Aurelio Paredes was killed. The Indians captured the wife of the captain of the Alondra and two boys and carried them off. At their first camp they tied up and flogged the woman, trying to get information of the forces at Medano, and then turned all three loose in the brush. The woman says the insurgents have infantry and cavalry, but she could not say what their number was.

The wound of Gen. Torres, received in the combat, is a slight one, and he is rapidly recovering. The death of Juan Maldonado, or Tetabiate, has been confirmed.

The Indians have retired from Bacum and are supposed to be in force near Vicam, where they are shortly to be attacked.

Burned By Exploding Lamp.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Miss Alice Eagle, of New York City, who is visiting at the home of William Pinkert, at 604 South Eighth avenue, this city, was the victim of a serious accident. Miss Eagle was in the parlor reading by the light of a kerosene lamp when the lamp exploded. In an instant her clothing was in flames, and before the fire was extinguished by Mr. Pinkert the young woman had suffered frightful burns on the hands, arms and face. The physician who is attending her says that her condition is serious.

Warrants for Missing Lawyer.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 11.—Samuel A. Schleimer, a lawyer, with an office here, but who moved to Rahway recently, is missing, and his office has not been open for the last ten days. Several judgments have been secured by creditors in the District Court and warrants are out for his arrest. It is alleged that his clients have lost about $2,000 or more, in sums ranging from $50 to $300. The money is said to represent trust funds and portions of estates.

Whitney to Race Abroad.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 11.—According to rumors that may be relied upon to contain some truth, William C. Whitney, ex-Secretary of the Navy, will ship the stars of his racing stable to England. It is said the string will include the great three-year-old filly Admiration, Killashandra and the best of the yearlings, and that Sam Hildreth, the stable's trainer, will go along and train there probably for the remainder of his seven years' contract. In this event Pat Duane will become Mr. Whitneys' American trainer.

Crosses the Atlantic.

Queenstown, Aug. 11.—The British ship Nelson, Capt. Perrian, from Lyttleton, N. Z., has arrived at this port and reports that she passed, July 3, in latitude 43 north, longitude 21 west, a three-ton cutter containing one man, steering in the direction of Ireland. The occupant of the boat made no reply to the Nelson's signals. The little craft was proceeding gayly in smooth water. Her name was "Great Western." The boat "Great Western" is from Gloucester, Mass.

"Smiling" John Kelly's Will.

New York, Aug. 11.—The will of the late "Smiling" John Kelly has been filed in probate in the Surrogate's office. The testator left all of his estate, valued at $20,330, to his widow, Isabel Kelly. The document was executed on Feb. 27, 1893, and was witnessed by William T. Ryer and Henry A. Gumbleton, and it names Mrs. Kelly as sole executrix. Ex-Mayor Hugh J. Grant was with Mrs. Kelly when she filed the will. He identified the signature of Mr. Kelly.

The President is Pleased.

Berlin, Aug. 11.—President McKinley has written a letter to Emperor William, expressing his pleasure at the appointment of Dr. M. von Schwartzenstein as Envoy Extraordinary to the United States during the absence from America of Dr. von Holleben, the German Ambassador at Washington, saying that Dr. von Schwartzenstein's previous stay at Washington is pleasantly remembered.

Bids $4,000 for Nomination.

Bellaire, O., Aug. 11.—Millard Fillmore Heisley, a newspaper man of this city, who is the latest bidder for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixteenth district, in a circular letter says that he will agree to use only $500 of the Congressman's salary and will give the remaining $4,500 toward building charitable institutions in the five counties of the district.

Back to the Wages of '93.

Lewistown, Pa., Aug. 11.—Notices have been posted in the different departments of the Standard Steel Works, employing nine hundred men, at Barnham, this county, that the wages in the various departments, dating from Aug. 1, will be restored to the same basis as before the cut in '93. This is equivalent to a raise of 10 per cent.

Five Children Cremated.

Jackson, La., Aug. 11.—Five negro children were burned to death on McKowan's plantation, near this place. The parents locked them up in their house and went to church. On their return the charred remains of the little ones were found.

READY TO COUNT CUBANS.

A Part of the Plan For Setting Up an Ordinary Government.

OBJECT OF THE WORK

An Enumeration of Those on the Island to Be Prepared For Next Session of Congress.

The Census to be Taken Under the Supervision of the War Department—Cubans Have Been Selected as Supervisors of the Seven Provinces.

Washington, Aug. 11.—In taking a census of Cuba the war department officials say they are simply carrying out the expressed will of congress, looking to the setting up of a stable government in the island. After the war the first thing to be done was to restore order, to feed and clothe the starving and destitute, and to clean the cities and towns so as to guard against disease. The Cuban army had to be disbanded, because it was a menace to order, and because its existence would have made a farce of any election which might have been held. Any election would have been controlled by the army, and any government resulting from such an election would have been a military government. With all these things accomplished—the work of disbanding and paying the army out of the $3,000,000 fund is not yet complete—the next step is to take a census of the island, so that when congress assumes the work of legislating for permanent government it may have an enumeration of the people to enable it to act intelligently. The administration will report to congress, and then it will be in a position to act with the advice and assistance of congress in establishing civil government—the aim always being to withdraw American troops from Cuba just as soon as the people shall have shown their capacity for self-government, or for conducting a civil government under American auspices.

The census will be taken under direction of the war department, but the officers of the census bureau have been called on for advice and instruction in method. Dr. Frederick Wines, the assistant director of the census, is preparing the schedules, and the bureau will have general supervision of the work under the war department. The seven supervisors for the seven provinces of Cuba have been selected by the department. They are all Cubans, and they will leave Washington Saturday night, so as to catch the Havana boat at Tampa on Monday night. The supervisors will select the enumerators, and the methods will be those employed in the census of the United States. It is the purpose to have the work completed by December, when congress meets.

It is not expected that the census will discover all the educational, manufacturing, mining and mortality statistics, but it will at least enable the war department to determine the population of each province and each township in the island, the condition of agriculture and educational facilities. The chief purpose of the census is to show the military authorities the voting population of Cuba, so that proper election tests may be applied, thus insuring a reasonably fair election representing the sentiment of the Cuban people. Some attempt will be made to determine the proportion of illiteracy among the people; but statistics of this kind are usually unreliable. They are secured by asking at each house whether the inmtaes can read or write. There has never been a pretense of applying a test, and in the nature of the work it is barely possible that any satisfactory test could be applied. To do so would multiply the labor of the census many fold; it is questionable whether an attempt of applying a test would be lawful.

Good Templar's Convention.

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The forty-seventh annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars is to be held in this city Aug. 21 to 24. More than five hundred delegates from all parts of the state will attend. There is to be a contest for the office of grand chief templar, and W. P. Hendricks of Richville, grand secretary, is a candidate for the office in place of I. C. Andrews, editor of the order's official organ at Syracuse.

Ex-Mayor Strong in 'Frisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 11.—William L. Strong, ex-mayor of New York and president of the Protective Tariff League, has arrived here from the east. He has come to meet his son, Major Putnam Bradlee Strong, who was a volunteer officer on the staff of Gen. Merritt in Manila, and who is expected to arrive from the Philippines on the transport Warren next week.

Tribute to Late Dr. Lamson.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11.—As an expression of the loss which the American board of commissioners for foreign missions has sustained in the sudden death of its president, the Rev. Charles K. Lamson, D. D., the offices of the board in this city were closed during funeral services over Dr. Lamson's body at Hartford, Conn.

Severe Charges are Made.

Albany, Aug. 11.—It is stated here that the investigation of the State Institution at Syracuse for feeble minded children has revealed a bad state of affairs and that the Board of Charities will bring the matter to the attention of the Governor at an early date. Some severe charges are made against some of the officers of the institution.

Firemen Hurt by Falling Roof.

San Francisco, Aug. 11.—Eight firemen and one telegraph lineman were badly injured by the falling of the asphalt roof of the Grand Central Mraket in the course of a fire in the building, which was situated on Market street near Sixth. John Freehan and David Levy were dangerously injured.

Taxing Corporation Privileges.

In line with the opinion rendered by City Counsel Price, of Newark, that corporation privileges are assessable as real estate, Camden's City Solicitor has decided to ask for an increase in the assessed valuation of the Camden Suburban Railway Company by $1,000,000.

The increase is asked for on the ground that in assessing the company the Assessors did not place any value upon the right of way of the company, which, it is claimed, is an assessable asset. If the increase should be made and the tax collected it would mean a twenty-thousand-dollar increase in revenue to Camden. The company's present valuation is $200,000. Should the increase be granted, it will raise the company's taxes from $4,000 to $24,000.

A proper application of this view of taxation laws in Plainfield would undoubtedly result in a great increase in the assessed valuation of property in this city, and in the natural course of events cause a material reduction in the tax rate by putting on the money-making corporations a share of the municipal expenses that they now evade under the present view of levying assessments.

We hope that when Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh returns from his European trip he will look into the application of the law as viewed by the legal representatives of Newark and Camden, and put such a construction on it, if it is possible, as will result in a just increase in Plainfield along the lines suggested.

Must Pay Her Majesty, Too.

The statement that it was his desire to dodge taxes in New York that caused William Waldorf Astor to become naturalized as a British subject, does not hold good in face of the laws that the wealthy have to pay tribute to in England.

For the privilege of becoming a British subject William Waldorf Astor will have to pay the Queen annually between $50,000 and $200,000 as an income tax alone. For the privilege of dying a Britisher Mr. Astor will be taxed about $8,340,000.

In England the rich pay. The British income tax is equivalent to three and one-third per cent. on all incomes of more than $2,000 a year.

His snobbish fads and likes are probably the only thing that caused him to change his citizenship from the "home of the brave and the land of the free" to the country ruled over by Her Majesty.

Instead of Chairman Wm. Gourley, of the Democratic State committee, and Congressman Daly, of Hudson county, trying to bring harmony and organization into the Democratic party, it looks as though the party would have to use some harmonizing arguments with these two gentlemen. The chasm between these two eminent leaders seems to be growing wider day by day. Yesterday the Congressman came out with a manifesto aimed at Chairman Gourley, in which the former announces unalterable opposition to the continued sway of the latter in the Democratic State organization.

There are several places about the city where surface drainage pipes are allowed to project out of the ground at street corners. The Daily Press has on more than one occasion referred to this matter, but the authorities take no heed. A few days ago a woman narrowly escaped serious injury while riding her wheel over one of these pipes, which she could not avoid. Had she suffered severe injury the city would have been the defendant in a law suit. It would pay the city to attend to this nuisance at once and thus prevent any chance of liability.

Evidently the Elizabeth Daily Leader and former Mayor Rankin, of that city, are not on the best of terms. Commenting on the report that Mr. Rankin might take a hand in the fight for the distribution of the G. O. P. plums at the next Union county convention, the Leader says: "The Plainfield Press evidently don't know that ex-Mayor Rankin is a dead dog in the politicial pit and that he will have but little to do with shaping the coming campaign."

Dr. G. Howard McFadden, of Hackensack, has been reappointed by the President a member of the Board of Pension Examining Surgeons. He is a Democrat and a friend of Vice-President Hobart.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Plainfield papers seem to be much concerned for the interest of our citizens who use the trolley. The Brunswick Traction Company agreed to run every half hour and they do it. The Plainfield company verbally agreed to issue transfers from Plainfield, but they failed to do so until public clamor became so great that they felt it wise to do so. We believe that all the citizens of Dunellen are entitled to the same consideration by the Brunswick Traction Company, and if they deferred to the present lamentations of the friends of the Plainfield company the same condition of things would exist for a portion of our citizens as in the past. A few people only would get the benefit of the twelve-minute service of the Plainfield company, while the balance would have just cause for complaint. That all our citizens would be pleased to have a twelve-minute service no one will deny, but they will wait for the Brunswick Traction Company to do it so that all our citizens may be treated alike.—Dunellen Call.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A live grasshopper will eat a dead grasshopper. A Missouri farmer mixed paris green and bran together and let a grasshopper eat it. He died. Twenty ate him up. They died. Four hundred ate those twenty, and they died. Eight thousand ate those four hundred, and they died. A hundred and sixty thousand ate those eight thousand, and died, and the farmer was troubled no more. In its flight from the far west the name of the statistician of this story has become separated from his figures, but the fact that the incident occurred in Missouri is regarded as evidence of its possibility.

The famous rooster owned by Willard Ross, of Codington avenue, is still trying to make a record and continues to sit on the nest of eggs. One happy diversion he resorts to is crowing, and he refuses to get off the nest when he performs this function. The rooster has now been on the nest for six weeks and the best he could do was to hatch one chicken and this he killed by stepping on it. Mr. Ross has decided to chase the rooster off the nest and break him of his persistent habit. There is no chance that he will bring out more chickens.

There is little resemblance between Sergeant Kiely, of the Plainfield police force, and Reporter M. F. Elderton, of the News staff. Nevertheless George Arrowsmith, of South Plainfield, managed to twist their identity last Tuesday afternoon. The Sergeant went out for a spin on his wheel. He wore his bicycle suit. While he was spinning along near South Plainfield, he heard a great shout and Arrowsmith came rushing out of his house. He was in such a hurry that he did not have time to put on his shoes. Arrowsmith has recently been before the public eye through his trial and subsequent fine for cruelty to his horse. Arrowsmith mistook the Sergeant for the glib tongued scribe of the News office.

He immediately began a tirade against the manner in which the News had treated the circumstances of the case and accused the supposed reporter of being the author of it. The suddenness of the attack nearly took the Sergeant's breath away but as soon as he tumbled to the situation, he allowed the mistake to go on uncontradicted. He humbly begged Arrowsmith to let the matter go. Then the South Plainfielder increased his wrath and threatened to sue the News. The Sergeant begged him not to as he said it would surely loose him his job. Then Mrs. Arrowsmith came out and joined her husband in denouncing the supposed reporter. Still begging for lenient treatment, the Sergeant rode away and wondered what would happen when Arrowsmith had a chance to talk to the real Elderton.

THEATRICAL.

The funniest of all farce comedies, "The Hustler," Thomas H. Davis, phenomenally successful production, will shortly entertain the mirth lovers of this city. The piece has been revised and rendered up to date and is all new except its name. The company is one of unusual excellence. The performance abounds in specialties, songs and dances of the most amusing and meritorious quality. Judged by the standard of an entertainment, pure and simple, "The Hustler" fills the bill in heaped and rounded measure.

The George Thatcher Greatest Minstrels will appear at Music Hall Friday night of next week. Generally speaking, to the public a minstrel show is a minstrel show, and the individual merits of the artists or the novelty of the acts introduced are the sole points that make one company better than another. Mr. Thatcher has not devoted his life to minstrelsy without thoroughly learning this fact, and is clearly proven by the roster of his present organization. A score of superior comedians, vocalists, dancers and specialists, as well as an excellent orchestra, will furnish a performance never excelled in modern minstrelsy.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—Fine fat salt mackerel, 8c. each, at Scheuer & Co.

—Breck's bottled grape juice is meeting with excellent sale at Neuman Brothers, Watchung avenue.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

AMERICAN STEAM LAUNDRY,
122 East Front Street.

By our new process of ironing we are enabled to give you a perfect domestic finish, and to launder turn down collars without breaking them. Call and see how we do it; you are welcome to inspect our plant at all times; no mystery about our work.

Hand work on all shirt waists, cost a little more, but perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

STORE NEWS AT Woodhull & Martin's.

This is the so called "Dull Season" and news of startling character are just a little scarce. We have been telling you from day to day of the low prices we are making on all Summer Goods, and you may be tired of the subject, nevertheless the closing out sales are of paramount interest to those who find it necessary to make a dollar go as far as possible. Shirt Waists, for instance, may be had for about ½ half the price of a month ago. Styles the best, and goods in perfect condition. Many are buying wash goods at the sadly cut prices, with the view of using them next season. Wise people they are too. Pique Skirts, Crash Skirts, Lawn Dressing Sacks, etc., are being lamentably sacrificed, but our policy is no goods to be carried over, and we take our medicine without campaint.

ABOUT RIBBONS.

We seldom mention our Ribbons because our sales in this department are constantly growing, still in justice to the public in general we should like to say that we sell only good Ribbons, and carry regular lines so that shades may be matched perfectly from time to time, a wonderful convenience as may of our customers can testify. Narrow Velvet Ribbons in both Satin Back and Linen Back.

Our Gent's Furnishing Department is a store in itself, and an important adjunct to an establishment like ours. It is an established fact that Department Stores can and do undersell Specialty Stores, and it does seem especially true of Gent's Furnishings.

.... DOWN STAIRS ....

Our Basement is a panorama of Furniture, Bedding and Housefurnishing goods of every kind. Not a day passes but new goods are placed on Sale and others are closed out. The constant change in goods and arrangement give the place peculiar interest and charm and many who visit it from curiosity become permanent customers.

No Cut Prices on Trunks.

Nor will there be. We are selling good trunks cheaper than other people and they are cheap enough.

A good trunk is something to be proud of, and a source of great comfort to those who have occasion to travel by land or sea.

Brass trimmed, Leather bound, Protected corners, Linen lined with all the modern conveniences, we believe them to be superior in durability, finish and appearance. Some cute little Steamer Trunks that are literally "as handy as a pocket in a shirt."

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 11—Charles Williams, the faithful gatekeeper at the Prospect avenue crossing, is a great lover of flowers. At one side of the flaghouse which he uses he has in full-bloom a handsome plant which he calls a spider lily. The seed was given to him by a member of one of the regiments that went to Santiago at the time of the Spanish-American War. A feature of this plant is the fact that it is constantly in bloom early in the summer until October. It is very handsome and attracts much attention.

Next Sunday Rev. Martin Sindall, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church at New Market, will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church in the absence of Rev. E. S. Jamieson, who is enjoying his vacation.

Rev. A. F. Todd, a retired minister, will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church next Sunday, the pastor, Rev. A. I. Martine, being absent on his vacation.

Mrs. James Dunham and daughters, Misses Ella and Lizzie, have returned from a two weeks' visit with her brother, George Dunham, of New York.

The roof timbers of Mrs. H. L. Terry's new house on New Market road have been placed in position and preparations are being made to shingle.

Mrs. Fred Wilcox, who has been at Stroudsburg for her health, has returned home. She was accompanied by her son Hudson and daughter Margaret.

Mrs. E. S. Jamieson is making a short visit with relatives in Brooklyn. Before returning to Dunellen she will spend a few weeks at Ocean Grove.

The borough has one case of typhoid fever, which is being attended by Dr. Brakely. The disease has not made itself manifest in a violent form.

Some needed repairs are to be made to the Baptist church this summer. The interior of the church will be repainted and a new carpet laid.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Baptist church, will preach in the Seventh-Day Baptist church at Plainfield tomorrow morning.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Baptist church, will preach at the Trinity Reformed church at Plainfield Sunday, August 20th.

Mrs. Buckle, the venerable mother of Mrs. E. S. Jameison, is visiting relatives in Newark for a month.

Jesse Dalrymple has returned from a short visit with his daughter, Mrs. J. B. Spowel, of Jersey City.

The Misses Blanche and Emma Marlowxy left yesterday to spend two weeks at Asbury Park.

Jackson avenue, from North to Church streets, is being macadamized.

Miss Ethel Jameison is visiting relatives and friends in Brooklyn.

Charles Boice left yesterday to visit relatives in the South.

Alvah Gray is visiting his sister in German Valley.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 11—A domestic in the employ of the Misses Bouchers, of the homestead, had an experience with sneak thieves Wednesday evening. The young lady was on her way to the station to catch a train when she thought she had forgot something. She set her valise down by the roadside while she returned to the home. She was only gone a moment but when she returned the valise was gone. The only one in sight was a resident of the Italian colony on Hunter avenue who was seen driving down the road towards home. The young woman concluded he must be the thief and as she knew where the man belonged, she went before Judge Clark and wanted to have him arrested. The Judge said he could do nothing without some evidence, but concluded to go over to the settlement with the woman and see if she could identify the man. The woman had no trouble in picking out the supposed thief but told the residents of the colony that if the valise was not be returned before Thursday night they would all be arrested. This seems to have been the "open sesame" for the recovery of the property, for it was found yesterday morning, intact, in the very place where the young lady had left it.

Owing to the threatening weather the Baptist young people were unable to go to Westfield last evening and take charge of the prayer meeting at the Fresh Air Camp.

John Scheelen, Jr., has sold his Bartle avenue property to Wm. B. Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds expect to take possession shortly.

Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., met in their rooms last evening. Miss Marsh, of Long Island, is spending a few days with friends in town.

Wm. B. Noble is enjoying his annual two weeks' vacation and is spending it very pleasantly taking short trips each day.

Frank Allen celebrated his birthday yesterday by entertaining several of his friends at a crabbing party at Tremley Point.

Rev. Mr. Woodruff, who has been enjoying a month's vacation in the west, will occupy his pulpit again Sunday.

Charles Ball, of Cumberland, Md., is spending a two weeks' vacation with his mother, Mrs. S. M. Ball.

Frank R. Allen is suffering from a badly sprained hand, the result of a tussle breaking in a new horse.

Rev. Mr. Shott will lead the prayer meeting in the Baptist church this evening.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 11.—Dr. Fred A. Kinch, the local consul of the L. A. W., will be the referee of the fifteen-mile road race to be run on South avenue from Westfield to Netherwood, Labor Day, September 4th. The handicapping will be done by R. M. Stickle, who is well acquainted with the records of most of the road racers in this part of the country.

Rev. George A. Francis, pastor of the Baptist church, has been granted a vacation of one month, and during his absence the pulpit will be filled as follows: The coming Sunday, Rev. D. T. MacClymont, of Fairport; August 20th, Rev. A. E. Crane, of Plainfield; August 27th, Rev. J. S. Brokaw, of Malden, Mass.

The residents of Mountainside are circulating a petition asking the Borough Council to grant a franchise to the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company to run a trolley road on Mountain avenue from the Westfield township line to the line dividing Springfield township.

—Fancy lemons, 12c. per dozen, at Scheuer & Co.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Preußen.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Eine Organisation der Dienstmädchen zusammen mit den Dienern hat sich in Gestalt eines Unterstützungsvereins gebildet. — Pfarrer Ohly in Elberfeld ist zum Hofprediger an der hiesigen Domkirche ernannt worden.—Die fünf Jahre alte Tochter des Handelsmannes Wilhelm Schwalowski fiel in der Nähe der Ebertsbrücke in die Spree. Sie wurde durch den 18 Jahre alten Arbeiter Ernst Schulze, Artilleriestraße 31, der dem Kinde über das Brückengeländer in das Wasser nachsprang, mit eigener Lebensgefahr gerettet.—Hier machte der Börsenmakler Leeser seinem Leben ein Ende, weil er große Verluste an der Börse erlitten hatte.

Charlottenburg. Polizeilich verboten wurde das Auftreten des Thierbändigers Mario mit seinen dressirten Panthern, der in der hiesigen „Flora" ein längeres Gastspiel eröffnen sollte und bereits den Engagementsvertrag unterzeichnet hatte. Das Verbot erfolgte mit Rücksicht auf die Gefährlichkeit der in Aussicht genommenen Produktionen für das Publikum.

Fürstenwalde. Den Tod durch Ertrinken fand beim Baden in der Spree an verbotener Stelle der elfjährige Sohn des Schirmmachers Fischer. Die Mutter und seine zwei Geschwister waren Zeugen des Vorfalles.

Potsdam. Bei einem Brande in Frankenfelde fanden vier Kinder des Domeke'schen Ehepaares, sämmtlich Knaben, einen schrecklichen Flammentod.

Spandau. Im Kampf mit jungen Burschen, Knechten und Handwerkern in dem Dorfe Berge tödtete der Gendarm Fitzner bei einer Tanzfestlichkeit einen jungen Maurergesellen aus Nauen durch einen Revolverschuß in die Brust. Die Gegner hatten dem Beamten vorher den Säbel entrissen, die Waffe zerbrochen und waren dann mit Messern auf den Gendarm losgegangen. Darauf griff dieser zum Revolver.

Provinz Hannover.

Hannover. Die Einweihung der neuerbauten thierärztlichen Hochschule hierselbst findet am 11. Oktober statt.

Emden. Abweichend von den im deutschen Reiche geltenden Bestimmungen ist für das hiesige große Telegraphenamt vom Reichspostamt eine Personalbeförderung angeordnet worden. Es sollen von jetzt an junge Beamte unter 16 Jahren, welche das Einjährigenzeugniß besitzen und der englischen Sprache mächtig sind, angenommen werden. Diese jungen Leute sollen vornehmlich für den Rekorderdienst Verwendung finden. Der Rekorderapparat ist ein besonders empfindlicher und schwer zu bedienender und findet für die großen transatlantischen Seekabel Verwendung. Es strebt deshalb die Reichspost- beziehungsweise Telegraphenverwaltung dahin, möglichst junge Leute für diesen schwierigen Dienst vorzubereiten.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Eschwege. Hier waren mehrere Arbeiter bei dem Umbau eines Stalles beschäftigt, als die Decke einstürzte, wobei der Zimmermann Schreiber von Abterode sofort getödtet wurde. Der Bauunternehmer Zimmermeister Peter aus Wellingerode, die Tochter des Bauherrn Schlosser Schäfer und dessen Schwiegervater wurden schwer verletzt.

Frankfurt. Das hiesige Schwurgericht verurtheilte den Dachdecker Kolimann, der am 11. März ohne Veranlassung den Portier Müller erstach, zu 7½ Jahren Zuchthaus.

Hanau. In Wiesbaden verschied der frühere Großindustrielle August Leonhard, Begründer der chemischen Fabrik in Mühlheim, die später in eine Aktiengesellschaft umgewandelt wurde. Der Verstorbene war bei den letzten Wahlen zum Reichstage und Landtage Kandidat der freisinnigen Volkspartei in unserem Wahlkreise.

Provinz Pommern.

Stettin. Das Verschwinden des bisher allgemein geachteten Eierhändlers Hermann Ott erregt hier beträchtliches Aufsehen. Derselbe soll sich mit Hinterlassung einer Schuldenlast von 40,000 Mark nach Amerika geflüchtet haben. Der gewissenlose Mensch hat seine Familie im größten Elend sitzen lassen.

Bütow. Die Ortschaften Klein- und Groß-Tuchen wurden von einer verheerenden Feuersbrunst heimgesucht, bei welcher 17 Gebäude abbrannten. Auch die katholische Kirche brannte vollständig nieder, die Glocken schmolzen; dem Amtsvorsteher sind allein sieben Gebäude abgebrannt. Ein Verlust an Menschenleben ist nicht zu beklagen. Man vermuthet, daß das Feuer durch Brandstiftung auskam.

Provinz Posen.

Birnbaum. In der Stadt Schwerin sind in Folge Wassergenusses aus dem Obrafluß Typhusfälle vorgekommen. Da die Trinkwasserverhältnisse dort schlecht sind, wird eine weitere Zunahme der Erkrankungen trotz der von der Behörde getroffenen Maßnahmen befürchtet.

Koschmin. Der Schuhmacher Seller, Scheibenanzeiger des hiesigen Schützenvereins, wurde auf dem Schießstand in Folge eines unglücklichen Zufalls erschossen. Die Fahne, welche Seller aufgesteckt hatte, damit nicht geschossen werde, war umgefallen.

Public Sale of Real Estate.

City of Plainfield.

NOTICE is hereby given that by virtue of a warrant issued by William N. Runyon, Esq., City Judge of the City of Plainfield, in the County of Union, to make the unpaid taxes assessed on lands, tenements, hereditaments and real estate in said City of Plainfield in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, the subscriber, the officer nominated and appointed by the Common Council for that purpose, will on the 14th day of September, 1899, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon at the Collector's office, No. 109 Park Avenue, in the City of Plainfield sell the land, tenements, hereditaments and real estate, hereunder described, at public vendue, for the shortest time for which any person or persons will agree to take the same and pay such taxes, together with the interests thereon, and costs, fees, charges and expenses.

FASHION NOTES.

Dainty Trimmings and Fashionable Accessories.

Little choux of black velvet are immensely employed as a trimming. They are used on the front of the bodice, on the collar, belt or hat, to fasten a fichu or to drape a corsage. The velvet is of the narrowest ribbon width.

Costumes of ninon, coutil and galatea cloth are made almost exclusively in the tailor style. Heavy guipure or embroidery may be used if an elaborate trimming is required, but plain stitching and stitched straps are the usual finish.

The four leaved clover is still a favorite bit of jewelry, whether it is in the form of a brooch, stickpin or pendant, or is a real clover leaf placed under crystal.

Narrow scarfs, or, more properly speaking, wide boas of white, black or colored gauze or net are a fashionable accompaniment of light summer costumes.

LEGHORN HAT.

They are often dotted with chenille, and the edge of the frills is finished with the narrowest of satin ribbon.

The hat of which an illustration is given, is of fine, soft leghorn straw. It is lifted at the left side by a large bow of white tulle and lilac clusters. A drapery of white tulle covers the crown, held in by a garland of white lilacs and foliage. The lilacs are not plain white, but have délicate tinges of pink and lavender.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SUMMER GOWNS.

Cool Costumes For Traveling and Other Wear.

Dotted materials are always among the summer goods, but this year a variation is introduced by having the dots of unequal size, sprinkled upon the goods at irregular intervals. In percales, silks and challies these effects are seen, the ground being mainly of red, pink or some shade of blue and the dots white. The coloring is also reversed, white grounds being shown with colored dots. The dark blue foulard or china silk costume with white dots is found in almost every woman's summer wardrobe.

Fine mohair is much used for tailor made gowns, especially for traveling, as it is thin, light and sheds dust. An attractive gown of this goods is of a medium gray and has a white pique vest fastened with crystal buttons.

The costume shown in today's illustration is of plain and striped goods combined. The lower skirt is of blue and white striped wool, and over it is a tunic of plain blue cheviot, scalloped and edged with white braid. The little, open coat is tight at the back and has a scalloped basque and striped revers and collar, the edges being bordered with white braid. Beneath this is a close vest of striped goods, which shows a white shirt bosom and a black cravat. The sleeves are finished with striped goods at the wrist, and both bodice and sleeves are adorned with stitched straps of blue cheviot. The hat of blue straw is trimmed with white tulle and white feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Salmon.

Salmon, when in perfection, is one of the most delicious and nutritive of fish. The oil is distributed through the flesh, and for this reason it proves rather hard of digestion for some people. The richness, however, can always be corrected by the use of an acid or piquante sauce.

WOMEN'S REALM

Coral Velvet Hat.

Some of the hats seen at a fashionable milliner's are extremely original. One of these, represented in the illustration, is a toque, with the crown wide at the base and diminishing in width to the top. It is made of coral velvet embroidered all over with silver and steel. The brim, which turns up all round and is shaped into four corners, is ornamented with stitching.

CORAL VELVET HAT.

It is split upon the left side, and is trimmed with a twist of coral velvet, made into a loop, which runs each side of the hat beneath the brim. In the split is a handsome strass crescent, in which are fixed two white ostrich feathers, upright. The sides and ends of these feathers are tipped with chinchilla.

History of Pocket Handkerchiefs.

Until the reign of the Empress Josephine a handkerchief was thought in France so shocking an object that a lady would never have dared to use it before any one. The word, even, was carefully avoided in refined conversation. An actor who would have used a handkerchief on the stage, even in the most tearful moments of the play, would have been unmercifully hissed; and it was only in the beginning of the present century that a celebrated actress, Mlle. Duchesnois, dared to appear with a handkerchief in her hand. Having to speak of this handkerchief in the course of the piece, she never could summon enough courage to call it by its true name, but referred to it as "a light tissue."

A few years later, says Woman's Life, a translation of one of Shakespeare's plays, by Alfred de Vigny, having been acted, the word handkerchief was used for the first time on the stage, amid cries of indignation from every part of the house.

It is doubtful if even to-day French ladies would carry handkerchiefs if the wife of Napoleon I. had not given the signal for adopting them.

The Empress Josephine, although really lovely, had bad teeth. To conceal them she was in the habit of carrying small handkerchiefs, adorned with costly laces, which she constantly raised gracefully to her lips. Of course, all the ladies of the court followed her example, and handkerchiefs then rapidly became an important part of the feminine toilet.

med with sable tails and cerise ribbon and fastened with rosettes of the same ribbon. The sleeves are trimmed with lace.

Dangers of Laughter.

It is suprising to learn from the highest medical authority in England that laughter may be injurious.

Laughter in itself, cannot very well kill, but it may do harm. Hysterical girls and boys with kindred nervous affections are often given to immoderate laughter, which tends to increase nervous exhaustion.

Dr. Feilchenfeld relates an instructive case in which a little girl suffered from very definite cardiac symptoms after immoderate laughter. The patient was thirteen years old, and had previously been free from any sign of heart disease. After laughing on and off for nearly an hour with some companions, she suddenly felt stabbing pains in the chest and was seized with fits of coughing, followed by cardiac dyspnoea, very well marked. Feilchenfeld believes that the cardiac disease directly resulted from immoderate laughing.

Women Dress Artists.

Women are developing the new profession of the dress artist. Dress artists are professional shoppers, who go to the home of the woman who is too busy to do her own shopping, take an inventory of her needs, the contents of the pocketbook, and later provide her with an outfit selected especially for her. The commission received for this service varies from $3 to $5, and it is often added to by the store proprietors to whom the dress artists bring trade.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 13—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—A service of promises.—John xiv, 1-14.

The preciousness, number and variety of God's promises in Christ are strikingly illustrated in this passage of Scripture. God's fidelity to His promises is also revealed, for some of them have already been fulfilled. Here are 14 verses, the dying words of Christ to His disciples. And yet laden down with the richest and most precious promises, in their extent embracing the end of time—yes, even the breadth of eternity. Let us study some of these invaluable promises here recorded.

1. The promise of a future home in heaven. "In My Father's house are many mansions. * * * I go to prepare a place for you * * * that where I am there ye may be also." What a precious promise we have here. Millions of dying pillows have been lightened by it and millions of broken, bereaved hearts comforted by these priceless words of Christ. No promise of Christ is more often read than this one. None has brought greater comfort and strength to His disciples amid the afflictions, bereavements, temptations and hardships of life.

2. The promise of His second coming. "I will come again." If they had only understood Him, how the disciples would have been comforted in the midst of their sorrows, how they would have been inspired to increased zeal and fidelity in His cause. Christ has gone from earth, but, most precious promise, He is coming again.

3. The promise of power, "He that believeth in Me, the works that I do, shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto My Father." Divine power is here promised. The work that Christ did the disciples were to do and even greater works. Christ was going to His Father, the source of all power, and thence He would be able to give them even greater power. This promise was fulfilled to the disciples. The power of Christ became their power. They performed miracles, as He had performed them, and even greater spiritual works were performed by them after the Holy Ghost came. By belief, by faith we can possess this power to do wonderful works for Christ.

4. The promise to answer prayer, "If ye shall ask anything in My Name, I will do it." Oh, the privilege and power of prayer. We may not understand the philosophy of prayer, but we can accept the promise of Christ to answer our prayers.

How precious, how priceless these promises, but they are only so to those who believe them and act upon them. Let us do so, for "He is faithful who hath promised."

Bible Readings.—Num. xxiii, 19; Deut. vii, 9; Josh. xxiii, 14; Ps. lxxxix, 1-4; cv, 42; Luke i, 69-75; Rom. i, 1, 2; iv, 20, 21; II Cor. i, 19, 20; Eph. iii, 1-7; II Tim. i, 1; Titus i, 1, 2; Heb. vi, 10-20; viii, 6; x, 23; II Pet. i, 4.

Following Divine Leadings.

The temptation to believe that God doth not concern Himself directly with our individual affairs is incessant. In some cases it is due to our sense of being lost in the crowd, of the insignificance of an individual, no matter how important, in comparison with the millions of human beings whom God must have equally in mind with ourselves. In other cases it is due to genuine humility, to the conviction that we, at our best, are too humble to receive special divine aid. But God Himself has taught us the contrary. It is a characteristic of His infinite nature that He is able and willing to interest Himself in every one of His created beings, and that He literally does this. It is only acting the part of a true believer, therefore, to appreciate that divine leadings are vouchsafed to us for our following, nor does experience fail to confirm the fact. Thousands of believers have borne witness to it in emphatic language. Most of us, who have been Christians for any considerable time, have been conscious of it.—Congregationalist.

No Standing Still.

A perfect childhood is a growth. Jesus grew in stature and in favor with God and man. The child that does not develop is unhealthy. Growth is normal and necessary. So it is with a Christian. He must grow; there is no standing still for the child of God. Each new day should find him stronger and wiser—stronger to resist temptation and to serve the Master, and wiser in knowing his will and performing his work.—William T. Ellis.

Forgetfulness of Self.

A devout woman once wrote thus: "In my own family I try to be as little in the way as possible, satisfied with everything, and never to believe for a moment that any one means unkindly toward me. If people are friendly and kind to me, I enjoy it; if they neglect me or leave me, I am always happy alone. It all tends to my one aim—forgetfulness of self in order to please God."—Catholic Universe.

Hold Sorrow.

Hold sorrow till its most selfish aspect passes, till it turns its religious side to you, till time and experience and faith do their work, till you feel not its gloom, but its glory; not its cross, but its crown. Do not through any device lose its sanctifying influence, the greatest loss the soul can meet.—J. F. W. Ware.

The Only Religion.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 13. "A Service of Promises." Text, John xiv, 1-14.

"I will come again and receive you unto Myself."

Jesus had eaten the Passover supper with the apostles and then had told them of His intention to leave them for awhile, and that it would be impossible for them to follow Him. Three years they had followed Him, giving up all their previous business, and now the prospect of disbanding came suddenly upon them. The real facts of what was to occur—the crucifixion, resurrection, ascension, Pentecost—were all unknown to them and from the nature of the case could not even be surmised. It seemed as if the failure of all expectations was at hand, the collapse of all prospects of success in connection with this One, whom they had looked upon as the "anointed" of God.

It was impossible for Jesus to make matters more plain to them. That could only be done by the development of events.

But He could keep their courage alive by promises which would stimulate hope, awaken anticipation, and, as they were fulfilled, would make their faith stronger. He gives four promises of deepest import and widest scope:

1. Though He was to leave them, it was only that He might go ahead and prepare a place for them. This promise is not to the 11 alone, but is for Christ's followers in all ages. He is absent. We long to see Him. But in all our yearning for His presence there is the consciousness that He is busy. He is getting the new home ready. We are to prepare the bride, the church, for the great home coming. This is still preparation time for Him and us. By and by the marriage supper. Be diligent!

2. He promises to come and receive them to Himself. This also means all God's saints. Many ask, as Peter says in his epistle, "Where is the promise of His coming?" because all the little world in the rim of their heroism shows no change. But believers look for Him, work for Him, pray for His coming, and patiently wait. Be watchful and diligent!

3. He had done great works—healed the sick, opened the eyes of the blind, cured lepers, raised the dead and taught truth regarding God, man and the world as never man understood before. Moses had done great works, but Jesus surpassed him in wonders and wisdom. No man had ever spoken as He had; no one performed such prodigies. Now He promises "greater works than these shall ye do." That means His believers in all lands and for all time. How is it possible? It is incredible till Pentecost comes. Then, filled with power, sinful men, saved by grace, preach the truth, and sinners become saints. If possible, it is more wonderful than the work of the Sinless One. It continues. The Holy Ghost still inspires and the disciples still proclaim the gospel, and it still saves all who believe.

4. He throws wide open the doors of the Divine treasure house. He countersigns in advance every petition of His brethren. "Whatsoever ye shall ask in My name, that will I do." The only proviso is that it is asked in His name. We are coming to know the meaning of that more clearly as the years pass. "In His name!" Not for self, not in pride, anger, malice; humbly, lovingly, trustingly, all faith, all hope, all charity, is bound up in it, and He keeps His fourfold promise. Work and wait.

That Prayer Meeting.

I mean the regular midweek meeting of the church. When one is first converted and full of ardor, how regular he is in attendance and how ready to speak and pray! What life and spirit there is to the singing and the greetings at the close! What desire and persuasion that others attend and take part! All goes so well and our spiritual life grows strong and full. Then there comes too often a period of drifting. Something prevents attendance for a week or two, interest slackens with absence, and then the service is neglected, duties are forgotten or refused and the soul is adrift. How is it with yourself?

It is easy to say, "I am as good a Christian as ever." But the fact remains, if you neglect the prayer meeting instead of using it as in times past you are not as good a Christian, but weaker, less helpful to others, farther from God, less joyous, hopeful and faithful. You need the prayer meeting.

The Quiet Hour.

Many of those who have reached the upper heights of Christian experience have been in the habit of having a special time each day set apart for reading the Bible, meditation and prayer. Whoever would learn anything must take time and concentrate thought upon it. No one can become acquainted with the things of God without taking time and giving thought to it. One may "say his prayers" through a long lifetime and yet never understand what prayer is. One may live in God's world till old age and yet never come to know God. If you have any desire after godliness and purity of heart and life, set apart some time in each day when you can shut out all the world and shut yourself in with Him. Then sit at Jesus' feet and let Him talk to you through the Bible, through the Holy Spirit. Is not this thing needful in your life?

In His Presence.

Lord, what a change within us one short hour
Spent in Thy presence will avail to make;
What heavy burdens from our bosoms take;
What parched grounds refresh as with a shower!
We kneel, and all around us seems to lower;
We rise, and all—the distant and the near—
Stands out in sunny outline, brave and clear.
We kneel, how weak! We rise, how full of power!
Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
Or others that we are not always strong;
That we are ever overborne with care;
That we should ever weak or restless be,
Anxious or troubled, when with us is prayer,
And joy and strength and courage are with Thee!

ODDITIES OF POISONING.

Some People May Safely Eat Certain Food Which Would Be Poison to Others.

The constitutional differences and peculiarities which exist among individuals should always be carefully watched and considered. One person can handle poison ivy with impunity while another is poisoned if only in the vicinity of the vine and without contact. Some members of a family residing in a malarial district will suffer regularly with chills and fever, while other members will not be at all affected.

Food that is actually poisonous to some persons, will not so act on others. One person may eat all kinds of green fruit and vegetables with impunity, while another person could do so only at the risk of life. Certain kinds of fish are actually poisonous to some people and perfectly wholesome to others.

It is this peculiar condition of the system which constitutes the danger point in the individual case and should be prudently observed by each one for himself. Intestinal derangements frequently arise from and are aggravated by certain kinds of food. Thus a person affected with kidney or liver trouble should not eat very white bread since the extreme whiteness is often produced by the use of alum with an inferior article of flour, and as alum is known to be poisonous in its effects on a sound constitution, this is why alum baking powder is never used by people of judgment and discretion.

More of earthly happiness depends upon what we eat than many people realize and it is for this reason that the different states are one by one passing pure-food laws.

HE SHOT TO KILL.

A Negro Trooper's Quick and Accurate Aim at a Sharpshooter.

In another part of the armory I found some men in the hospital corps, of whom 18 went to Cuba with the Seventy-first, says a writer in Leslie's Weekly. Among these was Dr. Robert Froelich, who told me a good sharpshooter's story.

"It was on the morning of July 2," he said, "and I was going down the Savilla road toward El Caney, when I came up with a detachment of artillery that pretty well blocked the way. One of the men sung out to me to keep my eyes open for sharpshooters, who were picking off soldiers all about. I had gone a hundred yards or so when I heard the peculiar bzt of a low-flying ball, the dangerous kind—quite a different sound to the bee-ee-ee of a ball singing over your head, which can't hurt you.

"I dropped quickly behind a gun and studied the trees to find out, if I could where that ball had came from. Just then a big buck nigger came down the road whistling as if he was going to a ball. He carried a carbine and a lot of water bottles. I was just thinking that he had better be careful, when a bullet sailed past his head so closely that he must have got the wind of it. And he hadn't taken three steps more before another bullet came by closer yet.

"'Dat man's gettin' real pesky.' I heard the nigger say, and then he threw himself on the ground like a football player making a hard tackle. And as he crouched he, too studied the trees, and I could picture that he was an old indian fighter, and knew the tricks of the business. For two or three minutes he never moved nor made a sound. Then he sprang up as suddenly as he had gone down, and fired his carbine as a man would drop his pistol, like a flash, without taking aim. At least, I don't see how he had time to aim, but instantly after the shot I saw a disturbance in a very tall cocoanut palm, and presently as I watched, I saw a rifle drop from the branches, and then a dark body come tumbling to the ground a clean fall of 50 feet.

"'Guess dat's one moah foh me.' said the nigger, and, without further interest in the matter, he picked up his water bottles, which had fallen to the ground, and went down the road whistling as before.

"'Ef you boys wants dat Spanish gen'lmun, you can have him,' he called out, as he started off, and two or three of us hurried to the spot where the sharpshooter had fallen. Some of them said he was a Frenchman. I don't know how they made that out. I only know that he wore a tight-fitting skull cap, and had two large palmleaves pinned over his breast, so as to give better concealment in the tree. Up there in the crotch was a little platform which had supported him, and on it was food and water. We found about 400 Mauser shells strapped about his body, and he would doubtless have used everyone of them on us if our colored friend hadn't stopped him. I don't think I ever saw a quicker or prettier shot than that.

ZEAL THAT FAILED.

A Telegraph Operator's Effort to Please an Official by Attention to Duty.

"The first office that I found myself in possession of," said the retired telegraph operator, "was a little way station where there was not much else to do but to report the trains. I had the night trick, and the trains being few and far between I spent most of my time dreaming of advancement. One night soon after I had taken the office I was called to the key to receive a message that came over the wire addressed to a railroad official who chanced to be visiting some relative who lived about three miles from the office where I was.

"'Violet is dying,' the message read, and those three words sent the shivers up and down my back, as I saw with my imagination a fair-haired, blue-eyed little girl dying, with her father away from home. Then it suddenly flashed upon me that here was a chance to win promotion by hurrying the message out where the father was. I was alone in the office, and there was no one living near by whom I could send it.
